GIFFORD PINCHOT.

REASONS FOR PARDONS GRANTED BY THE GOVERNOR FROM JANUARY 1, 1925, TO JANUARY 1, 1927.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Governor's Office.

Harrisburg, January 4, 1927.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I have the honor to present herewith the reasons for pardons granted by me from January 1, 1925 to January 1, 1927.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., January 21, 1925.

Sir: At No. 18, November Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Joseph Diano was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on July 25, 1924, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is thirty-six years of age and owes allegiance to the Kingdom of Italy. He came to the United States in 1912, residing first in Buffalo, New York, for a period of thirteen months after which he removed to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, where he resided when convicted of the present crime. He is by occupation a retail fruit and vegetable dealer. He was married before he came to this country and has two minor children.

The events which culminated in the tragedy are these:

The applicant preceded his wife to America by nine months. After his departure she became dissolute and contracted syphilis. When the applicant had acquired sufficient funds he brought her and her infant son to this country. She communicated this dread disease to her husband. As the result of a medical investigation she was adjudged a menace and deported to Italy in August, 1916. After fervent appeals from the wife for forgiveness and reconciliation he finally, in 1921, forwarded sufficient money to bring his wife and family to this country. They arrived in April, 1921. Her syphilictic condition was unimproved. After six months medical treatment, she relapsed into evil ways, which resulted in May, 1923, in a final separation. The real cause of the separation was her evil conduct and the physical ailment. The wife lived in rooms in Pittsburgh and led an adulterous life. July 24, 1923, the wife's mother visited the applicant with a view of effecting a reconciliation between husband and wife, and the applicant, yielding to her supplications, finally went to visit his wife in order to be reconciled. He carried in his coat pocket a revolver which he had purchased sometime previously after a robbery, for purposes of self-protection. After conferring together, the wife flew into a violent rage, ordered him out, threatened to kill him, and turning to a sewing machine in the room snatched a revolver from the drawer, brandished it, and he, fearing that she would kill him, drew his own revolver and shot her, from the effects of which she died ten days later.

In consideration of the events which led up to this tragedy, and the wife's actions and threat to kill during the fatal interview, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

D. J. DAVIS,
Lieutenant Governor.

CLYDE L. KING,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

GEO. W. WOODRUFF,
Attorney General.

JAS. F. WOODWARD,
Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Board of Pardons.

Sir: At Nos. 7 and 7½, November Term, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Walter K. Mellon was convicted of assault and battery with intent to kill, and robbery, and on January 8, 1923, was sentenced on the charge of robbery to pay a fine of $10.00, costs and to to undergo imprisonment in the Montgomery County Prison for a term of four years and six months. Sentence on the other charge was suspended.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, and a native-born citizen of the United States. His occupation is that of clerk, and he was employed by the Estate of his father, Frank P. Mellon, deceased. He is unmarried and at the time of his arrest resided in Bryn Mawr with his mother, sister and one brother.

On May 10, 1922, about 9:30 P. M., Frank Yannessa, a taxicab driver, was engaged at Thirteenth and Market Streets, Philadelphia, by a man who stated he wanted to go to Bryn Mawr to bring a wedding party from there to the cafe of the Majestic Hotel, Philadelphia. The man took a seat beside the driver and the car proceeded towards Bryn Mawr. About 10:30 o'clock, while the car was passing through Haverford, the man who had hired the car, without warning, drew a revolver and shot the driver, Yannessa, twice on the right side of the head rendering him unconscious and inflicting serious injuries. Yannessa testified that eight dollars in cash and a stick pin, worth one hundred and fifty dollars, were missing from his person when he regained consciousness. Shortly thereafter he was taken to the hospital where he remained four weeks. On September 16, 1922, Yannessa was brought to the jail in Ardmore, Montgomery County where the applicant was confined, and he identified the latter as the man who did the shooting, although he had only seen him that one time. The applicant was then arrested, tried and convicted as before stated. His defense on the trial was mistaken identity and an alibi. In this defense he was supported by the testimony of his mother, brother, sister and, three other disinterested persons. The mother, sister and one McKeown, testified that on the night in question the applicant accompanied them from their home in Bryn Mawr to Nineteenth and Hunting Park Avenue, Philadelphia, where they all attended the Ringling circus; that they left Bryn Mawr about 8:30 P. M. and arrived at the circus grounds about 9:15 P. M. They remained there or in the neighborhood of the grounds until about midnight, during the whole of which time the applicant was continuously in their presence. The brother testified that he had driven them from their home in Bryn Mawr to the circus grounds where he left them. He returned for them with the automobile and found them about midnight waiting for him at a restaurant stand owned by Arthur Bryant. Bryant testified that on the night in question, the applicant, his mother, sister and McKeown waited at his place of business from a little after ten o'clock until after midnight when the brother called from them in an automobile and took them away. After the conviction of the applicant new evidence was discovered to prove the alibi upon which the defense rested. A report of the trial and conviction appeared in the newspaper which was read by John Eyre Shaw who remembered that he had been at the circus on the day and at the place in question accompanied by his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Latta and Mr. Armstrong, and that while in a side show of the circus he saw the applicant with the other members of his family, and that the time was a little after ten o'clock. Mr. Shaw was corroborated by the other members of the party, knew the applicant, and his testimony and that of his companions strongly supports the alibi which was established.

Two taxicab drivers filed affidavits with the Board stating that they had been solicited by a stranger to take him to Bryn Mawr on the evening of May 10, 1922, and that after they refused he hired Yannessa and drove away with him, and that this person bore no physical resemblance to the applicant.

The applicant has now served two years of his term of imprisonment. He was only twenty years of age when the alleged crime was committed. Nine of the ten jurors available filed a statement with the Board requesting clemency. The Warden and Superintendent of the Prison recommend pardon. Frank L. Tack, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, a reputable oil producer, has offered to become sponsor for the applicant's future welfare and behavior, if he is liberated.

In consideration of all the cricumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant, when the alleged crime was committed, the term of imprisonment already served, the real doubt as to the identity of the criminal, the after-discovered evidence of five disinterested persons which establishes a complete alibi, and the offer of a reputable citizen of Oklahoma to furnish the applicant employment and a home, and to become responsible for his future conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions." recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Walter K. Mellon.

Sir: At Nos. 100 and 101, September Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Montgomery, Francis Hynes pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with felonious entry and larceny, and on September 20, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $10.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than four years.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, a mechanic by occupation, and has resided in the City of Philadelphia during his entire life.

On the night of August 23, 1922, the applicant, together with Cornelius Troutman, Anthony Leonard, John Ott and John Smith, were arrested in the vicinity of Narberth Station on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad by officers of Lower Merion Township, accompanied by railroad police who had received information that certain goods which had been taken the night before from freight cars were to be carried away on that night. These men were attacked by the officers before they reached the spot where the goods were concealed and they fled. The officers opened fire upon them and Smith was shot, and the other men were captured and held for trial. The applicant made no statement before the magistrate, but entered a plea of guilty when the case was called for trial. Troutman pleaded guilty, but Leonard and Ott pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods, and the name of John Smith was stricken from the bill of indictment. Troutman received the same sentence as the applicant, while Leonard and Ott were both sentenced and paroled in April, 1923.

The applicant has served two years and four months of his term of imprisonment. His prior record was good, with the exception of a short sentence in the county prison for assault and battery. He has an excellenct prison record. He served for more than two years in the Regular Army and was honorably discharged in 1915 as a Corporal. In 1917, he re-enlisted in the United States Army and served in France from July, 1918, to May, 1919. His military record is excellent.

Major Fellman, Warden of the Montgomery County Prison, has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the prior good record of the applicant, with a minor exception, his excellent prison record, the recommendation of Major Fellman, Warden of the County Prison, and the further fact that two of the men who participated in the crime have been released in April, 1923, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Francis Hynes.

Sir: At No. 55, September Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, Robert Franklin Riley pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and escaping, and on May 17, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of one dollar, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than two years nor more than three years. Sentence to be computed from the expiration of a sentence from Cumberland County for larceny. The said sentence expired September 19, 1923.

The applicant is thirty years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and a blacksmith by occupation. At the time of his arrest for larceny he was running a thrashing machine for Frank Fry, in Carlisle, Cumberland County. His home was in Baltimore. He was divorced from his wife in 1921, and has a mother, sixty-five years of age, living.

On December 2, 1919, he was sentenced by the Cumberland County Court to a term of not less than two years nor more than three years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. In May, 1921, he was transferred to the prison farm at Rockview, Centre County, and on July 26, 1921, walked away. He went to California and was brought back to Centre County, in April, 1922.

The applicant has now served his full term of three years for larceny, and has served one year and three months for the escape.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency. The Trustees of the Penitentiary also recommend pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge, and Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Robert Franklin Riley.

Sir: At No. 82, September Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, Francis Dash alias Francis John Dash pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and escaping, and on September 28, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of one dollar, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than three years. Sentence to compute after completion of present sentence from Erie County for larceny.

The applicant is twenty-three years of age and a native-born American citizen. His occupation was that of marine firemen on steamers traversing the Great Lakes. He resided with his mother in the City of Erie, and is unmarried.

The applicant was convicted in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace of Erie County for the crime of breaking and entering, and larceny, and on October 26, 1920, was sentenced by the Court to serve in the Western State Pentitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than three years. He was subsequently transferred to the Rockview Prison farm, and on September 29, 1924, escaped. He was arrested two days later five miles distant from the prison, and was tried and sentenced for the escape as before stated.

The applicant completed the maximum sentence imposed by the Erie County Court for larceny on October 26, 1920, and he has now served one year and four months of his term of imprisonment for the escape.

The Trial Judge his filed with the Board a letter recommending clemency. The Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary also recommend pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge and the Trustees of he Western State Penitentiary, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 401, March Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Schuylkill, Frank Gelespie alias Frank M. Gillespie, was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on March 9, 1914, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than fourteen years.

The applicant is fifty-six years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and colored. His occupation is that of musician. He is unmarried, and his residence was with his aunt in the City of Brooklyn, New York.

On February 12, 1914, the applicant, who had been playing in Minersville, returned to his boarding house in Pottsville about 11:00 P. M. When he arrived there he found that his landlady had gone to a neighbor's house occupied by Mrs. Penn, colored, a widow, and her family consisting of a son James, twenty-one years of age and some smaller children. The applicant went to the Penn home where he found gathered a group of friends and neighbors enjoying themselves. All the persons present were colored. There was music, and beer and whiskey were consumed by the party. About midnight James, Penn, the oldest son, under the influence of liquor, forced his way into the parlor where the company was assembled. He was an athlete and had a local reputation for prize-fighting and football playing. Upon his entry he became quarrelsome and picked upon the applicant for an alleged wrong which he fancied had been offered his mother. After a few words he started towards the applicant who told him to sit down and asked what was the matter with him. Instead of seating himself, Penn declared his intention of killing the applicant and rushed upon him. The latter, fearing the prowess of Penn and believing that he would kill him, drew a revolver and fired. The bullet struck Penn and he died several days later from the effects of the shot. There had never been any prior difficulty between the applicant and the deceased. The applicant explained his possession of the revolver by stating that he had taken it with him to Minersville on that night for protection because he had been attacked in that town when he was playing there a few nights before and had forgotten to take it out of his pocket before going to the Penn home.

The applicant has now served ten years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment, nearly the minimum term imposed by the Court. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

There was filed with the Board a letter, addressed to Dr. Linn Bowman, Trustee of the Eastern State Penitentiary, in which the Trial Judge states that he never advised the Board what to do, but authorized Dr. Bowman to state to the Board that he had no objection to a pardon in this case. Dr. Bowman informed the Board that the Trial Judge had indicated to him verbally that he favored clemency. The Trustees and the Chaplain of the Eastern State Pentitentiary also recommend pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, and the fact that the Trial Judge, and the Trustees and Chaplain of the Eastern State Penitentiary recommend clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Gelespie alias Frank M. Gillespie.

Sir: At No. 46, September Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Monroe, Samuel Wichner was convicted of robbery and assault, and on April 7, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a period of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a managing baker by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed as managing baker of the business of his father, located in the City of Wilkes-Barre. He is unmarried and resided with his parents in that City.

On the night of August 26, 1922, Isidor Landau, together with two companions, was driving a motor truck from Mount Pocono to Wilkes-Barre. Another truck came alongside and two men, with pointed pistols, jumped on the running boards of the Landau truck and stopped it. It soon became apparent that Landau was not the person intended to be held-up and almost immediately the hold-up men left the running board and allowed Landau to proceed. These two hold-up men were afterwards identified as McCormick and Klein. There was no robbery and no attempted robbery, and no search of any member of the party. After Landau and his companions resumed their journey they met the applicant with his motor truck and he waved to them and got on the running board and said, "We didn't know it was you, we thought it was a booze truck from Pottsville and we made a mistake and held you up." The applicant did not specify the purpose of the intended hold-up, whether for robbery or otherwise. This admission of the applicant was the only evidence to connect him with the hold-up and alleged robbery. McCormick, Klein and the applicant were jointly indicted, but McCormick and Klein have never been brought to trial.

The applicant has now served nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crimes. His father requires his assistance as the operating manager of a baking business which is necessary for the support of a family of ten.

The Mayor of Wilkes-Barre has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends clemency because of the applicant's prior good record and the need which his family have of his assistance.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the meagre and uncertain testimony which connects the applicant with the crime, which was committed in his absence, and because of the recommendation of the Mayor of Wilkes-Barre, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Samuel Wichner.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen, twenty-five years of age, a laborer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and resided in Emporium with his father. He is unmarried.

On October 1, 1922, the applicant, and one Howard Holcomb, broke and entered the dwelling house of Reverend D. F. Curley, in the Borough of Emporium, in the nighttime, and took therefrom personal preperty to the value of fifty dollars.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent. His aged father requires his support.

The Trial Judge, the Trial District Attorney, the County Commissioners and Clerk of the Courts, strongly recommend clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his aged father has of support, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge, the Trial District Attorney, the County Commissioners and the Clerk of the Courts, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 2, January Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cameron, Howard Holcomb pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and entering in the night, and larceny, and on October 27, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than five years.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen and twenty-nine years of age. He is a laborer and paper hanger by occupation. At the time of his arrest he was a locomotive fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad and resided in the Borough of Emporium, Cameron County, with his wife and three children, aged seven, five and three years respectively.

On October 1, 1922, the applicant, and one Clyde Speaker, broke and entered the dwelling house of Reverend D. F. Curley, in the Borough of Emporium, in the nighttime and took therefrom personal property to the value of fifty dollars.

Sir. At No. 11, June Sessions, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Philip Valerdeta was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on June 28, 1913, was sentenced to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than sixteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, a native of and subject to the Kingdom of Italy. He is a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed at the National Tube Works in the Hazelwood District, City of Pittsburgh. He is unmarried.

The applicant shot and killed one Stephen Lamare on May 2, 1913, about 10:15 A. M., at the home of the latter in the City of Pittsburgh. The circumstances which led to the tragedy were as follows: During the year 1913, the applicant boarded with an Italian family by the name of Palmeria, to whose daughter, Domenica, he was engaged to be married, the license having been taken out in March, 1913. Domenica's sister was the second wife of Lamare. The latter objected to the proposed marriage, preferring that Domencia marry another. Lamare was known as one of the leaders of a Black Hand Society operating in the Hazlewood District. About this time the applicant began receiving Black Hand leters threatening his life. He turned the letters over to the police. The applicant went armed, being in fear on account of the threats made against his life. On May 2, 1913, when he returned from work he learned that Domenica was missing. He searched for her in the neighborhood and among relatives. It was suggested that Lamare might know of her whereabouts. The applicant, together with Domenica's brother, went to Lamare's home three times until they found her. The first time Lamare stated that he did not know where she was and produced an alleged letter from her which indicated that she had gone away with the applicant's rival. The applicant accused Lamare of being a White Slaver, and Lamare retorted with the accusation that the applicant was a police spy. Speech between the two men became excited. Lamare left the room stating that he was going to get another letter to show to the applicant. He returned without a letter, but with a knife or razor partially concealed in his sleeve. Lamare started toward the applicant with a threat to take his life. The applicant then fired the fatal shot. The applicant claimed that he had fired in defense of his life. All the evidence in the case pointed to voluntary manslaughter.

The applicant has now served eleven years and seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record has been excellent and the prison authorities recommend clemency. He was only twenty-two years of age when this crime was committed.

Charles B. Pritchard, the Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted the case, has filed with the Board a statement in which, after reviewing the case, he stated that during the trial the Trial Judge suggested the entry of a plea of voluntary manslaughter. He further states, that in his opinion, the jury would have been justified by the evidence in finding the defendant guilty of voluntary manslaughter and that the ends of justice have been fully met.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, the term of imprisonment already served, his prior good record, and in further consideration of the statements of the Trial District Attorney, which indicate that the conviction and sentence were erroneous and that the sentence was more severe than the facts justified, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Philip Valerdeta.

Moses pleaded guilty to indictment charging him with solicitation to commit sodomy and sodomy, and on December 14, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen and twenty-six years of age. At the time of his arrest he was a painter by occupation. He resided in the City of Reading with his wife and two children, aged five and three years respectively. His family is now being supported by the father-in-law of the applicant.

In August, 1821, the applicant was driving a grocery truck on a country route in Berks County. The crimes were committed upon boys who had accompanied him on the truck.

The applicant has now served two years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He is in bad physical condition as shown by the letters on file from physicians who made a physical examination.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the sentence was too severe, that the ends of justice have been met, that his family require support, and concludes by recommending a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the grave physical condition of the applicant, the undue severity of the sentence and the need which his family have of support and maintenance, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 20, February Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Peter Zebra was convicted of robbery, and on April 1, 1921, was sentenced to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years.

The applicant was born in America of Lithuanian parentage and is twenty-four years of age. He is a laborer by occupation and at the time of his arrest resided with his parents in the City of Pittsburgh. He is unmarried.

A motor truck, by night, was illegally transporting whiskey to Pittsburgh, and when it was near the city was stopped by a gang of seven men, including the applicant, and led by one John Kirk, who placed an automobile in front of the truck, forced the driver to leave and then drove the truck away. It was taken about two miles from the scene of the crime and unloaded, the liquor being stored in a field nearby. During the night several automobile loads were hauled away and disposed of and the remainder was stored in a barn nearby, where it was afterwards found with some of the gang in charge. This offense was committed on November 29, 1920. The applicant was only eighteen years of age and was solicited by one John Kirk and others, who were older men and had planned and engineered the robbery for their own gain, the applicant not profiting by the crime. All of the gang were tried, convicted and sentenced. John Kirk, the leader, was pardoned by this Board in September, 1924, and the others have either completed their sentences or been pardoned.

The applicant has now served three years and nine months of his term of imprisonment. His prior record was excellent and his prison record is good.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends a pardon. The Trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he neither recommends nor opposes clemency. Senator C. M. Barr in a letter filed strongly recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his destitute parents have of support and maintenance, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge and Senator Barr, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 84, February Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Robert Kintz pleaded nolo contendere to an indictment charging him with robbery and receiving stolen goods, and on April 6, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six and one-half years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is twenty years of age and a native-born citizen of the United States. He is unmarried and at the time of his arrest resided in the Borough of Sharpsburg, Allegheny County, with his parents whom he aided to support.

The applicant, and two others, on November 26, 1922, being armed with revolvers assaulted and robbed on the public highway one E. C. Burke of the sum of $10.00 and a Waltham watch. Aloysius McAdams taught the applicant freight riding and other unlawful depredations. He could operate an automobile and induced the applicant and other boys to go with him and use automobiles, not their own, for joy rides, and subsequently when the boys needed money McAdams suggested that they hold-up somebody, which was done. When the present crime was committed the applicant was only eighteen years of age, the youngest of the group, and was sent to the penitentiary instead of to the reformatory.

The applicant has now served nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which, while not recommending clemency, he states that public sentiment in the community favors a pardon. A numerously signed petition and many letters from the town in which the applicant lived have been filed with the Board asking pardon. Senator C. M. Barr also strongly recommend clemency.

McAdams, the leader of the gang, whose evil influence induced the applicant to commit this crime was sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory for a year and a half as punishment for his share in the commission of a series of crimes, of which the present one is a unit. He is now at liberty.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his parents have of his assistance in their support, the fact that the leader of the gang is now at liberty, and particularly because of the statements of the Trial District Attorney and Senator Barr, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 85, February Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Charels Kintz pleaded nole contendere to an indictment charging him with robbery and receiving stolen goods, and on April 6, 1923, was sentenced to the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three and one-half years nor more than four and one-half years.

The aplicant is twenty-three years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, and at the time of his arrest was employed by H. J. Heinz Company and resided in the Borough of Sharpsburg, Allegheny County, with his parents, whom he aided to support.

The applicant, together with three others, armed with revolvers, were charged with assaulting and robbing on the public highway two men, taking from them the sum of $42.00 and a pair of gloves. The applicant was under the evil influence of one Joseph Nethen who introduced him to a gang of boys who operated motor cars without the owners knowledge or consent, and finally engaged in robbery on the public highway.

The applicant has now served nine months of this term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only twenty-one years of age when the present offense was committed.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which, while not recommending clemency, he states that public sentiment in the community favors a pardon. A numerously signed petition and many letters from the town in which the applicant lived have been filed with the Board asking pardon. Senator C. M. Barr also strongly recommended clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his parents have of his assistance in their support, and particularly because of the statements of the Trial District Attorney and Senator Barr, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Kintz.

Sir: At No. 515, February Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia Morris D. Dalis was convicted of conspiracy to defraud, and on June 14, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of $250, and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of one year. Immediately after conviction and sentence an appeal from the judgment and sentence of the Court was taken to the Superior Court. but the judgment of the lower Court was affirmed and the applicant actually began his term of imprisonment in March, 1924, and has now served approximately ten months.

The applicant is thirty-one years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is married and at the time of his conviction resided with his wife in the City of Philadelphia where he had been engaged in the radio business.

The applicant, and one Arthur G. Liggett, in January, 1921, formed a co-partnership for the purpose of selling the stock of the Imperial Theatres Company, a corporation which had been in existence but a short time, and whose business consisted in acquiring and controlling moving picture theatres. Thomas Burke was induced to subscribe for six hundred shares of stock. The applicant represented that the company was doing a prosperous business, that it leased and owned a chain of moving picture theatres throughout the State, and that it was earning enough money to pay a dividend of twenty per cent, when as a matter of fact, the company at the time was insolvent, which was proven shortly thereafter when it became bankrupt.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He had himself purchased shares of the stock of this company and testified that he really believed in the future of the corporation, under proper management. It was shown on the trial that he had borne an excellent reputation, and that he served with distinction overseas for nearly two years as a Lieutenant in a Machine Gun Battalion. It further appeared that he not only lost his own investment in the enterprise, but turned over to the receiver his personal property in an effort to salvage funds for the benefit of the stockholders.

Assistant District Attornev Fox filed a letter with the Board in which he stated that he had personal knowledge of the applicant and that he believed if he were pardoned his future conduct would justify clemency. He expressed himself as favorable to a pardon, particularly because of the applicant's prior good record and the fact that the term of imprisonment has almost been completed.

In consideration of the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, and almost completed, and because of the statements of the Assistant District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, that if now released, he will prove himself a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Morris D. Dalis.

Sir: At Nos. 193, August Sessions, 1920, and 699, 700, 701, 844 and 845 September Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in and for the County of Philadelphia, Charles Thomas pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with burglary, larceny, operating an automobile without the consent of the owner, entering to steal and carrying concealed deadly weapons, and on November 16, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen, thirty years of age and unmarried. He is a machinist by occupation and has lived in Philadelphia all his life, except for eighteen months when he served in the United States Navy during the World War.

During his service in the Navy, while on a furlough, he came home and fell in with evil companions. He broke into the warehouse of Julius Gebauer and helped carry off bolts of cotton and woolen cloth. The goods were afterwards recovered. He also burglarized the house of Conley Shoemaker, entering at night without breaking, and took therefrom wearing apparel and jewelry. He also took and operated the automobile of Frederick E. Hurley, without the consent of the owner, and stole a tire therefrom. He also entered the saloon of Neill J. Duffy with intent to steal, carrying a loaded revolver.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. During his term he wrote a letter to Warden McKenty giving him full information as to the dope traffic which was carried on extensively in the prison. This letter was intercepted by the men implicated. He became a marked man. In April, 1921, he was badly beaten up by fellow prisoners. In October, 1922, was again attacked and had to go into the hospital on account of his injuries. On January 25, 1923, four of the inmates held him while a fifth man slashed his face and body, disfiguring him for life. His left arm was nearly severed and he may never be able to use it again. The character of his injuries is shown by the letter of the resident physician filed. None of those who attacked him were ever prosecuted, and all of these injuries he received since he has been in the penitentiary, and while in the care and under the protection of the prison authorities.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he does not recommend clemency, nor indicate a favorable attitude, but does not oppose pardon. Judge Monaghan requested the grand jury to investigate the assaults upon the applicant, and in a letter filed with the Board states that there is no doubt that he, the applicant, was brutally treated and h- been severely punished.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term imprisonment already served, because of the brutal treatment which the applicant received while under the care and protection of the prison authorities, and because of the necessity for immediate and better surgical attention than the prison affords, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Thomas.

Sir: At No. 678, August Sessions, 1922, in the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, James Fee was convicted of robbery, and on August 24, 1922, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than five years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, white, an American citizen by birth, a chauffer by occupation, unmarried and has lived in the City of Philadelphia for his entire life.

The applicant was twenty years of age when he was apprehended for robbery. He was charged with complicity in certain crimes committed by a gang of boys known as the "Lone Star Gang". He was indicted in three cases, but stoutly maintained his innocence. He was acquitted on two of the three charges, but convicted of the attempted robbery of a small store conducted by one Cecelia Rudy, located in the northeastern part of the City of Philadelphia.

He has now served two years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was only twenty years old when the alleged crime was committed. If liberated, employment has been offered him by James H. Moore, Carpenter and Builder, of Philadelphia.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter which evinces a favorable attitude to pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, the favorable attitude of the Trial Judge, and because of the fact that if released employment has been offered him by a responsible person, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Fee.

Sir: At No. 142, September Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, John Owens was convicted of kidnapping, and on September 21, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is thirty-nine years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, colored, unmarried, by occupation a laborer, and resided in the Borough of Wilkinsburg, Allegheny County.

On or about August 10, 1922, the applicant, in the morning, left his place of residence and went to the Borough of Rankin stopping to visit friends where he was given liquor to drink which caused him to become intoxicated. While wandering along the street in Swissvale, at or near the residence of George P. Hergenroeder, he accosted the young son of Hergenroeder, aged about thirteen months, and either led or carried the child to a confectionery store to purchase candy for it. He is fond of children. When he was returning with the child in the direction of its home, he was accosted by the mother and others, and at once surrendered the child and explained that he only desired to buy candy. He was forthwith arrested and charged with kidnapping and attempting to carry away a child, and was tried, convicted and sentenced as before stated. There was no testimony adduced during the trial to indicate that the applicant was prompted by malice or with intention of injuring the child or carrying it away other than for the purpose stated.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served two years and five months of his term of imprisonment.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he considers the sentence unduly severe, and that the Trial Judge, who is now dead, had expressed himself that the applicant had received a longer sentence than he deserved.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the favorable statement of the Trial District Attorney, and because of the fact that Major Robert M. Ewing, a reputable member of the Bar of Pittsburgh, has agreed to become sponsor for the future good behavior of the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Josh Owens.

Sir: At No. 1, March Term, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Armstrong, Peter Kloss alias Peter Kleas pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with burglary, felonious breaking and entering, and on January 30, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than six years.

The applicant is thirty years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried and a baker by occupation. At the time of his arrest he was employed and resided in Ford City, Armstrong County.

On the night of December 27, 1921, the applicant Nick Cieri and Costo Risto broke and entered the store of L. Hirschburg, in Ford City, and took therefrom merchandise to the value of about six hundred dollars. The stolen goods were taken to the home of Cieri, who was a man older than the applicant and the master mind in the perpetuation of the crime. The goods were there stored from the time of the burglary until the arrest of Cieri and the applicant on January 9, 1922, when most of the stolen merchandise was recovered. When the matter came before the Court, the applicant made a full statement of the transaction and promptly made a plea of guilty. Cieri likewise pleaded guilty and received a like sentence, but has since been pardoned and released from imprisonment. Risto has never been apprehended.

The applicant has now served three years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He is the only son and support of his father who is now seventy-seven years of age, in impaired health and unable to work.

The Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney have both filed letters with the Board in which they ask favorable consideration of the present application.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the fact that the chief instigator of the crime has since been pardoned, the need which his aged father has of his support, and the further fact that the Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney both favor clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Peter Kloss alias Peter Kleas.

Sir: At No. 500, April Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Joseph McManus was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on May 29, 1924, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, unmarried and has no regular occupation. He resided in the City of Philadelphia with his sister.

On April 13, 1923, John C. Emgable, Vice President and General Manager of the F. A. Havens Company, Contractors, was killed near Nineteenth and Perkiomen Streets, in the City of Philadelphia, about 10:00 A. M., and Joseph Trinkle, Joseph Sweeney, Edward Fertsch, Andrew Lawrence and the applicant were convicted of the crime. The killing was the unforeseen culmination of the robbery of Emgable and the circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime have been well established in Court. These five young men agreed to commit the robbery of Emgable and purchased a shotgun for the purpose of intimidation. It was Emgable's custom to draw money form the bank every Friday morning for the purpose of meeting the pay roll of the company, and then to return to his office several blocks distant from the bank. On the morning of the tragedy, the deceased followed his usual custom, and the young men drove in an automobile to the neighborhood and met him within a square of his office. The undisputed testimony of a disinterested eye witness clearly indicates that Trinkle walked up behind Emgable and held the gun at his back, while Andrew and the applicant stood in front of him and demanded the money. One of them took a wallet from the inside pocket of the coat of the deceased, after which they both turned and ran down the street. In the meantime Trinkle, who was laboring under nervous excitement, after the robbery was committed and after the two men had fled from the scene of the crime, pressed the trigger and shot and killed Emgable. Trinkle, Lawrence and Fertsch were each convicted of murder in the first degree, and Trinkle, who actually did the killing, has already paid the death penalty. Sweeney was convicted and sentenced for murder in the second degree.

The applicant was only eighteen years of age when this crime was committed, and was technically guilty of the offense, although not the actual perpetrator of the murder. At five years of age he was taken from his mother, who was a confirmed drunkard, and sent to the Soldiers' Orphans Industrial School at Scotland, Pennsylvania, and upon his release returned to his mother's home, and through the sinister influence which permeated it fell in with the crowd which brought about his present condition. The jury which convicted him recommended him to the mercy of the Court.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case and the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, we have concluded that the death penalty heretofore imposed by the Court should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir At No. 66, May Sessions. 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Andrew Lawrence was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on January 11, 1924, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, a driver by occupation and has resided in the City of Philadelphia for practically his whole life.

On April 13, 1923, John C. Emgable, Vice President and General Manager of the F. A. Havens Company, Contractors, was killed near Nineteenth and Perkiomen Streets, in the City of Philadelphia, about 10:00 A. M. and Joseph Trinkle, Joseph Sweeney, Edward Fertsch, Joseph McManus and the applicant were convicted of the crime. The killing was the unforeseen culmination of the robbery of Emgable and the circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime have been well established in Court. These five young men agreed to commit the robbery of Emgable and purchased a shotgun for the purpose of intimidation. Sweeney was convicted and sentenced for murder in the second degree.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. While technically guilty of murder in the first degree he was not the actual perpetrator of the crime, which was unpremeditated and unforeseen, and the result of nervous excitement on the part of Trinkle.

The Chaplain of the Philadelphia Protestant Episcopal City Mission has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency because the applicant had no knowledge that murder would be committed and had no part in the actual killing.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, we have concluded that the death penalty heretofore imposed by the Court should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At Nos. 22, 23, 24 and 25, August Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Washington, George Marchett alias George Malerick and Joe Carich alias Joe Karsh both pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with felonious entry, felonious entering and breaking, larceny, wantonly pointing fire arms and impersonating an officer, and on July 2, 1920, were each sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of four dollars, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than thirty-two years.

Defendant Carich alias Karsh is forty-two years of age, a native and subject of the Republic of Poland, a baker by occupation and at the time of his arrest was working in a bakery in Pittsburgh. He has no relatives in America.

Defendant Marchett alias Malerick is twenty-eight years of age, a native of Russia and owes allegiance thereto. He has a wife and one child residing in the City of Pittsburgh, where he was employed as a steel worker by the Jones and Laughlin Corporation.

These two applicants, together with Joe Canefski alias Joe Black, and two others, were jointly tried and convicted of going to four houses located at the Shaw mines in Washington County, on January 12, 1920, in the night-time, armed with deadly weapons and impersonating officers of the law, and it was under these circumstances the crimes enumerated were committed. According to the letters of the Trial District Attorney, Canefski alias Black was the leader of the gang and received the highest sentence. He was pardoned by this Board in December, 1924.

Both applicants have now served four years and seven months of their respective terms of imprisonment. Neither had ever been charged with or convicted of crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicants, their terms of imprisonment already served, and because Canefski alias Black was pardoned by this Board in December, 1924, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, they will prove themselves peaceable and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that pardons be now granted to the said George Marchett alias George Malerick and Joe Carich alias Joe Karsh.

Sir: At No. 1044, October Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Allen A. Diehl alias Simon Diehl pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with assault, being armed with an offensive weapon with intent to rob, entering to commit felony, assault with intent to kill, conspiracy to enter to commit felony and carrying concealed deadly weapons, and on November 2, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, and is the son of the Chief of Police of the Borough of Collingdale, Delaware County, where he resided with his parents. He was by occupation a laborer.

On October 13, 1921, between six and seven o'clock in the evening, the applicant, and one Edward B. Chalfonte, entered the grocery store of Leon Kahn in the City of Philadelphia. They asked for cigars and when the proprietor turned his back to ring up the sale on the cash register,Chalfonte and the applicant both drew guns on Kahn. The applicant held his revolver against Kahn as both men were trying to get money out of the cash register. Chalfonte threatened to kill the man, but upon Kahn's daring him to do so lost his nerve and both left the store without getting any money. They escaped in an automobile which was subsequently proven to have been stolen.

The applicant has now served three years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He fell under the evil influence of Chalfonte, an older man with a bad record, who dominated him. Before the commission of the present crime the perpetrators had been drinking together.

Lewis Palmer, Probation Officer of Delaware County, has filed with the Board a letter in which he asks that the applicant be paroled in his custody. Messrs. Ezekiel Kirkpatrick and William Howard Kirkpatrick, manufacturers and dealers in lumber and mill work, at Collingdale, former employers of the applicant, have filed with the Board a letter in which they agree to give him employment, if released. They also undertake to become sponsors for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, and because of the further fact that his former employers will give him employment, if released, and will become sponsors for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 27, January Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, John Zroka was convicted of rape, and on May 14, 1923, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $50.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is twenty-three years of age, of Russian nationality, but a citizen of the United States, unmarried and at the time of his arrest was employed as a laborer on the farm of his father situated in Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania.

On the night of November 13, 1922, after a fight with her husband in their home at Jermyn, Lackawanna County, Mary Margevich started with a small child to visit a sister who lived at Mayfield, one and one-half miles distant. On her way there she met Paul Mickravage, John Kraley and the applicant, all of whom were known to her, and she asked them to accompany her to her sister's home. They took a short cut which led through a yard or field near the Hudson Coal Company breaker in the Borough of Jermyn, and it is there the alleged rape occurred. Mickravage and Kraley were both tried, convicted and sentenced, and were both pardoned by this Board during the year 1924.

The applicant has now served one year and nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His aged father is in poor health and requires the assistance of his son to operate the farm.

The prosecutrix has filed with the Board a letter in which she asks clemency for the applicant. H. D. Carey, who assisted the District Attorney in the trial of the cases against the three boys, has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon, largely on account of the pardon of the other two boys who were equally guilty.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his aged, infirm father has of his assistance, and because of the fact that his two co-defendents equally as guilty have already been pardoned, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Zroka

Sir: At Nos. 474 and 477, August Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sesions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Ralph T. Moyer was convicted of making and aiding in the making of false entries in a statement in writing of a corporation, and making and publishing a fraudulent instrument; and perjury, and on June 29, 1920, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen, 41 years of age, and at the time of his conviction was a bank cashier by occupation and resided with his wife and two children, aged seventeen and eleven years respectively, in Philadelphia.

In 1919, the applicant was the cashier of the North Penn Bank, a State Bank engaged in business in the City of Philadelphia. On June 10, 1919, he, as cashier, furnished the Banking Commissioner, as required by law, a report of the condition of said bank as of June 2, 1919. The bank closed its doors on June 18, 1919. In August of the same year, two indictments were found against the applicant, both of which were based upon the sworn statement of June 10, 1919, hereinbefore referred to. The one indictment charged the defendent with perjury, there appearing upon the statement an affidavit. The other indictment charged him with making and aiding in the making of false entries in a statement in writing of a corporation, and making and publishing a fraudulent instrument. Both offenses were included in the one transaction, but separate indictments were found and the defendant tried and convicted upon both, at the same time.

The affairs of the bank had been in an uncertain condition for some months prior to its closing in June, 1919. This fact was known to the directors and officers of the bank, and the false statements which was made to the Banking Commissioner, was known to be false not only to the applicant, but to certain of the officers and directors of the bank, and was made with the sole purpose and hope that the true condition of the bank might not be disclosed and that its affairs might be straightened out so as to avoid loss to its depositors and creditors. The applicant avers that as a matter of fact he did not make any affidavit to the statement, but signed the same in blank, and that it was afterwards filled in by a clerk and the affidavit of the notary attached thereto. He at no time profited by his criminal act, nor did he convert to his own use any of the banks funds. He also turned over to the receiver of the bank the home which he had purchased shortly before the failure, and after the failure he gave all the aid within his power to the receiver to help him straighten out its affairs. In the closing of the bank, the applicant's wife and children, and his parents lost money which was on deposit at the time. None of the directors of the bank were ever prosecuted. The president of the bank was tried and acquitted. A minor official was convicted and sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment. The paying teller pleaded guilty to the crime of embezzlement and was sentenced to serve two years in the County Prison.

The applicant has now served four years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He has never before charged with or convicted of crime. He is in bad health suffering from a chronic peptic ulcer of the stomach, is neurotic and a continual sufferer from insomnia, a condition that will be aggravated by continued imprisonment. These facts are shown by a letter from the prison physician.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency, stating that in his judgment the ends of justice have been fully served. Judge Frank Smith, of Common Pleas No. 5, also recommends clemency. Samuel R. Boggs, President and Dr. Herbert M. Goddard, Vice President of the Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, recommend pardon. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, a leading Episcopal Clergyman, of Philadelphia, and other prominent citizens, advocate pardon. Colonel Fred Taylor Pusey, former Deputy Attorney General, who specially represented the State Banking Commissioner in the prosecution of the officers of this bank, recommends pardon. The State Banking Commissioner who filed a protest against pardon when former application was heard, to wit, November, 1923, did not appear before the Board at its recent meeting either in person or by letter. In fact, while the former application for pardon was strongly resisted, the present application was not opposed except in a very formal manner by a representative from the District Attorney's office, and this opposition was largely perfunctory.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the fact that the applicant did not profit by his crime, gave up all his property and suffered a long term of imprisonment; (the president and directors entirely escaping punishment); because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge, the special representative of the Commonwealth in the prosecution and the Trustees of the Penitentiary; because of the absence of all protest, except the perfunctory opposition of the District Attorney's office; because of the absence of opposition from the State Banking Commissioner, who opposed the former application so strongly; because of the impaired health of the applicant, and the need which his wife and family have of his support and assistance, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ralph T. Moyer.

Sir: At No. , January Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Chester, Thomas Garris pleaded guilty to four indictments charging him with highway robbery and larceny, and on February 1, 1916, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $40.00, costs of prosecution, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a period of not less than ten years nor more than sixteen years.

The applicant is forty-one years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried and a laborer by occupation. When the crime was committed he resided in Coatesville, Chester County.

In January, 1916, Charles Johnson, and the applicant, robbed two foreigners who were lying drunk on the streets of Coatesville, taking from their persons clothing and money.

The applicant has now served nine years of his term of imprisonment. He was sentenced on two charges of highway robbery, and two charges of larceny, whereas only two crimes were committed, to wit, highway robbery on two individuals. The Court in sentencing the applicant erroneously imposed four sentences for two distinct offenses Charles Johnson, his accomplice, who also pleaded guilty and received like sentence, was pardoned by this Board in December, 1923. The minimum sentences for two robberies aggregate six years, while the applicant has already served nine years.

The Trial District Attorney has filed two letters with the Board in which he recommends clemency because of the erroneous sentence of the Court, and the fact that his co-defendant has been pardoned.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, because of the erroneous sentence imposed by the Court, and the fact that his co-defendant, who was equally guilty, has since been pardoned by this Board, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Garris.

Sir: At No. 22, February Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Northampton, John Salamon pleaded non vult contendere to the charge of voluntary manslaughter, and on June 14, 1923, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Northampton County Prison for a term of five years, to be computed from May 9, 1923.

The applicant is 42 years of age and a citizen of Hungary. His occupation is that of laborer. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a teamster by the Alpha Portland Cement Company, at Martin's Creek, where he boarded with one Frank Putnik.

For a considerable period of time before the commission of the crime there had been bad blood between Putnik and Steve Kovach, and one physical encounter. Several times Kovach, who was a rough, quarrelsome fellow, came to Putnik's house during his absence and made insulting remarks and gestures towards his wife, all of which Putnik imparted to the applicant. About a week before the crime was committed, and while the applicant was a boarder with Putnik, Kovach, who had purchased a revolver, fired a number of shots from his back porch in the direction of Putnik's house nearby, in which the applicant was. On the following day Putnik, believing that the shots had been intended for him, with the assistance of the applicant, put up a sheet-iron screen along the side of his property toward Kovach's house to shield and protect himself and family when they were on their back porch or in the yard. Putnik had expressed to the applicant resentment towards Kovach. On the night of the crime Putnik and the applicant left the house to go to the company's coal pile, about a mile away, for the purpose of securing coal. There was snow on the ground and they took with them a sled and bags to contain the coal. The bags were carried by the applicant and Putnik dragged the sled, and also carried a stick about four or five feet long and about three inches in circumference, a fragment of a clothes prop. The purpose of the stick was to assist in the transporting of the coal by pushing the sled on the up grade. On their way to the coal pile Putnik and the applicant met Kovach returning with his young son who had been at the coal pile for coal. Putnik struck Kovach on the head with a stick and knocked him down. The applicant took no part in the physical encounter and ran home. Kovach made his way back to his own home, and, after making a statement to the fact that "Frank and John hit me", lapsed into unconsciousness and died the same night from the effects of a fractured skull. Putnik and the applicant were jointly indicted for murder, but subsequently there was a severance and Putnik was tried first and pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter and was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Northampton County Prison for a period of five years, to be computed from February 9, 1923. The applicant was subsequently tried. The jury retired and deliberated eighteen hours without result. The applicant then changed his plea of not guilty to guilty of voluntary manslaughter, and was sentenced as above stated. Putnik was pardoned by this Board in December, 1924.

The applicant has now served one year and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. While present when the fatal blow was struck he did not participate in the crime. The actual perpetrator has been pardoned.

The Assistant District Attorney who tried the case has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends pardon because of the recent pardon of Putnik, the actual perpetrator of the crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his non-participation in the crime and the pardon of the actual perpetrator, and because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Salamon.

Sir: At No. 336, June Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Fayette, Ernest Douglass was convicted of involuntary manslaughter, and on July 15, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of six cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age, a native-born American citizen, colored, and a laborer and chauffeur by occupation. He is married and has a wife and one child two years of age.

On the evening of March 9, 1924, about dark, the applicant, accompanied by three colored men, was rapidly driving a Studebaker sedan eastwardly from New Salem, Pennsylvania, to Uniontown, Pennsylvania, when he struck a man who was walking with two other men, single file, along the side of the road. The applicant stopped his car some distance down the road, picked up the injured man and brought him to the Uniontown Hospital where he died within a short time. The applicant left his name at the hospital, went to the office of the District Attorney, located the County Detective and explained the circumstances. The applicant and his companions testified on the trial that before he struck the deceased, the light of a car coming towards him blinded him, and that after he had passed this car he felt that his car had hit something, and was informed by one of the occupants of the car that he had struck a man. He immediately stopped and returned for the victim.

The applicant has served seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. Letters from the Mayor of Uniontown and the Alderman, who took the information in this case, filed with the Board strongly recommend clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his wife and child have of support, and the recommendations of Alderman Darby and the Mayor of Uniontown, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ernest Douglass.

Sir: At No. 342, September Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Reuben Williams was convicted of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery with intent to kill, and on September 16, 1912, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is thirty-five years of age, unmarried and a butler by occupation.

The applicant for sometime had been intimate with one Mollie Walker, and they quarreled because of her friendship with another man. The crime for which he was sentenced, as above stated, was committed on June 12, 1912, and on September 16, 1918, he was paroled after serving six years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He then removed to Baltimore, Maryland, where his brothers lived, and on September 15, 1919, was convicted of murder in the second degree, one Elizabeth Taylor being the victim, and for this crime he was sentenced for a term of fifteen years in the Maryland State Penitentiary. He will shortly be eligible for parole in the State of Maryland, provided the remaining one year, being the maximum of his former sentence in Pennsylvania, can be eliminated by a pardon. Otherwise, he will be compelled to serve the fifteen years term of imprisonment in Maryland, after which he will be remanded to Pennsylvania to serve the remaining portion of his maximum term of seven years.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant in Pennsylvania, the term of imprisonment already served in this State, and the fact that even if pardoned he will be compelled to complete his term of fifteen years imprisonment in Maryland, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished in so far as the crime committed in Pennsylvania is concerned, and should be relieved from the necessity of returning to Pennsylvania after the completion of his Maryland sentence.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions." recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Reuben Williams.

Sir: At No. 73, February Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Northampton, John Sabo and David Sabo were jointly convicted of receiving stolen goods, and on June 25, 1923, were severally sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Northampton County Prison for a period of three years.

Applicant John Sabo is forty-eight years of age, and applicant David Sabo is forty-seven years of age. Both are Assyrians, brothers and at the time of their arrest were engaged in the wholesale dry goods business in the City of Easton. Both resided in said city, applicant John Sabo having a family consisting of a wife and two children, and applicant David Sabo having a family consisting of a wife and six children.

The applicants were jointly indicted, tried and convicted for buying and receiving on or about June 14, 1921, silk which had been stolen in Sussex County, New Jersey, by a number of Italians from a truck of the Sussex Print Works, a passer-by having been killed at the time of the robbery. The silk was immediately transported by the Italians from New Jersey into Pennsylvania and stored in the house of one Philip Pellegrini who was not a party to the robbery or in any wise concerned therein, but merely rented a room to one of the robbers, which room had been engaged about a week previously. He saw bundles deposited in this room, but did not inquire concerning the same, and saw these same bundles, which proved to contain the stolen silk, removed from the house in the day time about a week later. He alleged that the applicants received the silk at his house. In this he was corroborated by Montani, one of the robbers. The silk was never located and its receipts or possession by the applicants was not proved in any other way. These two were the Commonwealth's chief and only eye-witnesses to prove the receipt of the silk by the applicants. Pellegrini subsequently made an affidavit that his testimony concerning the receipt of the silk by the applicants was untrue. The other witness was one of the robbers who turned state's evidence and who suborned Pellegrini to commit perjury as appairs from the examination of Pellegrini made by the Judge and District Attorney who tried the case which was reduced to writing and filed with the Board.

Both applicants have served one year and nine months of their respective terms of imprisonment. They were never before convicted of crime. The Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney have filed letters with the Board in which they state that without the testimony of Pellegrini, who was the star witness, and whose testimony has since proven to be false, no conviction could have been obtained.

The Mayor of Easton, two of the County Commissioners, Congressman Kent, the officers of three banks and other prominent citizens of Easton have filed letters with the Board recommending clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the doubt as to the guilt of the applicants, their prior good record, the terms of imprisonment already served, the statements of the Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney indicating that a conviction was obtained by perjured testimony, the recommendations of city officials, county officials and prominent citizens of Easton we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that pardons be now granted to the said John and David Sabo.

Sir: At No. 106, November Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Albert Carelli was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on June 24, 1924, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is nineteen years of age, a native-born American citizen, an automobile mechanic by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was working in a garage in the City of Pittsburgh, where he resided with his mother, two sisters and brother, he being the oldest child and the only wage earner. He is unmarried.

The applicant George Thompson and Raymond Dugan, were jointly indicted for murder, but were tried separately. The applicant was tried first and convicted of murder in the first degree. Thompson was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and Dugan was convicted of murder in the second degree. On September 14, 1923, Philip Flynn, a bartender in a saloon located in the City of Pittsburgh, was shot and as a result died four days later. Two masked men entered the saloon about 10:30 in the evening. One stood in the center of the room and the other attempted to go back of the bar. The bartender endeavored to restrain the latter, a scuffle ensued and two shots were fired, one of them striking the bartender in the abdomen. The two masked men then left the barroom, jumped into an automobile and drove away. No one was able to identify the men who were in the saloon, nor was the applicant identified as one of the two men. On the night of October 9, 1923, motorcycle detectives connected with the Police Department of the City of Pittsburgh, arrested five men in a Ford automobile parked near the Regent Theatre, among them being the applicant and his co-defendant Thompson. They were taken to the police station, separated, subjected to the third degree and both are alleged to have admitted that they were the men who held up the saloon on the night of September 14th. The applicant always denied that he had participated in the attempted robbery of the saloon and alleged that his so-called confession was made as the result of abuse, beatings and mistreatment by the Police Department. He further claimed that on the night in question he was not in the City of Pittsburgh, but in the town of Burton, Ohio, about one hundred and thirty-six miles distant, and that at the time the attempted robbery occurred he was attending a dance at the fair which was being held in Burton and produced sworn statements from disinterested reputable citizens who alleged that they had seen him at various times on that night in Burton, and one witness a young girl deposed that she was dancing with the applicant at the time when the attempted robbery is alleged to have occurred. He also furnished sworn proof that he assisted in suppressing a fire which occurred in Burton that same night.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only eighteen years old when the alleged crime was committed. His co-defendants were convicted of lesser grades of murder and shorter terms of imprisonment were imposed on them.

The Trial Judge filed no letter with the Board, but made representations to a member indicating that he was favorable to clemency. The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon. A great many letters and petitions urging clemency were presented in behalf of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the alleged crime was committed, the doubt as to his participation in it, his prior good record, the fact that his alleged accomplices were convicted and sentenced for lesser grades of murder, because of the recommendations of the Trial District Attorney, the favorable attitude of the Trial Judge and the request of many citizens, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 32, January Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of York, Arthur Jordon alias Robert Jordon, was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on January 19, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is fifty-three years of age, colored, a native of the State of Georgia, and his occupation at the time of his arrest was that of hod-carrier. He is married and has one child. He resided in the City of York. He bears an honorable discharge from the United States Army and served in the Spanish-American War, and in China during the Boxer uprising.

On October 19, 1923, he shot and killed one Wiley Fells. Both men were employed in the erection of a bank building. The applicant carried mortar and Fells wheeled the brick. Bad feeling arose between them because the applicant supplied mortar faster than Fells supplied the brick. Two days before the shooting Fells assaulted the applicant, abused him, called him vile names and made violent threats against him. On the afternoon of the day of the shooting, the two men met and angry words were exchanged. Because of the threats that had been uttered the applicant purchased a revolver and cartridges. Later in the day he went to the home of Fells and called the latter to the door and asked him to apologize for his insults. Fells was abusive, made further threats and started into the house. He was about to pull a gun out of a drawer when the applicant shot, firing at his hip. The first shot missed and Fells continued to draw the gun. The applicant then fired a second shot, which caused Fell to drop the gun whereupon the applicant left the house of Fells and was arrested the next morning charged with aggravated assault and battery. Fells died three weeks later, and new information was made charging the applicant with murder. The two shots fired by the applicant were aimed low, not with the intention of killing Fells, but with the intention of preventing Fells from shooting him.

The Trial Judge has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that in his judgment the applicant would be sufficiently punished by life imprisonment. The Trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that life imprisonment would be a sufficient punishment for the applicant and that the ends of justice would be met by modifying the sentence of death. Former Judge Stewart filed with the Board a letter in which he stated that the applicant should not have been convicted of murder in the first degree and that in his judgment the facts warranted a conviction of voluntary manslaughter. He recommends clemency. A number of petitions and letters from citizens of York County urging clemency were filed with the Board.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the recommendations of the Trial Judge, Trial District Attorney, Former Judge Stewart and the petitions and requests from citizens of York County, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 138, March Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Joseph Shelton pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with larceny, and on March 12, 1924, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than four years.

The applicant is nineteen years of age, unmarried, a native-born American citizen, a mechanic by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed in a garage, and resided with his parents in the City of Philadelphia.

The applicant stole a Ford touring car, the property of Thomas W. Larson, on New Year's morning, January 1, 1924, which car was parked on the highway in front of 127 South Seventeenth Street, in the City of Philadelphia. After stealing the car, the applicant removed the body and placed same on another Ford chassis, the property of the Stecker Company, and the top of the Stecker car he placed on the chassis of the car stolen on New Year's Day. It was recovered on January 31, 1924. The body of the Larson car on the Stecker chassis was recovered in a garage.

The applicant has now served one year of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only eighteen years of age when the crime was committed.

Letters from substantial business men and former employes of the applicant, advocating clemency, were filed with the Board.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record and the term of imprisonment already served, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 9, November Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, John Mallon was convicted of entering with intent to steal, and on November 16, 1923, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, married, a driver by occupation and resided in the City of Philadelphia.

The applicant was jointly indicted with one Frank Small, aged eighteen years, on the charge of entering a garage in the City of Philadelphia at about midnight on October 28, 1923, and taking therefrom an Auburn automobile, Small acknowledged that he alone entered the garage and drove the car away, and states that an hour or two later he met the applicant in a house where he was drinking, and asked him to go for a ride in the car. The applicant was drunk and Small alleges that he, the applicant, had no knowledge that the car was stolen. Small and the applicant continued their drunken debauch and were finally arrested on the following morning while driving around the tenderloin section of the city.

Small, the actual perpetrator of the crime, was convicted and sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory, and was paroled on December 23, 1924.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served one year and four months of his term of imprisonment. He bears an honorable record for service in France during the World War. He has a wife and child dependent on him for support.

The District Attorney's offices had a representative at the hearing, who, while not joining in the application for pardon, admitted that the sentence imposed by the Court was excessive. There was no communication from the Trial Judge, but it was openly stated by counsel at the hearing that he was not opposed to a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his wife and child have of support, and because of the undue severity of the sentence of the Court, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Mallon.

Sir: At No. 238, June Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, Clifford Montgomery was convicted of receiving stolen goods, and on June 24, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than one and one-half years nor more than three years.

The applicant is a native-born American citizen. and at the time of his conviction operated a store. He had previously been employed by the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company, Pittsburgh. He is married.

A Hudson automobile, the property of William C. Millburn, of McKees Rocks, Pennsylvania, was stolen from the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Pittsburgh. This car was subsequently recovered at Buffalo, New York, in the possession of the person to whom the applicant had sold it and was returned to the owner. The applicant had purchased a Hudson car for his wife from one R. Meyers, who delivered to him a bill of sale for the same, which was filed at Harrisburg and a license duly issued thereon to the applicant. This automobile was purchased on November 12, 1923. The applicant had no knowledge of any trouble concerning the car until the day of his arrest in the spring of 1924. In December, 1923, he entered the employ of the Indian Battery Company and was given as territory the northwestern counties of Pennsylvania, and Western New York, and had worked his way to Buffalo, New York. The Battery Company failed in its contract to pay salary and expenses, and in order to meet living expenses the latter was compelled to dispose of the car and it was shortly after the sale that he was arrested and charged with the crime of larceny and receiving stolen goods and convicted on the latter charge alone.

The applicant has now served nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has a wife and a grandmother who are dependent on him for support. The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he specifically recommends a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his wife and aged grandmother have of maintenance and support, and because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that pardon be now granted to the said Clifford Montgomery.

Sir: At No. 290, October Sessions, 1916 in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Stuart Bechtel alias Edwin S. Bechtel, was convicted of assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery, and on January 23, 1917, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of thirty days.

The applicant is thirty-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried and by occupation a steel worker. He resided with his parents in the City of Philadelphia.

Inasmuch as the sentence of the Court has long since been completed, and the applicant discharged from prison, the purpose of the present application is to clear his record.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. Since the expiration of his term of imprisonment he served in the United States Army and bears an honorable discharge.

The applicant, together with fourteen or fifteen other young men of his own age, to wit, twenty-three years, were in a saloon known as Jolly Post located in the City of Philadelphia, on September 20, 1916. The party left the saloon at about closing time. They were all singing. Ernest Rau and another man were coming up the street. Rau was unknown to any of the members of the singing party. He passed the group and made an unfavorable comment on the singing, which remark was resented. Strong words were exchanged and blows were struck. Rau and his friend being outnumbered started down the street. The applicant fought up to them and struck Rau, who fell. Rau then rose, started to run, stumbled, fell and broke his ankle. The offense was incidental to a common street brawl.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, because of the fact that the term of imprisonment has been completed, and that the present application is made for the purpose of clearing the record, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and should be relieved from the stigma of his conviction.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Stuart Bechtel alias Edwin S. Bechtel.

Sir: At No. 3, September Term, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Northampton, Guiseppe Vitaliano was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on February 2, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is sixty-one years of age, an Italian by birth, by occupation a laborer and at the time of his arrest was employed in the Lehigh Valley Railroad shops at Easton, in which city he resided. He has a wife and three children in Italy supported by him.

The applicant was hounded by demands for money by fellow Italians, Black Handers and his life was threatened if he did not comply. He boarded with one Frank Pulli, an Italian, who made demands on him. The applicant became greatly frightened by these demands and threats and conceived the idea that if he would frighten the person or persons making the demands he would not be further molested. He procured an old revolver, and on going to his work on the morning of August 21, 1924, in one of the outer buildings through which the workmen pass in going to their accustomed places in the railroad shops, the applicant seeing Pulli fired a shot. The latter ran and the applicnt ran after him firing the revolver five times, not to hit him, but to frighten him. One of the shots struck Oliver Miller, a by-stander, who died from its effects. The applicant made no effort to escape and was greatly overcome in consequence of the shooting.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial District Attorney filed with the Board a letter in which, while not recommending clemency, states that he does not oppose a commutation of the death penalty to life imprisonment.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, and the attitude of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that the death penalty heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the death penalty heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 49, September Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Henry Falconi was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on May 15, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of ten dollars, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is twenty-four years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, unmarried and at the time of his arrest resided with his parents in the Borough of Bridgeport, Montgomery County.

On the evening of August 19, 1922, the applicant, with an Italian friend, crossed the Schuylkill River into Norristown and went to an establishment known as the Norristown Candy Kitchen in order to obtain ice cream. It was Saturday night, and the center portion of the room was cleared of tables and chairs for dancing. The applicant and his companion seated themselves, ordered their refreshments and were engaged in watching the dancing when six young fellows, including Alexander Neill, the deceased, came into the ice cream parlor and seated themselves directly in front of the applicant and his companion. The room was crowded and Neill, the deceased, pushed his chair back against the companion of the applicant whereupon the latter remarked, "Do you want the whole place?" The deceased jumped up and struck the companion, whereupon the latter struck back. A free fight ensued, in which blows were struck by all parties and tables overturned. During the melee the applicant stood up and struck two blows, one with his right and the other with his left hand. The deceased dropped to the floor, was carried out and found to be dead as a result of a fracture of the atlas on that portion of the vertebra upon which the skull rests on the upper end of the spinal column. When the deceased fell to the floor, the fight ended and the police were called in. The applicant and his companion hid in a coal bin in the yard in the rear of the store. At this time the applicant recalled that he had in his possession a pair of iron knuckles, which he had found a short time before, and fearing that in the event of his arrest, which was probable, the finding of these iron knuckles upon his person would cause trouble, he took them out of his pocket and threw them in the coal bin. The applicant always maintained that these iron knuckles were not used in the fight and there was no positive testimony that they were so used. The applicant was finally arrested on the charge of murder, and his companion was arrested on the charge of assault and battery, but the bill of indictment against the latter was nolle prossed. After the conviction of the applicant, one Joseph Plouskz voluntarily came forward and stated that he had witnessed the entire fight; that the applicant took no part in the fight between Neill and his companion, but during the fight Neill struck at the face of the applicant, who was seated on a chair; the latter warded off the blow, arose from his chair, and with his bare fist struck Neill who fell to the floor and did not arise. The applicant said nothing and did nothing until Neill struck at his face, and he did not have on knuckles. A copy of the affidavit made by the latter was filed with the Board.

The applicant has now served two years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was only twenty-two years of age when convicted. The murder was the result of an unfortunate series of events. The applicant was not the aggressor in the offense. While there was the insinuation cast to the jury and the court that the applicant had used iron knuckles in the commission of the crime, which insinuation was a large factor in causing a severe penalty, nevertheless there was no evidence of such use of iron knuckles, and the appearance of the body after death, and the affidavit above referred to. negative the claim that iron knuckles were actually used.

The Burgess, President of the Town Council, Justice of the Peace and Chief Fire Marshal of Bridgeport, have filed letters with the Board recommending pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the recommendations of the borough authorities of Bridgeport, and because of the after-discovered evidence indicating that the deceased came to his death from a blow inflicted by the bare fist of the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, an dthat if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public not and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be n granted to the said Henry Falconi.

The applicant is eighteen years of age, an America citizen by birth, and at the time of his arrest was employe by Hubbard & Company, of Pittsburgh, in shovel manufactu ing. He resided in the Borough of Sharpsburg, Alleghen County, with his widowed mother and two young brother He is unmarried and the support of the family.

The applicant, prior to the commission of these crime fell among evil companions older than himself, who too advantage of his knowledge of the operation of moto vehicles in the commission of various robberies. He too no part in the actual commission of the crimes, but merel operated the automobile which carried his associates to an from the places where the crimes were committed, all oc curing within a period of two months.

The applicant has now served one year and eleven month of his aggregate term of imprisonment. He was neve before charged with or convicted of crime. He was onl sixteen years of age when he was connected with the crime in question. Two of his co-defendants have already bee pardoned by this Board. His family is in sore need o support, and his former employers have offered to take hi back if he is liberated.

The General Superintendent and Chaplain of the Weste State Penitentiary recommend clemency. The burgess, th school board and the borough council of Sharpsburg als ask pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, th youth of the applicant when the crimes were committed, hi prior good record, the fact that his family require his sup port and that employment has been offered him by hi former employers, and because of the recommendations o the penitentiary authorities and borough officials of Sharps burg, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently pu nished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 35, September Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Bradford, Arthur Pickett was convicted of larceny, and on December 5, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than six years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, a native-born American citizen, and by occupation a laborer, working principally as a carpenter and machinist in a garage. At the time of his arrest he was employed in Elmira, New York, as driver of an automobile truck, and was home on a visit due to his mother's illness. His residence was in Towanda, Bradford County, where he resided with his parents. He was married at the age of sixteen years to a woman older than himself and who lived with him only a few weeks.

In the month of May, 1923, while the applicant was temporarily at home, he went to the residence of Leon Finch, in Windham Township, Bradford County. He arranged to go to work as a laborer on the Finch farm, and on the morning of May 19, 1923, Taylor, employed as an automobile salesman by the Athens Motor Company, consented to allow the applicant to drive a Buick car to Towanda and return. The applicant went to his home in Towanda for his clothes, but his father persuaded him not to accept the offer to work for Finch and he started to return to the Finch home with the car. In the meanwhile, Taylor had not reported to his employer and had kept the Buick car away from the garage without the consent of the Motor Company. The president of the company located Taylor at the Finch home and was informed by him that the car had been stolen. He immediately caused a warrant to be issued, and the officers arrested the applicant in the car while driving on the direct highway leading from Towanda to the Finch farm. Mrs. Finch and a young daughter were present when Taylor authorized the applicant to use the car, but before the trial of the case, the Finchs and Taylor both removed to the State of New York, and while they promised to return to testify on behalf of the applicant during the trial they neglected to do so and the applicant was forced to go to trial without the presence of these material witnesses and his conviction followed. There was no evidence of any attempt on the part of the applicant to convert the car to his own use and at the worst, his authority to take the car was not sufficient and proper.

The applicant has now served one year and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only twenty-one years of age when the alleged crime was committed.

Both the Trial Judge and the Trial District Attorney have filed letters with the Board recommending clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Arthur Pickett.

Sir: At No. 19, January Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Wutsik Devandoski was convicted of burglary, and on February 7, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age and a native of Poland. At the time of his conviction, and for fifteen years prior thereto, he resided with his father in Minooka, Lackawanna County. He was unemployed at the time of his arrest, but prior thereto served in the United States Army and was employed as a laborer in and about the anthracite coal mines.

The applicant, and one Frank McGowan, were jointly indicted and convicted of robbing two stores and carrying away merchandise not exceeding forty dollars in value. McGowan pleaded guilty and was given the same sentence as the applicant, but in December, 1923, was pardoned by this Board.

The applicant has now served three years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, and because of the fact that his co-defendant, who received a like sentence, was pardoned by this Board, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 112, October Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lackawanna, Charles J. DeMott was convicted of pandering, and on October 18, 1919, was sentenced to pay a fine of one dollar, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age, an Italian by nationality, and at the time of his arrest was employed as a bartender in a hotel located on Spruce Street in the City of Scranton, in which city he resided with one Anna Tusolia, a girl of nineteen.

The applicant, in July, 1919, received money from her, which money was the proceeds and earnings of the said Anna Tusolia engaged in prostitution in the City of Scranton.

The applicant has now served five years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that his personal notion is, that the applicant has now suffered sufficient imprisonment to merit some consideration. He adds, "possibly the minimum was a bit too high".

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the severe sentence imposed, and because of the favorable statement of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 75, 75-1, 75-2, 75-5, and 75-4, September Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Montgomery, William C. Davis was convicted of aggrevated assault and battery on the persons of four different individuals, and of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and on September 19, 1924, was sentenced on the one indictment charging aggravated assault and battery to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Montgomery County Prison for a term of not less than one year and six months nor more than three years. Sentence was suspended on the other bills of indictment.

The applicant is about twenty-eight years of age, an American-born citizen, unmarried, and resided with his father on Ridge Pike near Barron Hill, in the County of Montgomery where he conducted the business of cattle dealer and contractor.

The alleged offense was the outgrowth of an automobile collision which occurred at nighttime on August 1, 1924, about three miles from Norristown. The applicant, while driving a Ford sedan, blinded by the glaring headlightts of an approaching Oakland sedan driven by Roland B. Kates and containing his wife, James I. Reese and Georgia Rocap, collided with the second car. The Kates car was overturned, while the applicant's car was but slightly damaged. None of the persons in the two cars were seriously injured. The following day Kates demanded a financial settlement. The applicant contending that he was not at fault, also demanded the settlement of the case. In consequence of their inability to agree upon a basis of settlement, Kates issued a warrant for the applicant's arrest, charging him with the offenses covered by the bills of indictment on which he was subsequently convicted. Several days after the arrest of the applicant, he in turn caused the arrest of Kates on similar charges. The applicant was tried first and convicted. The case against Kates was tried at the November Sessions, at which time the applicant was brought from jail and testified against him. The latter was acquitted, but directed to pay the costs of prosecution upon the one bill of indictment.

The applicant has now served seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The affidavit of Earl McClure was filed with the Board in which he states, that he saw the two automobiles after the collision and took the occupants to Norristown. He states that Kates had been drinking liquor and that one of the other occupants of his car was very drunk.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter wherein he states that the present prosecution was a cross action arising out of an automobile accident in which each party used the criminal courts to collect damages from the other. While not recommending pardon, he indicated that he was favorable to clemency, and he did not state in his history of the case that the applicant had been drinking at all. A number of letters were filed with the Board in hebalf of pardon, and also two numerously signed petitions.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, and in consideration of the favorable attitude of the Trial District Attorney and the recommendations of a number of his fellow citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William C. Davis.

Sir: At No. 686, February Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Edwin E. Kohn was convicted of embezzlement by a banker, broker and agent, and fraudulent conversion, and on December 8, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant is forty-seven years of age, and a native born citizen of the United States. His occupation at the time of his arrest was that of broker. He was engaged in business in the City of Philadelphia, with branch offices in seven other cities. He resided in Philadelphia with his wife and two children.

One of the applicant's regular customers was Charles Sarazin, who instructed him to purchase on his account fifty shares of the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The applicant purchased said stock, but the same had not been duly transferred on the books of the company and had not been delivered to Sarazin. The applicant was thereupon arrested, charged with the embezzlement of the sum of $511.00, the money and property of Sarazin, which had been paid him on account of the purchase price of said stock. In a similar transaction he was charged with misappropriating the sum of $1120.00, belonging to the same customer.

The applicant has now served three years and three months of his term of imprisonment, including eleven months in the County Prison where he was confined before trial, more than his minimum sentense. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record has been excellent.

While neither the Trial Judge nor the Trial District Attorney are on record as favoring or opposing pardon, a number of letters from prominent citizens of Philadelphia have been filed with the Board recommending clemency. Former Judge John M. Patterson, Judge Frank Smith, Court No. 2, State Senator Salus, Mayor Kendrick, Charles B. Hall, President of the City Council, David Phillips, Receiver in Bankruptcy Proceedings and trustee of the applicant's insolvent estate, the President of the Broad Street Trust Company, Philadelphia, A. W. Fleisher, President of the Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary, and many prominent lawyers and business men urge clemency. United States Senator Cameron of Arizona, who knowns the applicant personally, advocates pardon. Judge Monoghan orally recommends pardon to the president of this Board. Einar Barfod, Deputy Secretary and Chief Investigator, Bureau of Securities, Department of Banking, filed a letter with the Board in which he reviewed the applicant's entire career as an employee of brokers and as a broker on his own account. He states that in his judgment public policy does not further require the imprisonment of the applicant and that full justice will be done if he is liberated.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment aready served, the prior good record of the applicant, his excellent prison record, and in consideration of the recommendations of judges, attorneys, city officials and other prominent citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Edwin E. Kohn.

Sir: At No. 486, July Sessions, 1914, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Thomas Burns was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on October 14, 1914, was sentenced to pay costs, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than sixteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is now seventy-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, a salesman by occupation and resided for many years in the City of Philadelphia.

The applicant was attentive to a woman by the name Fanny Eisenbaum, who was much younger than he. She turned him down on account of drinking, and on the evening of June 8, 1914, while under the influence of liquor, he saw her sitting on the step with Rebecca Ershansky, the wife of a Jewish Rabbi, Louis Ershansky, at her residence. A quarrel ensued and the applicant shot Fanny Eisenbaum, from the effects of which she spent sometime in the hospital, but subsequently recovered. On hearing a shot fired, the Rabbi came running out of his house, and when the applicant saw him he pointed the pistol at him, shot him, causing almost instant death. He was sixty-four years of age when this crime was committed.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has served ten years and six months of his term of imprisonment. The resident physician of the penitentiary reports that he has serious organic trouble, and that his general physical condition is bad.

Mrs. Robert C. H. Brock, of Philadelphia, a wealthy and socially prominent lady, has manifested great interest in the applicant on account of his advanced age and impaired health, and has agreed to provide a home and maintenance for him and to become sponsor for his future good behavior. Arrangements have also been effected, through her generosity, for a surgical operation on the applicant at the University Hospital, with the hope that he may be restored to comparative good health.

In consideration of all circumstances of this case, the advanced age of the applicant, his impared health, his prior good record, the term of imprisonment already served, and in further consideration of the fact that a comfortable home and maintenance will be provided for him and an effort made, through a surgical operation, to restore his health, and because Mrs. Brock has agreed to become sponsor for the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Burns.

Sir: At No. 9, October Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Clinton, Herman Culvey pleaded guilty to the first count of an indictment charging him with rape, and on November 1, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and be imprisoned in the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, the term to be terminated by the managers of the Reformatory, as provided by law.

The applicant is almost nineteen years of age, a native-born American citizen,and at the time of his arrest was employed by his father on his farm situated in Clinton County, Pennsylvania, where he resided with his parents, he being the oldest child and the main support of a family of seven. His father is an invalid and unable to work.

On August 9, 1924, the applicant, about midnight, accidently met Charlotte Tressler, an eleven year old girl, and they went for a walk in the country where the crime was committed. While technically guilty of the grave offense he actually committed the crime of fornication. The applicant was only eighteen years of age, and it subsequently appeared, and it now appears, that the girl was of bad character.

The applicant has now been confined in the Reformatory for six months, and the Superintendent of that institution has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends clemency. The two Associate Judges of Clinton County join in the application for clemency and a numerously signed pettiion from Clinton County was filed with the Board joining in the application.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his prior good record, the recommendations of the Trial District Attorney, the Two Associate Judges and citizens of Clinton County, and for the reason that if liberated he will operate the farm and support his parents and their family, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Herman Culvey.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 15, 1925.

Sir: At No. 32, February Sessions, 1903, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Cumberland, Israel Patterson alias Thomas Patterson was convicted of burglary, larceny and felonious entry, and on February 7, 1903, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $300.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a period of nine years and six months.

The applicant is sixty years of age, a native-born citizen, and a laborer by occupation. He is a widower with two sons and one daughter, all married.

In October, 1902, the general store of H. K. Latshaw, located at Jacksonville, Cumberland County, was entered during the night and robbed. The constable consequently found in the possession of the applicant's daughter Myrtle, a pair of shoes and cheap jewelry, which were identified by Latshaw as part of the merchandise taken from his store when it was robbed. The applicant, his son Harry, daughter Myrtle, son-in-law John Adams, and one Edward Mills, were arrested for the robbery of the Latshaw store and all were subsequently indicted. Harry Patterson and Adams were discharged before trial. The applicant, his daughter and Mills were jointly tried, but the applicant alone was convicted. He was released under the provisions of the Commutation Act of March 22, 1909, with three years, four months and fifteen days commutation time for good behavior in prison. On February 15, 1910, he was sentenced to imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary by the Cumberland County Court for a term of not less than fifteen years nor more than sixty years upon a charge of burglary and assaulting an officer. He has already served the full minimum sentence of fifteen years and is now serving three years, four months and fifteen days commutation time previously granted for good behavior in prison. The present application is made mainly to render him eligible for parole under the fifteen to sixty years sentence for burglary. The period of parole is forty-five years. He is assured by the Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary that they will recommend such parole to this Board when clemency is granted. If released, his son, who conducts a farm in Bucks County, will give him a home and suitable employment.

The applicant's prison record is good and the prison authorities recommend pardon. The Trial District Attorney at the time of his sentence in 1903 and 1910, and the present District Attorney of Cumberland County are on record with the Board as neither recommending nor opposing clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the age of the applicant, the fact that, if pardoned, he will not be released, except on parole for practically the balance of his life, and because of the fact that a home and employment have been offered him in Bucks County by his son, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Israel Patterson alias Thomas Patterson.

Sir: At No. 78, February Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Dennis M. Cush was convicted of voluntary manslaughter with the recommendation of the extreme mercy of the Court, and on March 14, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of 6¼c, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for term of not less than two years nor more than four years.

The applicant is fifty-one years of age, and at the time of his arrest, and for many years previously, was a patrolman on the police force of the Borough of Homestead, Allegheny County, where he had resided for forty years. He has a wife and one delicate child by former marriage.

On November 1, 1923, the applicant shot and killed John E. Ward, Assistant Fire Chief of said borough, under the following circumstances: Ward, for a number of weeks prior to the homicide, had endeavored to pick a quarrel with the applicant. When they met he would revile, curse and apply opprobrious epithets to him. On the night of the tragedy, at about 10:00 P. M., while the applicant was in the police headquarters, in company with two fellow officers, Ward came into the room and made a violent verbal assault on the applicant, calling him the vilest names. The applicant endeavored to place Ward under arrest and called on the other officers to assist him. A terrible struggle ensued during which Ward struck the applicant over the head five or six times with a black-jack, severely injuring him. Ward was finally overpowered, arrested and subsequently discharged on bail. After his discharge he went about the city drinking and threatening to get the applicant whenever he met him. About 1:00 A. M. he encountered him on the street while on duty and called out to him to pull his gun, and reached for his hip pocket. Ward continued to advance, and the applicant realizing from the severe beating which he had received that Ward was the superior man in strength, believed that his life was in peril, and with a thought to disable Ward and not to mortally injure him, drew his revolver aiming it in a downward direction, and fired the fatal shot which instead of striking Ward in the legs struck him in the abdomen. Ward died fifteen days later.

The applicant has now served one year and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. He has never recovered from the effects of the terrible beating which he received from Ward.

The Trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends pardon. Ten of the twelve Jurors who convicted him, the members of the town council, the borough secretary, the controller, the treasurer of the Monongahela Trust Company, and many citizens, have filed letters with the Board urging clemency. Several long petitions of citizens to the same effect have been filed.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his excellent prison record, the need which his family has of support and maintenance, the recommendations of the District Attorney, borough officials and prominent citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Dennis M. Cush.

Sir: At Nos. 1 and 2, January Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, in and for the County of Venango, Stanley Butchek pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with burglary and larceny, and on January 4, 1923, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $200.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than five years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, of Polish descent, and has taken out his first naturalization papers. He is a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the New York Central Railroad Company, at Franklin, Pennsylvania, where he resided with his wife and four small children.

On the night of November 16, 1922, the applicant and his brother, John Butchek, broke and entered the repair shop of P. O. Morrison in the City of Franklin, and took therefrom bicycle tires, repair tools, etc., all of which articles, with one exception, were subsequently returned to the owner. Five additional charges of burglarly and larceny were lodged against the applicant for having entered stores and shops and having taken therefrom small equipment.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His wife and four small children are in destitute circumstances and require his support.

Both the Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney have filed letters with the Board in which they recommend clemency. The Vice President of the Franklin Trust Company, Franklin, Pennsylvania, and a number of prominent citizens of Franklin join in the application.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his wife and family have of support, and because of the recommendations of the Trail Judge and Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Stanley Butchek.

The applicant is forty-two years of age, of Polish descent, but a naturalized American citizen. He is a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the New York Central Railroad Company, at Franklin, Pennsylvania, where he resided with his wife and eight children, six of whom are dependents.

On the night of November 16, 1922, the applicant and his brother, Stanley Butchek, broke and entered the repair shop of P. O. Morrison in the City of Franklin, and took therefrom bicycle tires, repair tools, etc., all of which articles, with one exception, were subsequently returned to the wner. Sir: At No. 20, June Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Beaver, Joe Boyce pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with felonious rape and with assault with intent to commit rape, and on July 14, 1924, was sentenced by the Court on the charge of asault with intent to commit rape to a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two and one-half years nor more than five years.

The applicant is thirty-eight years of age, a native-born American citizen, a laboror by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Mayer China Company, in Beaver Falls, where he resided with his wife and six small children.

The alleged crime was committed on July 9, 1924, on the person of Goldie Klear, a child six and one-half years of age. There was no evidence of actual violence and the child was not physically injured. It appears that the applicant merely fondled her. He had no attorney, friend or adviser when he pleaded guilty.

The applicant has now served nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His former employer has offered to give him employment, if released, and his wife and family are in destitute circumstances and require his support.

The father of the injured child has asked the Board for clemency on the ground that she was not actually injured, and that the wife and children of applicant are in dire need of support.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the dire need of his wife and small children, and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge and the father of the injured child, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joe Boyce.

Sir: At No. 80, October Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Chester, Joseph Dayton was convicted of Statutory rape and incestuous fornication, and on October 6, 1916, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is forty-seven years of age, a native-born American citizen, a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest did odd jobs for people in and about Downingtown where he resided with his family consisting of a wife and three daughters.

The applicant was married the second time. His three daughters were both of his first wife. On September 5, 1916, J. L. Laird, who subsequently married one of these daughters, made an information against him charging him with having ravished the applicant's youngest daughter Dorothy, now Dorothy Jenks, who was then about eleven years of age. At the hearing before the magistrate Dorothy was the chief witness against him. The second wife was present and also testified against the applicant with regard to suspicious circumstances. She had complete control over the youngest daughter on whose testimony the applicant was convicted. The other testimony was insufficient.

The applicant has now served eight years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Three daughters of the applicant join in an application for clemency. Dorothy has filed with the Board an affidavit in which she states that she falsely accused her father through the intimidation of her stepmother. She asks for clemency. She also went to the penitentiary and in the presence of Deputy Warden Smith acknowledged that she had falsely accused her father through the intimidation of her stepmother. Jessie Gabel, the second daughter, has filed with the Board an affidavit in which she states that she testified falsely against her father at the time of the trial in accusing him of acting suspiciously towards her younger sister Dorothy. She did this through the intimidation of her stepmother. She also asks pardon.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that Dorothy appeared in his office and stated to him that she had accused her father falsely through the intimidation of her stepmother. He recommends pardon. The present District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he also recommends pardon, stating that in view of all the circumstances of the case and the recantation of Dorothy, there is grave doubt as to the guilt of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the grave doubt as to the guilt of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his prior good record, and the retraction of his youngest daughter, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions" recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Dayton.

Sir: At No. 2, November Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Luzerne, Walter Smith alias Walter Harvey pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with robbery, and on January 3, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than ten years.
nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age, a boiler maker by occupation, and was divorced by his wife since his incarceration.

The applicant conspired with John Gaffney and Herman Sadowski to rob one Jerome Meyers who was accustomed o take the morning train from Wilkes-Barre to Retreat, ten miles distant, and carried with him a large quantity of jewelry. On September 3, 1921, the three men met in the railroad station, but the applicant lost his nerve and eft before the robbery was committed. Gaffney saw Meyers, grabbed his bag of jewelry and ran out through the rear door of the station, Meyers following. Gaffney boarded the automobile driven by Sodowski and the latter drove away, Meyers clinging to the automobile and calling for help. A crowd followed the automobile and Gaffney and Sodowski were immediately apprehended, and the applicant who had fled, was subsequently arrested and brought back to Luzerne County. The applicant did not actually participate in the robbery, but helped to plan it. Gaffney pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a maximum term of imprisonment of one year and six months, and Sodowski was convicted and sentenced to a maximum period of two years. The applicant received by far the longest sentence.

The applicant has now served three years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He has an excellent prison record and the prison authorities recommend clemency.

The Trial District Attorney, who opposed a former application for pardon, has now filed with the Board a letter in which, while not recommending pardon, he states that no injustice to the public would result if clemency were granted, and that he has no objection to the granting of a pardon at this time.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, his excellent prison record, and the desire of the prison authorities that he be pardoned, because of the fact that his confederates, who actually participated in the crime, received much shorter sentences, which have been completed, and in further consideration of the attitude of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Water Smith alias Walter Harvey.

Sir: At Nos. 14, 15, 16 and 17, April Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cameron, Arthur Brookens pleaded guilty to breaking and entering, and larceny, and on April 10, 1922 was sentenced on two indictments by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $2.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than fifteen years nor more than sixteen years.

The applicant is now 23 years of age, a native-born American citizen, a laborer by occupation, unmarried, and resided with his parents in the Borough of Renovo, Clinton County, Pennsylvania.

In the Fall of 1921, the applicant and his father, with whom he resided, were out of employment and there was no income for the maintenance of the family, which also included a mother and children. On October 10, 1921, and on March 18, 1922, Leslie Parker, the applicant and his two young brothers, Anson and Alvin, burglarized the store of J. Edward Stewart, in Cameron, Cameron County, Pennsylvania, and took and carried away merchandise. They were also indicted for burglarizing two other small stores. Parker and the applicant, the older members of the gang of burglars, were sent to the penitentiary. Anson Brookens was committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory, and Alvin Brookens was committed to Glen Mills. Both of the latter have since been released.

The applicant has now served three years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial Judge died after imposing sentence, but his brother, Senator Quigley, of Lock Haven, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that his brother, the Trial Judge, told him shortly before his death that the applicant had been sufficiently punished and that he, the Judge, would recommend a pardon. The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends a pardon and the present Judge joins in the application. The Chief Burgess of Renovo, the Justice of the Peace, and other prominent citizens of that borough recommend clemency.

The two brothers of the applicant, who were accomplices and have since been released, have filed with the Board an affidavit in which they state that their brother, the present applicant, only participated in the burglary of the Stewart store to which he pleaded guilty. Thomas E. Neylon, General Contractor, of Renovo, has filed with the Board a letter in which he asks clemency. He states that the applicant was formerly in his employ, and that if released he will again furnish him empoyment. He also agrees to become sponsor for his future good behavior. The family of the applicant are in destitute circumstances and a charge on the Poor District.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the destitute condition of his family; the recommendations of the Chief Burgess of Renovo, Justice of the Peace, and other prominent citizens; because of the fact that two of the participants in the burglary have been released from confinement; because of the fact that a former employer has offered to reemploy him and to become sponsor for his future good conduct; in further consideration of the fact that the Trial District Attorney strongly recommends clemency; and the further fact that the Trial Judge, who is now dead, has expressed his intention to recommend pardon, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Arthur Brookens.

Sir: At No. 83, June Sessions, 1908, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lackawanna, Guiseppi Guerra was convicted of felonious assault with intent to kill, and on June 3, 1908, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for the term of five years.

The applicant is 48 years of age, and owes allegiance to the Kingdom of Italy. He is a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed in the coal mines at Scranton, Pennsylvania, residing in a coal shed near the mine. At the present time he has a wife and seven children residing with him on Long Island, New York.

The applicant had deposited for safe-keeping with his cousin Frank Mariniaro, his earnings amounting to $395.00. When he asked the latter for the money in order to bring his family from Italy, Mariniaro denied that he had been given the money, called the applicant a "Black Hand" and ordered him out of his house, also threatening to kill him. In a fury of rage the applicant committed the assault for which he was convicted.

The applicant has served his full term of imprisonment and has been out in the world for almost twelve years. The present application is made in order to aid him in the restoration of his civil rights. He has asked the United States District Court at Brooklyn, New York, to admit him to citizenship. The Court was advised of the particulars of the present crime and suggests that the applicant apply for a pardon. His petition for citizenship was neither dismissed nor denied and is still pending in Court. The applicant will unquestionably be granted citizenship if the Board grants a pardon.

The applicant has served his full term of imprisonment and was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The District Director of Naturalization, New York City, writes that since his release from prison he has conducted himself as a person of good moral character, and is in every way qualified to become a citizen if a pardon restoring him to citizenship rights is granted. The Judge E. L. Garvin, writes that on the basis of his report "if I am presiding when the case comes on for a final hearing I shall have no hesitation in admitting the applicant to citizenship, providing nothing unsuspected develops between now and that time."

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant; and the term of imprisonment already served, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that the stigma of his former conviction should be removed in order to qualify him for citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Guiseppi Guerra.

Sir: At Nos. 11 and 12, October Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Franklin, W. F. Davis alias Walter Kunstein pleaded guilty to forgery and larceny, and on July 25, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $101.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than thirty-six months nor more than forty-two months.

The applicant is 46 years of age, a native-born American citizen, a carpenter foreman by occupation, and at the time of his arrest on the present charges was employed in the Borough of Chambersburg. His place of residence is Charlestown, South Carolina. He is a widower and has four minor children living with his mother in New York.

The crimes for which the applicant was indicted were as follows: He went to the home of a fellow-workman during his absence and took away a lot of carpenter tools, and on the same day forged his employer's name to a check for $28.80, and obtained the money for the same. At this time the applicant had been drinking heavily, was without money and took this means of helping himself. Shortly thereafter he went to Philadelphia, found employment and was arrested and returned to Chambersburg for trial.

After the original sentences were imposed, as the applicant was being taken from the Court Room, he threatened bodily injury to the Chief of Police who had been instrumental in his arrest. He was ordered into the Court later in the day, and the sentences which were originally concurrent were reconsidered and made cumulative.

The applicant has now served two years and ten months of his term of imprisonment. His four motherless children require support and he has pledged himself, if released, to join them in New York and support them properly.

At the February, 1925, session of this Board when this application was submitted, the Trial District Attorney, who had formerly opposed clemency, appeared before the Board in person and stated that the Trial Judge and he, the Trial District Attorney, were now favorable to clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which the applicant's four children have of support, in consideration of the recommendations of the Trial Judge and Trial District Attorney, and the further pledge on the part of the applicant that if released he will leave the Commonwealth, rejoin his children and support them, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said W. F. Davis alias Walter Kunstein.

Sir: At No. 59, September Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lawrence, Lizzie Vernino was convicted of aggravated assault and battery, assault and battery, assault, and throwing carbolic acid with intent to burn, etc., and on September 24, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $50.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than one year and six months nor more than three years. She was almost immediately transferred by the Court to the Lawrence County Jail on petition of the Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary.

The applicant is 24 years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, of Italian parentage, and at the time of her arrest was employed as a housekeeper. She had a husband and two children, aged nine and six years respectively, and they resided together near the city limits of New Castle.

On April 28, 1924, the applicant threw a glass or goblet, containing carbolic acid, at Carmine Vernino, which struck him in the face and entered his eyes, one of which was injured to such an extent that it was afterwards removed. Carmine Vernino was the brother of the applicant's husband, and had roomed and boarded with his brother's family for some years. At the time of the crime they resided in a house which had been jointly purchased by the two brothers. The applicant claimed that her brother-in-law had insulted her, made improper suggestions to her and had threatened to strike her on several occasions. She did not complain to her husband. The day before the crime these improper proposals were repeated, and when she refused to accede Carmine Vernino made threats against her. She went to the door, called her husband into the house who inquired about the trouble, and when he learned the difficulty ordered his brother to pick up and get out. Carmine took away some of his things in a suitcase. The following day returned to the house after the husband had gone to work. He began removing the remaining articles belonging to him. A dispute arose between the applicant and himself concerning the ownership of certain quilts which had been removed from his room into her own room. He then threatened to shoot her, and as she was returning from her room he advanced, pointing a revolver at her. There stood on the mantle over the fireplace the glass containing the carbolic acid. On seeing him approach, revolver in hand, she became greatly frightened. She grabbed the first thing which came to her, which happened to be the glass containing the acid, and threw it at him. She did not intend to throw the acid in his face, but in her excitement and fear threw the first thing that came to her hands.

The applicant has now served eight months of her term of imprisonment. She was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

A number of letters recommending clemency were filed with the Board. They include letters from the Prothonotary, County Commissioners, Register and Recorder, Sheriff and other prominent citizens. The Trial Judge also filed a letter urging pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the need which her children have of a mother's care; and because of the recommendations of the Trial Judge, County Officials and prominent citizens, we have concluded that she has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, she will prove herself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Lizzie Vernino.

Sir: At Nos. 145 and 146, December Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, George F. Griff was convicted of robbery, and on January 3, 1923, was sentenced by the Court in

No. 145 to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is 28 years of age, a native-born American citizen, married and has been an iron worker by occupation with the exception of three years when he served in the United States Army and bears an honorable discharge. At the time of his arrest he was a timekeeper at Port Richmond.

On the night of November 30, 1922, about 10:00 P. M., two men, Myron Millhon, a Jefferson Medical student, and Nathan Sashunsky, appeared within a short time of each other at the police station and reported that they had been held-up and robbed on Tenth Street between Spruce and Pine. On the description furnished, two officers started out to look for the bandit. On Clinton Street they noticed a man acting strangely, and at the same time heard a man from an upstairs window yell at the person who was tampering with an automobile in the street. On inquiry the officer was informed that the automobile belonged to the man in the window, and that the other man had just gotten out of the machine. Thereupon the officer took hold of the man who was standing near the car and proceeded to conduct him to a patrol box. The prisoner tried to escape, but was finally subdued and taken to the station, where he was identified by the complainants as the man who had held them up, having taken a watch, chain, $1.00 and five keys from Millhon, and twenty-four cents and an overcoat from Sashunsky. Neither the watch nor the money were found on the applicant's person, and the keys displayed at the trial were not positively identified as the keys found in the pocket of the applicant. The latter claimed that he was bringing his laundry to a colored woman who lived in the neighborhood in which he was arrested.

The applicant has now served two years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record has been excellent as shown by a letter from the Warden.

Millhon, one of the men who was robbed, has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends pardon. The Sergeant of Police, who arrested him, also urges clemency. Magistrate Burdick, of Hammonton, New Jersey, has filed with the Board a letter in which he offers to furnish employment to the applicant, if released, and to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the recommendation of the prosecutor; and because of the offer on the part of Magistrate Burdick to furnish employment to him, if released, and to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said George F. Griff.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 17, 1925.

Sir: At No. 47, June Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lehigh, Henry Meiley, Fred Meiley and Earl Heimbach were jointly convicted of burglary; entering in the night, without breaking, with intent to commit a felony; breaking and entering in the daytime, with intent to commit a felony; entering in the daytime, without breaking, with intent to commit a felony; larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on July 3, 1922, were sentenced each to pay a fine of $500, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than ten years.

The applicant, Henry Meiley, is twenty-nine years of age and has a wife and one child, aged three and one-half years; applicant Fred Meiley is thirty years of age and unmarried; applicant Heimbach is twenty-five years of age and has a wife and one child, aged two years and nine months. All three applicants are native-born American citizens and resided in the City of Allentown. All are auto mechanics by occupation. The Meileys, applicants, were also engaged in the taxi and hauling business. On the evening of September 27, 1921, John O'Donnell, Wesley Mann, Howard Trexler and applicant Fred Meiley came to the office of applicant Henry Meiley, and the two first named persons told the latter that they had asked applicant Fred Meiley to haul goods for them and requested the Meileys, applicants, to do the hauling. On learning that the cargo would consist of whiskey, applicant Henry Meiley told them that he would not haul whiskey unless they owned it and had a legal permit for the transfer. They showed a permit and applicant Henry Meiley obtained from the Internal Revenue office a confirmation of the regularity of the permit. He thereupon consented to haul the whiskey. Applicant Heimbach subsequently agreed to help them move the whiskey. The party in three cars proceeded to the residence of one John Zerby, who resided in South Bethlehem. Eighteen cases of whiskey were removed from the house and loaded on the cars, which then proceeded to Macungie instead of Allentown, which latter was the destination designated in the permit. An altercation arose with regard to the change in destination, but the Meileys, applicants were outnumbered and forced to deliver the whiskey to Macungie, where it was first stored in the barn of the farm belonging to the parents of the Meileys, applicants, but subsequently removed to Allentown.

The Meileys, applicants, were first arrested for taking the whiskey from the Zerby home and after confessions were extorted from them by the police authorities concerning their part in the transaction, applicant Heimbach and Mann were subsequently arrested and all jointly indicted. Mann, who was the master mind in this affair and had a long criminal record, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term of not less than four years nor more than seven years. O'Donnell and Trexler were never apprehended and are fugitives from justice.

The present applicants have now served approximately three years of their respective terms of imprisonment. They were never before charged with or convicted of crime.

A large number of letters, and also a petition signed by five hundred citizens of Allentown, recommending pardon, were filed with the Board. The Trial Judge, the Trial District Attorney, President Judge Reno, the present District Attorney, the Chief of Police, of Allentown, the prosecutor, the Prison Warden, the Board of Prison Inspectors, eight of the Jurymen, who tried the case, the Sheriff of Lehigh County, Major-General C. T. O'Neill (retired), in letters filed, recommend clemency. The families of applicant Henry Meiley and applicant Heimbach require maintenance and support, J. Herbert Kohler, Markel Sensenbach and O. S. Sterner, prominent citizens, of Allentown, have offered to become sponsors for applicant Henry Meiley, applicant Fred Meiley and applicant Earl Heimbach.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicants; the terms of imprisonment already served; the support which the families of two of the applicants require; in consideration of the recommendations of the Trial Judge, District Attorney, prosecutor and prominent citizens of Allentown, and because of the fact that three reputable citizens of Allentown, above named, have agreed to become sponsors for the future good conduct of the applicants, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions, recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Henry Meiley, Fred Meiley and Earl Heimbach, respectively.

Sir: At No. 107, February Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, Renato Mayer alias Ridaldo Meyers alias Daniel Amro was convicted of burglary, breaking and larceny, and at No. 10 January Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lackawanna, was convicted of robbery and entering in the daytime, without breaking, with intent to commit a felony, and on Feburary 6, 1919, was sentenced by the Luzerne County Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than ten years, this sentence, however, not to be effective until after he shall have been returned to Lackawanna Count to undergo trial there, and in case of conviction this sentence to have preference to any sentence imposed there. On February 8, 1919, he was sentenced by the Lackawanna County Court on the crime of robbery to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than ten years; and for the offenses of entering in the daytime, without breaking, with intent to commit a felony, was, on the same day, sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not ess than two years nor more than seven years. The two latter sentences to run concurrently and to begin at the expiration of the sentence imposed in Luzerne County.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age, a native of Italy and subject to that Kingdom. He is unmarried. His home is in Milan, Italy. His father is a retired lawyer and a prominent Italian citizen. Prior to his conviction, as above stated, he followed the art or trade of painting and interior decorating.

At the age of fifteen years the applicant was sent to the United States by his father to be placed under the charge of a celebrated artist. He was unable to speak the English language with ease and could not find the man to whom he was sent. He went from city to city obtaining what work he could, and finally was connected with a restaurant and became associated with evil companions who advised him that it would be easy to get money by stealing. The applicant who was in straitened circumstances, joined in the plan, and on December 3, 1919, in company with one Nicklo, entered Musgrave's drug store in Scranton and took from the cash register fifteen dollars and from one George Fox, who was in the store, the sum of seven dollars. Following this crime, the applicant and his partner, who were novices in crime, decided to go to Wilkes-Barre, where for several days they boarded at a hotel. Nicklo was arrested on suspicion, and upon being searched a revolver and a key to the room in the hotel were found on his person. The police authorities then came to the hotel and also arrested the applicant on suspicion. Numerous robberies had been committed in Wilkes-Barre, and both men were charged with the burglary of a dwelling house on December 7, 1918. The house had been broken into, but the intruders were frightened off before they were able to get anything. The applicant was in no wise connected with this crime, but was convicted because the occupant of the house that was robbed stated that he resembled the man who attempted to commit the robbery. The applicant admits his participation in the robbery in Scranton.

The applicant has now served six years and four months f his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Judge Maxey who, while District Attorney of Lackawanna County, prosecuted the case has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends pardon.

Mr. Frank Bruno, 824 Christian Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania .....has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, if liberated.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney; and because of the fact that the said Frank Bruno .....has agreed to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, if liberated, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Renato Mayer alias Rinaldo Meyers, alias Daniel Amro.

At No. 114, October Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Timothy Harrigan was convicted of sodomy and buggery, and on October 5, 1922 ,was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than four years.

The applicant is forty-nine years of age and unmarried. He is a native-born citizen of the United States. He has been a sailor for twenty years, with the exception of the time when he served in the army from June to December, 1917, when he was honorably discharged after the loss of an eye while in line of duty.

In September, 1923, the applicant was a boatswain on a coasting vessel. As the result of an altercation between the first mate and the applicant concerning the dismissal of a cabin boy, Alfred Kapy, the latter was continued aboard by the first mate as a seaman, and enmity existed between the first mate and the applicant. The ship docked at Philapelphia and while in port, the applicant became intoxicated, while on shore leave, and upon returning to the ship on September 29th, and while under the influence of liquor, he went into his room and laid down on his bunk with his clothes on. Sometime after midnight Kapy came into the room and lay on the bed alongside of the applicant. The first mate shortly thereafter followed Kapy into the room. He then accused the applicant of having committed the crimes for which he was afterwards convicted. Five days later the applicant was tried before a jury without being represented by counsel and was convicted on the testimony of the first mate and Kapy. While there was a medical examination made shortly after the alleged crime, no medical testimony was introduced at the trial.

The applicant has now served two years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He claims that he is innocent of the crimes charged and was the victim of a plot growing out of ill-feeling between certain members of the crew and himself, and that had he been represented by counsel at the trial his innocence would have been made manifest.

Addison L. Dougherty, Deputy Commissioner of the United States Shipping Board, at Baltimore, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, if liberated, and has also agreed to see to it that he is given a position aboard a vessel as boatswain, which was the rank he held prior to his arrest.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; and because of the offer of the Deputy Commissioner of the United States Shipping Board at Baltimore, to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, and his obligation to secure employment for him, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Timothy Harrigan.

Sir: At Nos. 368 and 369, August Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Westmoreland, Walter Sowinski pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with breaking and entering, and larceny, and on August 24, 1923, was sentenced by the Court on each indictment to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, both sentences to run concurrently.

The applicant is in his twenty-third year, a native-born American citizen, an automobile mechanic by occupation, and at the time of his arrest for the present offenses was employed by the Union, Switch and Signal Company, at Swissdale, Pennsylvania. He is unmarried. He resided with his parents at Monessen, Pennsylvania.

The applicant, at No. 82 May Term, 1920, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with felonious breaking and entering, and on April 27, 1920, was sentenced by the Washington County Court to serve a term of not less than two years nor more than five years in the Eestern State Penitentiary. At this time he was only eighteen years old. He served his minimum term and was paroled on April 27, 1922. While on parole he committed the crimes for which he was sentenced, as above stated, by the Westmoreland County Court, was taken to the Reformatory at Huntingdon, and on October 29, 1924, was paroled. He entered the employ of W. E. Wright, truck man, of Huntingdon, and worked for him seven months so satisfactorily that he was finally discharged from the custody of the Reformatory on April 30, 1925. On May 8, 1925, he returned to the penitentiary, unaccompanied by any officer, in order to serve the maximum term under his original sentence from Washington County by reason or having violated his parole. The penitentiary authorities had no knowledge of his whereabouts until he returned there alone.

The offenses for which he was convicted and sentenced by the Westmoreland County Court consisted in burglarizing two stores located at Monessen, in August, 1923. If he is pardoned for the offenses committed in Westmoreland County, he will be eligible to reparole on the Washington County charge and can re-enter the employ of Mr. Wright, at Huntingdon, who desires to have him returned and who has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

The General Superintendent of the Huntingdon Reformatory, Parole Officer Coulter of the Western State Penitentiary, and Chief of Police Corbin, of Huntingdon, have filed letters with the Board recommending clemency, and a numerously signed petition of citizens of Huntingdon to the same effect has been filed.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; because of the fact that the applicant has shown in an unmistakable manner his desire to rehabitate himself; in consideration of the recommendations of the Superintendent of the Huntingdon Reformatory, the Parole Officer of the Penitentiary, the Chief of Police of Huntingdon, and citizens generally, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of the sentences imposed by the Westmoreland County Court and made eligible to re-parole by the penitentiary authorities and thus be returned to his former employer, who has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Walter Sowinski.

Sir: At No. 1, November Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Susquehanna, LeRoy L. Gumaer and William N. Gumaer were jointly convicted of robbery, and on January 31, 1921, were each sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a period of not less than eight years nor more than twelve years.

Applicant LeRoy Gumaer is twenty-three years of age, and applicant William N. Gumaer is twenty years of age. Both are native-born American citizens, brothers, unmarried and at the time of their arrest were employed on their mothers' farm in Gibson Township, Susquehanna County, where they resided with their widowed mother.

On September 3, 1920, Harry Golden, who was engaged in peddling jewelry, clothing and notions, was traveling through Gibson Township, Susquehanna County, with a horse and wagon. He passed the home of the applicants. About 5:50 P. M., while he was proceeding through a woods about two miles from the Gumaer home he was held-up by two men who demanded his money. Both of the robbers had army revolvers and one had a large dagger. They wore old dirty blue overalls with a small stripe, dark shirts, plaid caps, were coatless, and had red handkerchiefs over their faces. They compelled Golden to turn over his money, and also took jewelry and notions from the wagon. The robbers then left Golden and went in the direction of the Gumaer home. Two members of the State Constabulary were called to the scene of the robbery, obtained a search warrant, and on suspicion searched the Gumaer home. In the bedroom of the applicants, in a trunk belonging to them, they found two army revolvers, a knife and a quality of jewelry. The revolvers, knife and jewelry accorded with the description given by Golden of the weapons, and the stolen jewelry. The applicants posed before Golden and were compelled to enact the robbery according to the original occurrence, and were then identified by him. When the crime was committed the applicants were sixteen and nineteen years old respectively.

The applicants have now served four years and five months of their respective terms of imprisonment. They were never before charged with or convicted of crime. While they were identified by the victim of the robbery as the persons who perpetrated the crime, the identification was not complete.

Will Leech, a prominent and reputable member of the Bar of Lackawanna County, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicants, if liberated.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicants; the mother's need of assistance to operate the farm; the doubt as to the identity of the perperators of the crime; and in consideration of the offer of Will Beech to become sponsor for their future good conduct, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said LeRoy L. Gumaer and William N. Gumaer.

Sir: At No. 17, December Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, William Armstrong pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and escaping, and on October 25, 1920, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than four years,sentence to be computed after completion of present sentence from Mercer County.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, a native-born American citizen, colored, a contractor by occupation, and was employed at the time of his arrest. He resided in Omaha, Nebraska, and is unmarried.

In 1919, the applicant was convicted of assault and battery in the Courts of Mercer County, and was sentenced to a term of not less than three years nor more than four years in the Western State Penitentiary. It was while serving this sentence that he made his escape.

Shortly before August 12, 1919, the applicant received a letter from his relatives stating that his father was very ill and not expected to recover. The said news worried him to such an extent that on the date mentioned, while working on the farm connected with the penitentiary, he stopped work about noon and walked away. After he had gone a considerable distance he realized that he was a fugitive and that he would be punished if he were apprehended or if he returned to the farm, consequently he determined to continue his journey and visit his father before he passed away, and was with him when he died. After an absence from the penitentiary of approximately fourteen months, he was arrested in Omaha, Nebraska, and returned to Pennsylvania for trial.

The applicant has served the maximum sentenced imposed by the Mercer County Courts and has completed one year and two months of his sentence for escape. The applicant was never charged with or convicted of any crimes, except the ones above mentioned. The Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary unanimously recommend a pardon. His prison record as been exceptionally good.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant, the terms of imprisonment already served, and particularly because of the unanimous recommendation of the Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will pro himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public noti and in open sessions" recommend that a pardon be no granted to the said William Armstrong.

Sir. At No. 1, August Term, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Washington, Thomas Westwood pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on August 21, 1918, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is forty-five years of age, a native of England, but a citizen of the United States, and at the time of the commision of the crime was employed in a mine located at Donora, and resided with his parents at Monogahela. He is unmarried.

The applicant, on August 4, 1918, shot one William Malee, who subsequently died from the effects of a gunshot wound in the leg. Prior thereto there had been trouble between the family of the applicant and Malee. It began with a thrashing administered to Malee by a brother of the applicant when the former insisted in getting into their automobile while in a drunken condition. Afterwards the deceased made statements to various persons that he would get even for this beating by taking it out on the applicant, who was a cripple, having lost a leg some considerable time previously. Malee frequently in public taunted the applicant about his crippled condition, calling him vile names and daring him to fight. The applicant made every effort to avoid Malee and refused to fight. On August 4, 1918, about 8:00 P. M., the applicant went to the Moose Club at Monongahela. Malee was there, and when he heard the applicant's voice he began to curse and revile him. The applicant told Malee he was a cripple and did not want trouble. Malee continued his abuse. The applicant finally left the hall, laboring under great excitement, and went to his home where he secured a shotgun, which one of his brothers used for hunting. The applicant went down to the vicinity of the street car stop. About eleven o'clock Malee alighted from a car. The applicant accosted him and asked him to take back the opprobrious names he had called him and his father. This Malee refused to do and rushed upon the applicant in a belligerent attitude. The later pulled the trigger and shot Malee in the leg for the purpose of crippling him and placing him in the same physical condition as the applicant. The following day learning that Malee had died from the effects of the wound, the applicant, with his father, went to the District Attorney's office and surrendered himself for trial.

The applicant has now served six years and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime and bears an excellent reputation, while the deceased bore a bad reputation in the community as a fighter, and had seriously disfigured several men in fights. This reputation was known to the applicant, and his frequent threats placed him in a continuous state of terror.

The Trial Judge has certified to the truth of the facts stated in the application for pardon and interposes no objection. The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends pardon, Messrs. Heffran and Towner, Members of the Assembly, join in the application. Favorable letters from a former Sheriff and County Treasurer have also been filed with the Board.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the recommendations of the Trial District Attorney, former Sheriff and County Treasurer, and the two Assemblymen, and the favorable attitude of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Westwood.

Sir: At Nos. 633, 635 and 636, February Sessions, 1921, and Nos. 584 and 585, April Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, John E. Williams was convicted of larceny and receiving stolen goods, and larceny from the person, and on November 19, 1921, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 31¼ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Allegheny County Jail for a term of two years. On July 19, 1922, after serving one-third of his term, he was paroled for the balance of the term, and on February 29, 1924, was discharged from parole.

The applicant is thirty years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is married and resides with his wife and two small children in the Borough of Wilmerding. At the time of his conviction he was the Constable and Police Officer in the adjoining Borough of Wall, Allegheny County, and at the present time is night captain of police in the Borough of Wilmerding.

The applicant, as Constable, was charged with going to the homes of the different prosecutors, who were foreigners, to make raids for the operation of illegal stills, and that in the course of the search made for the stills he took money, which in two cases was carried on the person, and which in three cases was found in the houses. The applicant claimed that these cases were framed up by disgruntled moonshiners and law-breakers, whose ill-will he had incurred in the discharge of his official duty.

He was never before charged with or convicted of crime, and his subsequent record as captain of police in Wilmerding has been excellent.

The Trial District Attorney who, in 1923, opposed the first application for pardon, has filed a recent letter with the Board in which he strongly recommends pardon. He further states that at the time he was not convinced that the applicant was guilty, and that even if he was guilty he has since earned a pardon by his rigid enforcement of the laws.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; and his subsequent good record as Police Officer, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of his former conviction and trials.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John E. Williams.

Sir: At Nos. 147 to 167 both inclusive, May Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, McKinley Peeler alias William McKinley Peeler upon advice of counsel, pleaded nolo contendere to twenty-one indictments charging him with entering a building to commit felony, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on June 25, 1918, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than ten years on each indictment, the sentence to run concurrently.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age, colored, a native-born citizen of the United States, by occupation a laborer, married and at the time of his arrest resided with his wife in the City of Pittsburgh.

In March, 1918, the applicant was regularly employed by the Diebold Lumber Company during the day, but assisted Earl Redcross, colored, after hours in moving household goods from one location to another. In this way he earned extra money. From certain houses in which the applicant assisted Redcross in moving goods, as well as from houses in which he did not assist, various valuable articles were stolen and Redcross was arrested and charged with the theft and confessed his guilt. He implicated the applicant in stealing goods which had been stolen from some of the houses, and upon the trial of the applicant, the evidence of Redcross was the only evidence against him, and upon that evidence alone was he convicted. When the applicant learned that the police of Pittsburgh were looking for him, he immediately went to the central station and surrendered himself. None of the stolen goods were found upon the applicant, nor in his custody and control. Redcross has made an affidavit, which is on file with the Board, in which he exonerates the applicant from complicity in the larceny of these goods. After a thorough examination of the evidence it appears that the applicant carried no deadly weapon when the alleged thefts were committed.

The applicant has now served seven years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only twenty years old when these offenses were committed. His prison record is excellent. Since his incarceration he has endeavored to educate himself, and learned to speak, read and write four foreign languages. He is now in charge of the foreign correspondence of the penitentiary.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; his youth when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record and his commendable zeal in acquiring an education, which will be useful to him in the future, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions, recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said McKinley Peeler alias William McKinley Peeler.

Sir: At No. 791, June Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, John Cardone was convicted of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, with attempt to ravish, and rape, and on July 12, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than thirteen years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, of Italian descent, but a native-born citizen of the United States. At the time of his conviction he was engaged in the junk business with his brother in the City of Philadelphia, where he resided with his mother. He is unmarried.

On the night of May 19, 1921, Annie Robinson, 19 years of age, accompanied by another girl, was returning to her home from Point Breeze Park when two men, to wit, Joseph DeFeo and Angelo Marona, passing along the street in an automobile stopped and asked the girls to ride with them. Both girls got into the car and the men took them to a garage at Ninth and Carpenter Streets. The girls became frightened and ran out of the garage. The two men ran after them, and catching Annie Robinson brought her back to the garage where both of them repeatedly assaulted her. Later the applicant came into the garage and took the girl away from the other men to a boxing arena, located at the Corner of Eleventh and Catharine Streets, where he assaulted her, using no violence, after which he put her on a trolley car, paid her fare and sent her home. The applicant was tried first and convicted as before stated, while the other two men, who were the original perpetrators of the crime, were both acquitted by the jury. The applicant was only eighteen years old when the crime was committed.

The applicant has now served three years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment. A letter was filed with the Board signed by the Warden of the York County Jail and his deputies, to which the applicant was transferred, setting forth that the applicant on March 18, 1924, saved the life of a fellow prisoner of the jail, who, while locked in a cell caused a fire of unknown origin and would have been burned to death but for the heroism of the applicant who went into the cell through a heavy fire and smoke and carried the unconscious body to a place of safety.

Annie Robinson, the victim and prosecutrix in the case, filed an affidavit with the Board in which she asks clemency and suggests that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, particularly in view of the fact that the original perpetrators escaped punishment. The mother of the prosecutrix also asks for clemency for the reasons stated.

The Trial Judge, now deceased filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency on the ground that the applicant has been sufficiently punished.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the fact that the original perpetrators of the crime escaped punishment; because of the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the heroic conduct of the applicant in saving the life of a fellow prisoner; because of the fact that the prosecutrix and her mother both recommend clemency; and in consideration of the strong recommendation of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Cardone.

Sir: At No. 181, December Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, George Smith was convicted of larceny, and on May 26, 1913, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than five years.

The applicant, after serving a term of two years, one month and six days was on July 7, 1915, paroled, and on May 26, 1918, at the expiration of his term of imprisonment received his absolute discharge.

The applicant is thirty years of age, a subject of Russia and has a wife and one child.

The applicant was out of employment when the crime was committed and unable to find work. He was but seventeen years of age. On December 3, 1912, while riding in a crowded trolley car, about eight o'clock in the evening, he endeavored to pick the pocket of a man who was standing nearby, which resulted in his arrest, trial and conviction. He is now employed by the Stetson Shirt Company, New York City, and has been successful in business. He now desires to become a citizen of the United States. It will, therefore, be necessary for him to have his record cleared.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, and his subsequent good record, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of his conviction and sentence.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said George Smith.

Sir: At Nos. 88 and 89, November Sessions, 1908, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Gustave Glaser pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on November 9, 1908, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of six months.

The applicant is about thirty-five years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and at the present time is a member of the police force in and for the City of Philadelphia. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a driver by a paper box manufacturer in that City, where he now resides with his wife and two children, aged eight and six years respectively.

The applicant, in the course of his employment, delivered a load of paper boxes to Laird Schober and Company, shoe manufacturers of Philadelphia. At the time of making delivery John Nugent accompanied the applicant who had just passed his eighteenth birthday. While he was making delivery of the boxes, Nugent remained on the wagon, and as the applicant was driving away a police officer stopped him, ordered him to open the wagon, which he did, and there in a compartment were found eleven pairs of shoes. When the case was called for trial, the applicant, who was without counsel, was persuaded that the entry of a plea of guilty would make it easier for Nugent and himself. He thereupon pleaded guilty and was sentenced as above stated.

The applicant has long since completed his entire term of imprisonment. He has served on the Philadelphia Police Force for the past five years. He was never before or since accused of any crime, except the one above mentioned. He has twice been cited by his superior officer for efficient service. With full knowledge of the applicant's crime he was appointed and retained on the police force.

The object of the present application for clemency is to remove from the applicant the stigma of his conviction and sentence.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; and his prior and subsequent good record, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of his conviction and sentence.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Gustave Glaser.

Sir: At Nos. 72 and 73, December Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, in and for the County of Fayette, Herman L. Geska was convicted on two indictments charging him with assault and battery, and assault and battery with intent to ravish, and in the one case was recommended to the extreme mercy of the Court, and on December 7, 1923, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 12 cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 28 years of age, a native-born American citizen, a miner by occupation and at the time of his conviction in the City of Uniontown with his wife and four children ranging in age from four months to eight years.

The circumstances surrounding the two crimes were as follows: On September 30, 1923, about 10:30 P. M., Mrs. Boyd, the prosecutrix in the first case, went to Connellsville. When she alighted from the car at a street intersection she alleges that the applicant, who was a fellow-passenger, left the car and walked in the same direction, traveling a short distance back of her. While she was walking along the street the applicant came up behind her and raised her skirts. She turned on him, screamed, struck at him and fled. She was the only witness in her own behalf. Clara Camp, a seventeen year old girl, the prosecutrix in the second case, alleged that on October 7, 1923, about 7:00 P. M., she had gone from the vicinity of Connellsville into that City to obtain milk. She encountered the applicant, at a street corner, who asked her whether she kept company. During the conversation the applicant stepped on her toes, but in no other way assaulted her. She was the only witness for the prosecution. Both of these women were unknown to the applicant and no further attempt to assault was made in either case, except as briefly outlined. He had employed no counsel before the trial and was without witnesses. He entered a general denial of both assaults.

The applicant has now served one year and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Sergeant Freeman, of the State Police, was detailed by the Board to investigate the circumstances surrounding this case. He reported that the facts were as above stated, and that the identification in the one case was not positive enough and in the other case so positive as to excite suspicion of its genuineness. He also finds that there is grave doubt as to the guilt of the applicant, who, before his imprisonment, was a steady worker and supported his wife and small children who are now in a destitute condition.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his prior good record, and the dire need which his wife and children have of support, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Herman L. Geska.

Sir: At No. 470, October Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Mattie Jones was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on February 27, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted. Prior thereto she had been convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to death but the Supreme Court on appeal granted a new trial with the result above given.

The applicant is 28 years of age, colored, an American by birth and by occupation a domestic servent. She was married, but estranged from her husband, and had lived in adultery with one William Martin, colored, for a period of three years prior to September 22, 1923, the date of the alleged killing.

Eight or nine days before the tragedy the applicant, while speaking of the deceased, told an acquaintance that she would kill Martin. The night before his death she, together with the deceased, attended a party. She became violently jealous because he was dancing with another female, and wanted him to go home with her, which he refused to do. Thereupon she took Martin's raincoat and hat and left, but returned in fifteen or twenty minutes and again requested him to go home with her. He again refused. The applicant said, "well if you don't go now when you do come the undertaker is going to take you out." The applicant left the party and the deceased remained. Later that same evening she told one of the guests at the party that she was going to kill Martin when he same home. The following morning the applicant went to the police station and turned over a gun to the police informing them that Martin was shot. The officers going into the room occupied by them found Martin dead in a pool of blood with gunshot wounds in the back and head. She made a confession admitting the shooting, but claimed that it was done in self-defense. At the trial she testified to numerous assaults committed upon her by the deceased, not only at the time of the shooting, but almost continuously for a year previous, claiming that he kicked her, blackened her eyes, beat her, bragged of his amours with other women and asked her to "hustle" so that he could live off her adulterous practices with other men. She also testified that he was a gambler and a drunkard. There were no eye witnesses to the killing. The evidence of the Commonwealth was circumstantial. She made no effort to run away, but surrendered herself and took to the police station the weapon with which the crime was committed, the property of the deceased.

The applicant has served seven months of her term of imprisonment. She was never before charged with or convicted of crime. Her prison record is excellent.

Ten of the jurors who convicted her the second time have petitioned for clemency, and one juror who participated in her first conviction joined in the petition. The ministers of the A. M. E. Church of Philadelphia in weekly conference asked for clemency. The members of the Baptist State Convention in annual meeting appointed a committee of three to ask for pardon. A large number of petitions and letters were filed with the Board advocating clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the fact that there were no eye witnesses to the crime; and that the applicant pleaded self-defense; because of the recommendations of all but two jurors at the second trial, and because of the recommendations of prominent clergymen and reputable citizens generally, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 539, August Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, David Sonis was convicted of arson, and on November 3, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is thirty-two years of age, a native of Russia, but an American citizen. He has a wife and two children, aged ten and six years respectively. At the time of his arrest he was proprietor of a candy and stationery store, situated at the Corner of Third and Porter Steets in the City of Philadelphia, and at times was employed as a sheet metal worker by the Fow Manufacturing Company of said City.

The applicant was jointly tried and convicted with his brother, Benjamin Sonis, and David Goldman, of attempting to set fire to and burning the store and dwelling at 5760 Rodman Street, Philadelphia, occupied by Benjamin Sonis, on the night of August 13, 1922. The latter, at the time was in financial straits, and a week prior to the attempted fire had removed the larger part of his stock to the store of the applicant and planned to collect fire insurance on the whole stock and fixtures insured. There was in force, insurance to the amount of $5500, and the stock remaining in the building at the time of the attempted fire was not worth $300. The presence of a large portion of the stock of his brother, Benjamin, in David Sonis' store is explained by a broker who had the store for sale at the time and had advised a reduction of the stock and its return to the jobbers from whom it had been purchased. The latter had been requested by the wife of Benjamin Sonis to call at the store and take away the merchandise which was to be returned. The jobbers agreed to accept the goods, but did not call promptly. They were subsequently informed by the applicant that this merchandise had been transferred to the applicant's home, and that they should call there for it. When they finally came, the merchandise had been confiscated by the authorities. Testimony to this effect was not presented during the trial, but now appears in the form of letters filed.

The Fire Marshal's Office received information of the contemplated setting fire to the premises of Benjamin Sonis. David Goldman was arrested shortly after midnight as he emerged from the building. His companion in the crime, Weisfield, escaped. The applicant, who resided seventy-one blocks distant first appeared on the scene about an hour after Goldman's arrest. He was excited and said that he was looking for his brother Benjamin who had telephoned him that he was sick. Later in the night, after his arrest, a confession was exhorted from the applicant, taken down in longhand by a member of the Fire Marshal's staff, which statement was signed with a mark, the applicant being unable to read or write English. The statement was to the effect that the applicant's brother, who was in financial straits, had entered into an agreement with one Weisfield (who is a fugitive from justice) to set fire to Benjamin Sonis' store, but that the applicant did not know when it was to happen. The applicant did not testify at the trial, and was convicted mainly on the strength of the exhorted confession above mentioned. His failure to take the stand, mainly due to ignorance of the English language, was unfavorably commented upon by counsel for Goldman, a co-defendant, and injured him in the estimation of the Jury.

A large number of letters have been filed with the Board from reputable citizens of Philadelphia in which they urge clemency on the ground of the applicant's prior good record and the need which his family has of support. Alfred W. Fleisher, President of the Board of Trustees of the Penitentiary, recommends pardon, and Isaac Gerstley, 203 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, has offered to become sponsor for his future conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his linguistic inability to testify and to understand the terms of the confession exhorted from him; the destitute condition of his wife and two small children; because of the recommendation of the President of the Board of Trustees and the offer of a reputable citizen to become sponsor, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said David Sonis.

Sir: At No. 215, January Sessions, 1908, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, William Lee York was convicted of conspiracy, and on February 27, 1908, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of two years. He was released from prison at the termination of his sentence, and for fifteen years past has deported himself as a good citizen.

The applicant is forty-nine years of age, a Chinaman of Christian faith and has been a resident of Philadelphia for about thirty-two years. At the time of his conviction he was engaged in the restaurant business and acting from time to time as an official court interpreter, and resided at 1002 Race Street at the Chinese Mission of the Y. M. C. A. At that time he was a single man, but is now married and conducts a large Chinese restaurant at Fifty-second and Market Streets, Philadelphia, known as "York's Tea Garden". He is a man of property and means.

In the present case the applicant was charged with conspiring by means of perjury and subornation of perjury to procure the indictment of a fellow Chinaman, Charles L. Lee, for the murder of two other Chinamen, to wit, Yee Ting and Lee Dick. The background of the case was an intense factional war between two powerful Chinese Tongs. The applicant made an absolute denial of the charge and furnished over fifty character witnesses, but was convicted and sentenced as above stated.

This case was presented to the Board at the April Sessions, 1925, and held under advisement because of the opposition of the District Attorney of Philadelphia, who asked that the case be held to await the determination of a certain prosecution against the applicant pending in the United States District Court of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, the charge being the dealing in and possession of opium. There has since been filed with the Board a certified copy of the judgment of nol pros entered by the Federal District Attorney in the last mentioned case. The sole objection to the pardon has now vanished.

The applicant was released from prison fifteen years ago and his record as a citizen is unimpeachable as shown by numerous letters on file with the Board. He has been prosperous in business and active in church work. He was never, except in the present case, convicted of crime.

Ex-Judge John M. Patterson, Frederick J. Shoyer and other prominent citizens and clergymen, who are active in church work recommend a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the fact that the applicant has served his term of imprisonment and has been released fifteen years, during which period he has been a good citizen, and in consideration of the recommendations of Ex-Judge Patterson and other reputable citizens, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of the crime for which he was convicted.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William Lee York.

Sir: At No. 106, November Sessions, 1923 in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Albert Carelli was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on June 24, 1924, was sentenced to be electrocuted. Subsequently on March 18, 1925, the sentence of death was, by this Board, commuted to life imprisonment.

The applicant is 19 years of age, a native-born American citizen, and automobile mechanic by occupation, and at the time if his arrest was working in a garage in the City of Pittsburgh, where he resided with his mother, two sisters and brother, he being the oldest child and the only wage earner. He is unmarried.

The applicant, George Thompson and Raymond Dugan, were jointly indicated for murder, but were tried separately. The applicant was first tried and convicted of murder in the first degree. Thompson was subsequently convicted of voluntary manslaughter and Dugan was found guilty of murder in the second degree.

On September 14, 1923, Philip Flynn, a bartender in a saloon located in the City of Pittsburg, was shot and as a result died four days later. Two masked men, armed with revolvers, entered the saloon about 10:30 in the evening. One stood in the center of the room and the other attempted to go behind the bar. The bartender endeavored to restrain the latter. A scuffle ensued and two shots were fired, one of them striking the bartender in the abdomen. The two masked men then left the barroom, jumped into a waiting automobile and drove away. Two or three other men were in the barroom at the time, but no one was able to identify the robbers, nor was the applicant identified as one of the two men. On the night of October 9, 1923, motorcycle detectives, connected with the Police Department of the City of Pittsburgh, arrested five men in a Ford automobile parked near the Regent Theatre, among them being the applicant and his co-defendant Thompson. They were taken to the police station, separated, subjected to the third degree and both are alleged to have admitted during the course of their examination that they were the men who held up the saloon on the night of September 14. The applicant on every other occasion denied that he participated in the attempted robbery of the saloon and alleged that his so-called confession was made as the result of abuse, beatings and mistreatment by the Police Department. He further claimed that on the night in question he was not in the City of Pittsburgh, but in the town of Burton, Ohio, about 136 miles distant, and that at the time the attempted robbery occurred he was attending a dance at the fair which was being held in Burton, and produced sworn statements from disinterested reputable citizens who alleged that they had seen him in Burton at various times on the night in question. One witness, a young girl, deposed that she was dancing with the applicant when the attempted robbery is alleged to have occurred. He also furnished sworn proof that he assisted in suppressing a fire which occurred in Burton that same night.

The Secretary of the Pardon Board, by direction of the Board, visited Burton, Ohio, investigated and took testimony from those who made the affidavits that they were in company with or saw the applicant on the night in question, as well as on various other days of the entire week up to September 16, 1923, when he returned to Pittsburgh. The Secretary's investigation and report confirm the sworn statements already filed.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only 18 years old when the alleged crime was committed. His co-defendants were convicted of lesser grades of murder and received shorter terms of imprisonment.

The Union Mortgage Company of Cleveland, Ohio, by affidavit filed have offered to send the applicant away for medical treatment, and when completely restored to health will employ him in the capacity of a clerk. The Trust Officer of said company has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

The Trial Judge filed no letter with the Board, but made representations to a member thereof indicating that he was favorable to clemency. The Trial District Attorney by letter filed recommends pardon. A great many letters and petitions urging clemency were presented on behalf of the applicant. The widow of the murdered man asks the Governor for clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the alleged crime was committed; the doubt as to the actual participation in it; his prior good record; the fact that his alleged accomplices were convicted and sentenced for lesser grades of murder; because of the recommendations of the Trial District Attorney, the favorable attitude of the Trial Judge, and the request of many citizens, and the offer of the Mortgage Company, of Cleveland, to employ the applicant if liberated, and safeguard his future, we have concluded that the has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Albert Carelli.

Sir: At No. 15, December Term, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Northampton, Horace Rose and Percy Rose pleaded guilty to highway robbery, and on February 17, 1921, were sentenced each to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

Applicant Horace Rose was nineteen years old at the time of his conviction and applicant Percy Rose was seventeen years old at that time. Both are Americans by birth and laborers by occupation. They lived with their father, Reverend Percy Rose, at Martins Creek, Northampton County. Applicant Horace Rose was married just before his arrest. Applicant Percy Rose is unmarried.

The applicants were employed in a cement plant. On the evening of December 22, 1920, the date of the commission of the crime, they had been drinking, and without any forethought or concern of the consequences upon the mere suggestion of a companion, one William Smith, they held up Joseph Haas on a public highway and took from his person a gold watch and money. The watch was subsequently returned to the owner.

The applicants have now served four years and seven months of their terms of imprisonment. They were never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Joseph Haas, the victim of the robbery and the prosecutor in the case, filed with the Board an affidavit in which, after reciting the circumstances of the robbery, he asks for clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicants when the crime was committed; their prior good record; the terms of imprisonment already served; and because of the recommendation of the victim of the robbery, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

Sir: At No. 83, February Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Joseph Nethen pleaded guilty to robbery and receiving stolen goods, and on April 6, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of six and one-quarter cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is twenty years of age and a citizen of the United States. At the time of his arrest he was employed by the Heinz Glass Company, of Sharpsburg, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and resided with his mother in that borough. He is unmarried.

On December 10, 1922, the applicant and one, Raymond Greiner, held up E. G. White on the public highway and robbed him of $9.00. Aloysius McAdams taught the applicant freight riding and other unlawful acts and induced the applicant and other boys to use automobiles not their own, for joy rides, and subsequently when they needed money he suggested that they hold up somebody, which was done. When the present crime was committed the applicant was only eighteen years of age. The gang which McAdams led consisted of Robert Kintz and Charles Kintz, brothers, Raymond Greiner, Joseph Fisher and several others, together with the applicant. Three of these boys were sent to the Huntingdon Reformatory and have long since been released. The Kintz Brothers, Greiner and the applicant were sent to the penitentiary. The Kintz Brothers and Greiner have since been pardoned by this Board.

The applicant has now served two years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent. His mother and younger brothers and sisters require his financial aid.

W. J. Fix, of Sharpsburg, a reputable citizen, has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct and will also furnish employment.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the fact that he has been more severely punished than any of his accomplices; the need of his family for financial assistance; and the further fact that a reputable citizen will furnish him employment and guard his future, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Nethen.

Sir: At No. 18, October Term 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Thomas Slattery alias Thomas J. Williams was convicted of rape. The jury recommended him to the extreme mercy of the Court on account of being under sixteen years of age. On April 5, 1922, he was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for an indeterminate period, the minimum term fixed at six years and the maximum term as fixed by law.

The applicant is now nineteen years of age and of Irish and Welsh extraction. He was born in America. At the time of his arrest he was a laborer in the mines and resided in the Borough of Dickson City, Lackawanna County, with his mother.

Mary Maczarski, then in her fourteenth year, residing in Dickson City, charged the applicant with having ravished her on June 16, 1921.

The applicant has now served three years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The applicant's mother is in poor health and supports the family on the wage of $20.00 per month as janitress of the public schools, and the services of the applicant are necessary for the support of herself and family, some of the children being of tender age. If, liberated, employment with the Hudson Coal Company has been offered when work is resumed.

The private counsel for the prosecution has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon, and the girl who was ravished, as well as her mother, also ask clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the extreme youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the fact that his mother requires financial assistance in the support of the family; and because of the recommendations of the private counsel for the prosecution, the injured girl and her mother, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Slattery alias Thomas J. Williams.

Sir: At No. 15, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Susquehanna, John Bosick was convicted of larceny, and on February 10, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than four years, to be computed from the twenty-seventh day of January, 1925. The jurors in their verdict asked the Court to be "lenient".

The applicant is of Slovack nationality, but was born in America. He is a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed in the mines and resided in Carbondale, Lackawanna County, with his parents.

On the night of October 25, 1924, the applicant, with a companion, Saladonias, went to Forest City seven miles distant from his home to attend a dance. They traveled in a Ford car belonging to his companion, who lives within a few doors of the applicant. During the night they consumed a quantity of moonshine whiskey. The applicant became intoxicated, left the dance hall, went down to the main street and got into the car which (he believed, believed belonged to his companion, but he subsequently found to his sorrow that the car belonged to Gaylord Reynolds. This car was in no way damaged and was not removed from the block in which the alleged theft is supposed to have occured. The applicant did not realize his predicament until the following morning when he was arrested and jailed for the theft of the car.

The applicant has now served seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before convicted of crime. His parents are in frail health and require financial assistance from him. If released he can secure re-employment with the Hudson Coal Company when work is resumed.

A number of letters from citizens of Carbondale and vicinity recommending pardon have been filed with the Board.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the need of his parents for financial assistance and support; and the recommendations of citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Bosick.

Sir: At Nos. 181 and 182, September Sessons, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Berks, John Lutz, alias J. L. Brown, Chester Lewzewski, alias James Davis, and William Schmidtz, alias Charles C. Williams pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with robbery, and on June 11, 1919, were each sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for an aggregate term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

Applicant Lutz is 31 years of age and applicants Lewzewski and Schmidt are each thirty-two years of age. Applicants Lutz and Schmidt are native-born American citizens, while applicant Lewzewski is a native of German Poland, and in infancy was brought to this country by his parents.

All three applicants are unmarried. Applicants Lutz and Lewzewski resided in the City of Reading, while Schmitz' father resided in Texas. Applicant Lutz was employed by the Reading Cold Storage Company as a driver's helper. Applicant Lewzewski was employed as a stockkeeper in a shirt manufactory, while applicant Schmitz was employed as a machinist's helper in the Reading Iron Works.

In November, 1911, Joe Winsey, alias James L. Kane, alias Joseph L. Cary, and the applicants, were working in the City of Reading Pennsylvania, where they resided. The ages of the four boys named average nineteen years. They were induced to leave their employment by two older and maturer men. These men planned and directed a robbery. On November 1, 1911, Joel Hainly's hotel in the Borough of Sinking Springs, Berks County, became the scene of the crime. Led by the older men, all entered the barroom of the hotel, held up the proprietor, and took the money contents of the cash register and some whiskey. A day later, the same persons entered the barroom of the hotel of Henry Fritz, Cumru Township, Berks County, and took a watch and the contents of the cash register. Both crimes were planned by the older men who instructed the boys in the parts they were to play. The men took the stolen articles and later made distribution to the boys as they saw fit. After these robberies the four boys left the men and went to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They returned to Reading on the morning of November 10, 1911, and entered the bakery of Gordon Kaufman, Fifth and Laurel Streets. They were not masked or in any way disguised. One of them asked for apple pies. Mrs. Kaufman gave a pie each to Winsey and applicants Lutz and Lewzewski. Applicant Schmitz said that he wanted none. The boys then started down the street without paying for the pies. Mrs. Kaufman called her husband, who was in the basement immediately beneath the shop. When the boys came out on the pavement Kaufman met them and seized applicants Lutz and Lewzewski. The latter tore away and Kaufman then grabbed Winsey. The latter pulled a revolver from his pocket and in the struggle it was discharged, the ball passing over applicant Lutz's head and striking Kaufman, who was a large and powerful man, in the head, with fatal results. At that time applicant Schmidz was about one-half a block away. The four boys then fled and finally landed in Petersburg, Virginia, where they held up and robbed a man and were arrested fifteen days after the commission of the first crime at Sinking Springs. They pleaded guilty to robbery and on November 17, 1911, were each sentenced to twelve years in the Virginia State Penitentiary. The two older men who planned and arranged the two robberies in Berks County were indicted for these and other robberies. The prison records disclose the fact that both men were released after serving approximately fifteen months in the County Prison. On March 5, 1919, because of good behavior, the four boys were pardoned by Governor of Virginia. They were arrested at the penitentiary gates and brought back to Reading. When the cases were called for trial their attorney and the District Attorney went before the Court and, pursuant to an agreement previously made, pleas of guilty to the indictment for robbery were entered against each of the four boys. Pleas of not guilty to the indictment for murder were entered for the applicants, while Winsey pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. Their attorney made a plea for leniency, after which sentence was imposed by Judge Endlich, who, at the conclusion of the plea, remarked that he did not feel that it was the Court's function to extend leniency, but the function of the Pardon Board.

The applicants have now served six years and three months of their terms of imprisonment. Their prison record has been excellent.

The Trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends a pardon. The Trial District Attorney joins in the recommendation for clemency. Letters have also been filed with the Board from the Prison Warden, Sheriff, and County Commissioner Eaches joining in the application.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicants when the crimes were committed; the terms of imprisonment already served; and because of the reccommendations of the Prison Warden, Sheriff, County Commissioner Eaches, the Trial District Attorney and Trial Judge. we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Lutz alias J. L. Brown, Chester Lewzewski alias James Davic and William Schmitz alias Charles C. Williams.

Sir: At No. 33, August Term, 1922, in the Court of Over and Terminer in and for the County of Westmoreland, Innacenza Martiucci was convicted of murder in the second degree with a recommendation of mercy, and on June 23, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 32 years of age and a native of and subject to the Kingdom of Italy. At the time of his arrest he was employed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company as a track-walker and resided at Smithton, Westmoreland County, with his wife and two children, aged three and two years respectively.

The applicant was a boarder at the home of Frank DiFranko, at Smithton. Mr. and Mrs. DiFranko sent money to Italy for the purpose of bringing Assunta Boccabella to this country to make her home with them. The DiFrankos had arranged for her marriage with a man whom they had selected, but after her arrival in this country, she and the applicant fell in love with one another and got married. DiFranko and his wife became incensed against them and threw out of the house the clothes and personal belongings of the applicant and burned the clothing of the bride. They talked disparagingly about them and threatened to kill the applicant. They sent a man to the home of the applicant and demanded money and told him that if he did not send money to the deceased, the latter would send some one to kill him. The day before the shooting two men came a second time with the same demand for money. These attempts to extort money from the applicant and the unfavorable stories that were circulated by DiFranko in the neighborhood caused annoyance to the applicant and his wife. In order to establish peace, the applicant and his wife, and Tony Ross, an uncle of the latter, made a final trip to the DiFranko home on the evening of January 31, 1922. Before the shooting DiFranko, the deceased, threw a pot of hot coffee on the applicant and threatened to kill him with a poker which he picked up and brandished, and attempted to strike the applicant. In the fight which ensued the applicant drew his gun and shot DiFranko who subsequently died. The applicant was in his working clothes, and as a trackman for the Railroad Company it was necessary for him to carry a gun in the course of his duties, and he went to the DiFranko home without changing his clothes. He carried this gun for the protection of his employer, the Railroad Company, as well as for his own protection.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record.

The Trial District Attorney, who strongely opposed pardon in December, 1924, has now filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; and because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

This pardon is recommended on the express condition that the applicant be immediately deported to Italy at his own expense, and that the actual deportation be supervised by the Secretary of this Board.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Innacenza Martiucci.

Sir: At No. 11, March Term, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Fayette, Luigi DeLeo was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on May 27, 1913, was sentenced to be electrocuted. Subsequently on April 15, 1914, the sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment.

The applicant is now thirty years of age, of Italian birth and allegiance, a laborer by occupation and unmarried. He had no legal residence at the time of his arrest for the present crime and was out of employment.

The applicant, and one Frank Wells, were jointly tried and convicted for the murder of Charles H. Butler, who was found wounded upon a public highway in Fayette County, at about four o'clock P. M., on January 3, 1913. Butler died two days later from the effect of his wounds. The Commonwealth contended that this murder was committed in the perpetration of the crime of robbery on the person of Michael Cavalcante, who was in company with Butler and his wife, but there was no evidence to show that the applicant was armed or used any deadly weapon. He was eighteen years of age and greatly intoxicated at the time of the shooting. He did not kill or purpose to kill Butler, or his companion, and had no knowledge of any such purpose or intent on the part of Wells. The crime of murder was committed without his knowledge, consent, connivance or agreement.

The applicant has now served twelve years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent as shown by a letter from the Chaplain. Michael Cavalcante, the companion of Butler at the time of the shooting and the man who was robbed, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that Wells did the shooting, acted as leader and was solely responsible for the hold-up and murder committed, and asks clemency for the applicant. Numerous other letters were filed recommending pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record, and the statement of the only eye witness, the man who was robbed, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful law-abiding citizen.

This pardon is recommended on the express condition that the applicant be immediately deported to Italy at his own expense, and that the actual deportation be supervised by the Secretary of this Board.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Luigi DeLeo.

Sir: At No. 4, February Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Northumberland, Dominick Deida, whose true name is Dominick Dideo, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery, and on February 4, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.00 and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than two and one-half years nor more than five years.

The applicant is thirty-five years old; a naturalized citizen of the United States; an Italian by descent; and a miner in the Enterprise Colliery, Shamokin, Pennsylvania, by occupation. He resided at 333 South Shamokin Street, Shamokin, Pennsylvania, and has a wife and five children, the oldest being twelve years of age and the youngest one year old. The wife is struggling to keep her family together, and the District Attorney writes that if his punishment continues much longer "it may be too late after his family has been forced to disband and scatter" to keep them from being "trained in the ways of evil and thus become future criminal citizens of the community".

In company with James O'Brien the applicant entered a pool-room in Shamokin. While applicant looked on O'Brien held up the proprietor and took from him about $46.00. They were arrested and both pleaded guilty. O'Brien was sentenced to the Northumberland County Jail for a period of from two to four years and has since been paroled by the Trial Judge.

The applicant has now served longer than his companion in the crime, namely, about thirteen months. He was never before charged with or convicted of any crime. He has a good prison record. His family is destitute, and it is only by the most heroic efforts that his wife is able to give them insufficient support.

The District Attorney intimates "that the present would be the opportune time for the penal punishment endured by him to have accomplished the object intended, namely, the reformation of the petitioner". He also, as quoted above, recommends that the family may be harmed by not having the support and help of the father.

The favorable attitude of the Trial Judge is shown by his parole of O'Brien, who is alleged to have been the active party in the robbery.

Mr. C. G. Graeber, 18 South Shamokin Street, Shamokin, Pennsylvania, a responsible citizen of the Borough of Shamokin, having been Deputy Treasurer of Northumberland County for several years,—an employe in the Internal Revenue Collector's Office for five years,—and now an expert accountant in Shamokin,—has agreed to do his best to keep Deida in reasonably remunerative employment and to help encourage him to take good care of his wife and five children,—to lead a sober life,—to seek reasonably good companions,—to avoid bad companions,—and to report until 1929 to the Board of Pardons concerning the applicant's behavior.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his good prison record, the destitute condition and great need of his wife and five small children, the favorable attitude of the Trial District Attorney and Trial Judge, the promise of employment and supervisory sponsorship, we have concluded that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that if now liberated he will support and keep together his family of small children.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Dominick Deida (true name Dominick Dideo).

Sir: At No. 1, December Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Snyder, John Foulkrod was convicted of burglary and on December 12, 1923, was sentenced to pay a fine of $200.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than six years.

The applicant is thirty-five years of age, a native born citizen of the United States, a farmer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest resided on a farm near Kramer, Snyder County, which farm he tenanted at that time. He has a wife and six children ranging in age from two to thirteen years. All reside near Mt. Pleasant Mills, Snyder County, and are dependent on the father for support.

On November 24, 1923, the applicant took his truck and started down the road toward Port Trevorton to get a stove and stopped at the home of John Sanders, an alleged bootlegger, for a drink of whisky. Sanders went along with the applicant. When he reached Port Trevorton Sanders told him to take him up the road as he (Sanders) had business up there and would get the applicant more whisky. They drove up the Susquehanna Trail to the schoolhouse at Aqueduct Hollow, at the request of Sanders, who said he had "stuff" there which he would get. Sanders left the applicant and got some more whisky, which they both drank. Sanders left the applicant again and went down the road. When he returned to the schoolhouse a car came up the road. Sanders stepped out into the middle of the road and yelled, "Stop, hands up!" and covered the occupants of the car with a gun. At that moment a shot fired by one of the occupants of the car struck and killed Sanders.

Testimony adduced during the trial showed that a bungalow a short distance from the schoolhouse had been broken into and a couch, three buckets, rubber boots, cooking utensils and other articles were stolen. The applicant, on cross-examination, admitted that immediately after the shooting, when he started home in the truck, he saw the couch lay along the road between the bungalow and the schoolhouse.

For this alleged burglary the applicant was indicted and convicted as a principal in the first degree and sentenced as above stated.

The applicant has now served one year and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

His wife and family are destitute and require support.

A numerously signed petition of citizens advocating pardon was filed with the Board. The Trial Judge filed a letter in which he states that in his judgment the applicant has been sufficiently punished; that he bore a minor part in the crime, which was planned by others, and strongly recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served, the prior good record of the applicant, the need which his family has of his support, and because of the recommendation of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Foulkrod.

Sir: At No. 472, July Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Phliadelphia, Joseph Butkus was convicted of murder in the second degree and on February 1, 1924, was sentenced to pay costs and undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is thirty-nine years of age, a native of Lithuania, and emigrated to America in 1909. He has never been naturalized. He is a butcher by occupation, and at the time of his arrest in 1923 was working for Joseph Cohen, Second and Fairmount Avenue, Philadelphia. He is a widower with one child aged eight years, who is being cared for by the Catholic Children's Bureau, Philadelphia.

In November, 1915, the applicant married a woman of his own nationality. One week prior to the tragedy the applicant's wife (who was addicted to the use of liquor) struck him with a bottle while he was sitting at the table eating his evening meal and, in her rage, told him to get out of the house and stay away forever or she would kill him. As he stood on the curbing outside of his home a suitcase and other personal belongings were, by his wife, thrown out on the street from the second-story window. A passing policeman saw the blood on the applicant's face and heard the tirade of his wife and, after making sure that the applicant had no concealed weapon, advised him to take his property and leave, because the intoxicated woman was in no condition to reason with. The advice seeming good, the applicant acted on it and obtained lodging at 114 Segal Street. This domestic brawl was precipitated by the applicant's refusal to partake of any further meal after learning that his wife had disposed of an infant (which she had caused to be prematurely delivered the preceding day) by burning it in the kitchen stove. He upbraided her and told her he could not eat any more food. Six days after his ejectment from his home his wife came around to the butcher shop where he was working and begged him for $5.00, which he gave her. Acting on the advice of his employer, he called to see her several times in order to effect a reconciliation and to induce her to discontinue the use of liquor. On the morning of June 26, 1923, he stopped at the house to see his wife while he was on his way to work. He came by her express invitation. He found her very much under the influence of liquor. She invited him to sit down and told him that she would get him a cup of coffee. As the applicant turned toward the table he glanced back at his wife in the other room and saw her with a revolver in her hand. He called to her, and she leveled the pistol at him. He sprang toward her, seized her wrist and attempted to wrest the gun from her. During the struggle the weapon was discharged about four times; one bullet went through her right shoulder, another through her heart. Both fell to the floor, and the gun lay there undisturbed until the police officers secured it. The applicant remained until the officers arrived. There were no witnesses to the homicide. The weapon was the property of the deceased.

The applicant has now served one year and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an eight year old girl who is the object of public charity.

The Trial District Attorney, as the result of a special investigation into all the facts and circumstances of this case, recommends a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, the destitute condition of his daughter, and because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Butkus.

Sir: At No. 322, April Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Henry Williams pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with larceny, and on April 20, 1922, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age, an American citizen by birth, colored, and by occupation an expert automobile mechanic. He is unmarried and at the time of arrest resided with his sister in the City of Philadelphia.

The applicant was employed by four white men, Rosenberg, Heckler Simpson and Borgner, who were in the business of stealing automobiles and selling the same, to assist them in the theft of the cars. He acted as chauffeur, and his mechanical ability was of invaluable assistance in making way with parked automobiles. After associating with them for a time, the applicant, realizing the wrongfulness of his acts, refused to continue with them, and for a year or more afterward led a correct life. About the end of this period he was arrested, while at work, on a warant charging the larceny of an automobile, the property of T. Nevin Carson. It appears that six months previously these four men had been arrested for the theft of automobiles, and, when arraigned, pleaded guilty to twelve or more indictments and in so pleading implicated the applicant in one particular offense. Notwithstanding the fact that they engineered the plans and disposed of the stolen cars, these four men were placed on probation by the Court at the November Sessions, 1921, for a period of five years. These men, who were on probation at the time, appeared as chief witnesses against the applicant and were instrumental in his obtaining a severe sentence.

The applicant has now served three years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, because of the fact that the four white men who engineered the traffic in stolen automobiles were placed on probation while the applicant, their tool, received a severe sentence, we have concluded that he has been sufficintly punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Henry Williams.

Sir: At No. 46, June Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Fayette, Edward Whalen entered a plea of nollo contendere on a charge of selling liquor without a license, and on October 22, 1921, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Allegheny County Workhouse for a period of six months.

The applicant, at No. 1, December Sessions, 1910, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer and for the County of Fayette, was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on March 23, 1911, was sentenced to pay a fine of six cents, costs and to undergo imprisoment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of twenty years. On October 21, 1920, he was paroled on the charge of murder and returned to his home, and about six months thereafter was sentenced, as before stated, for a violation of the liquor laws, which sentence he served, and was then returned to the Western State Penitentiary for the completion of his original sentence.

On the evening of November 1, 1910, between the hours of seven and eight o'clock, Harry Sokolosky, a peddler, with a horse and wagon, was assaulted, killed and robbed and his body found along the highway. The deceased had been hit over the head with an instrument, and the applicant was arrested that same night on suspicion of having committed the crime. The applicant was only eighteen years old when sentenced on the murder charge.

The applicant was not engaged in the illegal sale of liquor and made but one sale and had no connection with any person or persons engaged in said traffic. He completed his sentence for the latter offense, and, with the exception of the six months he was at liberty, he has been in prison about fourteen years. The applicant is thirty-two years of age, a chauffeur by occupation and unmarried. For two years past he has been a patient in the tubercular ward of the penitentiary, during which time his disease has become more pronounced. If pardoned he promises to go to one of the Western States where it is possible his health may be restored. His prison record has been excellent, and during the outbreak in the Western Penitentiary in February, 1924, he rendered valuable aid and assistance to the prison authorities, for which he received their commendation. The County Detective of Fayette recommends clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, youth of the applicant when the first crime, to wit, murder, was committed, the terms of imprisonment for the two offenses already served, his excellent prison record, his impaired physical condition, which will doubtless improve if he is released on parole and removes to a suitable clime, because of the recommendation of the County Detective, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and should be made eligible to re-parole on the original charge of murder.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Edward Whalen on the charge of selling liquor without a license.

Sir: At Nos. 26, 27 and 28, April Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Elk, Frank Lupino was convicted of receiving stolen goods, and on October 8, 1921, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine og $15.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven and one-half years nor more than nine years.

The applicant is about thirty-eight years of age and a naturalized citizen of the United States. He is an Italian by descent and conducted a small store in Johnsonburg, Elk County, Pennsylvania. His family consists of a wife and three children, the eldest child eight years of age, who are a charge on the Poor Authorities of Elk County.

In the first two cases he was charged with receiving a lot of tobacco which had been stolen, and in the last case he was charged with receiving two second-hand shotguns and other merchandise. A professional burglar was operating in and about Johnsonburg, and he used the applicant and one Joe Zampogna as depositaries for the goods which he had stolen. The stolen goods were restored to their owners.

The applicant has now served four years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. His family is destitute and a charge on the community. Zampogna, who was implicated with the applicant as a receiver of stolen goods, has already been pardoned by this Board.

The private prosecutor in two of the cases has filed letters with the Board recommending pardon. The Board of County Commissioners of Elk County joins in the application and the Trial District Attorney files a letter recommending clemency, stating that the sentence was unusually severe, and that the applicant had been sufficiently punished.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, the term of imprisonment already served, his excellent prison record, the destitute condition of his family and the recommendations of the private prosecutor, County Commissioners and Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he had been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Lupino.

Sir: At No. 35, May Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Somerset, Frank Condrik pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with assault and battery with intent to kill, aggravated assault and battery and injury by explosive substance, and on March 14, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is thirty years of age. He is a Hungarian, owing allegiance to Czecho-Slovaki, and by occupation is a coal miner. Prior to his arrest he was employed by the Brothersvalley Coal Company. At the time of his arrest he resided in Brothersvalley Township, Somerset County, with his wife and two children, the older being seven years of age.

On March 4, 1923, the miners belonging to the Miners' Union employed by the said Coal Company were on a strike. Non-union men were working, and the feeling between the union the non-union men ran high. John O'brien was the Secretary of the Union to which the applicant belonged. On the afternoon of said day O'Brien came to the applicant and stated that he had given Jim Thomas the sum of $5.00 to place dynamite in the yard of the home of George Riegel, a non-union miner, who was working for said Coal Company at that time. O'Brien directed the applicant to go to the home of George Milhouse and get a cap and fuse and give the same to Thomas. The applicant did this. Thomas took the dynamite and placed it close to the residence of the said Riegel and exploded the same, causing injury to a number of the members of Riegel's family who were in the house at that time. The applicant had no further connection with the affair.

The applicant has now served three years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His family are in destitute circumstances and depend upon public charity. When he entered the plea of "Guilty" to the charge he was without an attorney and rendered the officers of the law all possible assistance to apprehend the parties connected with the crime. He bore no ill will towards Riegel and was merely a tool of the officers of the Miners' Union without realizing the seriousness of his act.

The Superintendent of the colliery, his former employer, has filed with the Board a letter recommending pardon. C. F. Roy, a prominent coal operator, joins in the application and offers permanent employment to the applicant if he is liberated. George Riegel, the man whose house was dynamited, asks the Board for clemency. The County Detective and Editor of the Somerset County Times urge pardon. The Trial District Attorney not only filed with the Board a letter recommending pardon, but appeared in person before the Board and asked clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant, his excellent prison record, the term of imprisonment already served, the need which his family has of support, because of the recommendations of the County Detective, the Editor of the Somerset County Times, his former employer, the man whose house was dynamited, because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney and the fact that employment has been offered him in case he is liberated, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punishd, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Frank Condrik.

Sir: At No. 169, September Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Bruno Praiano pleaded guilty to the charge of murder, the degree of which was fixed by the Court as murder in the first degree, and on August 1, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is now twenty-one years of age and a native of the Kingdom of Italy. He has never been naturalized and has been in America for four years. He is unmarried. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a laborer by Michael Cannon, a contractor of Glenside, Montgomery County, and boarded with Jimmy Russo in Edge Hill, said County. His mother resides in Italy. His nearest relatives in America were a brother residing in Massachusetts and an aunt (the wife of the man he killed) residing in Edge Hill, next door to where the applicant boarded.

In 1920, when he first came to Montgomery County, he boarded for about six months with this uncle by marriage, Frank Caterisano. He fell in love with his first cousin, Caterisano's daughter, and in June, 1924, she being then sixteen and he nineteen years of age, they became engaged to be married with the consent of her parents and with his mother's written consent, obtained from Italy. About three weeks before the murder his uncle told him that he must keep away from his daughter because he understood that he was gambling, and for this alleged reason the girl was compelled to break her engagement with the applicant and was not allowed to see or speak with him.

On Saturday afternoon, August 30th the applicant returned from work, went to his boarding-house and changed his clothes. He then went to the barber shop and the laundry and met a friend, Dominick Morfida, and they drank several glasses of red wine, after which his mind became a blank, and he remembered nothing of what subsequently occurred until the following morning when he woke up in the Police Station. In the meanwhile, after he returned from the laundry to his boarding-house, he went up to his room, which was on the second floor of the house adjoining the residence of his uncle, who was seated outside the kitchen door with his wife, daughter and a female friend of the daughter. The applicant came out of the kitchen door of his boarding-house, which was about fifteen feet away from the place where his uncle was seated, and without saying a word shot him four times, from the effects of which he died an hour later. The applicant then walked to the Police Station and surrendered himself. He was twenty years old when the crime was committed.

The applicant was an ignorant foreigner, friendless and without funds, and the lawyer who defended him was assigned for the purpose by the Court. His prior record was good with the exception that he had twice been fined by a magistrate for the commission of petty offenses.

The Trial District Attorney filed with the Board a letter in which he reviewed the case and expressed the opinion, based on what he had learned from representative Italians, that the applicant, overhearing the cries of his sweetheart, was impelled to kill his uncle because the latter had severely beaten his daughter shortly before the crime. The Trial District Attorney furthermore sent a personal representative, who appeared in person before the Board, and urged clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, his ignorance, friendless condition and lack of means to make a proper defense, because of the father's brutality to his sweetheart which constantly was brought to his attention by reason of proximity in consideration of the unusually favorable attitude of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on Bruno Praiano should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 30, September Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Monroe, Thomas V. Burns pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking, entering and larceny of an automobile, and on September 28, 1920, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $10.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age, a native-born American citizen, by occupation a salesman of electrical supplies and was so employed by the General Electric Company of Schenectady, New York, when the crime was committed. He is unmarried, and his proper place of residence is in Brooklyn, New York.

About one week before the present crime was committed the applicant was in Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, on a business trip. There was rooming in the same house one McCaw. During his stay in Stroudsburg, the applicant made the acquaintance of Andrew J. Brady, who conducted the business of repairing motor car tires. McCaw, Brady and the applicant spent their evenings together. McCaw suggested that they take a joy ride one night. Brady had a car stored in the garage of Grover C. Mervine, at Stroudsburg, and had a key to the premises. He told them of a Stephens car stored in the garage and offered them his key to enable them to take possession of the automobile. About 1:00 A. M. July 24, 1920, the applicant and McCaw took advantage of Brady's offer, received from him his key to the garage, went there and removed the car. The applicant and McCaw then took a joy ride to Philadelphia and were returning to Stroudsburg with the Stephen's car that same night when they ran out of gas at Doylestown. It was too late in the night to purchase fuel, and they were about to abandon the car until morning when they were arrested by the Doylestown Police. McCaw and the applicant were held in the Bucks County Jail for several days during which time Mervine, the owner of the car, reported its loss, and the Doylestown Police discovered that McCaw had a criminal record. McCaw and the applicant were returned to Stroudsburg and brought before a Justice of the Peace for hearing. The applicant was not represented by counsel and followed McCaw's example in pleading guilty, whereupon in default of bail they were both committed to the County Jail. Subsequently both pleaded guilty and received like sentences. Brady was convicted by a jury on the same charges and received a like sentence, but in November, 1921, was pardoned by this Board.

The applicant has now served five years and two months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent. He was an Overseas Veteran during the World War and has an honorable discharge. If released, his sister, residing in Brooklyn, has offered him a home. He was only twenty years of age when this crime was committed. There was no intention to steal the car. It was used for a joy ride, and the key to the garage was given by one who had a right to the same. There was no breaking.

Grover C. Mervine, the prosecutor in the case, recommends a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record: the term of imprisonment alreary served; the further fact that the prosecutor recommends a pardon; and that if released a home in Brooklyn has been offered him by his sister, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas V. Burns.

Sir: At Nos. 618 and 619, February Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Antonio Parparidies was convicted of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, assault and battery to ravish, and attempted incestuous adultery, and on March 3, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a period of twenty-two years. After serving two years of his sentence he was paroled by the Court and still remains on parole.

The applicant is forty-eight years of age and a native of the Kingdom of Greece. At the time of his arrest he was engaged in the restaurant business with his two partners. He resided on South Eleventh Street, in the City of Philadelphia. His family consisted of a wife and three children, who are now aged twelve, eleven and five years respectively.

Agnes, the eldest daughter of the applicant, then eight years old, made the charges on which he was tried and convicted. The mother was suspicious of the applicant and inquired of the daughter as to the conduct of the father, and finally the daughter told the mother that the father had committed this offense. A physical examination of the child disclosed no evidence of the crime. The applicant was convicted entirely on the testimony of his wife and daughter, the latter only eight years old and entirely under the dominance and control of the mother who manifested an antipathy for the applicant. The mother told two conflicting stories as to the date of the occurrence. On the trial the applicant was not represented by counsel, and he merely entered a general denial of the charges.

After the applicant had served two years of his sentence, an investigation was instituted by the District Attorney with the result that the applicant was granted a parole by the Court for the remainder of his term, which indicated disbelief there was any truth in the accusation. The sentence too was excessive. The applicant was sentenced to fifteen years on the charge of an attempt to commit incestuous adultery, whereas under the Act of 1860, the sentence for the actual commission of this crime is only three years.

The applicant has taken out his first naturalization papers and is unable to secure the final papers because of the present conviction. The Federal authorities have instituted deportation proceedings against him and the only means of escaping deportation is a pardon. The action of the Philadelphia Court in paroling him, after having served two years of a twenty-two year sentence, would seem to indicate that they regard him innocent of the present charge. District Attorney orally recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his parole by the Philadelphia Court after serving but two years of his twenty-two year term of imprisonment; because of the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; and because of the fact that if he is not pardoned for a crime for which the Philadelphia Court deems him guiltless, he will suffer deportation, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citicen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Antonio Paparidies.

Sir: At No. 3, September Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lawrence, John Shanker was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on September 27, 1916, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is fifty-six years of age, a native of Austria-Hungary and owes allegiance to the Kingdom of Romania. When arrested for the present offense he was employed as a heater in a steel mill, but had not worked for five months during his recovery from the effects of a broken leg. His family consisted of a wife, a daughter aged eighteen and a son aged sixteen years respectively. His daughter died while he was in prison and he is ignorant of the present whereabouts of his son.

The applicant came to America in 1905. Eight years later his wife and two children joined him, and they went to New Castle, Lawrence County, where he was living when the tragedy occurred. He became melancholy during the five months that he was housed, gave his savings to his wife and determined to make way with himself. He purchased a knife at a ten cent store to effectuate his purpose. On or about June 16, 1916, he was in his bedroom with the knife in his hand when his wife entered. With the knife in his right hand he endeavored to strike a vital part, when his wife rushed towards him and received the stroke in the front of her body. She ran down the stairs and the applicant then realized that a terrible thing had happened, something which he never intended. An hour later he was arrested and taken to jail. His wife died several days after the occurrence.

The applicant has now served nine years and two months of his term of imprisonment.

The Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary unanimously request clemency. The Romanian Consul, in Philadelphia, has filed with the Board a letter in which he promises to take full charge of the deportation of the applicant, agreeing in the event of his release, to see that he is taken to New York, placed on board a vessel with his final destination Romania, and to pay the entire expenses of such deportation.

The Trial District Attorney originally opposed this pardon, but the present District Attorney, in a letter filed with the Board, states that he has recently conferred with the former and that they both agree that the applicant has already served a greater length of time than if he had been sentenced under the present law for second degree murder, and that if the applicant will actually be deported they consider it to the advantage of the County and State to have a pardon granted.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the unanimous recommendation of the Board of Trustees of the Western State Penitentiary; the favorable attitude of the Trial District Attorney and the present District Attorney, and because of the offer of the Romanian Consul to take full charge of the deportation of the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Shanker.

Sir: At No. 545, May Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia,

Thomas Mulheron was convicted of robbery, and on May 21, 1924, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant is about fifty-two years of age, unmarried and a native-born American citizen. He is a laborer by occupation and has resided in the City of Philadelphia for the past ten years.

The applicant was arrested on the night of May 10, 1924, on the complaint of Thomas Sullivan, who was a first-class mechanic and made good wages when sober, but was known in the neighborhood as a periodical drunk, who was frequently robbed while on sprees. On the night in question both men were on a spree together, and both were intoxicated at the time the arrest was made. Sullivan claimed that the applicant had without his consent, taken his watch to pawn for more liquor, while the applicant contended that Sullivan gave him the watch to pawn, as both men had spent all their money in the course of their spree. The undisputed fact was that both men had been drinking together all evening and were both under the influence of liquor at the time of the arrest. At the time of the trial the applicant was not represented by counsel, and consequently no witnesses were called to establish his previous good reputation.

The applicant has now served one year and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

A representative from the District Attorney's office, in the presence of the Board, recommended a pardon for the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant, and in consideration of the recommendation of the District Attorney's office, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be not granted to the said Thomas Mulheron.

Sir: At Nos. 21, 22 and 23, April Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Adams, Fred Moore pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting in assault with intent to kill, aiding and abetting in assault with intent to rob, and aiding and abetting in assault with intent to commit a felony, and on April 28, 1919, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $3.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than 17 years nor more than 20 years.

The applicant is twenty-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, a taxi cab driver by occupation, unmarried, and at the time of his arrest resided with his parents in Gettysburg, Adams County.

In February, 1919, the applicant was only seventeen years of age. He fell in with one John Miller who was considerably older and had a criminal record. Miller supplied the applicant with liquor for several days, and on Saturday night, February 22, 1919, he persuaded him to join in the robbery of the grocery store at A. S. Mills, of Gettysburg. It was planned that Miller should hold up Mills while the applicant seized the money. At 11:00 P. M. as the store was being closed, the applicant entered and bought a package of cigarettes. At the time the tin money box, filled with the day's receipts, was standing on the counter within reach of the applicant. Miller, masked, entered with a pistol in his hand and cried, "hands up". Without waiting for Mills to comply, Miller shot him and Mills fell with a bullet wound in his head, but subsequently recovered from the effects thereof. The applicant was so surprised at the shot that he ran away without taking the money which was within his reach. Miller and the applicant were arrested on suspicion. As soon as he was arrested the applicant made a full confession. He was only seventeen years of age at the time of this occurrence, was drunk and under the malign influence of an older man with a criminal record.

The applicant has now served six years and seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Mills, the man who was shot, has filed with the Board a letter in which he asks clemency. The Manager of the Service Department of Foss-Hughes Company, of Philadelphia, dealers in Pierce Arrow motor cars and trucks, has filed with the Board a letter in which he offers the applicant employment in case of his release. The Prothonotary of Adams County, in a letter filed with the Board, recommends pardon. The Trial District Attorney, in a letter filed with the Board, declares that public sentiment in the community is favorable to the applicant's pardon, and that his term of imprisonment has made him a fit man to be at large.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; in consideration of the fact that the man injured, the Prothonotary of Adams County and the Trial District Attorney recommend pardon; and that employment has been offered him in the event of his release, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Fred Moore.

Sir: At No. , August Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Chester, Charles McComsey waived the finding of a true bill by the Grand Jury and pleaded guilty to the crime of statutory rape, and on June 12, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age, a native-born American citizen, a laborer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed as a farm laborer by H. B. Shoff, ner Oxford, Chester County. He is unmarried and resided with the family of his employer.

The applicant was charged with having committed this crime on the person of Martha Shoff, the eleven year old daughter of his employer, in June, 1922. The applicant was working in the barn when the girl entered and made improper advances. It appears from letters on file with the Board (notably one from a brother) that she, notwithstanding her tender years, was of unchaste character, and while the applicant pleaded guilty to the charge brought before the Justice of the Peace and before the Court, the offense was really fornication. He was ignorant, excited and without the advice of counsel when the plea was entered.

The applicant has now served three years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; in consideration of the dissolute character of the girl; and because through ignorance he pleaded guilty to a graver crime than the circumstances warranted, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Harrisburg, Pa., November 18, 1925.

Sir: At No. 1142, November Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Schuylkill, Eugene Johnson pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on November 13, 1917, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age, colored, unmarried, and was by occupation a laborer, but is now a mechanic.

The applicant and Nathaniel Flynn were both employed by the same railroad company and occupied a shanty near Tamaqua. Both had been drinking heavily, and a fight started at the dinner table. During the meal Flynn began bullying the applicant, who was a boy nineteen years of age, while Flynn was more than thirty-five. The latter was the aggressor. He struck the applicant, who tried to back away. Flynn followed this up with more blows, and as the applicant was chased around the table, he seized a knife which was lying there and stabbed his assailant several times, from which wounds Flynn subsequently died. This occured on September 15, 1917, and the applicant has been in prison since his arrest on that date. Flynn was the aggressor throughout the affair. When the case came into Court the Applicant was advised by counsel to plead guilty. He did so, and the Court fixed the crime at second degree murder and sentenced the applicant as above stated.

The applicant has now served eight years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with nor convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record.

Cyrus M. Palmer, present District Attorney of Schuylkill County, was one of counsel for the applicant during his trial. He advised him to plead guilty to second degree murder, but since then he has become convinced that at the most his crime was voluntary manslaughter, and he now believes that the applicant should be pardoned. A letter to this effect is on file.

James R. Frazer, Attorney for S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., of Chicago, Illinois, well known stockbrokers, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant's mother has been in his employ for ten years, that he has had other members of the family in his employ, and he offers to take the applicant, if released, into his own home, to give him employment and to do everything in his power to assist and encourage him in rehabilitating himself.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed, the fact that he received a severer sentence than the circumstances warranted, the crime having been committed in self-defense, because of the prior good record of the applicant, his excellent prison record, the term of imprisonment already served, the recommendation of the present District Attorney of Schuylkill County, and in further consideration of the fact that James R. Frazer, a reputable citizen of Illinois has offered to give the applicant a home, to furnish employment and to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficient-punished, and that if now liberated he will prove himself a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 16, 1925.

Sir: At No. 33, December Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cambria, Peter Pindale waived the finding of a true bill by the Grand Jury and pleaded guilty to the charge of entering a powder magazine with intent etc., larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on November 27, 1922 was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than six years.

The applicant is 23 years of age, an Italian by birth and allegiance, a coal miner by occupation, unmarried, and at the time of his arrest was employed in the mines at Starford, Indiana County, and resided with his father in the Borough of Portage, Cambria County.

In October, 1922, a powder and dynamite magazine, owned by B. N. Palmer & Company, located near the Borough of Portage, was entered and robbed of about 30 boxes of dynamite. Mike Pindale and Frank Pindale, brothers of the applicant, John Ulis, Frank Petro, and the applicant, were arrested for the crime and all except Petro pleaded guilty before a Justice of the Peace, and subsequently pleaded guilty in Court. Mike Pindale, the older brother, received the same sentence as the applicant. Frank Pindale and John Ulis were sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and further sentence was suspended, while Petro went to trial and was acquitted.

The applicant has now served three years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. He was only 20 years old when this crime was committed. He lost his mother in infancy and was under the evil influence of his older brother Mike Pindale. All of the stolen goods were restored to the owners.

A number of letters were filed with the Board recommending clemency. The Trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that he has no objection to the granting of a pardon in this case. The three Judges of Cambria County, including the Trial Judge, in a letter filed, recommend pardon for the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his lack of proper home influence, being without a mother's care; in consideration of his prior good record and excellent prison record, and the term of imprisonment already served; and because of the recommendation of the three Judges of Cambria County, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 101, December Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Clearfield, Grace Sorto pleaded guilty to an indictment charging her with voluntary manslaughter, and on February 28, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant is 29 years of age, and a native-born American citizen of Italian descent. She is married and resided at Eriton, Clearfield County, with her husband Domonic Sorto, and three children aged ten, eight and six years respectively.

At the suggestion of the husband, the Sorto family took boarders. Among them was John Launo, aged about 48 years, who had a wife residing in Italy. Launo boarded with the Sorotos for five months. Shortly after he came there he sought to have immoral relations with the applicant, at first, by suggestion and solicitation, and subsequently by threats and violence, all of which were repelled by her. He even threatened to shoot her. Finally the importunities and threats became unbearable and she ordered him to leave the house on the threat of telling her husband of his persecution. She had never divulged Launo's misconduct because she feared serious trouble would ensue. The applicant became so frightened by his last attack that it was necessary for her to have medical attention. Launo finally said that he would go, but that he was going to ruin her by telling people that she had had immoral relations with her boarders. He left the Sorto home April 15, 1923, and went to board at another place in the same village. Shortly after this Domonic Sorto told his wife that Launo said she was leading an immoral life with her boarders. A quarrel ensued, during which the husband beat the applicant. On another occasion her husband told her that Launo had said to him in a public park, "Are you blind, don't you see that your wife is after that man over there"? The husband again quarreled with her and beat her. The applicant subsequently met Launo in a store and asked him to see her husband and to retract his false statements. Launo replied, "I won't do anything to help you. I told you I was going to ruin your house if you would not consent, and I will ruin your house". In the meanwhile the relations between the applicant and her husband were continually growing worse because of these defamatory stories. In October Launo moved from Eriton to Taylor, twenty-five miles distant. The applicant and her husband went to Tyler on Thanksgiving Day, 1923, to act as sponsors at a Christening, intending to remain all night, but in the afternoon the husband insisted that they return home. When they reached home he told his wife that he had heard from his own sister in Tyler that Launo was telling it around the town that he, as well as other boarders, had had immoral relations with her. The husband struck her and she never retired, but spent most of the night crying in the dining room. In the morning the husband went to work and warned her that he would not live with her any longer; that when he returned from work in the evening if she still remained there he would leave her. When he returned he told her that either she must leave or he would leave. She then went to Tyler to see Launo to beg him to retract his false statements in order that she might live happily with her family. She took with her her husband's revolver and arrived at Tyler in the evening. The next morning she went to Launo's boarding house and told the landlady of her trouble. Launo was in the house at the time. In passing Launo's room he accosted her. She stopped, entered the room and asked him to retract the false stories he had circulated. Launo refused. The applicant then applied a very insulting Italian epithet to him. Launo seated in his chair, was in the act of jumping up saying, "I'll fix you", when the applicant drew her gun and fired one shot striking him in the head, ran out of the house, calling for help. Launo died within one hour after the shooting.

On the trial it was shown that the applicant's character was without reproach. She was highly regarded in the community. She was innocent of any misconduct with Launo. She took the gun with her because she knew that Launo owned a revolver, and feared him.

The applicant has served one year and ten months of her term of imprisonment. She was never before charged with or convicted of crime and bore an excellent reputation. Her prison record is excellent. She has three small children who require a mother's care.

Domonic Sorto, the husband, filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he believes his wife was guiltless of any misconduct with Launo or any other man, that he loves and trusts her and that if she is liberated he will take her into his home and treat her as she deserves.

The Trial Judge has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the mental state of the applicant who was harassed almost beyond endurance by the false and wicked charges of the deceased; in consideration of her prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; the need which her family has of her care and attention; because of the desire of her husband that she be liberated and the promise to surround her with his love and protection; and because of the recommendation of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that she has been sufficiently punished, and that if now liberated she will prove herself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Grace Sorto.

Sir: At No. 301, June Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Herbert Jones was convicted of the unlawful possession of drugs, and on June 11, 1924, sentence was suspended by the Court, and it was ordered and adjudged that the said Herbert Jones be turned over to the authorities of the State Penitentiary of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, on a warrant charging him with violation of parole from that institution.

The applicant is 29 years of age, colored, unmarried, a mechanic by occupation, and has resided in the City of Philadelphia for the past ten years.

On August 28, 1918, the applicant was convicted of burglary in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Chester, and sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of not less than five years nor more than ten years in the Eastern State Penitentiary, and on August 28, 1923, at the expiration of his minimum sentence, he was paroled from that institution and complied with the terms of his parole until May 19, 1924, when he was arrested in a raid on a house located at Nineteenth and Naudain Streets, in the City of Philadelphia, together with a number of users of narcotic drugs. A warrant from the Eastern State Penitentiary, charging the applicant with violation of parole was lodged against him, and after his conviction on the charge of unlawful possession of drugs the Court, as already stated, suspended sentence and turned him over to the Warden of the Eastern State Penitentiary under the terms of his parole. He has now been confined for eighteen months on this latter commitment.

The applicant does not ask to be pardoned for the crime for which he was sentenced in Chester County, but asks clemency in the case in which the Court suspended sentence in Philadelphia County. The object of the present application is to make him eligible for parole by reason of good conduct, and to remove from him the ban of the suspended sentence, which latter precludes a parole by the Board of Trustees of the said Penitentiary.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case we have concluded that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Herbert Jones.

Sir: At No. , October Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Chester, Howard Johnson waived the finding of a true bill by the Grand Jury and pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery, and was on November 15, 1915, sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than ten years.

On November 15, 1918, on the expiration of his minimum sentence, the applicant was paroled by the prison authorities, after which time he behaved himself in a proper manner until about February 3, 1924, when he went on a drunken debauch and was found lying in an unconscious condition on the porch of a house in the City of Coatesville, Chester County. On being removed to the police station a loaded automatic revolver was taken from his person. His case was returned to Court, and on February 18, 1924, the applicant waived the finding of a true bill by the Grand Jury and pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons. On February 25, 1924, the Court ordered his release from the county jail and ordered him to be placed in the custody of the officials of the Eastern State Penitentiary in order that he might serve out the unexpired term of imprisonment. No sentence was imposed by the Chester County Court on the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons, there being no evidence that he had made any threats or intended bodily harm toward any person. The costs of prosecution were placed upon the County.

The applicant is 53 years of age, a native-born American citizen and has resided in and about Coatesville all his life. He is unmarried. At the time of his original arrest he was employed as a fireman at the Ajax Paper Mills, located near Coatesville.

On November 11, 1915, the applicant forged two checks for fifteen and ten dollars respectively which were drawn and cashed on the same day, and for these offenses he was sentenced as above stated. The applicant was under the influence of liquor at the time.

Prior to the commission of the crimes in question the applicant was never charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served four years and ten months of his term of imprisonment.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant's appeal for clemency "demands and should receive favorable consideration".

S. M. McCord, of Buck Run, Coatesville, Penna., a reputable and substantial citizen has offered to become sponsor for the future good behavior of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the recommendation of the Trial District Attorney; and in consideration of the fact that a responsible citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Howard Johnson.

Sir: At No. 369, February Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Luzerne, Benjamin Witman alias Charles Clayton pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking, entering and larceny, and on April 3, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $300.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is now 21 years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, and at the time of his arrest in 1922, was employed as an errand boy by the Fromberg Silk Company, Kingston, Pennsylvania. He resided with his parents in Luzerne, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

While a school boy he fell under the evil influence of an uncle much older than himself and who had a criminal record. This uncle induced him to assist in the commission of robbery and larceny and in the disposition of the stolen articles. The applicant was arrested in a pawn shop while attempting to sell the loot. When brought to trial he pleaded guilty. The uncle was later arrested and convicted in the State of New York for burglaries and is now in prison.

The applicant was only 17 years old when the crime was committed, for which he now asks clemency. No violence was used, no deadly weapon carried, and the crime was committed during the day. He was a boy and under the malign influence of an uncle who was a criminal.

The applicant has now served three years and eight months of his term of imprisonment.

The Trial Judge, in a letter filed with the Board, recommends pardon and states his belief that the applicant has been sufficiently punished.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the fact that he was misled by an uncle who was a criminal; and because of the term of imprisonment already served, and the recommendation of the Trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Benjamin Witman alias Charles Clayton.

Sir: At No. 24, November Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, John Wokutch was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, and on May 22, 1917, was sentenced to pay a fine of 6¼ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than eight years nor more than ten years.

At No. 22, of the same Sessions, in the same Court, he pleaded guilty to a charge of voluntary manslaughter, and on June 18, 1917, was sentenced to pay a fine of 6¼ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than two years nor more than two years and three months to take effect at the expiration of the former sentence.

The applicant is 48 years of age and a native-born citizen of the United States. He is a molder by occupation and at the time of his arrest, in August, 1916, was employed by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company in the Borough of East Pittsburgh, where he resided with his wife and four children aged 19, 18, 11 and 6 years respectively.

The applicant, in 1902, married Katie Engel without the approval of her father. The latter treated the applicant with harshness and oppression for a number of years. For more than ten years previous to the shooting he resided in one of his father-in-law's houses several doors from the residence of the latter. On the night of the tragedy the applicant came from work in the evening, and during the evening meal a dispute arose between him and his wife. During the discussion the applicant told his wife that she would do better if he stayed out of the Engel home and paid more attention to her children. Incensed at this remark the applicant's wife went to her father's home and complained to him. She was gone but a few minutes, and while she was away the little daughter, who had gone with her mother, came in and told the applicant "grandpap is coming over and he is going to kill you". Whereupon the applicant, who had suffered much abuse and oppression at the hands of his father-in-law, arose from the table, took a revolver from a drawer in the dining room, which he used for coon hunting, placed it in his pocket and went into the bedroom. A few minutes later Engel and the applicant's wife came into the house and followed the applicant into his bedroom where they found him siting on the bed. Engel told him that he would have to do better and ordered him to return to Engel's son certain tools belonging to the latter and to get out. The applicant said nothing and Engel and the wife of the former left the room. They went out into a passageway between the applicant's home and the adjoining one and stood for a few moments near the street where Engel talked excitedly to the applicant's wife and another neighbor. While this occured the applicant, with his little daughter, left the house by a rear door and proceeded toward the back part of the lot in the opposite direction from where Engel and the applicant's wife were talking to the neighbor. The applicant had proceeded but a short distance when he was violently struck on the head from the rear, by Engel who had slipped up behind him despite the protests of his daughter, and without warning to the applicant. The blow felled the latter to the ground and Engel attacked him while he was prostrate. A struggle ensued during which the applicant, while still on the ground and while undergoing the assaults of Engel, drew his revolver and fired several shots in self-defense. After firing these shots the applicant struggled to his feet and he and Engel continued to grapple. While in this position the applicant fired additional shots. Two of the shots took effect, one striking Engel's head and the other his chest. One shot struck the applicant's wife (to whom he was devoted) who was standing a considerable distance away. From the effects of these wounds both Engel and the applicant's wife died. After the shooting the applicant surrendered himself to the officers of the law and gave up the revolver with which the shooting was done. He did not know at the time that any bullet had struck his wife, and did not know until the next day that that she was dead. After his arrest he bore marks on his body received at the hands of Engel while struggling with him. His throat was badly discolored from the hold which Engel had on that part of his body.

In May, 1925, the applicant completed his minimum term of eight years on the charge of killing his father-in-law, and has served seven months of the term of imprisonment imposed for the killing of his wife. He has served altogether eight years and seven months of the two terms of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record has been excellent.

The applicant shot Engel in self-defense and without intending to shoot his wife, one of the shots fired by him in self-defense struck and killed her. He has four children living who require the care of a father.

George F. Callahan, President of Exhibitors' Service Company, Pittsburgh, has filed with the Board a letter in which he offers to employ the applicant immediately upon his release from prison. County Commissioner Houlahan, of Allegheny County, appeared in person before the Board and urged clemency and also offered to give employment to the applicant is liberated.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; because of the fact that the first killing was manifestly in self-defense and the second killing accidental; because of the prior good record of the applicant; the terms of imprisonment already served; because of the need which his children have of the support of a father; because of the offer of employment by Mr. Callahan and County Commissioner Houlahan, we have concluded that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released from the sentence imposed by the Court on June 18, 1917, for the killing of his wife, he will become eligible to parole by the prison authorities on the charge of having killed his father-in-law, the minimum sentence on which charge has already been served.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Wokutch, for the crime of accidentally killing his wife.

Sir: At Nos. 2 and 3, June Term, 1912, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Blair, Benjamin Lichenstein pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with burglarly and larceny, and on July 2, 1912, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $300.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than nine years nor more than thirteen years.

On August 31, 1917, after serving five years and one month of his term of imprisonment he escaped. After twenty-four days he was recaptured and tried on the charge of breaking and escaping. He pleaded guilty to the latter charge in the Court of Quarter Sessions of Centre County, and on September 24, 1917, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than nine years nor more than thirteen years.

He has now served eight years and three months of his second term of imprisonment, and altogether has served thirteen years and four months, less the period of twenty-four days in which he was a fugitive from justice.

The applicant is a native of Hungary and is about 34 years of age. He had been in this country about four years at the time of his arrest for the crime covered by the first sentence, during the greater portion of which time he resided in the City of McKeesport. He was only twenty years old when he burglarized the storeroom of Leopold Bigely & Company in Altoona. While there were two indictments, the applicant claims that there was but one breaking and entering, and but one act of larceny.

On a former application for pardon the District Attorney opposed, but the present application is unopposed. The Trial Judge, since deceased, in accepting notice of the hearing on a former application, in 1923, endorsed on the notice a recommendation of pardon. A large number of letters have been filed with the Board advocating pardon.

Mr. Mark Abel, a reputable and substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the recommendation of the Trial Judge, since deceased, and because a responsible citizen has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Benjamin Lichtenstein, on the sentence imposed September 24, 1917, for breaking and escaping from the penitentiary.

Sir At No. 70, January Term, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Mercer, Andrew Diari was convicted of an attempt to commit robbery, and on January 31, 1921, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is 25 years of age, and a citizen of Cuba. He is unmarried and a tinsmith by occupation. At the time of his arrest he resided in Farrell, Mercer County, and was employed by the American Steel Company.

Angel Helgebra and Emilio Gonzales, both Spaniards, lived in the same lodging house with the applicant. An the day of the commission of the crime they came to the applicant's room and asked him to accompany them to the bank in order to obtain money to send to their relatives in Spain. He innocently went with them. After they entered the bank Helguera and Gonzales both pulled a revolver from their pockets and demanded money. When the applicant saw the guns in the hands of his companions he fled from the bank, ran to his boarding house, and believing that he would get into trouble by remaining in Farrell, Pennsylvania went to Canton, Ohio, where he was arrested five days later and returned to Farrell. The applicant never carried a gun. The other men pleaded guilty to the charge of robbery and were both sentenced to the Westen State Penitentiary. The applicant stood trial and has always protested his innocence.

The only evidence against the applicant was circumstantial. While he went with the men to the bank he did not know that a robbery was in contemplation. He was not identified as one of the robbers by the persons who witnessed the crime.

The applicant has now served four years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he has no objection to a pardon provided the applicant is deported.

The applicant has filed with the Board a letter addressed to him by J. B. McCandless, Commissioner of Immigration, Philadelphia Immigration Station, in which he states, "that after careful consideration of the evidence presented in the record the Second Assistant Secretary of Labor, at Washington, D. C., has directed your deportation, said deportation to be deferred until you have been released from prison by the proper authorities. Arrangements will be made to effect your return to Cuba promptly upon your release from prison by the said authorities".

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the fact that the evidence adduced at the trial was purely circumstantial; because of the prior good record of the applicant and the term of imprisonment already served; in consideration of the fact that the Trial District Attorney acquiesces in a pardon, provided that he is deported; and in consideration of the further fact that the Federal authorities have ordered his deportation and will arrange to carry the same into effect when he is released from the Penitentiary, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now liberated he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Andrew Diari.

Harrisburg, Pa., January 20, 1926.

Sir: At Nos. 118 and 119, November Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Over and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny; at Nos. 1374, 1376, 1378, 1379, 1380, 1381, 1383 nd 1385, November Sessions 1924, in the Court of Quarter essions of the Peace in and for the said County, James enbone alias James Gambone pleaded guilty to indictments harging him with robbery, entering a building, larceny, eceiving stolen goods pointing firearms and carrying con-ealed deadly weapons, and on January 8, 1925, was sen-enced on six counts in the aggregate to pay a fine of 37½, osts and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State enitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor ıore than six years. Sentence on four counts was sus-ended by the Court.

The applicant is 29 years of age, of Italian de-cent, but a citizen of the United States. He is by occupa-ion a bookkeeper and general office worker. At the time f his arrest he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad ompany as cashier in the depot restaurant in Pittsburgh, nd resided in said City with his wife and five small children, anging in age from two to nine years.

The applicant had been out of work for three and one-alf months and was unable to support his family. Two ıonths rent was unpaid and he had been ordered to move. Ie had no money. At this critical time in his life he be-ame acquainted with one John Maug who had a criminal ecord, and in his desperation joined the latter in com-ıitting the crimes for which he was convicted and sen-enced. Maug was arrested on suspicion and in his con-ession implicated the applicant who, when arrested, con-essed his guilt and waived trial.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted f crime. He has served one year of his term of imprison-ıent. His prison record is excellent. His family are in estitute circumstances. The wife earns $12.00 per week s a night waitress in a restaurant, and while she is so mployed her small children are in the house alone.

Gustav L. Sshramm, Counsel for the Legal Aid Society f Pittsburgh, has personally investigated this case, and ı a letter filed with the Board strongly recommends par-on. Benjamin Lencher, Assistant District Attorney, has led with the Board a letter in which he also recommends ardon, and states that he had taken up the matter of par-on with Judge Haymaker, the Trial Judge (now deceased), nd that the latter about three weeks prior to his death nnounced his intention of recommending a pardon in this ase.

A. P. Wehner, of 524 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Penna., reputable and substantial citizen, has offered to become ponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; ıe prior good record of the applicant; the term of im-risonment already served; his excellent prison record; the estitution of his family and their need of his assistance nd support; the recommendations of the prison authorities, ıe attorney for the Legal Aid Society, the Assistant Dis-ict Attorney and his statement of the favorable attitude the Trial Judge, now deceased, and because of the fact ıat a reputable and substantial citizen has agreed to be-me sponsor for his future good conduct, we have con-uded that he been sufficiently punished, and that if now eleased he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding itizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice nd in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now ranted to the said James Genbone alias James Gambone.

Sir: At Nos. 280, 281 and 282, September Sessions, 1922, i the Court of Quarter Sessions of the peace in and for the County of Dauphin, Joseph Anderson alias Charles Robinson alias "Stack of Dollars" pleaded guilty to three indictments charging him with the unlawful possession, distribution and sale of narcotic drugs, and on November 13, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $200.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years and six months nor more than five years.

The applicant is an American citizen, colored and twenty-two years of age. He was born in Virginia and at the time of his arrest resided in the City of Harrisburg. He has no trade or profession.

The applicant was arrested on October 20, 1922, charged with having in his possession, distributing and selling cocaine and morphine. He was one of six persons who were convicted and sentenced about the same time for similar offenses committed in the City of Harrisburg. Four of these men, to wit: Robert Chenoweth, Henry Berth, Arthur Thompson and Samuel Wilson, have since been pardoned by this Board on the recommendation of the Dauphin County Court.

The applicant has now served three years and two months of his term of imprisonment. His prison record is good. He was only nineteen years of age when these crimes were committed. After serving a short time in the Eastern State Penitentiary he was, on account of the overcrowded condition in that institution, returned to the Dauphin County Jail to complete his sentence, where he is now incarcerated.

The Trial District Attorney neither recommends nor opposes pardon. The President Judge of the Court communicated orally with a member of the Board and stated that the Court would not have imposed such a severe sentence had it known that the applicant would not complete his sentence in the penitentiary, but would soon be transferred to the County Jail where opportunities for exercise and manual labor were lacking. Under the circumstances the Court recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; his good prison record; the fact that four other persons sentenced for similar offenses under like circumstances have been pardoned by the Board; and because of the recommendation of the Court, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Anderson alias Charles Robinson alias "Stack of Dollars".

Sir: At Nos. 97 and 98, January Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Dauphin, Robert W. Campbell alias Robert Slater was convicted of the unlawful possession, distribution, and sale of narcotic drugs, and on January 13, 1923, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $1,000.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than five years.

The applicant is thirty-five years of age, an American citizen, colored and has no trade or business. He was born in Virginia and at the time of his arrest resided in the Borough of Steelton.

On or about September 1, 1922, the applicant was arrested for having in his possession, distributing and selling cocaine and morphine. He was one of six persons who were convicted and sentenced about the same time for similar offenses committed in the City of Harrisburg. Sir: At No. 1, September Sessions, 1915, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lebanon, Lenta Miscov alias Lenta Mirkov pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on September 23, 1915, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than fourteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is forty-eight years of age, a native of that part of Austro-Hungary, which now belongs to Servia. His family consists of a wife, two adult children and a daughter thirteen years of age, all of whom reside in the City of Lebanon. The wife and minor daughter are dependent upon him for support. At the time of his arrest the applicant was a laborer employed by the American Iron and Steel Company, now the Bethlehem Steel Company.

On June 5, 1915, the applicant shot and killed a fellow countryman, Milan Janasew. The tragedy was the culmination of domestic discord occasioned by an amour between the latter and the applicant's wife. Janasew repeatedly threatened to kill the applicant, and on one occasion, during his temporary banishment from home, Janasew wrote him that he would kill him upon his return. This banishment was one of two occasions in which Janasew had, by threats of violence, driven the applicant from his home. On the day of the shooting Janasew came to the Mirkov house and collected from the boarders money due the applicant and kept the same. He told the applicant to get out and stay away or he would kill him. The latter became panic-stricken and bought a revolver in order to defend himself. When he returned to his home in the evening he found Janasew there, who told him "that he would never eat supper", and that when he came out of the house again he would die. The applicant remained in his home for a time and when he went out of the door Janasew came toward him, reaching toward his pocket and saying, "now you belong to me". The applicant then turned, shot and killed Janasew.

The applicant has now served ten years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. At the time of his trial he could not speak English. He was an honest, peaceable, hard working man. His conduct in prison has been excellent. On account of the overcrowded condition of the Eastern State Penitentiary he was transferred to the Lebanon County Jail, where he is now incarcerated. His inability to secure sufficient physical exercise and do manual labor has endangered his health.

The Trial District Attorney and the Sheriff of the County recommend clemency. The authorities of the jail, in which he is confined, certify to his good prison record and recommend pardon. John K. R. Schropp, Publisher of the Lebanon County News, and a Juror in the case, also recommends clemency. The applicant's wife and minor daughter require support from him.

Harry D. Case, of Lebanon, Pa., a responsible citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the need of his family for support; the recommendations of the trial District Attorney and prison authorities; and the further fact that a sponsor will become responsible for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 1072, November Term, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Schuylkill, William C. Cavalier alias William C. Yost was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on May 18, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

This application is made by Ruth D'Angelo mother of William C. Cavalier alias William C. Yost. The latter was born in the Borough of Mechanicsville, Schuylkill County, on March 9, 1910, and is now fifteen years of age. His mother and father had domestic diffculties which terminated in a divorce. The mother subsequently married an Italian by the name of Jasper D'Angelo by whom she had four children, the oldest being of unsound mind. The boy, who is the subject of the present application, lived with his mother for seventeen months immediately subsequent to his birth, after which he lived with his grandmother, Catherine Cavalier, in said Borough until the date of her death at the age of sixty-two. The lad attended the public schools.

On September 6, 1924, he shot his grandmother, Catherine Cavalier, with a 22 calibre rifle inflicting two bullet wounds in her body and five bullet holes in her head.

On September 9, 1924, Corporal Rehfuss, of the State Police, was directed to go to Mechanicsville to investigate an alleged suicide. On the second floor of the Cavalier home, in the bed chamber of the deceased, he found the body of Catherine Cavalier lying on the floor, clothed. Her head was covered with a pillow case and she had paper stuffed into her mouth. A 22 calibre rifle stood in the corner of the room. The room and clothes closet were in disorder as if a search had been made for something. The grandson, who lived with her, was placed under arrest because his answers to their questioning were not satisfactory. He was taken to the State Police Barracks in Pottsville and subjected to further examination. Upon visiting the home of the boy's mother, in the same borough, the found a blood-stained suit of clothes belonging to him and $108.00 in cash in a pillow on the bed in the room which the boy occupied since the commission of the crime, and with this evidence in their possession they questioned the boy further and in the early hours of the following day he finally made and signed a confession of murder and of taking the money from her person.

The boy being without means and all his relatives, with the exception of his mother, having abandoned him, the Court assigned counsel for his defense, who, at the trial, endeavored to have him acquitted on the ground of insanity. Four medical experts on insanity testified in his defense as opposed to the testimony of one physician who had never had any connection with an insane hospital and the negative testimony of three lay witnesses.

The boy was only fourteen years old when this crime was committed. He had never before been arrested or charged with crime. Eleven members of the jury, which convicted him filed a petition with the Board asking for clemency because of his tender age. They further state in their petition that they had difficulty in arriving at a verdict and only succeeded in reaching an agreement after the Court refused to discharge them (because of inability to agree). After one day's deliberation the Court gave special instructions in which it stated, that the jury had nothing to do with the punishment which was determined by the law or by the sentencing Judge, and that this "perhaps finally may be modified or the party might be released entirely by the Board of Pardons". Fifteen minutes after receiving this special instruction the jury agreed on a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court, not knowing that the Court had no discretion as to the punishment in capital cases. The jury were opposed to the extreme penalty of the law in this case on account of the boy's age. Had the jury known that the Court had no discretion with regard to the punishment they would never have agreed to a verict of murder in the first degree.

Dr. Bowers, Superintendent of the Schuylkill County Hospital for the Insane, filed a letter with the Board in which he states that this boy was born of a feeble-minded, syphilitic mother, and that he has a half brother who is a low grade imbecile, about nine years of age. Both had recently been examined at the mental clinic, tests having been made by Miss Thomas of the State Department of Welfare. He adds that three maternal first cousins were insane. He made six examinations of this boy and saw him a number of times before the trial and was impressed with the fact that he showed no emotion concerning the crime. He pronounced him a moral imbecile, showing various marks of degeneration. Dr. Bowers recommends clemency.

Numerous letters, petitions and communications from organizations and individuals have been filed with the Board advocating clemency. These communications and letters are not limited to Pennsylvania, but have come from all parts of the United States. Newspapers and citizens generally have in various ways expressed their desire that this boy, on account of his tender age, and probably weak and defective mentality, should not go to the chair.

While there is no doubt whatever that this boy committed an atrocious murder, nevertheless in consideration of his tender age, lack of parental care and guidance during the formative period of his life, and his weak and defective mentality, depriving him of all moral sense, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment. We have been largely influenced to this conclusion by the recommendations of Dr. Bowers and by the eleven jurors, and by the host of communications from societies and individuals, male and female, praying this Board to permit this boy to escape the electric chair.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on William C. Cavalier alias William C. Yost shall be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At Nos. 516 and 517, November Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, Stanley Maritz pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with larceny, and on January 16, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $5,500, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is twenty-nine years of age, an American citizen, a silk weaver by occupation and has a wife and one child four years of age.

On September 23, 1921, the applicant, in company with one Stanely Caminsky, forced his way into a cigar store at Hazlebrook, Luzerne County, owned by John Petrilla, and stole certain personal property consisting of cigars, cigarettes and candy, and on December 10, 1921, in company with the same person, stole an automobile and two automobile tires from the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, at Hazleton. The car was driven several miles, stripped of two tires, and abandoned. No personal violence was used by the applicant or his accomplice in the commission of these crimes, and no weapons were carried by them with which personal injury could be inflicted upon the person of another.

The applicant has now served four years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The applicant's wife and small child require aid and support. The wife is employed in a silk mill, while the child is residing with its grandmother.

J. H. Reichling, Superintendent of Sauquoit Silk Manufacturing Co., Phila., a responsible citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good behavior of the applicant.

The wife of the applicant has filed with the Board an affidavit in which she states that the applicant's downfall was brought about by evil companionship and that she believes he has truly repented and will, if released, return to his family, maintain them properly and devote himself as a kind husband and father.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the need which his family has of maintenance and support, and in further consideration of the fact that a responsible citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 1, September Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lebanon, Stefuro Catero was convicted of voluntary, manslaughter, and on September 20, 1919, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, an Italian by birth and allegiance, unmarried, a laborer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Franklin Paper Mills, Downingtown, Pa., and resided in Miners Village, Lebanon County.

On or about September 19, 1915, three Italians, John Russ, one whose name is not mentioned, and the applicant were at a spring in the woods near Miners Village drinking beer. The former was somewhat intoxicated. Frank Deluco, standing at the top of a hill between the spring and the village, in a spirit of fun, scattered, through the trees, a small handful of gravel over the drinking party. Russ became violently angry and cursed Deluco who come down the hill for the purpose of explaining that he was only in fun. Russ, however, assaulted him. The applicant interfered as a peacemaker. Russ thereupon turned from Deluco to the applicant, and, after a slight tussel and some cursing and swearing on the part of the former left them with the threat that he was "going to kill somebody tonight". Four witness who were about Russ during the remainder of the day, testified that he continued to abuse the applicant and threatened to kill him. Toward evening the applicant walked down the road toward Russ' house. There was no sidewalk or paving. When the applicant approached the house Russ appeared with an empty beer bottle, which he raised above his head and threw at the applicant, but missed him and then rushed toward him shouting "I am going to kill you". They tussled together, and in the scuffle the applicant produced a knife and stabbed Russ in the abdomen, from the effects of which he died during that night.

The applicant was a peaceable, law-abiding citizen, of excellent repute, while the man who was killed was a drunkard and quarrelsome. Russ was a much heavier man than the applicant. The latter feared him because of the threats which he uttered, and because of his superior size and strength. The killing appears to be in self-defense.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served six years and four months of his term of imprisonment. If released, employment has been offered him by the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, at Cornwall.

A number of petitions and requests for clemency have been filed. The Trial Judge is non-commital, but the Trial District Attorney and present District Attorney, in letters filed, both recommend clemency. The former opposed pardon on a prior application, but has now changed his position. The twelve jurors, who convicted the applicant, ask for pardon. In their recommendation filed they state that "there was no evidence of any malice in the act for which the defendant was convicted and bordered very closely on self-defense". They aver that he has received sufficient punishment and should be given a chance to start life anew.

The former Sheriff and present Sheriff of Lebanon County, in letters filed testify to his good record in prison and recommend clemency. The widow of the man who was killed joins in the application. Morris Shirk, who was an eye witness to the tragedy and the chief witness for the Commonwealth during the trial, has filed an affidavit with the Board in which he asks clemency, stating that in his judgment the applicant has been amply punished and that he was intimidated by Russ (who was a larger man) when attacked by him. All of the male residents of Miners Village have petitioned the Board for clemency alleging that the sentence of the Court was too severe under the circumstances.

Clayton A. Kleinfelter, Sheriff, of Lebanon County, Lebanon, Pa., a reputable citizen has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of the facts in this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the recommendations of the twelve jurors who convicted him, the wife of the deceased, the chief witness for the Commonwealth, the two Sheriffs who had charge of him and the residents of the village wherein he lived; also the recommendations of the present and trial District Attorneys; because employment has been offered him at Cornwall, if released; and in consideration of the fact that a responsible person has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Stefuro Catero.

Sir: At No. 3, March Term, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lebanon, William J. Bishop was convicted of murder in the first degree, and on March 23, 1925, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is 28 years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a laborer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Hershey Storage Company as a cesspool cleaner. He has a wife and two children aged three and four years respectively. He served overseas during the World War as a stretcher bearer and has an honorable discharge.

On December 29, 1923, Enos Robb, sometime between six and six-thirty P. M., was found lying in a public road in the Borough of Palmyra, Lebanon County. Constable Gingrich was notified, and went to the place where Robb lay. He was then taken to the Lebanon Hospital where he died about 8:00 P. M. The autopsy showed that a bullet had entered his brain and had been fired at close range from a 38 calibre revolver. There was no evidence of robbery, and no witness to the killing.

On the following day, Esther Walmer, a fifteen year old girl, was imprisoned as a material witness. She claimed that she saw the killing and told many conflicting stories as to the identity of the slayer. She was detained in jail until July, 1924, when she was sent to a home for incorrigibles. Before the arrest of the applicant the police successively arrested, and held without any information lodged against them or prosecution pending, either as material witnesses or as suspects, seven persons, all of whom, with the exception of Esther Walmer, were discharged. Miller, one of the number, was twice arrested and twice discharged.

On February 2, 1924, the applicant while drunk, declared that he saw Miller shoot Robb. The police were informed and he was questioned and seven days later arrested, charged with the murder. He was not allowed to see anyone at the jail. In his last statement, on February 12, 1924, declared in writing that he had shot Robb in an attempted robbery. This confession was made in the presence of William Miller, the State Policeman in charge of the investigation. At the trial, letters of the applicant, dated the same day as the written confession, one to his wife the other to his mother, admitting the killing of Robb, were offered in evidence. The brother of the applicant, Ben Bishop, was the chief witness for the Commonwealth. He turned over to the police the revolver alleged by him to have been the applicant's. Prior to testifying he had consulted an attorney with regard to securing the reward offered by the county authorities. Since the trial he has admitted he testified falsely.

The jury returned a written verdict on the back of the indictment which was for murder "Guilty as indicted". When polled they all said murder in first degree. After the jury was discharged the Clerk of the Court found a paper inside the indictment, signed by the foreman of the jury, addresed to the Court as follows: "To the Hon. Judge of Lebanon County: Owing to insufficient evidence in this case as held by several members of our jury as to cause a doubt in their minds, we have unanimously agreed to beg the Honorable Court of Leb. Co. for leniency in sentencing William Bishop in our verdict. J. S. Ulrich, Foreman".

The applicant was convicted mainly on his own admissions and the testimony of his brother. It is now claimed that these confessions were extorted from him while under duress and through intimidation on the part of the police authorities; that his nerves had been shattered by his war experiences and that, therefore, he was not able to withstand their drastic efforts to fasten the crime on him.

Jerome D'Angelo, a storekeeper, of Lebanon, a naturalized American citizen with a wife and five children, appeared in person before the Board to support an affidavit which he had previously filed. In this affidavit he states that for eight or ten years he had known Miller, a suspect, who had been twice arrested for the crime and discharged, and who since was fatally injured in a quarry; that several days after the applicant had confessed that he killed Robb, Miller told him that he (Miller) had killed Robb in a fight over Esther Walmer; that he had met Robb on the highway that night and upbraided him, a married man, for running around with a young girl; that a fist fight followed in which Miller slipped on the ground and then drew his revolver and shot Robb, thinking that he would only cripple him so that he could get away. D'Angelo said that when he read in the newspaper that the applicant was to be electrocuted in March his conscience would not permit him to remain silent any longer. He immediately communicated with the applicant's attorney. He adds that this affidavit was made without any inducement or hope of reward; that he was not acquainted with the applicant, or his family. He also stated that Miller was entirely sober when he made the confession.

A petition and a number of letters from prominent citizens of Lebanon have been filed with the Board advocating commutation, because of the grave doubt as to the guilt of the applicant. Among others the Chief of Police and Postmaster of Lebanon, Gabriel H. Moyer, the County Detective who was the prosecutor in the case, and the present County Detective, recommend clemency. T. J. Barnhart, one of the Jury, which convicted the applicant, filed a letter in which he stated that he had been of the opinion that a verdict of first degree accompanied by a petition for leniency to the Court on account of doubtful evidence, would mean life imprisonment and not execution.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the real doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; his surroundings when the confessions were obtained; the fact that his brother, the Commonwealth's chief witness, since the trial, has admitted that he testified falsely; because of the favorable attitude and petition of the Jury which convicted, as shown by the paper signed by the foreman and the letter of Juror Barnhart; because of the recommendations of many prominent citizens and, largely because of the after-discovered evidence of Jerome D'Angelo, a reputable and substantial citizen, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on the applicant should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that the sentence of death heretofore imposed on William J. Bishop, shall be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 51, April Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Michael Glonek was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and recommended to the mercy of the Court, and on June 22, 1923, was sentenced by the Court to pay fine of 6½ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is about thirty-five years of age, of Polish nationality, but a naturalized citizen of the United States. He is a barber by occupation and at the time of his arrest for the present offense was operating a barber shop at his residence in the City of Pittsburgh, where he owned his property and had resided therein fourteen years. His family consisted of a wife and three small children under the age of eight years. A fourth child has been born since his imprisonment.

On January 23, 1923, the applicant, after he had closed his barber shop, went with his brother-in-law to a saloon across the street from where he lived. The saloon was filled with drinking and intoxicated men. One of the number, Mike Wasyliek was badly intoxicated and a large revolver protruded from his hip pocket. The applicant, noticing the condition of the man, was apprehensive of trouble. He watched for an opportunity, drew the revolver from the pocket of the intoxicated man, and sent his brother-in-law with the gun across the street to his home. After his return they remained in the saloon until about eleven o'clock, when they left, crossed the street and stood talking in front of the applicant's home. Two policemen in plain clothes came down the street, entered the saloon, and remained for some time. The officers were told by a bystander that the applicant had taken a revolver from another man's pocket while in the saloon earlier in the evening. One of the officers replied that he would find out about it. Looking out of the saloon door, he saw the applicant across the street standing in front of his house. The officer asked him what he had done with the gun. The applicant replied it was none of his business, and asked what he wanted to know for. The officer replied that he was a police officer and that he would "get the applicant" and get the gun, and walked away. No complaint had been made by the man whose gun had been taken, and although the officer admitted he knew the applicant well, knew he was a barber and where he lived, he left the applicant and with his brother officer started out on their rounds. About 1:30 A. M., a lieutenant and the two police officers went to the applicant's home. The lieutenant knocked at the rear door. The applicant who has just fallen asleep or was about to sleep, and felt badly after the drinking he had indulged in earlier in the evening, arose, and asked, "who is there". He received a gruff and profane reply that they wanted to talk to him. He told them to come in daytime. They kept on hammering at the door with threats as to what they would do if he did not open the door. By this time the applicant's wife and children were awake, were frightened and screaming, all of which made him nervous and excited. He went to the back door to see who was there, and on his way snatched up a revolver, and holding it in his hand approached the door and opened it. As he opened the door a few inches he heard a shot fired on the outside, and was struck a violent blow with something on his face and head inflicting a severe cut which bled profusedly. Hearing the shot, and stunned and blinded by the blow, he fired several shots out of the door, but avers that he could not see anybody when he fired. One of these shots fired by him struck Lieutenant Schmotzer and caused his death shortly thereafter.

The applicant has now served two years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His reputation in the neighborhood where he lived was excellent.

The applicant has an excellent prison record. His wife and family require his support and assistance. The mother has been supporting them by acting as a charwoman.

The trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that the police officers did not exercise good judgment when they went to his home at an early hour in the morning. He adds that the jury in their verdict recommended the applicant to the mercy of the Court. His letter concludes: "After a careful consideration of all the circumstances in the case this office does not desire to enter an objection to the granting of the pardon prayed for". There was also filed with the Board a petition asking clemency containing the names of sixty-four officials and representative citizens of Pittsburgh, including the President of City Council; a County Commissioner; three members of the Legislature; County Commissioner's Clerk; two County Assessors; the Coroner and five Deputy Coroners; two Constables and two Aldermen.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the friendly attitude of the trial District Attorney; the destitute condition of his wife and four small children; and because of the petition of sixty-four officials and representative citizens of the City recommending clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 27, August Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Chester, Augustino Marino was convicted of assault and battery (three counts) and carrying concealed deadly weapons, and on August 30, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is about thirty-five years of age, and a native and owes allegiance to the Kingdom of Italy. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a fireman by the Electric Light Company of the Borough of West Chester, where he resided with his wife and five small children.

The applicant and Felice Baiocchi were friends for a number of years. About four months before the crime the applicant moved his family to the house next door to where Baiocchi boarded. The applicant having been informed by several people and by common rumor that Baiocchi was having criminal relations with his wife, became very much wrought up about it. The applicant's wife and Baiocchi were admittedly on friendly terms, but there was no evidence of criminality. He became jealous of Baiocchi, but never said anything to him about his suspicions. On August 6, 1922, about three o'clock in the afternoon, Baiocchi was sitting on a bench in Everhart Park, West Chester, in company with a male friend. The applicant, who was very drunk, appeared before him and said, "This is your cross," and drew a knife or razor out of his pocket and cut Baiocchi across the side of his face and then walked away.

The applicant has now served three years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His wife and children require support. The children are scattered in private and public homes and his wife is not strong and unable to support the family.

Baiocchi has filed an affidavit with the Board in which he recites his relations with the applicant and his family. He states that the applicant was a hard-working, industrious and law-abiding citizen, and that he was so drunk he did not kown what he was doing. He denies any improper relations with the applicant's wife and asks the Board to grant a pardon so that the applicant may reunite his family and support them.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that while the applicant was properly convicted and sentenced, yet he believes that he has now served such time as substantially punishes him for the crime which he committed, and that the ends of justice would be served by the granting of a pardon at this time. The Chief Burgess of West Chester and other citizens have filed petitions with the Board in which they advocate clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the need which his wife and small children have of support; because of the recommendations of the injured person, the Chief Burgess and citizens of West Chester, and the trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Augustino Marino.

Sir: At No. 34, September Term, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Otto Wentzel was convicted of highway robbery with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court, and on September 23, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than six years.

The applicant is thirty-eight years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a shoemaker by occupation and has a wife with whom he resided, at the time of his arrest, in the City of Reading.

On July 19, 1922, Roy Weidman was driving an automobile truck containing five drums of alcohol from Philadelphia to Reading. At Collegeville, Montgomery County, the truck was overtaken by the applicant and four companions who were riding in two automobiles. They had followed the truck from Norristown. At Collegeville the driver of the truck, who testified that he was scared, got off the truck without any violence being offered, and two of the applicant's companions drove the truck to Pottstown where it and the contents were recovered on the following day. All of the persons implicated in the robbery were convicted and sentenced, and all have been released from prison except the applicant.

The applicant has served three years and five months of his term of imprisonment. His prior record is good, with but one exception. In 1913, he was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for larceny. He was subsequently released on parole and finally pardoned. Later for four years he was employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company as a freight trainman.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; because his wife requires support; and because of the fact that all of the persons who participated in the robbery have been discharged from prison, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Otto Wentzel.

Sir: At Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, January Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of York, Freed Ellis was indicted for burglary, felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods. He was convicted on one indictment charging burglary, and pleaded guilty to the other indictments, each charging a separate offense committed in the City of York. On January 7, 1921, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age and a native-born American citizen. At the time of his arrest he resided in York and had a wife and a two-year-old son, but the wife has since obtained a divorce.

In the Fall of 1920, numerous houses in the City of York were broken and entered. The applicant fell under suspicion. The house of his mother-in-law, situated in Hanover, York County, was searched and some of the articles stolen in York were found. He was arrested and said that he had never entered any of the houses, but admitted that he was given some of the goods in a cigar store in York to dispose of and that he took the goods and sold some of them and gave the remainder to his wife. No witness saw him enter or leave any of the houses which had been entered, and his conviction was obtained solely on articles found in his possesssion which were identified as coming from certain houses that had been burglarized.

The applicant has now served five years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

Letters filed with the Board from the jail physician and Dr. Bennett, of the State Health Department, indicate that the applicant's health has become seriously impaired since his imprisonment. The Warden of the York County Jail, to which he was transferred from the penitentiary, certifies that his prison record is excellent.

Both the trial District Attorney and trial Judge have filed letters with the Board in which they recommend clemency on the ground of his prior good record, long term of imprisonment and because of his impaired health.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the need which his young son has of support; his impaired health; and because of the recommendations of the trial District Attorney and trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Freed Ellis.

Sir: At Nos. 142, 143, 144 and 145, November Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, Louis Kapel alias Frank Williams was convicted of felonious assault and battery (two counts), entering a building with intent to commit a felony and carrying concealed deadly weapons, and on November 19, 1924, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 18¾c, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than sixteen years. Sentence was suspended on the last charge.

The applicant is twenty years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is unmarried and resided with his parents in the Village of South West, Westmoreland County, and worked in the mines.

On September 10, 1924, between ten and ten-thirty P. M. at No. 535 Suisman Street, North Side Pittsburgh, a saloon keeper and bartender were held up by several men in their place of business. The proprietor was shot in the head and the bartender in the leg. Between the hours of eleven-thirty and twelve o'clock that same night, the applicant was found on Wilkins Avenue, Pittsburgh (a distance of about four miles from the scene of the hold-up), in an unconscious condition caused by a gunshot wound in his groin, taken to the Homeopathic Hospital where he was confined for six weeks and then taken to jail. The applicant claimed that late in the evening of the same day he was held up by two colored men on a public street in the City of Pittsburgh, and robbed of about $70.00; that he was not on the North Side of Pittsburgh that evening, nor was he within four miles of the scene of the crime. At the hearing before the Police Magistrate the applicant was identified as one of the men participating in the hold-up, the identification being the gray trousers he wore.

The applicant has now served one year and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crimes. He has an excellent prison record. He was only eighteen years old when the alleged crime was committed.

The trial District Attorney has filed two letters with the Board in which he states that he had no doubt as to the guilt of the applicant at the time of the trial, but that it now develops that the trousers that were strong evidence as to identification of the applicant upon the trial were not the trousers worn by him on the night of the alleged crime, and that doubt has now arisen as to his absolute guilt. He adds: "The condition of the trousers showed positively there is no bullet hole in them and the defendant (applicant) being found shot in the groin the night of the crime, the benefit of the doubt should be given the defendant (applicant)".

The prosecutor in the case has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that he has no objection to the Board giving the applicant the benefit of the doubt which has arisen from the condition of the trousers worn by him the night of the crime.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the reasonable doubt as to his guilt; the term of imprisonment already served; his prior good record; his excellent prison record; and because of the statements of the trial District Attorney and the prosecutor in the case, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Louis Kapel alias Frank Williams.

Sir: At No. 8, June Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Beaver, Emil Balanzo was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, and on February 8, 1918, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is about 37 years of age and an Italian by birth and allegiance He is a bricklayer by occupation. At the time of his arrest he was employed by the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel Company, in the Borough of Midland, Beaver County, where he resided with his wife and ten year old child.

The applicant and several fellow workmen left the mill, in which they were employed, about ten o'clock on the night of May 12, 1917, went to the home of one of the number and visited there until a short time before midnight when he started for his own home accompanied by some of his companions who walked with him to the corner of Fourth Street and Penn Avenue, Midland. About the time the applicant and his companions came out of the house, police officers Ford and McKay came out of the house nearly opposite and proceeded to the same street intersection. In the house from which the officers came, and where they had been for at least a half hour a foreign wedding was in progress, free liquor was there in profusion and both officers had indulged to some extent. When the officers came up to the applicant and his companions they called on them to throw up their hands, and McKay proceeded to search the applicant's companions. In the meanwhile the applicant, without waiting to be searched, started directly across Fourth Street toward his home about 250 feet distant. The applicant did not halt when commanded to do so by the officer. Ford ran after him, grabbed him, turned him around, hit him with a mace, felling him and continued to beat him with a mace until, as the applicant claims, he, in fear of his life, pulled a revolver from his pocket and shot Ford in self-defense, from the effects of which he died the following morning.

The applicant has now served eight years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. His wife is delicate and not physically fit to support herself and ten year old child. They require the support of the husband.

The Chief of Police of Midland, has filed with the Board a letter in which he asks for clemency alleging that the applicant's family is in dire need and that he believes that justice has been served and the applicant sufficiently punished. The trial District Attorney has also filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant has served over eight years of his sentence or practically two-thirds thereof, and that he feels that he has been sufficiently punished. He adds that there is no doubt that in the fight which occurred the applicant was beaten and injured which supports his contention that he fired in self-defense. He offers to appear in person before the Board and explain the facts surrounding the case. A petition of citizens recommending clemency has also been filed

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the destitute condition of his wife and child; the petition of his fellow citizens; and the recommendations of the Chief of Police and trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Emil Balanzo.

Sir: At No. 69, September Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, Clyde Jackson pleaded guilty to the charge of forgery or intent to defraud, and on September 26, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than one year nor more than two years.

The applicant is 45 years of age, an American citizen, and his occupation is that of a plumber. He resided in State College Borough, Centre County, with his wife and three children.

The applicant is charged with wilfully, maliciously and fraudulently altering and publishing a check which was originally dated October 20, 1920, for the sum of $50.00, payable to the order of John Haugh at the First National Bank, State College, Pennsylvania The date of the check was altered and changed to October 20, 1921. On October 20, 1920, the applicant gave Haugh the original check on account of a grocery bill. This check was taken to bank, paid, and Haugh received the money. In July, 1925, Haugh brought suit against the applicant before a Justice of the Peace to recover a balance due for groceries of $106.57, and on July 28, 1925, a hearing was held before the Justice of the Peace at which the applicant claimed a credit of $50.00 on account, and presented the altered check in suit. The plaintiffs claim that the date of the check was changed from October 20, 1920, to October 20, 1921, with intent to defraud. Haugh admitted that he had received the sum of $50.00, but claimed that the same was applied on a former account due when the check was first delivered. The Justice of the Peace failed to give the applicant credit for $50.00 on the grocery bill in suit, and rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiffs. Haugh, therefore, was not injured in any way by the altered check.

The applicant has now served five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has a good prison record. He is tubercular and of weak mind and claims that he pleaded guilty during a period of mental weakness.

The prosecutor in the case has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he does not object to a pardon if the Board desires to grant clemency, and that apparently the applicant had sufficient punishment to deter him from committing crimes of like nature in the future. The Trial Judge has also filed a letter with the Board in which he states, "If you see fit after consideration of this case to grant this prisoner a pardon this Court will interpose no objection to such action". There was also filed with the Board a petition of sixteen fellow citizens of the applicant in which they ask clemency, and in addition thereto several letters of the same tenor from citizens have been filed with the Board.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his good prison record; on account of his impaired health; the friendly attitude of the prosecutor and the trial Judge; and the recommendations of his fellow citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Clyde Jackson.

Sir: At Nos. 7, 8, 9, 15 and 19, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Edward McCabe alias Earl McCabe pleaded guilty to five indictments charging him with burglary and receiving stolen goods, and on June 9, 1922, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of 31¼ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than 10 years nor more than 20 years.

The applicant is 33 years of age, a native-born American citizen and at the time of his arrest was engaged in the florist business, in the City of Pittsburgh. He was married and resided with his wife and six year old daughter in that city. His wife has since died.

While in the employ of his father in the undertaking business and while in business on his own account he formed a wide acquaintance in the City of Pittsburgh, most of them of good repute, but it later developed that some of them were unlawfully engaged in the liquor business. At this time intoxicating liquors were being bought, sold, stolen and transported openly and unlawfully in the City of Pittsburgh. In the early part of 1921, some man called on the applicant and asked permission to store liquor in his cellar, with the understanding that the applicant could sell some of the liquor and account to them. Some of this liquor was sold by the applicant and later a large quantity of it was stolen from him. The alleged owners demanded that he pay them the sum of $3500, claiming this to be the value of the stolen liquor, and fearing exposure he paid the amount which embarrassed him financially. Subsequently a man by the name of Murphy accompanied by two others, Sloan and Bohn, visited the applicant and induced him to use his truck and join with them in stealing liquor. Influenced by the loss he had sustained and the hope of recouping it, and believing that they could operate safely under the protection of the police, he agreed to work with them. The activities of this group and others associated with them extended over a period of about nine months, during which time whiskey was stolen by them from a number of homes in the City of Pittsburgh, and in many cases these robberies were committed with the knowledge and co-operation of certain police officers and night watchmen of homes in that City.

The applicant was arrested on February 27, 1922, on the charge of being a suspicious person and kept in seclusion for about a week. During this time he was confronted by O'Toole, a night watchman, and accused by him of liquor thefts. O'Toole was subsequently sentenced as an accessory before and after the fact in connection with the same crimes committed by the applicant and his associates. Within forty-eight hours from the time of his arrest the applicant made a voluntary and complete confession to Major McGovern, Captain of Detectives, of the City of Pittsburgh, of all the activities of himself and his associates involving about 15 individuals, including city policemen, private watchmen and two lieutenants of the city police. Through his confession and testimony eleven of his associates were convicted and sentenced; one lieutenant of police was dismissed from the service and another suspended and demoted.

The applicant has now served three years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he does not recommend clemency, but states that the applicant was of material assistance to the Commonwealth in the trial of cases against his co-defendants without any promise of clemency. He states further that in his opinion the applicant has no natural criminal inclination, but was led into his trouble by evil associates and encouraged by the assistance of persons whose duty it was to prevent crimes of this nature. A number of letters have been filed with the Board recommending clemency. They include letters from State Senators John P. Harris, now deceased, and James J. Coyne, Representative Storer, the Superintendent of Police of the City of Pittsburgh, and Major McGovernor, former Chief of Detectives, in the Bureau of Police.

George Reatchlous, Manager of the National Casket Company, a prominent and substantial citizen of Pittsburgh, has offered to become sponsor for the future good behavior of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; because of the material assistance which he rendered in breaking up a gang of bootleggers, whose depredations were connived at by certain police of the city; because his ten year old daughter requires his support and parental control; because of the recommendations of the late Senator Harris and other prominent citizens of Pittsburgh; and in consideration of the fact that a prominent and substantial citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Edward McCabe alias Earl McCabe.

Sir: At No. 300, July Sessions, 1910, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Giovanni Cresta alias John Cristinzio, was convicted of entering with intent to commit an assault and to ravish, and on August 2, 1910, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two and one-half years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 48 years of age and an Italian citizen. He came to America in 1905, and was engaged in the making and repairing of boots and shoes in the City of Philadelphia. He is unmarried and has an aged mother in Italy.

The applicant was paroled on November 26, 1913, but violated said parole in July, 1914, by leaving the State and going to New York, where he was arrested and convicted on the charge of extortion and sentenced to a term of 14 years imprisonment. The latter sentence was commuted for good behavior in January, 1923, and he was then returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary to complete the maximum of his original sentence.

The applicant was a transient lodger with an Italian family in the City of Philadelphia in the month of July, 1910. He occupied a room on the third floor of the tenement, and on the night of July 10, 1910, about 11:00 P. M., he left his room and went to the second floor and entered a bedroom (the door of which was opened) occupied by a niece of his landlady, she being between 15 and 16 years of age. Upon entering the room the noise made by the applicant aroused the young girl and she screamed. Her cries alarmed the household, and in a panic the applicant rushed from the house and was arrested immediately, as he passed into the street, by a policeman who happened to be there. In behalf of the applicant the claim is made that on the night in question he had been drinking and was irresponsible, and that the girl suffered no actual harm.

The applicant asked pardon in order that he may be deported to Italy.

The Parole Officer of the Eastern State Penitentiary has filed with the Board a letter addressed to Mr. Mallet, the representative of the applicant, in which he states that a warrant has been lodged against the applicant for his arrest as an alien, issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, and that this warrant authorizes the Commissioner of Immigration, Gloucester City, New Jersey to take him into custody upon his release from the penitentiary for the purpose of deportation. There was also filed with the Board a letter from the Commissioner General of the Bureau of Immigration, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C., in which he states that the Department has issued an order that the applicant be deported to Italy at government expense when released from prison on the ground that he is in the United States in violation of the Act of February 5, 1917, for the reason that he has been convicted of or admits having committed a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, to wit, attempted rape and robbery.

The applicant had served three years and four months of his term of imprisonment imposed by the Philadelphia Court when he was paroled, and has served eight and one-half years on his New York conviction and three years from the date of re-commitment in January, 1923, on the present charge, making a total of fourteen years and ten months served by him on both charges, less the time he was on parole.

Emilo Violante has filed with the Board a letter, which is verified by affidavit, in which he asks for clemency in behalf of the applicant, stating that he is the uncle of the girl whom the applicant intended to ravish, and that his niece was not physically harmed by him on the night in question. He adds that the entire family desire the applicant's pardon so that he may be returned to his aged mother in Italy.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served by the applicant; the recommendation of the uncle of the girl whom the applicant intended to assault: and in further consideration of the fact that if now released he will be deported to Italy at the expense of the Federal Government, at Washington, we have concluded that he should be released in order that he may be returned to his aged mother in Italy who requires his companionship and support, the delivery to the Federal authorities to be made under the direction of the Secretary of this Board.

Sir: At No. 3, February Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, Mike Zambellino alias Mike Zabilino pleaded guilty to felonious aggravated assault and battery, and aggravated assault and battery and on January 6, 1920, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo prisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than five years, to be computed from the expiration of a sentence imposed by the Elk County Court of not ness than five years nor more than ten years, for murder in the second degree.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age, a native of Italy who came to this country when he was eleven years old. At the time of his first arrest he was a laborer and worked in a tannery at Ridgway, Pennsylvania.

The first offense occurred when the applicant was seventeen years of age. He killed Mike Malak who was a fellow workmen in the tannery. Malak persistently tried to pick a quarrel with the applicant and assaulted him a number of times. He was a larger and older man. During one of these attempts to force a quarrel on the applicant the latter lost his self-control and struck him with a knife that was laying close by.

The second crime was committed on the prison farm of the penitentiary when the applicant was twenty years old. Mike Rogerio, a fellow prisoner, continually sought to pick a quarrel with the applicant without any cause whatever. On one occasion Rogerio met him and assaulted him, and during the fight which ensued the applicant cut him with a small knife that he had on his person, and which he used in his work as a plumber's assistant.

The applicant has now served the maximum of his first sentence imposed in Elk County and was not eligible for parole at the expiration of said sentence because he had not served the minimum of the present sentence imposed by the Centre County Court.

The District Attorney who tried the second case, for which the applicant is now serving his sentence, has filed papers with the Board in which he recommends a pardon.

Rev. A. R. Guglielmotti, 1434 Juniata Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., a reputable and substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of the circumstances of this case the term of imprisonment already served; the comparative youth of the applicant when the second crime was committed; because of the recommendation of the trial District Attorney, and the offer of Rev. Guglielmotti, to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Mike Zambellino alias Mike Zabilino.

Sir: At No. 287, May Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Samson McKie was convicted of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery with intent to ravish, and on October 10, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years and six months nor more than five years.

The applicant is twenty-four years of age, unmarried, colored, a plumber's helper by occupation and resided in the City of Philadelphia at the time of his arrest.

The applicant was charged with catching hold of a little girl about twelve years of age and choking her. This occurred about 11:15 A. M. in the school yard of a public school in the City of Philadelphia. The child screamed and he ran away. He committed no further act of violence. He was chased across the City by a policeman, and finally arrested on the second floor of a dwelling-house, situated ten blocks from the scene of the assault, where he was visiting friends. He was taken back to the schoolhouse for identification. Some said this is the man, others said, no. One of the teachers, after the child screamed, saw a colored man, wearing a blue shirt and a blue cap, running away. The applicant, when he was brought back to the schoolhouse, wore a brown suit.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served seventeen months of his term of imprisonment. His parents are elderly and require support.

Five affidavits have been filed with the Board to support the applicant's claim that he was nowhere in the vicinity of the school at the time of the alleged crime. The affiants were the man and wife whom he was visiting at the time of his arrest, together with other persons who were present. They were not called as witnesses at the trial for the reason that before the trial they had removed to Chicago. The colored man, who was chased across the City by the officers, was in full view until he was arrested in the house whence he had fled, and it seems almost impossible that he would have had time to change his clothes and compose himself during the few moments which elapsed between the time he entered the house and his arrest.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case: the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his aged parents' need of support; the reasonable doubt as to his guilt; his insufficient identification as the perpetrator of the crime; and because of the affidavits of disinterested witnesses filed showing that he was ten blocks away when the alleged crime was committed, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 18, December Sessions, 1909, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lycoming, John Warren pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, and larceny, and on December 4, 1909, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is sixty years of age, an American citizen, unmarried, a mechanic by occupation and resided in the City of Philadelphia at the time of his arrest.

On October 22, 1909, the applicant, and one Filbrain, were arrested on the premises of the New York and Central and Hudson River Railroad Company on the outskirts of the City of Williamsport, after they had broken open the inspector's shop and passenger station of the said company, and feloniously taken therefrom certain knives, files, etc., of the total value of $42.00.

At the expiration of his minimum sentence, to wit, December 4, 1914, the applicant was paroled. In May, 1922, the applicant was arrested for the robbery of a post office in Raleigh, North Carolina, and on June 1, 1922, was sentenced in the United States District Court to a term of five years, less ten months, in the Federal Penitentiary, at Atlanta, Georgia. He served this sentence, less the usual commutation period, and was returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary on August 18, 1925, to complete the maximum period of his original term of imprisonment.

The application for pardon is based mainly on the present physical condition of the applicant who is sixty years of age. There was filed with the Board a letter from the physician of the Atlanta Penitentiary in which he states that the applicant entered that institution in June, 1922, and entered the hospital September 20, 1922, from which time he was under treatment for chronic nephritis, and that there has been a constant progression in his malady.

When he was returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary in August, 1925, for violation of parole, he was placed in the prison hospital. The chief resident physician of the latter has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that there has been a constant progression in his malady. ease, arterio-sclerosis and myocarditis, and that he is "in a much debilitated condition".

On account of his advanced age there is no possible hope of recovery from this complication of diseases.

E. M. Hackney, Esquire, Probation Officer of the City of Philadelphia, Pa., a reputable and substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the advanced age of the applicant and his critical condition, which hold out no possible hope of recovery, and because of the fact that E. M. Hackney, Esq., Probation Officer of the City of Philadelphia, has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Warren.

Sir: At No. 13, April Sessions, 1917, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Alfonso Piconi was convicted of robbery (three counts), and assault with intent to rob (two counts), and on November 24, 1917, was sentenced by the Court on the first count in the indictment charging him with robbery, to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years. Sentence on the other counts was suspended by the Court.

The applicant is 34 years of age, a tailor by occupation, an Italian by birth and resided in the City of New York for seven years prior to arrest and conviction.

The applicant was arrested at his home in the City of New York on April 1, 1917, charged with the commission of a robbery in Scranton, Pennsylvania, on February 7, 1915. It appears that a number of employes of the Baryta Manufacturing Company were robbed at the plant of the said company at one o'clock on the morning of the day last mentioned. These men were working on the night shift and had been paid on coming to work at six o'clock that night. They were held up by four masked men armed with guns. The applicant was jointly indicted with a man by the name of Fasula who is still a fugitive from justice. Both had been working in the plant for about one month and left together a few weeks before the robbery. Two witnesses at the trial identified the applicant as one of the robbers, but he set up an alibi. The applicant claimed that he had gone to Scranton on account of a strike in his regular business, and that he worked for the Baryta Company until February 2, 1915, and returned to New York on the morning of that day, which was a church holiday. He then resumed his ordinary life in New York City, and a number of witnesses testified upon depositions that he had always enjoyed an excellent reputation for honesty. The applicant served the minimum sentence imposed by the Court, was discharged on parole and returned to New York where he has made good in everey way.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He served five years, or the minimum term of imprisonment, and his subsequent record since November, 1922, has been irreproachable.

A large petition recommending clemency has been filed with the Board. The signers certify that they have known the applicant for many years and that his reputation in New York is excellent; that he has led an upright and honorable life since his release from prison, and now occupies a responsible position.

There was filed with the Board a letter, addressed to the applicant's counsel, in which the Trial Judge, in acknowledging receipt of copy of application for a pardon, adds, "you may treat this acknowledgment as intended to indicate my approval". The Trial District Attorney has also filed with the Board a letter in which he states, that inasmuch as the applicant, a paroled prisoner, has behaved himself he would make no recommendation to the Board, but closes his letter as follows: "I can see no reason in view of the circumstances why the pardon should not be granted".

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment served; his excellent conduct since his discharge on parole; and because of the favorable attitude of the Trial Judge, and the Trial District Attorney interposing no objection, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of this crime and be fully rehabilitated as a citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Alfonso Piconi.

Sir: At No. 14, September Term, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre, Robert Hill pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and escaping from Rockview Penitentiary, and on July 2, 1923, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than four years; sentence to compute after the completion of sentence from Jefferson County.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, unmarried, and a stationary fireman by occupation. At the time of his first arrest he resided in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, with his aged, widowed mother, and sisters.

The applicant in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Jefferson, at No. 25, January Term, 1921, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with breaking and entering a storeroom, and on January 31, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to serve a term in the Western State Penitentiary of not less than three nor more than four years. On March 27, 1921, he was transferred to Rockview Prison farm. On the night of June 18, 1923, he escaped from the prison farm and walked all the way from Rockview to Punxsutawney, a distance of 107 miles. On June 27, 1923, he was rearrested and returned to the Centre County Jail at Bellefonte. The applicant was homesick to see his mother and sisters. When he reached home he told them of his escape from prison. They urged him to go back voluntarily and serve his time. A sister offered to take him back in her automobile and he consented, but requiring several days rest he remained there until his arrest.

The applicant has served his maximum sentence imposed by the Jefferson County Court. He has also served two years and eight months since his return, which includes not only the maximum term imposed by the Jefferson County Court, but also portion of the sentence for escape.

The applicant's mother is an aged woman who has lost her husband by death, and also a son who was killed during the World War. If the applicant is released he will return to his home, and by so doing will not only aid in the support of the family, but will also contribute materially to her comfort and happiness.

John O'Beirne, Captain of the Salvation Army, of Punxsutawney, Pa., has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In Consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the need which the aged mother has of comfort and support from the applicant; and because John O'Beirne, Captain of the Salvation Army of Punxsutawney, Pa., has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 361, May Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, William Diamond, was convicted of robbery, and on June 3, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and 27 years of age. He is colored, a laborer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the P. and R. Ry. Co. at Wayne Junction, as a freight handler. He has a wife, and at the time of his arrest resided with her in the City of Philadelphia.

About nine o'clock on or about May 1, 1921, the applicant, together with a companion, entered the grocery store of Mrs. Weingarten at 513 South Front Street, Philadelphia, and asked for a package of cigarettes. When the woman turned around to deliver the purchase she was covered with a 45 calibre blue steel revolver held by one of the men, while the other rifled the cash register taking therefrom $15.00. Both men escaped. The applicant was arrested on the following morning, and upon searching his room they discovered a 45 calibre blue steel revolver loaded, and also afull box of 45 calibre cartidges. In contradiction to the Commonwealth's story of the crime, the applicant's story is, that he was paying a friendly call on Mrs Weingarten with whom he lived one year and nine months, and afterwards dealt there as a customer. While he was standing in the store a colored man came in and bought a package of cigarettes. When Mrs. Weingarten turned to get him the change this man, a stranger to the applicant, drew a revolver out of his coat pocket and told Mrs. Weingarten to set the cash register over on the counter where he could reach it. This she did, and the robber took out of the register the money and checks and escaped. The applicant remained in the store for about fifteen minutes before the detectives came and questioned him. When he told them that he did not know the robber they left him go, but later in the night came and took him to the station house where he was locked up as a material witness. Mrs. Weingarten told the police that the applicant did not commit the crime and took no part in it, nevertheless he was convicted while the actual robber was acquitted by the jury.

The applicant has now served four years and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The amount taken from the cash register was only $15.00.

A representative of the District Attorney's office who was present when the case was calld for argumnt before the Pardon Board orally declared that the sentence was excessive and that the District Attorney's office recommended pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; because of the excessive sentence for the theft of a comparatively small amount of money; and because of the recommendation of the District Attorney's office we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William Diamond.

Sir: At No. 4, December Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Beaver, Pete Novokovich was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on March 31, 1917, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than fifteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is a native of Croatia, which is now under the dominion of Jugo-Slavia, and owes allegiance thereto. At the time of his arrest he was employed in the boiler shops of the Jones & Laughlin Company, at Woodlawn, Beaver County. He has no near relatives living.

Pete Polancavin, and the applicant, boarded and roomed with Yovan Ognjenovic. On October 28, 1916, they returned to their boarding house about 10:00 P. M. The door was opened by Yovan and the two lodgers went to their respective rooms. The applicant took $130.00 of his wages out of his pocket, placed them under the bed sheet, undressed himself and got into bed. He was aroused the following morning by Yovan's wife. When he looked for his money it had disappeared. He called out loudly that he had been robbed and Yovan came upstairs into the room. He began abusing the applicant and charged him with having lost his money outside of the house and told him he must leave at once. The applicant was advised to report his loss to the police. He was unable to speak English and taking an interpreter with him went to the police station. Later the same day Polancavin and the applicant returned to the boarding house and found Yovan sitting in the kitchen. The applicant accused Yovan of stealing his money. The latter denied it, and winked at his wife as he denied it. The wife started to go into the adjoining room when the applicant stopped her, believing that she was a party to the theft. Yovan jumped up and started for him and he being afraid that he would inflict bodily injury pulled a revolver out of his pocket and fired one shot out of the open window to frighten him. He grabbed the applicant with both hands and bent him back over the kitchen table, and believing that Yovan intended to kill him shot him with fatal result. He knew that Yovan always carried a pistol or a knife. After the shooting the applicant ran away from Woodlawn and was finally arrested in January, 1917. In the meanwhile Polancavin had been convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of Yovan. The applicant admitted the killing and Polancavin was discharged.

The applicant has served nine years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the Commonwealth has no objection to the grant of a pardon in this case inasmuch as the applicant desires to return to his native land. The Commissioner of Emigration for the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, at New York City, has filed with the Board a letter in which he, as the official representative of the Government of Jugo-Slavia, in the event of a pardon in this case, offers to forward to the Board a passport and transportation to the applicant's final destination in Jugo-Slavia. The applicant is in position to defray all expenses to New York City, the point of debarkation.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the favorable attitude of the trial District Attorney; and because the official representative of Jugo-Slavia has offered to provide a passport and transportation for the applicant from New York City to his point of destination in Jugo-Slavia, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Pete Novokovich.

Sir: At Nos. 1031, 1032, 1033, 1034, 1035, 1036 and 1037, both inclusive, January Sessions 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Roy King pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with robbery, burglary, and assault with intent to kill, and on February 1, 1918, was sentenced on the charge of robbery to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is 27 years of age and a native-born American citizen. His occupation is that of road builder and he was employed in that capacity prior to his arrest. He resided with his father in the City of Philadelphia.

On January 22, 1918, the applicant, together with one Raymond Hey, entered five stores of the American Stores Company and committed robberies; they were also charged with the shooting of an employee of one of these stores. The applicant was only 18 years of age when these crimes were committed. The night before he and Hey had been out the entire night without sleep, drinking heavily, and the acts which they committed were done merely in the spirit of bravado, and not as the result of any criminal intent of mind. The applicant was out of employment at the time, and his mother dying he fell among evil associates which led to his arrest and conviction.

On February 1, 1922, at the expiration of his minimum term of imprisonment, to wit, four years, he was released on parole and reported faithfully for thirteen months. He was subsequently tried and convicted of robbery in Philadelphia before the Honorable Charles E. Bartlett on June 19, 1923, and was sentenced by the Court to an imprisonment of ten years in the Philadelphia County Prison to begin at the expiration of the present sentence, June 19, 1926. While he had been arrested a number of times for boyish pranks he had never been convicted of any crime or served any sentence or paid any fine.

The applicant is afflicted with a malignant form of tuberculosis as attested by medical certificates which are part of his application for pardon, and it is highly improbable that he will live to complete the sentence for which he asks pardon, although his lease of life may be extended if he is immediately removed to a sanitarium for special treatment, for which he has sufficient funds.

The Board of Trustees of the penitentiary, by resolution, have recommended a pardon for the applicant. If pardoned he will immediately be paroled on the ten year sentence to the Philadelphia County Prison as shown by letter on file from the sentencing Judge.

Employment has been offered the applicant when restored to health by three of the firms which formerly employed him.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crimes were committed; his serious physical condition which will probably improve if released; because of the unanimous recommendation of the Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary; and because if released and restored to health employment has been offered by three former employers, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in ope session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Roy King.

Sir: At No. 1,005, June Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Allegheny, Charles Kleare alias Charles Clear was convicted of felonious assault and battery, and at No. 112, September Term, 1921, in the same Court, pleaded nolo contendre to an indictment charging him with entering a building, and on November 26, 1921, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 12½ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is 38 years of age, a native-born American citizen of German parentage, and his occupation is that of truck driver, having been employed as such by the Shannahan Transfer and Storage Company for seven years prior to his conviction of felonious assault and battery. He resided in the City of Pittsburgh with his wife and four children, the oldest being 14 years of age.

Early in the evening of June 22, 1921, the applicant, with several friends, was standing at the Corner of Main and Liberty Streets, in the City of Pittsburgh, when he was accosted by a stranger, who was afterwards identified as Ben Schwartz, who asked him to haul some liquor for him that night, he being a truck driver and transfer man. It was arranged that the applicant and his companions were to meet Schwartz at one o'clock that night at the place from which the liquor was to be hauled away. Under Schwartz's supervision liquor was taken from the cellar of a building situated on Liberty Street, placed on a truck and transported to a wholesale warehouse in Oakland, a suburb. On August 12, 1921, the applicant, while intoxicated, returned home to his family and shot his wife without provocation, injuring her slightly. Owing to his befuddled mental condition he had no recollection of purchasing the weapon. Immediately after the shooting he telephoned to the police and told them what he had done, and also confessed to his part of the liquor transaction.

The applicant has now served four years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His four small children are at present in an orphan asylum, and, if liberated he would be in a position to support his family. His former employers have offered to give him work. Schwartz, the master mind in the liquor transaction, has since been pardoned and others implicated therein are at liberty.

The prosecutors, the trial Judge and the trial District Attorney have filed letters with the Board recommending pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the fact that his four children are public charges in an orphan asylum and require his support; because Schwartz, the master spirit in the whiskey transaction and others implicated are at liberty; because of the fact that, if released, his former employers will give him work; and in further consideration of the fact that the prosecutors, the trial Judge and the trial District Attorney recommend clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 14 and 15, April Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cameron ,Leslie Parker pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with breaking, entering and larceny, and on April 10, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $2.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than fifteen years nor more than sixteen years.

The applicant is 20 years of age, and at the time of his arrest was one of three sons who resided with their mother, a widow in the Borough of Renovo.

Four boys, Arthur Brookens, Anson Brookens and Alvin Brookens, and the applicant, the first three named being brothers, were school boys and were camping out. In order to secure supplies they broke and entered the store of J. Edwad Stewart in the village of Cameron, Cameron County, Pennsylvania, and took therefrom goods to the value of $50.00. The two younger boys, Anson Brookens and Alvin Brookens, were sent to reformatories, and are now at home on parole working in the P. R. R. shops at Renovo. The two older boys, the applicant and Arthur Brookens, were sentenced to the Western State Penitentiary. The applicant was only 17 years of age when the crime was committed.

The applicant has now served four years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His mother requires his support.

A letter from the trial District Attorney has been filed with the Board in which he states that he believes that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, and that he will not oppose the effort to secure clemency.

Senator Quigley, of Lock Haven, a brother of the trial Judge, who is deceased, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that his brother, the late Judge, informed him before his death that he thought the boys had been sufficiently punished, and that he would be willing to recommend a pardon. Unfortunately the Judge died before the application for pardon was completed. There was also filed with the Board a petition signed by a number of prominent citizens of Renovo and vicinity asking pardon.

Rev. H. W. Hunter, of Renovo, Pa., becomes sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his youth when the crime was committed; the need which his mother has of support; because of the statement contained in Senator Quigley's letter indicating the favorable attitude of the trial Judge, and for the further reason that a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Leslie Parker.

Sir: At No. 44, September Term, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lancaster, Howard Werner was convicted of robbery, and on January 20, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Lancaster County Prison for a term of five years.

The applicant is 25 years of age, an American citizen by birth, and was the Manager of the Ideal Sales Company, having its headquarters in the City of Lancaster, when the offense was committed. He resided in said city with his wife and four children ranging in age from six months to four years.

The applicant had in his employ Henry J. Longenecker, who, prior to his employment by the applicant was working for the American Stores Company. Longenecker had made certain sales for the applicant, but had withheld the money. The applicant insisted that Longenecker pay him the amount retained. On June 17, 1924, Longenecker told the applicant if he would meet him at a certain time and place he would pay him what was due. They finally met at 7:30 P. M. Longenecker told the applicant that the American Stores Company owed him money and that if the applicant would go with him to a certain store he would get the money and pay him. The applicant accordingly went with him. Immediately after they entered the store Longenecker produced a revolver and demanded the money which was handed to him by Elizabeth Erb, an employee. A clerk in the store struck Longenecker with a can of tomatoes, and the revolver in his hand was discharged. The applicant in his fright ran from the store, but was afterwards arested, and on the testimony of Longenecker and Miss Erb was convicted. Longenecker, subsequent to the conviction, confessed that he and Miss Erb had agreed to elope to New York City, but had no money. They framed between them the robbery as above described. Miss Erb had the money wrapped up and ready to hand over when Longenecker and the applicant entered the store, and did hand over $250.00 to him. There was filed with the Board the affidavit of Longenecker embodying these facts, and also a letter from Miss Erb to Longenecker, which is corroborative.

The applicant has now served one year and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only 23 years of age when the alleged crime was committed, of which crime he was guiltless. His wife and four small children require his support.

Mr. John H. Wickersham, of R. F. D. 6, Lancaster, Pa., Office, 33 North Duke Street, Lancaster, Pa., a substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; his comparative youth when the alleged crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; the fact that he was guiltless; because his wife and four small children require his support; and because of the further fact that a substantial citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Howard Werner.

Sir: At No. 619, September Sessions, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Dauphin, Russel Cupko pleaded guilty before bill found to an indictment charging him with felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on January 4, 1926, was sentenced by the Court to imprisonment in the Huntingdon Reformatory.

The applicant is nineteen years of age, of Croation nationality, but a native-born citizen of the United States. He is by occupation a laborer, and at the time of his arrest was employed by the Middletown Car Company, at Middletown, Pennsylvania, and resided about one and one-half miles east of said borough. At the time of his conviction he was a single man, but during his incarceration, to wit, on February 16, 1926, he was married to Catherine Sostar.

About three o'clock on the morning of December 14, 1925, the applicant broke the rear window, and thereby gained entrance to a resturant conducted in the Borough of Middletown by one J. Willis Smith, and while there took and carried away certain goods belonging to the latter.

The applicant has now served three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only eighteen years of age when this crime was committed.

The applicant's wife has been pregnant for six months past, and it is his desire and the need of his wife that he be with her at the time of confinement, and thus be in a position to support the family.

The Trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant was never in any trouble before, and that he believes the ends of justice will be met if a pardon is granted him, and that he has no objection thereto.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his youth when the crime was committed; his domestic situation; and because of the favorable attitude of the Trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Russel Cupko.

Sir: At Nos. 146 and 147, November Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Ellis Peiffer pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with highway robbery, and on January 28, 1924, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 12½ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is 21 years of age, by occupation a chauffeur, married and has one child, aged eighteen months, born during his incarceration. He resided with his wife in the City of Pittsburgh.

The applicant held up two taxicab drivers upon a public highway in Reserve Township, Allegheny County; one on December 27, 1923, the other on January 2, 1924. The amount of money taken from the one driver was $19.00, and from the other $28.00 A portion of these amounts was returned to the drivers. In neither case was any violence committed or attempted.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. He was only nineteen years of age when these crimes were committed. His wife is in delicate health, and she and her baby require support.

A number of letters have been filed with the Board recommending clemency. The prosecutors in both cases recommend pardon. A number of police officers have filed letters asking clemency, in which they allege that the applicant's prior record is excellent. The trial District Attorney has filed a letter in which he states that the applicant's family is in sore need of assistance and that he deserves clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the youth of the applicant when the crimes were committed; his prior good record; his excellent prison record; the need which his family has of support; and because of the recommendations of the trial District Attorney and others, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Ellis Peiffer.

Sir: At Nos. , January Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Chester, Jesse Fletcher pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with the larceny of horses, and on January 5, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age, a native-born American citizen, colored, and at the time of his arrest was employed as a farm laborer and helped in mushroom plants. He resided with one Joseph T. Wright, who lived near Lenape, Chester County.

The applicant became acquainted with a colored man by the name of Rosenvelt who worked in the neighborhood. The latter asked him where his employer kept his horses. Rosenvelt and the applicant first took a horse from Coates Webb and started for Philadelphia in the night-time with the horse, but they finally abandoned it along the road. Several nights later they took two horses from Mr. Wright, for whom the applicant had formerly worked. The latter did not take the horses out of the stable, but after they were in the possession of Rosenvelt he accompanied the latter to Philadelphia to dispose of the stolen horses having been promised pay for his trouble and a speedy return home. The applicant was arrested in Philadelphia for the theft of the horses, but Rosenvelt escaped and has never been apprehended. The horses were restored to their owners.

The applicant has now served four years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was about twenty-two years of age when these events occurred.

Rosenvelt, the master mind in the thefts, has eluded arrest and punishment. Employment has been offered to the applicant, if released, by a former employer. The two prosecutors, in letters filed with the Board, are favorable to his release.

Mr. Lewis Steward, of 14 South Matlack Street, West Chester, a reputable citizen, has agreed to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crimes were committed; his prior good record; the fact that the stolen horses were restored to their owners; the further fact that the real culprit has escaped punishment; because employment has been offered the applicant, if released; both prosecutors being favorable to a pardon; and because of the fact that a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Jesse Fletcher.

Sir: At No. 124, September Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Bruno Romano pleaded guilty to an indictment charging his with statutory rape, and on September 11, 1924, was sentenced by the court to pay a fine of $100, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Montgomery County Prison for a term of not less than four years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, of Italian birth and a stone mason by occupation. He was in the employ of Contractor Hendren, of Roxborough, Philadelphia County, in which latter place he resided with his godfather.

The applicant and Margaret Kucinsak, a Polish girl now fifteen years of age, were sweethearts for a period of about eight months prior to his arrest. They lived across the street from one another, but because of the difference in nationality the parents of Margaret, who was an only child, strenuously objected to a marriage between them. In the summer evenings of 1924, Margaret and the applicant were in the habit of taking walks together into various sections of Roxborough, including the cemetery. One evening on their way home from the cemetery they were stopped by a police officer who, because of the lateness of the hour and their youth, questioned them regarding their relations and they both admitted to the officer that they had been in the cemetery and that they had had intimate relations there and elsewhere, whereupon the applicant was arrested, held for Court and pleaded guilty to the charge of statutory rape.

The applicant was, always has been and still is eager to marry the girl. His willingness to marry her is evidenced by an affidavit filed with the Board. Since the imprisonment of the applicant the parents of the girl, realizing that she has a deep affection for him have become reconciled to a marriage and are now eager to have such a marriage consummated and to start the applicant in business and provide a home for him and receive him as a member of the family. this is shown by an affidavit on file.

The applicant has now served one year and nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. He was only twenty years old when the crime was committed.

The trial District Attorney and trial Judge have filed letters with the Board in which, while not recommending pardon, they indicate that they are not opposed.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his prior good record; his constant desire to marry the girl; the desire of the parents that this marriage take place; and the further fact that the trial Judge and the trial District Attorney have no objection thereto, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Bruno Romano.

Sir: At Nos. 13 and 14, October Term, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Wayne, James Patrick Kelleher pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with breaking, entering and larceny, and on December 16, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than fourteen months nor more than four years.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is by occupation an automobile mechanic, and his wife and four children, the eldest being eleven years old and the youngest fifteen months, who resided with him in Jessup, Lackawanna County.

On three different occasions the applicant broke into the garage owned by Isaac Sandercock, at Equinunk, Wayne County, and altogether stole more than $400.00 worth of automobile supplies. On the last occasion, to-wit, November 28, 1925, he was accompanied by two younger men, Loomis and Granahan. Two days later the applicant was arrested by the State Police who recovered from him almost all of the merchandise that had been stolen. The following day his accomplices were arrested. In Court all pleaded guilty. Loomis, the youngest, was placed on probation for two years, while Granahan and the applicant both received an equal sentence.

The applicant has served five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. During the World War he was overseas and shell-shocked, and the nervousness consequent thereon has been greatly aggravated by prison confinement and discipline. The chief resident physician of the penitentiary so certifies in a paper attached to the petition. His prison record is excellent, and the prison authorities having knowledge of the applicant's impaired physical condition desire his release. The pardon at this time will permit the applicant to be taken to a Government hospital where he will receive the proper and necessary treatment which may eventually result in his complete recovery and his restoration to his family which requires his support.

Congressman Watres has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends clemency. He states that he has investigated the case and that the prison authorities regard the applicant's physical condition such as to make his transfer to a Government hospital urgent, and that continued confinement in the penitentiary would aggravate his present condition.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his impaired physical condition which will be aggravated by continued confinement and alleviated if sent to a Government hospital for treatment; and the need which his wife and small children have of companionship and support, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released and subjected to necessary treatment in a Government hospital he will not only be restored to health, but will become a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Patrick Kelleher.

Sir: At No. 11, December Sessions, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Clearfield, Frank Huff, Jr., was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on February 16, 1914, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seventeen years nor more than nineteen and one-half years.

The applicant is forty years of age, a native-born American citizen and a laborer by occupation. At the time of his arrest he resided in Caledonia, Elk County, with his wife and two children who were then approximately sixteen and fourteen years of age.

The applicant was a periodic drunkard. In the Spring of 1913 he learned that his wife was entertaining men and boys at his home. She confessed both to him and to his mother, that she had been criminally intimate with one Ambrose Burke. The home of the applicant was broken up in consequence of his wife's confession of adultery. From May until September, 1913, the applicant was a nervous wreck, and several times attempted to commit suicide. His wife's infidelity and the burden of the care of the children on his aged parents weighed heavily on him and he continued his periodic spreeing. His wife left Caledonia and became housekeeper for W. L. Smith, a miner, residing at Penfield about ten miles distant. The applicant had several interviews with her in which he overlooked the past and begged her to return to his home to take charge of the younger child. On September 2, 1913, the applicant went to DuBois and began drinking heavily. He went to Penfield to interview his wife and induce her to return to his home. She refused to do so. A quarrel ensued in the hallway of the Smith house and Mrs. Huff was shot three times with fatal result.

The applicant has now served twelve years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is exceptionally good and the Warden and other officials, in letters filed with the Board, strongly recommended pardon. Since his incarceration his father has died and his mother, an aged lady, is afflicted with cancer and requires the support and companionship of her son.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant, his exceptionally good prison record; the recommendations of the warden and other prison officials; and because his aged and diseased mother requires his support and companionship, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 50, February Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Erie, John Arcara was convicted of breaking and entering a building in the night-time with intent to commit a felony and larceny, and on February 15, 1918, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than one year and three months nor more than three years.

The applicant is thirty-four years of age, unmarried, an Italian by birth and allegiance, and a shoemaker by occupation. At the time of his arrest he conducted a shoe repair shop in the City of Erie. Since his release from prison he has resided in Dunkirk, New York.

The applicant and Benjamin Mazzeo roomed on the second floor of a certain building located on the North Side of East Tenth Street, in the City of Erie. The ground floor of this building was used and occupied as a shoe repair shop by M. Smith. It was broken into during the night of January 8, 1918, and a quantity of leather and goods taken away. The investigation into the burglary led to the arrest of these two men, although the applicant stoutly maintained his innocence. Conviction was apparently brought about by the testimony of the landlady who claimed that she heard the applicant's voice in the store below. The stolen goods were never recovered. The applicant has long since completed his term of imprisonment. He has been successful in business and no criminal charge has been lodged against him since his discharge. The present application is made in order to qualify him to become a citizen of the United States.

With his application were filed three letters, one from the Chief of Police, one from the cashier of the Merchants National Bank, both of Dunkirk, New York, certifying to his upright conduct since his release from prison, and a letter from the trial Judge stating that there was doubt in his mind as to the guilt of the applicant, and that he should not be deported on the strength of the conviction.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the full term of imprisonment served the prior good record of the applicant and his subsequent good conduct; because of the favorable letters from the Chief of Police and Merchants National Bank Cashier, of Dunkirk, New York, and the statement of the trial Judge, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma of his prison sentence and rehabilitated so that he may become eligible to citizenship in the United States.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Arcara.

Sir: At No. 1, March Term, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Indiana, Bernardo Capriotti alias Bernardo Capparatti was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, and on July 7, 1919, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is forty-six years of age, an Italian by birth, but a naturalized American citizen. He is by occupation a coal miner, and at the time of his arrest was a motor man in a mine located at Ernest, Indiana County, where he resided with his wife and five children ranging in age from six to fifteen years.

For more than two years prior to the killing, the applicant kept boarders in his home, among whom was Arnaldo Renaldi, the deceased. The applicant noted suspicious circumstances indicating criminal intimacy between Renaldi and his wife and was warned concerning this by others. On one occasion he overheard a conversation between his wife and Renaldi, and shortly thereafter he saw them embracing one another. He ordered Renaldi to leave, but the latter remained. Subsequently he noted other suspicious circumstances and again ordered him to go away, but he remained. After Renaldi returned from the War in November, 1918, he came back to the Capriotti home and renewed former relations with the wife. The applicant refused to take him in, but the wife retained him against her husband's protests and repeated orders to leave. In order to get rid of Renaldi he ordered all of the boarders to quit. He learned that Renaldi loafed about the house while he was away at work. On the morning of March 24, 1919, the applicant went to work, but reaching the pit too late for the trip into the mine, returned home unexpectedly, entering the basement in his usual way. He heard Renaldi and his wife talking in the room above. He listened to the conversation and looking through a small hole in the floor saw Renaldi holding his wife's hands and attempting to pull her down on a settee. The applicant started upstairs reaching for a revolver which was lying in its customary place at the head of the stairs and entering the room ordered Renaldi to leave. Renaldi became angry, swore and made a move as if to reach for something in his hip pocket. At this instant, fearing for his own safety, the applicant fired several shots at Renaldi. The latter ran out of the house and the applicant followed shooting at him outside of the house. Renaldi then ran a short distance and fell down, dying shortly thereafter. The young son of the applicant, about six years of age, who was naturally under the domination of his mother, was permitted to give damaging evidence in Court against the applicant, without being sworn.

The applicant has now served six years and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Trustees of the penitentiary recommend clemency. A large petition of neighbors and friends was filed recommending pardon. The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that inasmuch as the applicant has served almost his entire minimum sentence he believes that the ends of justice will be as fully met by pardon at this time as if he was held in custody for another year. The present District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he takes a favorable position on the application for the reasons assigned by the trial Judge.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the favorable attitude of the trial Judge and the present District Attorney; and because of the petition of friends and neighbors, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Bernardo Capriotti alias Bernardo Capparatti.

Sir: At Nos. 516 and 517, November Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, Stanley Kaminsky pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with larceny, and on January 16, 1922, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $5,500, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is twenty-five years of age and a Polish American who resided at the time of his arrest with his parents in the City of Hazleton. He is unmarried and was employed in the mines.

On September 23, 1921, about 11:00 P. M. the applicant and one Stanley Martiz forced their way into the cigar store owned by John Petrilla, situated in Hazle Brook, Luzerne County, and carried away certain personal property consisting of cigars, cigarettes and candies. On December 10, 1921, the applicant, in company with the same man, took an automobile and two tires from the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. The car was driven a few miles, stripped of two tires and abandoned. No personal violence was used by these men in the commission of either crime and no weapons were carried by them with which personal injury could be inflicted upon the person of another.

The applicant has now served four years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His accomplice, Stanley Martiz, was pardoned by this Board in January, 1926. If released, employment in the mines has been secured for him.

Pasco Schiavo, City Controller, of Hazleton, a responsible citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the fact that employment has been offered him, if released; the further fact that his accomplice has already been pardoned by this Board; and because a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Stanley Kaminsky.

Sir: At Nos. 123-B and 123-D, February Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, Gilbert J. Trim pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with forgery and embezzlement, and on February 18, 1924, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $600.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven and one-half years nor more than fifteen years.

The applicant is forty-nine years of age, a native-born American citizen and has a wife and one child who, prior to his arrest, resided with him in West Pittston, Luzerne County. He was cashier of the West Side Bank, of West Pittston.

The applicant pleaded guilty to the forgery of certain notes approximating about $15,000, and the total defalcation and misappropriation amounted to about $50,000. It is admitted that the applicant did not profit personally by these transactions and that he assisted in and made possible the return of a large part of the moneys which were misappropriated.

The applicant has now served two years and three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He is in poor health, having heart trouble and incipient tuberculosis as shown by a letter from the resident physician of the penitentiary filed with the Board. It is believed that if now released he will be completely restored to health.

A number of letters were filed with the Board recommending clemency, including letters from Assemblyman Thomas, the Mayor of Pittston, the attorney for the bank, and the Resident Vice President of the American Surety Company, which reimbursed the bank for a substantial part of the loss.

The trial District Attorney and trial Judge in letters filed recommend pardon because of the punishment he has already endured, his impaired health and manly conduct after the crimes were discovered.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his impaired health; the fact that he did not personally profit by the transactions and assisted in the recovery of moneys which were due the bank; and because of the recommendations for clemency filed, particularly the letters of the trial District Attorney and trial Judge, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Gilbert J. Trim.

Sir: At No. 4, January Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Tioga, Joseph Italiano alias Joe Itali was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on January 28, 1912, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is thirty years of age and owes allegiance to the Kingdom of Italy. He was an engine tender repairer by occupation.

In December, 1911, when the applicant was only seventeen years of age, he was employed as a track laborer in Knoxville, Pennsylvania, for the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad Company. James Carioti was the section foreman, a domineering man of fiery temper who drank considerably. On the morning of December 11, 1911, the applicant and John Licastro, a young Italian of about the same age, were discharged by the formean. They both went to Addison, New York, and saw the superintendent who reinstated them. They returned to Knoxville and met Carioti who appeared to be friendly. He invited them and one Bruno into a saloon about five or six o'clock in the evening. They went there and drank until about eight o'clock, when the four came out together. It was a dark night. A switch lantern in some manner had become extinguished. Carioti asked someone to go and fix the light and then pulled out a revolver and started to shoot. In the melee he himself was shot with fatal results. The applicant claims that he dropped to the ground and remembers nothing else, although he admits having a revolver on his person. He and Licastro were both convicted of murder in the second degree, and both were paroled, the applicant in April, 1918.

The applicant has been out of prison for about nine years. He has married and become a useful member of society by reason of his honesty and industry. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he makes no recommendation, but states that he "can see no reason why the applicant should not be granted a pardon." He adds that the crime was the result of a quarrel and that Carioti was an ill-tempered person, and he believes that the applicant has been sufficiently punished. A statement was filed with the Board signed by citizens of Hornell in which they certify that they are acquainted with the applicant who owns a restaurant which he manages, and his own home valued at approximately $4500, that he is "temperate, trustworthy, honest and bears an excellent reputation."

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; his excellent record since his discharge from the penitentiary in 1918; the favorable attitude of the trial District Attorney, and the certificate of his fellow citizens of Hornell, New York, as to his present excellent standing in the community, we have concluded that he should be relieved from the stigma resulting from his imprisonment and rehabilitated in order to be restored to the full rights of citizenship.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph Italiano alias Joe Itali.

Sir: At Nos. 20, 23, 26 and 27, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams Paul Hartland pleaded guilty to four charges of larceny, and on January 15, 1925, was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $4.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years in No. 23, and for a term of not less than one year nor more than two years in Nos. 20, 26 and 27 respectively, to run concurrent with the sentence imposed in No. 27 from the expiration of the minimum sentence imposed in No. 23.

The applicant is twenty-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, a farmer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed on a farm which he rented. He lived in Littlestown, Adams County, Pennsylvania, with his wife and five small children.

The applicant, together with Ralph Myers, Carl Bechtel and William Jago, was charged with having stolen certain bags of wheat, flour, corn-meal and chickens from the premises of four citizens of Adams County during the latter part of the year 1924.

The applicant has served one year and five months of his term of imprisonment imposed in No. 23, which is almost the minimum of said sentence, and if liberated on sentence imposed in Nos. 20, 26 and 27 he will still be under the supervision of the Parole Officer of the Penitentiary for eighteen months at the expiration of the minimum sentence imposed in No. 23. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The three accomplices of the applicant have been recommended for pardon by this Board on condition that each obtains a sponsor for his future good conduct. The wife and family of the applicant are in destitute circumstances and require his support.

The trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends clemency. A petition of citizens has also been filed recommending pardon. F. X. Storm, of Hanover, Pennsylvania, has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the fact that his family require his support; the further fact that his accomplices have been recommended for pardon; the recommendation of the trial District Attorney; and because a responsible citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 21, 24, 30 and 34, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams, William Jago pleaded guilty to four charges of larceny, and on January 15, 1925, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $4.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years in No. 34, and for terms of not less than one year nor more than two years in Nos. 21, 24 and 30, to run concurrent with No. 30 and to begine at the expiration of the minimum term in No. 34.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, a native-born American citizen, reared in an orphanage, a farmer by occupation and at the time of his arrest operated his own farm. His immediate family consists of a wife and four small children with whom he lived in Mount Pleasant Township, Adams County, Pennsylvania.

Ralph Myers, Carl Bechtel, Paul Hartlaub and the applicant were charged with the larceny of certain bags of wheat, flour, corn-meal and chickens, which were taken from the premises of four citizens of Adams County during the latter part of the year 1924.

The applicant has now served one year and five months of the minimum term of imprisonment imposed in No. 34. If released from the sentences imposed in Nos. 21, 24 and 30, he will still be under the supervision of the Parole Officer of the Penitentiary for a period of eighteen months after the expiration of the minimum sentence in No. 34.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent. His family requires his support.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommended clemency. A petition of citizens has also been filed to the same effect. A number of letters, including one from the Chief of Police of Hanover, are also on file recommending pardon.

The three accomplices of the applicant have been recommended for pardon on condition that each obtains a sponsor for his future good conduct. Morris N. Wahler, President of the Littlestown Savings Institution, Littlestown, Pennsylvania; has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the destitute condition of his family; the recommendation of the trial District Attorney and other citizens; because his three accomplices have been recommended for pardon; and in consideration of the fact that a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon for the sentence imposed in Nos. 21, 24 and 30 respectively, January Sessions, 1925, (and none other) be granted to the said William Jago.

Sir: At Nos. 22, 29, 31 and 35, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams, Ralph Myers pleaded guilty to four charge of larcency, and on January 15, 1925, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $4.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years in No. 35, and for terms of one to two years in Nos. 22, 29 and 31 respectfively, the sentences running concurrent with the sentence imposed in No. 29, and to begin at the expiration of the minimum sentence in No. 35.

The applicant is twenty-eight years of age and a native-born American citizen. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a steam shovel operator in a stone quarry located near Littlestown, Adams County Pennsylvania. Prior thereto he was employed in factories. He has a wife and daughter, six years of age with whom he resided in a tenant house on a farm located in Union Township, Adams County.

The acts of larceny, for which the applicant was charged, occurred during the months of November and December, 1924. The applicant, together with William Jage, Carl Bechtel and Paul Hartlaub, were charged with stealing from the premises of four citizens of Alams County, certain chickens, flour, wheat and clover seed. Most of the stolen articles were returned to the owners and no one suffered any material loss.

The applicant has now served one year and five months of the sentence imposed in on No. 35, which is almost the minimum sentence. If liberated on the sentences imposed in Nos. 22, 29 and 31 he will still be under the supervision of the Parole Office of the Penitentiary for more than one year on the first sentence.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record in excellent. If released, employment has been offered him by a former employer. His wife, who is in delicate health, is working in a factory, and both she and the child require his support. A petition of citizens who are well acquainted with the applicant recommends pardon. His accomplices, Jago, Bechtel and Hartlaub, have been recommended for pardon by this Board on condition that each of them obtains a sponsor for his future good behavior. J. Andrew Bair, of the Littlestown National Bank, Littlestown, Pennsylvania, has agreed to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant. The trial District Attorney in a letter filed with the Board recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the need of his family for support; the fact that his three accomplices have been recommended for pardon; because of the recommendation of the trial District Attorney; and the fact that a substantial citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that a pardon for the sentences imposed in Nos. 22, 29 and 31 respectively, January Sessions, 1925, (and none other) be granted to the said Ralph Myers.

Sir: At No. 19, February Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Joseph Valotta was convicted of murder in the second degree, and at No. 17 of the same Sessions, in the same Court and by the same jury, he was also convicted of murder in the first degree (there being two distinct homicides), and on June 28, 1923, in No. 17, was sentenced to be electrocuted.

The applicant is 42 years of age and a native of the Kingdom of Italy. He came to America in 1902, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States. He has a wife and five children, ranging in age from four to fifteen years, whose sole support he had been and with whom he had lived in the City of Pittsburgh. He was employed in the Allegheny shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from February, 1916, to October, 1922, first as a laborer and afterwards as a machinist's helper. On July 1, 1922, a strike in the shops was called, but the applicant continued at work. Having been threatened and assaulted one day while at work he secured a revolver from a police officer in the plant in order to protect himself against strikers. The plant was under police protection. The applicant carried the revolver but once before the night of the shooting and that was the first time during the strike that he left his home at night.

On Monday, October 30, 1922, at about 1:14 A. M., Thomas Hopkins, a citizen, and Edward C. Couch, a police officer, were both shot and killed by the applicant, on Freedmore Street, near Irwin Avenue, N. S. Pisstburgh. Hopkins and certain companions for a day and night immediately preceding the shooting had been drinking, were in a drunken condition, and had been indulging in boisterous and unruly conduct at the corner of said streets. In the early morning the applicant and a companion were walking into Irwin Avenue from Armandale Street on their way home from a christening, and were quietly conversing together. When crossing Irwin Avenue from Armandale Street into Freedmore Street, Hopkins detached himself from his companions and made a threatening demonstration against the applicant with his fists, called him a scab, threatened to kill him and backed him up against the side of a brick wall. At this time the applicant drew his revolver and shot Hopkins who died thereafter. The applicant then proceeded to run along Freedmore Street towards Brighton Road, followed by two of the Hopkins gang. Officer Couch who had admonished this crowd to go home but a few minutes before, heard the shot and returning up Irwin Avenue ran into Freedmore Street and took up the pursuit. The applicant, running and hearing footsteps in the rear became badly frightened, turned and quickly fired a fusillade, four shots striking the officer and killing him. The applicant claimed that he was afriad that Hopkins would kill him or do him bodily harm, and that because of this fear he acted in self-defense, and the night being foggy and dark, he says he was unable to discern the officer's uniform nor to recognize him as an officer, and mistook Couch for one of the Hopkins gang which was pursuing him in order to kill him or do him bodily harm.

It is conceded that the applicant had never been charged with or convicted of crime, and was an industrious, peaceable citizen and a kind father and husband. During boyhood he suffered an injury to his skull and he has always been exceedingly nervous and high strong, particularly under stress of great excitement. His family physician certifies that he has a highly wrought, nervous physical organization. There is no doubt that the night in question was dark and foggy, and it is probable that a highly nervous man, who had just committed homicide, would not recognize his pursurer as a police officer, instead of one of the Hopkins gang, and particularly so when the pursuing officer did not disclose the fact nor call on the applicant to surrender.

The applicant's case has excited a great deal of interest and sympathy. There was filed with the Board a mass of petitions from organizations and individuals and personal letters recommending clemency. Ten of the jurors who convicted him also recommended a commutation of sentence. Of the other two jurors, one has since died and one refused to sign the recommendation. The trial Judge who sentencer the applicant recommends commutation, and also Federal Judge Thomson, who heard the case on habeas corpus proceedings. The trial District Attorney while not recommending clemency has stated to the Board that he is not opposed thereto. Among the petitions for clemency filed was one of attorneys, and of ministers of the gospel, and a petition of five disinterested citizens signed by Mary Flinn Lawrence and others. The Congress of Women's Clubs of Western Pennsylvania and Ella M. George, State President of the W. C. T. U., the Superintendent of Police at Pittsburgh, C. B. Heiserman, Vice President and General Counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at Philadelphia, and other railroad officials and employes ask for clemency. The United States Supreme Court in their opinion declaring that no Federal question was involved in the double homicide said, inter alia: "Vallotta shot a man in a street brawl—we will assume in circumstances that suggest considerable excuse—and then killed a policeman, who pursued him, within a short distance of the first act".

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case which do not fully measure up to first degree murder, the fact that the crime was without premeditation and that because of the darkness of the night and the stress of trepidation and excitement the applicant did not know when he fired the fatal shots that a police officer was pursuing him; because of the recommendations of the trial Judge, the Federal Judge, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company officials and employes, the Superintendent of Police, of Pittsburgh, and many prominent social organizations and individuals, we have concluded that the sentence of death heretofore imposed should be commuted to life imprisonment.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open sessions", recommend that the sentence of death hertofor imposd on Josph Valotta should be commuted to life imprisonment.

Sir: At No. 2, February Term, 1913, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Bradford, Jerry Kinner was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on June 9, 1913, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nineteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is about thirty-four years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a farmer by occupation and at the time of his conviction resided in Rome Township, Bradford County.

In 1912 the applicant married Viola, daughter of Nathan Wood, who resided in Athens Township, Bradford County. About four months after the marriage the wife gave birth to a child. The question of the paternity of the child, as well as the alleged immoral relations between the applicant and his wife's sister, were sources of the trouble between the applicant and his wife. Two weeks after the birth of the child the applicant's wife left him permanently. He sought an interview with her on several occasions at her father's home, but without success. On the day of the shooting the applicant came to the home of Nathan Wood in order to see his wife. Wood was not there at the time of his arrival. The applicant inquired of the housekeeper where his wife was. She refused to tell. He insisted. An altercation ensued between them during which she, several times, struck him in the face. At this point Nathan Wood apeared on the scene, stepped between the parties with an axe in his uplifted hand, when the defendant fearing that Wood would carry out threats to kill him, which threats had been previously uttered, backed away several steps and shot and killed him, he alleges, in self-defense.

The applicant has now served thirteen years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has become almost blind, and letters are on file with the Board from the chief resident physician of the penitentiary and other physicians certifying that he is afflicted with chronic conical cornea which is progressive and incurable with the likelihood that within a year he will become totally blind.

The applicant's brother has offered to provide a home for him if he is released. Two of the County Commissioners, the County Detective and the Coroner have filed letters with the Board recommending clemency. Thre are individual letters and also a large petition of citizens to the same effect. The trial Judge has since died, but the present District Attorney and the trial District Attorney who is now the President Judge, in letters filed recommend clemency.

Mr. William Kinner, brother of the applicant, of Athens, Penna., a responsible citizen, has agreed to become sponsor for the applicant's future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his present physical condition; because of the recommendations of the County Commissioners, County Detective, Coroner, present District Attorney and trial District Attorney; and in consideration of the fact that a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 203, May Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Westmoreland, Paul Lapcevic was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on September 16, 1916, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is forty-six years of age and a native of Servia, who has filed a declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States. He is a coal miner by occupation and at the time of his conviction was employed as a driver in the mines of the Westmoreland Coal Company, at Yukon, Westmoreland County, and resided there with his wife and four children, who are now aged seventeen, sixteen, fourteen and thirteen years respectively.

The applicant and his wife lived happily together. He was a good father and husband and everything went well until three or four months previous to the present crime when there came to board with them an Austrian by the name of Marco Bostovic, after which the wife transferred her affections to the boarder, and her entire demeanor changed and she became morose, sullen, slovenly and more or less drunken. On the night of May 5, 1918, the applicant, returning home unexpectedly, saw her in the kitchen of their home sitting on Marco's lap with her arms around his neck and kissing him. When the applicant entered the room both jumped to their feet, very much frightened. The applicant began to hunt for his revolver, but could not find it. He did not sleep that night on account of worriment. The next morning he got up, left the house and when he returned he found his wife dressed in her best clothes. Inquiring why she was dressed up she said she was going away to live with Marco. He tried to persuade her to remain with the family, but she pushed him away. She walked into the next room, found a revolver and handed it to the applicant saying, "here is the gun you were looking for last night." He then placed the gun to her head and shot her a number of times and killed her.

The applicant has now served nine years and nine months of his term of imprisonment, almost one-half of the maximum term. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. Since his confinement he has learned to read and write English, has learned a trade and has become a christian.

Three of his children are in children's homes and require the care and support of a father.

The trial Judge is dead and the trial District Attorney, who formerly opposed a pardon, has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends clemency. The prison authorities also recommend pardon.

Edward G. Bauer, Esquire, of Greensburg, Pa., a substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the opplicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the need which his children have of his care and support; because a substantial citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct; and because the trial District Attorney strongly recommends pardon, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Paul Lapcevic.

Sir: At No. 496, March Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Henry G. Brock pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with murder, and on April 16, 1923, was sentenced for the crime of murder in the second degree, to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiory for a term of not less than six years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 39 years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried and at the time of his conviction was a member of the firm of Sinkler and Brock, Bond Brokers, Bullitt Building, Philadelphia, and resided in said City.

On the evening of March 2, 1923, the applicant attended a small dinner party at St. Davids, Pa., and drank six bottles of ale. About 12:15 A. M. he left the house in an intoxicated condition driving his own machine for a distance of seven or eight miles and finally about 1:00 A. M. reached the intersection of Forty-fifth Street and Lancaster Avenue, Philadelphia. Traveling at a high rate of speed he drove south on Lancaster Avenue, passing a southbound trolley car, which was discharging its passengers. The applicant's car struck three of the passengers just as they had alighted from the trolley car and before it had started again, to wit: Ellen O'Donnell, a woman about sixty-five years of age, Leo O'Donnell, her son, aged twenty-eight, and Mary Murphy, his financee, aged eighteen years. Leo O'Donnell and Mary Murphy were instantly killed and Ellen O'Donnell died shortly thereafter.

The applicant, unaware that he had either struck or killed any one, continued his rapid course. When he turned sharply around a street corner one of the wheels of his automobile broke, bringing it to a complete stop. The applicant was found near his broken machine in a dazed condition, shortly after the accident, by police officers. He asked to be directed to a garage where he could have the car repaired. It was not until he became sober that he realized that he had killed three persons. He manfully declined to avail himself of any technical or other defense, declared that he would take his punishment and actually pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with murder, the degree of which was subsequently fixed by the Court at murder in the second degree.

The applicant has now served three years and two months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of any crime other than minor offenses before a Magistrate. His prison record has been exceptionally good. A man of means, he has purchased materials from which the prison inmates have made articles of merchandise, and he has established in the City three stores in which to dispose of these articles, giving the prisoners the benefit of the sales (which have aggregated $50,000) less a small deduction for payment of actual expenses.

The act for which he pleaded guilty, although of grave character, was not done wantonly or with criminal intent. Had he stood trial he would probably have been convicted of involuntary manslaughter, for which the maximum penalty is two years. He has a constructive force for good in prison, and, if released, he intends to continue the beneficent work which he has already inaugurated.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he strongly recommends pardon. The present District Attorney, who, as an assistant, prepared and prosecuted the case, has also filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency. The trial Judge never recommends pardons.

There were submitted to the Board petitions favoring clemency containing about 1,000 names and about 800 letters, including letters from three Bishops, and other well-known clergymen (such as Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins), the present and two former Provosts of the University of Pennsylvania, prominent Social Workers, Bankers, Attorneys and women.

The applicant and his family have purchased a home for the parents of Miss Murphy (who was their sole support), have furnished it and provided an annuity during their lives.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the manly conduct of the applicant in accepting the full consequences of his fatal act; his practical effort to ameliorate the condition of prisoners; because of the belief that he will continue and extend this good work after his release; because of the strong letters from the trial District Attorney and present District Attorney, who prosecuted the case in the Philadelphia Courts; and because of the pleas of many reputable, substantial and prominent citizens of Philadelphia, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Harry G. Brock.

Sir: At No. 6, January Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Elk, Reuben Hillyard pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with rape, and on November 9, 1920, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is fifty-four years of age, a native-born American citizen, a woodman by occupation, married and has three children.

The applicant is charged with having, on or about July 15, 1920, debauched his own daughter who was under sixteen years of age. On the day of the commission of the alleged crime he had been to a neighbor's house where he drank a quantity of homemade wine. He has no recollection or knowledge of the commission of the crime. He had no funds to employ an attorney and was led to plead guilty thinking that he would obtain a shorter sentence. The applicant's wife lived apart from him and was engaged in commercialized prostitution in the City of Rochester, New York. The daughter has just returned from a visit to her mother who wanted her to remain with her as an inmate of the house of prostitution. There is no direct charge that the information against the applicant was the result of a frame-up between the wife and daughter, but it does have somewhat the appearance of it, particularly so because Minnie Hillyard, since her father's imprisonment, told her brother and other members of the family on several occasions that her mother had instigated the charge. While somewhat addicted to the use of strong drink the applicant in all other respects was a peaceful and law-abiding citizen who had never before been charged with the commission of crime.

The applicant has now served five years and seven months of his term of imprisonment.

Associate Judge Beck and the trial District Attorney, and other citizens, have filed letters with the Board in which they recommend clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendations of Associate Judge Beck, the Trial District Attorney and other citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Reuben Hillyard.

Sir: At No. 138, February Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Montgomery, Ira L. Knauer was convicted of murder in the second degree, with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court, and on May 23, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Montgomery County Prison for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant is thirty-eight years of age, a native-born American citizen, a cement contractor by occupation, and at the time of his arrest he was engaged in the laying of cement pavements and the construction of concrete buildings in the City of Norristown, Pa., where he resided with his wife.

On the evening of February 16, 1923, Charles Fox, together with his wife, mother and three year old son, were in his automobile on the right-hand side of Ridge Pike, West Norriton Township, Montgomery County, Pa. Fox stopped his automobile in front of a gasoline service station and got out in order to make a purchase. His car was entirely at rest and lawfully parked. After alighting from the car Fox stepped to the front, lifted the hood of the car, made some examination, closed the hood and walked along side of his car toward the rear. At this time a car driven by the applicant approached, going toward Norristown at a high rate of speed. In the endeavor to pass a horse and wagon going in the same direction, and at the same time to avoid an automobile approaching in the opposite direction, the applicant's car crossed over the road to the left-hand side, struck Fox and killed him almost instantly. The applicant was under the influence of liquor. He admits having had two drinks about an hour before the tragedy, but claims that the death of Fox was due due entirely to an accident caused by a congestion on the road at that particular point at that particular time.

The applicant has now served approximately two years and two months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent and the Board of Prison Inspectors unanimously recommend pardon.

Since his incarceration, and for some months past, the applicant's wife has been in delicate health, has undergone a surgical operation and his release is necessary for her well-being. Since his conviction his business has gone to pieces, and the long continued illness of his wife has necessitated the incumbrance of his home in order to provide for her expenses, and unless shortly released and enabled to return to his business he will lose his home. After the accident the applicant borrowed the sum of $1500 upon his home in order to pay to the widow of the deceased, and the company with which he was insured has paid to her the additional sum of $4,000.

The trial Judge is dead, and the trial District Attorney, who strenuously opposed a former application for pardon in this case, filed with the Board a letter in which he formally withdraws all opposition thereto. The Chief of Police and Burgess of Norristown, the President of the Penn Trust Company, the President of the Central Trust and Savings Company, and many prominent citizens have filed letters with the Board strongly urging clemency. There was also filed a petition of 500 citizens to the same effect.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; in consideration of the further fact that the Board of Prison Inspectors, the Burgess and Chief of Police, of Norristown, and many prominent citizens have asked clemency; because of the fact that the applicant's wife is in poor health and requires his presence and support; that his business is being dissipated and lost and his home on the verge of foreclosure proceedings; and in further consideration of the fact that the trial District Attorney, who has strenuously opposed pardon has formally withdrawn his opposition thereto, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 51, June Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Delaware, Cuthbert E. Blair was convicted of murder in the second degree, with a recommendation to the mercy of the Court, and on November 18, 1919, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is thirty-three and a half years of age, a native-born American citizen, colored and a laborer and chauffeur by occupation. At the time of his conviction he resided in Media. He is a widower with one child, fourteen years old.

On March 5, 1919, the applicant shot and killed one Orlando Gibbs under the following circumstances: The applicant had been drinking and had not gone to work that morning. He fell in with a tough crowd. There was some trouble over a motorcycle. The applicant was falsely accused of having broken something. A fight ensued and the applicant was beaten up by Gibbs. He became insanely angry and said he would kill somebody. He went to his home not more than one block distant and returned with a small pistol in his hand. When within ten or fifteen paces of the crowd which abused him, he opened fire. One shot hit Gibbs, the man who had beaten him, and killed him.

The applicant has now served six years and seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The age and infirmities of his parents, each of whom is about seventy years old, together with the proper care and training of his child, demand the attention and service of the applicant.

A petition signed by a number of prominent citizens has been filed with the Board recommending pardon.

Franklin N. Brewer, Esq., Wanamaker's, of Philadelphia, Pa., a responsible citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; because his aged parents and son require support and assistance; and in consideration of the fact that a responsible citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Cuthbert E. Blair.

Sir: At No. 29, October Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, James Motley, alias R. L. Matthews, pleaded guilty to the charge of voluntary manslaughter, and on October 4, 1919, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than twelve years, to be computed from May 23, 1919, the date of his commitment for trial.

The applicant is about 43 years of age, colored and a native-born citizen of the United States. He was born in the State of Montana. His occupation is that of a laborer and show man with circus organizations. He has no stated residence, traveling most of his time. On his admission to the Eastern State Penitentiary he stated that he was a married man and had a wife living in Chicago, but no children.

The present application is made by Courtland Butler, Parole Officer of the Eastern State Penitentiary, who is unable to give a statement of the circumstances surrounding the crime which led to the conviction of the applicant. The indictment shows that the applicant on or about May 22, 1919, in the City of Scranton, Pa., killed one Jesse Pugh, and was on the same day arrested, held without bail and committed to the County Jail.

The applicant, after having served his minimum term of two years, was paroled on May 23, 1921. After his release on parole he reported periodically during two years, and on June 22, 1923, was found guilty in the Superior Court of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, of an "infamous crime against nature", and was sentenced on June 25, 1923, to a term of four years in the State Prison at Folsom, California. During his imprisonment in the latter institution his conduct has been good, but on account of a warrant which was lodged against him from the Eastern State Penitentiary he was denied parole, and also the privilege of road work, and was compelled to serve out his full sentence. Inasmuch as he has been convicted of another crime while on parole, the authorities of the Eastern State Penitentiary are required, under the law, to have the applicant, upon the termination of his sentence in California, returned to the Eastern State Penitentiary to complete his unexpired maximum term, which is ten years. The Board of Trustees of the Eastern State Penitentiary, deeming it inadvisable to expend the necessary amount of money to return the applicant to Pennsylvania to complete his sentence, have instructed their Parole Officer, the petitioner in this case, to apply for a pardon on behalf of the applicant. If pardoned, the warrant which was lodged with the California prison authorities will be withdrawn and all the requirements of the parole law carried into effect.

The applicant has served his minimum sentence imposed in Pennsylvania and has also served his full term of four years imprisonment in California. Prior to the commission of the Pennsylvania offense he had not been charged with or convicted of any other crime so far as is known.

The trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends pardon for the reasons assigned in the petition and the trial Judge and present District Attorney concur.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the desire of the authorities of the Eastern State Penitentiary to have a pardon granted in this case in order to obviate the expense and trouble of having the applicant brought from California at the expiration of the sentence imposed by the Superior Court of that State and to effectuate the provisions of the parole law of Pennsylvania; and in consideration of the recommendations for clemency of the trial Judge, the trial District Attorney and present District Attorney for the reasons set forth in the petition filed in this case, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Motley alias R. L. Matthews.

Sir: At Nos. 141 and 142, November Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Lackawanna, Orlando Tessie pleaded guilty to the charge of perjury, and on April 6, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three and one-half years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, a native of Italy, and a naturalized citizen of the United States. His occupation was that of general contractor, but for a period of about six months, prior to his conviction, he was engaged in the garage business in Yorkville, Ohio, where he resided with his wife and three children.

The applicant's wife, Anna M. Tessie, and four others were separately indicted for the crime of perjury arising out of certain testimony given by them in the case of Commonwealth vs. John Torti and Tony Borlandi, who were tried for the murder of one Edward Murphy, in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, on July 30, 1923. The defendants in the latter case were both convicted of murder in the first degree and electrocuted. The testimony of the applicant was substantially the same as the testimony of four others against whom bills of indictment were nol prossed. Their testimony tended to establish an alibi and was to the effect that the two murders were in Tiltonville, Ohio, on the date in question. Torti and Borlandi were known by the applicant and his wife to be reputable citizens, who, for sometime prior to July 30, 1923, had stored their car in the garage owned by the applicant and his wife. One of the defendants had also rented a room from them for some weeks previous to the date mentioned. These men had gone from Yorkville, Ohio, and nothing was known of their whereabouts, although their leaving was not under extraordinary or suspicious circumstances. When it was learned that they had been indicted for murder the applicant and his wife and others had grave doubts as to the actual guilt of these two men, not only on account of their previous good reputation, but also by reason of the fact that they were honestly under the impression that they had attended the funeral of one Orlando Lollini, which funeral occurred at Tiltonville, Ohio, on July 30, 1923, and was numerously attended. There was no evidence of collusion or conspiracy to bear false witness.

The applicant has now served fourteen months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The trial Judge has filed a letter with the Board in which he states that if the responsibility developed upon him he would recommend a pardon. He also made a verbal statement to the same effect to the President of this Board. A number of prominent citizens of Steubenville, Ohio, and vicinity, have filed letters with the Board recommending clemency, and there was also filed in his behalf a large petition of citizens addressed to the Governor. The prosecuting attorney of Jefferson County, Ohio, the Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of that County, Congressman Murphy, former Congressman Francis and Governor Donahey, are among the recommenders. The wife and children of the applicant are in destitute circumstances and require his support.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the destitute condition of his family; the fact that four others equally guilty of perjury escaped punishment; and because of the recommendations of the trial Judge and prominent citizens of Jefferson County, Ohio, (where the applicant formerly lived), including the Governor of the State, the Common Pleas Judge, the prosecuting attorney, and the present and former Congressman, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Orlando Tessie.

Sir: At No. 12, February Term, 1923, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Westmoreland, John Zassick was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on June 28, 1923, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than seven years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is 38 years of age, a Slovak by birth and allegiance, a miner by occupation and was employed as such at the time of his arrest for the present crime. He has a wife and two children.

The applicant worked for several years in and about Marguerite, a mining town owned by the H. C. Frick Coke Company. He was discharged by the Superintendent who learned that he had joined the United Mine Workers of America. From the time he was discharged until October 15, 1922, when the present crime was committed, the applicant was not permitted on or about the property of the Frick Company. On the date last mentioned he was invited to a christening held by a brother-in-law in the town of Marguerite. While there he was ordered out of town by two of the Coal and Iron Police, one of whom was Mike Czerney. The applicant left the house, although he was conducting himself in an orderly manner, and the officers followed him in a car. Czerney finally alighted from the car, fired a shot and pursued the applicant who ran for some distance. When Czerney overtook him a verbal quarrel took place, whereupon Czerney struck the applicant twice on the head with his mace. A fight ensued, in the course of which Czerney sat on the applicant's stomach, whereupon the latter shot the policeman inflicting a fatal wound. Prior to the shooting the applicant rented a plot of ground near Marguerite on which he erected a dance pavilion. On the night of June 17, 1922, Coal and Iron Policemen drove up to the pavilion, beat up the persons in it and wrecked the place.

The applicant has now served three years and one month of his term of imprisonment, prior to which he served eight months in the county jail. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime, and his prison record is excellent.

His wife and children require support. A large petition of citizens was filed with the Board recommending clemency, and Andrew Novak, Supreme Treasurer of the Executive Committee of the Jednota, an influential Slovak beneficial society, in a letter filed, recommends pardon.

Sergeant George W. Freeman, of the State Police, was detailed by the Board to investigate the circumstances of this crime, and in his report recently filed he states that on the evidence presented in Court the applicant should not have been convicted. He further states that the applicant shot Czerney after the latter had fired one shot at him and had struck him twice on the head with his club, and that the marks of the beating still appear on the applicant's head directly back of the right eye. The physician's testimony at the trial showed that the applicant's head was in such a horrible condition the day after the beating that he could not stitch it and could only bandage it. When the applicant was arrested twenty-two days after the tragedy the scars on his head were still tender. According to the undisputed testimony presented at the trial three shots were fired in the melee between Czerney and the applicant. An examination of the revolvers in open Court showed that two shots had been fired from the applicant's gun and that one shot had been fired from the gun carried by Czerney.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the need which his family has of support; the recommendations of citizens and of the Supreme Treasurer of the Jednota; and more particularly because of the report and conclusions of Sergeant Freeman, in which he states that the applicant should not have been convicted, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 25, 28 and 33, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams, Carl Bechtel pleaded guilty to three charges of larceny, and on January 15, 1925, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $3.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen months nor more than three years in No. 33, and for terms of one to two years respectively in Nos. 25 and 28. The latter sentences to begin at the expiration of the minimum term of sentence in No. 33 and to run concurrent with the sentence in No. 28.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a farmer by occupation and at the time of his arrest was employed as a farm-hand. His family consists of a wife and three small children with whom he resided in Mount Pleasant Township, Adams County, Pa.

Ralph Myers, William Jargo, Paul Hartlaub and the applicant pleaded guilty to the charges of larceny, having stolen certain bags of wheat, clover seed, corn-meal and chickens from the premises of three citizens of Adams County during the month of December, 1924.

The applicant has now served one year and five months of the minimum term of imprisonment imposed in No. 33, and if liberated on the last two sentences he will go on parole at the end of the minimum sentence imposed at No. 33 for a period of eighteen months. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The three accomplices of the applicant have been recommended for clemency by this Board on condition that each of them obtains a sponsor for his future good behavior. The father of the applicant has offered him employment immediately upon his release, and his wife and three small children are in destitute circumstances and require his support. A petition of fellow citizens has been filed with the Board recommending clemency.

Mr. J. P. Redding, of Littlestown, Pa., a responsible citizen, has agreed to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the fact that his wife and family require support; because of the petition of his fellow citizens; because his three accomplices have been recommended for clemency; and the fact that a responsible citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon for the sentences imposed in Nos. 25 and 28, respectively, January Sessions, 1925, (and none other), be granted to the said Carl Bechtel.

Sir: At. No. 158 December Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cambria, John Lake, alias John Lakey, was convicted of taking one Margaret Krotendorfer, a female child under the age of 16 years, for the purpose of prostitution, and also of taking the said female child for the purpose of marriage without the consent of her parents, and on March 8, 1926, he was sentenced by the Court to pay the costs of prosecution and to undergo imprisonment in the Cambria County Jail for a period of not less than two years nor more than four years.

The applicant is twenty-three years of age and a native of the United States of Polish parentage. He is by occupation a coal mine laborer, and at the time of his arrest was employed in Sweets Foundry, Binghamton, New York, and resided at Barnesboro, Cambria County, with his parents. After his conviction, to wit, on August 7, 1926, he married the said Margaret Krotendorfer, pursuant to a mariage license issued by the Clerk of the Orphan's Court of Cambria County.

The applicant, who is about seven years older than the girl, became acquainted with her in January or February, 1925. He frequently called upon her and they became very much attached to one another. He proposed marriage to her and she accepted. On July 15, 1925, they left the home of the girl for the express purpose of getting married. They departed about eleven o'clock on the morning of said day. The girl packed her suitcase in the presence of her mother who was there when they left home. They drove to Altoona by automobile where they obtained a train for Williamsport, thence to Elmira and arrived at Binghampton about eleven A. M., on the following day. The journey appears to have been continous after leaving Altoona at 6:00 P. M. on July 15, 1926, until they arrived at Binghamton. The testimony of both parties was to the effect that their only purpose in going to Binghamton was in order to marry. The testimony shows that up to the time they went to the Clerk's Office to obtain a marriage license they had not cohabited. The girl stated to the Clerk that she would be eighteen on the 4th of August, 1925, which was untrue. They were informed that they could not be married until the girl was eighteen. After their visit to the Clerk's Office, and their unsuccessful attempt to obtain a license to marry, they cohabited together. The applicant states that it was his full intention to be married on August 5. The mother of the girl denies having given consent to the marriage, but admits that the subject had been discussed with her and she was present the day they left home. The applicant was arrested in Binghamton on October 2, 1925, and remanded to Cambria County for trial. J. G. Nicholson, of Spangler, Pa., has agreed to become sponsor.

The applicant has now served six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The trial Judge in a letter filed with the Board states, that since the trial he had personally interviewed both parties, as well as the mother of the girl, and in view of the fact that the applicant wished to marry the girl when he took her away and failed because he could not obtain a marriage license, it is now his deliberate judgment that the applicant should be pardoned.

Sergeant George W. Freeman, of the State Police, who was detailed to investigate the circumstances of this case has filed with the Board a report in which he recommends clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the recommendation of the trial Judge; the favorable report of Sergeant Freeman, and in further consideration of the fact that the parties have been united in lawful wedlock, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Lake, alias John Lakey.

Sir: At No. 123, March Sessions, 1926, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Cambria, Fred Lytle, Walter J. Lyster and H. R. Jacobson were convicted of voluntary manslaughter with a recommendation to the extreme mercy of the Court, and on August 16, 1926, were sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution jointly, and each to undergo imprisonment in the Cambria County Jail for a term of not less than four months nor more than two years.

At the time of their arrest the ages of applicant Lytle was 31 years, and applicants Lyster and Jacobson, 24 years, respectively. All are native-born American citizens. Applicant Lytle resided in the Borough of Cresson, where he was Chief of Police. Applicants Lyster and Jacobson were both members of the State Police force and resided in Lansdowne and Erie, respectively. Applicant Lytle is married and has five children. The other applicants are unmarried.

On October 16, 1925, the applicants, learning that one Anthony Misoura, residing in said county, was violating the Prohibition Law, proceeded to Misoura's home to search the premises. The latter was known as a dangerous man. When they reached the home they found a quantity of mash, moonshine whiskey and glasses, indicating that Misoura and another had been drinking. Misoura at first offered no objections to the entry of the officers and to their examination of the liquor, thus impliedly waiving his right to resist their search, but finally ordered the officers to leave the premises. They informed him that they were officers of the law and showed their badges, but to no effect. He went out of the room and returned with an axe and assaulted the officers. They defended themselves, seized the axe and one of the officers struck him over the fingers with his revolver. Misoura became more enraged. Finally one of the officers struck him on the head with his revolver. He was then overcome, despite his strenuous resistance, taken to a doctor, had his wound treated and then taken to the County Jail after the doctor had instructed the officers to give the keeper of the jail directions as to the necessary treatment of the wounded man. These instructions were transmitted. Misoura remained in jail eleven days under treatment by the jail physician and was then released on bail. Apparently the wound had healed, but shortly after his release, having pain in his head, Misoura went to a doctor who ordered him to a hospital, but he refused to go. Infection set in, and nine days after his release from prison he died. The doctor's undisputed testimony was to the effect that if Misoura had submitted to medical treatment he would not have died, and that his death "was caused by infection with resultant degenerative changes to tissues within his skull, the infection being incident to laceration of the skull and fracture"; and that "the infection was not sufficient in itself to bring about death"; that the "fractured skull was the contributory cause and the infection the real cause of death." It is in dispute whether or not the officers had secured a search warrant before going on Misoura's premises. The officers claimed that they had such a search warrant, but this was denied. Their general instructions are to obtain such warrant before making a search. Squire McGonigle, before the trial, stated that he had given a search warrant to the applicants before they went to Misoura's house, but on the trial testified that he had not given them such warrant until after they had returned. At all events Misoura tactily waived the search in permitting the officers to enter and examine the premises. The trial Judge, immediately after passing sentence, stated in open Court that if his recommendation had any weight with the Superintendent of State Police or other proper authorities, he would recommend that the applicants be reinstated to the State Police force upon completion of their respective sentences.

In December, 1925, the Grand Jury ignored the bill of indictment prepared by the District Attorney. In March, 1926, for the second time in seventeen years, by permission of the Court, this same bill of indictment was presented to a subsequent Grand Jury. It was on the latter bill that the applicants were convicted and sentenced.

The Coroner's Jury found that Misoura came to his death from "an infected wound inflicted by police officers while the deceased was resisting arrest. His death being due to this wound becoming infected and negligence on the part of the deceased in failing to get hospital and surgical attention as advised by his physician. We find that the officers used only reasonable force in making this arrest."

Neither of the applicants were ever before charged with or convicted of crime. They have now served one month of their respective terms of imprisonment.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicants; in consideration of the fact that the Jury which convicted recommended them to the "extreme mercy of the Court"; because of the verdict of the Coroner's Jury setting forth that the wound was inflicted on the deceased while resisting arrest, and that only reasonable force was used by the officers in making this arrest; because the Grand Jury found that the death of the deceased was due to his own neglect in refusing to comply with the advice of a physician and go to a hospital for surgical treatment; in further view of the extraordinary course of the prosecuting attorney in submitting the bill of indictment to a subsequent Grand Jury after it had been ignored by a former Grand Jury; and because of the statement of the trial Judge in open Court that he would recommend the reinstatement of the applicants on the State Police force after the completion of their respective terms of imprisonment, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released they will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session," recommend that pardons be now granted to the said Fred Lytle, Walter J. Lyster and H. R. Jacobson, respectively.

Sir: At No. 2, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams, Andy Reese pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with feloniously breaking and entering with intent to steal, and on November 15, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than 3 years nor more than 6 years.

The applicant was 21 years of age when the alleged offense was committed. He is a native-born citizen of the United States and resided in Hamiltonban Township, Adams County, where he was engaged as a laborer. He is unmarried and resided with his parents.

On November 10, 1924, the Constable of the Borough of Gettysburg made information against the applicant charging him with "having broken into with intent to steal the dwelling house of Margie Smith, of Hamiltonban Township, of said county." The date when the alleged offense was committed was not given. The applicant being without the benefit of counsel entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Sometime in the Fall of 1924, the applicant, and one Richardson, both residents of the same township, became drunk, and in this condition went to the house of Margaret Smith, a cousin of the applicant, with whose son the latter was a close friend. When they reached the dwelling they found the door closed and no one at home. The applicant, who had been repeatedly entertained there and was on intimate terms with the family, together with Richardson, forcibly entered the dwelling, after which they ate raw eggs belonging to the owner, and laid down and slept. No property of the owner was taken by either of these men (excepting the eggs).

The applicant has now served one year and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime, except on one occasion when the charge was nol prossed for lack of evidence. He has an excellent prison record and the prison authorities recommend clemency. His aged mother is a confirmed invalid and requires the companionship of her son.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that favorable action on this case will be "entirely satisfactory" to him in view of the circumstances of the case, the good behavior of the applicant and the favorable attitude of the community toward a release. The trial District Attorney has filed a letter in which he states that he has no objection to the granting of a pardon. The Sheriff of the County recommends pardon. Margaret J. Smith, the owner of the dwelling which was forcibly entered, filed with the Board an affidavit in which she states that the applicant was on intimate terms with her adopted son and had the entree to her home during the day and night, and that under the circumstances she does not consider that she was injured by the applicant and that he was welcome to enter the home at all times.

Mr. M. W. Willis, of Greenstone, Adams County, Pa., a reputable citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant; his intoxicated condition when the alleged crime was committed; his prior good record; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendation of the Sheriff of the County, prison authorities and the petition of citizens, the affidavit of the person whose dwelling was entered; the recommendation of the trial Judge and the favorable attitude of the trial District Attorney; and because a substantial citizen of Adams County has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Andy Reese.

Sir: At Nos. 74 and 75, December Sessions, 1919, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Berks, Charles Pearson was convicted on two indictments charging him with assault and battery, assault and battery with intent to commit sodomy, solicitation to commit sodomy, and sodomy, and on November 20, 1920, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $50.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is 33 years of age, a native-born American citizen, a World War Veteran and at the time of his arrest for the present offenses was engaged in the sand business with his two brothers. He is unmarried and resided in Cumru Township, Berks County, near the City of Reading. His sole surviving parent, a mother, dependent upon him for support, is 75 years of age.

In No. 74 the crime is alleged to have been committed on Blanche Edwards, a girl 13 years old, on May 5, 1919, between the hours of 4:15 and 5:00 P. M. In No. 75 the applicant was charged with solicitation to commit sodomy upon Mildred Myers, a girl about 12 years old, on August 2, 1919. To both charges the applicant set up an alibi and claimed that he was the victim of mistaken identity. Both cases were tried together by the same Jury. The applicant's attorney did not permit him to take the stand in his own defense, nor any character witnesses called in his behalf, although many were available, all which undoubtedly had a bad effect on the Jury.

The applicant has now served five years and ten months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of any crime, nor has he ever been charged with the offense in question, except in these two cases.

The Warden of the Berks County prison certifies to his excellent prison record.

The present and trial District Attorneys in letters filed with the Board both recommend clemency. The President of the Board of Inspectors of the Berks County Prison, the Sheriff of the County and the City Detective ask pardon. A petition of citizens to the same effect was filed.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; the faulty presentation of his case to the Jury; the excessive sentence imposed by the Court; the fact that two distinct offenses were tried together with cumulative effect upon the minds of the Jury tending to make the applicant appear as addicted to this vice; the further fact that his aged and infirm mother requires the support and companionship of her son; and because of the recommendations of the present and trial District Attorneys, Sheriff, City Detective and others, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles Pearson.

Sir: At No. 38, December Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Bradford, Tony Tott was convicted of assault and battery with intent to commit rape, and on February 11, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than three years.

The applicant is an Italian and resided with his wife and two small children in Ulster, Bradford County. He was about thirty-seven years of age.

In the Fall of 1924, he was employed during the day in the Lehigh Valley Company's Shops, at Sayre, and when not at work in the shops acted as a barber and conducted a restaurant and pool room. Carl Dougherty and Lena, his wife, were near neighbors. Lena Dougherty alleged that on the night of July 12, 1924, between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock, while she was sleeping in her room, the applicant entered, awakened her and assaulted her with intent to commit rape, but she being a robust woman and he being rather frail forcibly ejected him from the room. Her testimony was uncorroborated. The applicant claimed that on the night in question he, the brother and husband of Lena were in his pool room together drinking, and having con umed all the liquor was told by the brother to go to ougherty's home that Lena would get an additional quanti- for him. That he accordingly went to the Dougherty ouse, observed a light in the window, rapped on the door, hich immediately flew open; that he stepped inside the itchen and called several times; and that Lena Dougherty, hen she learned the nature of his errand, told him that he ad enough that he better get out; and that he did not see r touch her in any manner whatsoever. Shortly thereafter demand was made upon the applicant for payment of the m of $500.00, which fact is admitted by the Doughertys. ailing to extort any money from the applicant, the hus- and swore out the warrant upon which the indictment was ound.

The applicant has now served one year and seven months f his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged ith or convicted of crime.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a tter which evinces a favorable attitude towards the pres- nt application and intimates that the sentence imposd was o severe. The applicant was intoxicated when the alleged ime was committed. His wife and two small children re- uire his support. There is doubt as to whether he actually ade the attempt which is made the basis of this prosecu- on. It is admitted that the Doughertys demanded money om him that the case might be settled.

In consideration of all the facts in this case; the doubt s to the guilt of the applicant; his prior good record; the rm of imprisonment already served; and in further con- deration of the fact that his family requires his support, nd the trial District Attorney is favorable to the applica- on, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently pun- hed, and that if now released he will prove himself a use- l and law-abiding citizen. The Board has had a special vestigation made of the facts by Lieutenant George W. reeman, of the State Police, who recommends that the par- on issue.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice nd in open session", recommend that a pardon be now ranted to the said Tony Tott.

Sir: At Nos. 1½ and 2, October Term, 1924, in the Court c Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, ngelo Ascani pleaded guilty to two indictments charging hn with attempt at extortion by written communication, ed on October 18, 1924, was sentenced by the Court in the gregate to pay a fine of $200.00, costs and to undergo i prisonment in the Lackawanna County Prison for a term o eighteen months. Pursuant to this sentence he served fom October 6, 1924, to May 29, 1925, when he was paroled t the Court.

The applicant is a native of Italy, but has been in America nce 1921. At the time of his arrest on the present charge was twenty years of age and employed as a laborer by t Dolph Coal Company, at Jessup, Lackawanna County, here he resided. He is unmarried.

On or about April 30, 1924, the applicant made a demand b means of a letter upon one John Favini, a resident of said Jrough of Jessup, for a sum of money to be placed under astone in a nearby field near a certain drain pipe, and that subsequently on May 9, 1924, he made a similar demand by letter. In response to the second letter he went to the ap- pointed place and was there arrested. When placed under arrest he offered no resistance, nor did he assign any reason for his act other than he was anxious to purchase an automobile. Upon being searched by the officer no deadly weapons of any kind were found upon his person.

The applicant served about seven months of his term of imprisonment, when after full hearing he was paroled by the Court. He is industrious and sober and his subsequently record has been good. Had he served his full term of imprisonment he would have been discharged in April, 1926. Deportation proceedings are pending against the applicant who desires to remain in this country, and can only do so if he receives a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; his prior good record and his excellent record since his discharge on parole in May, 1925; in further consideration of the fact that the pending deportation proceedings will end provided he is granted a pardon; and in view of the fact that he desires to remain in this country and gives promise of becoming a good citizen, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 84, March Sessions, 1926, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Dauphin, Russell Potter pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with fornication, and on March 19, 1926, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00, costs or give bail to pay the same within ten days, and that he be in custody until his sentence be complied with. This sentence was completed and the applicant discharged from the Dauphin County Jail on March 29, 1926.

This crime was committed while the applicant was on parole from Rockview Prison. At No. 2, December Term, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for Franklin County, he was convicted of voluntary manslaughter following the death of his wife, who, while handling a revolver in their home in Waynesboro, Franklin County, was accidently shot and died shortly thereafter. On March 25, 1919, the applicant was sentenced for the latter crime to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to serve not less than six years nor more than eight years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. He was transferred from the Eastern State Penitentiary to Rockview Prison on February 26, 1923, and paroled from Rockview on March 25, 1925.

The applicant is 26 years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a machinist by occupation, but at the time of his arrest for the crime of fornication he was living in the City of Harrisburg, and was employed at the New Way Cafe, 1024 Market Street. He is a widower.

After his parole from Rockview Prison, being unable to secure work as a machinist, while in Harrisburg he secured work at the New Way Cafe, and while there employed, in February, 1926, committed the crime of fornication with one Louise Bond. When he was released from the Dauphin County Prison he was returned to the Western State Penitentiary for violating his parole.

T. H. King, General Manager of the Wayne Tool Manufacturing Company, Waynesboro, Pa., and James E. Rhine,

Manager of the New Way Cafe, both former employers of the applicant, have offered to re-employ him if he is released from prison. If pardoned on the charge of fornication he will become eligible for reparole by the penitentiary authorities and discharged from prison.

Mr. T. H. King, of Wayne Tool Mfg., Co., Waynesboro, Pa., a substantial citizen, has offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the six years' term of imprisonment he served on the charge of voluntary manslaughter, and the six months additional term of imprisonment served for violation of parole; in consideration of the further fact that two of his former employers have offered to reemploy him if discharged; and because of the fact that a reputable and substantial citizen has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Russell Potter.

Sir: At Nos. 8 and 8¼, November Sessions, 1924, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, William C. Kleinschrodt pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with embezzlement, and on September 19, 1924, was sentenced by the Court to pay in the aggregate a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than four years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is forty-one years of age and a native-born American citizen. At the time of his conviction he was a bank teller in the Miners Bank of Wilkes-Barre. He has a wife and two sons aged 15 and 5 years, respectively.

The applicant, in August 1920, entered the employ of the Miners Bank, of Wilkes-Barre, as bookkeeper and later was promoted to the position of receiving teller. He was continuously employed by the said bank until his arrest on September 4, 1924. On that date an auditing company made a general examination of the books of the bank and discovered a shortage in the accounts of the bank, and the applicant confessed his guilt.

The applicant has now served two years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The Directors of the Bank, by formal resolution passed at a regular meeting, expressed their willingness that the pardon should be granted. The trial Judge concurred in their desire. Judge Watson has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon. The Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Lackawanna, the Sheriff of the County, and T. J. Helriegal and John R. Edwards, both prominent attorneys, have filed letters recommending clemency, and there are other letters from business men on file to the same effect.

The applicant's wife is in poor health and unable to work, and she and their sons require his support. Employment has been offered him if he is released. The Secretary of Banking informed a member of this Board orally that he would not oppose clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case: the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the desire of the Directors of the Bank, which employed the applicant, together with requests of the trial Judge and Judge Watson; because of the recommendations of Sheriff Davis and other prominent citizens; in consideration of the fact that the applicant's family is in destitute circumstances and require his support; and because employment has been offered him in case he is discharged, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 548, 549, 550 and 551, December Sessions, of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Joseph M. Conway was convicted of assault and robbery, entering to commit felony, conspiracy, and carrying concealed deadly weapons (two counts), and on February 2, 1924, was sentenced by the Court on Nos. 548 and 550, to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is 23 years of age and a native-born citizen of the United States. He had been a chauffeur attached to the Philadelphia Post Office. At the time of his arrest he was employed as an assistant in the office of the Industrial Finance Service, 1505 Arch Street, Philadelphia. He also attended Palms Business College. He is unmarried and resided with his parents in the City of Philadelphia.

Between 8:15 and 9:00 A. M. on December 14, 1923 James A. Monks, Paymaster of the Michael Melody Son Company, Building Contractors, 1322 Race Street, Philadelphia, was held up and robbed by two men who had entered their establishment. One of the men was positively identified as Thomas Wallace. He was unmasked. The other wore a mask and the only means of identification were his stature, weight, voice and a scar on his right hand. While the applicant has a small scar of long standing on the back of his right hand it is almost imperceptible to the naked eye. At the trial Paymaster Monks testified that during the robbery the man who was masked spoke nine times, each time in a different tone of voice. He admitted he had seen the applicant but once before, and that the only means of identification were his height, weight, voice and the scar, these factors being so circumstantial in character as to make his identification rest almost wholly on the scar in question. A letter from Father Turner, Roman Catholic Priest, was filed with the Board in which he stated on his honor as a Priest, that while he is gifted with extraordinary eyesight he could discern the scar on the applicant's right hand only when the hand was held close to his eyes. The applicant claims that on the morning of the commission of the crime he was in bed at his home about four miles from the scene of the robbery. This was verified by his parents and younger brother. He did not leave his residence until the afternoon of the day in question. A Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman testified at the trial that he talked with the applicant over the telephone, at his home about 8:50 A. M. on the morning of December 14, and a neighbor who was ill at the time of the trial, alleges in an affidavit filed that she saw the applicant telephoning about the time indicated. The applicant was arrested two days after the robbery. Wallace had previously been arrested. The fact that the applicant's name was mentioned as one of the companions of Wallace, and the additional fact that the applicant at the time of the robbery was keeping company with Mary Tracy, an employee of Melody Sons Company, directed suspicion to him, although he claims that he had not seen Wallace for months.

Eleven of the jurors who convicted the applicant have filed a petition for clemency. In addition thereto six of the jurors have filed affidavits, and one has filed a letter. Three affidavits and two letters from individuals, and a strong letter of recommendation from former Postmaster Thornton, and a petition signed by fifty-four employes of the United States Post Office at Philadelphia, have been filed asking clemency.

These cases were tried on New Year's Eve. Shortly before midnight a Court attache named Hart came to the jury room and informed the Jury that he had a message from the Judge, that if the Jurors did not reach a verdict quickly he would adjourn Court and the Jury be locked up over the New Year. Feeling confident that a new trial would be granted the applicant, and desiring to return to their homes over New Year's Day, the Jury returned a verdict of "guilty" as to both defendants, although this was contrary to the evidence and contrary to their desires. Their deliberations were curtailed by the fear of further confinement.

There was filed with the Board an affidavit made by the applicant and his co-defendant Wallace, to the effect that on or about January 15, 1924, while they were confined in prison, they were taken to the trial Judge's private office and Judge McDevitt said to Conway, "I am not a damn bit sorry for you. What did you do with the money? And if you do not tell me I will not give you a new trial, but give you and Wallace twenty to forty years to think it over. Conway answered:—'So help me God I know nothing about the affair'. Wallace likewise denied any knowledge whatsoever of the robbery."

Matthew J. Sullivan, one of the Jurors, has filed with the Board an affidavit in which he states inter alia, that he sat on the front row of the jury box and has excellent eyesight; that he could not see the scar on the applicant's hand; that when the Jury retired he and other members of the jury believed that the applicant was innocent and were considering a verdict of "not guilty", but were deterred from so finding by the charge of the Court in which they were instructed that one of the counts was conspiracy, and as the cases could not be separated the same verdict would apply to both defendants. After the Jury had retired, a few minutes before midnight, a Court Officer, Hart, came to the door of the jury room and announced that he had a message from the Judge, and that if the Jurors did not reach a conclusion in a very short time he intended to adjourn Court, and that the Jury would be locked up over the New Year. The Jurors were then transferred to the lock-up room. One of the number advised that the Jury render a verdict of guilty for both and assured them that an appeal for a new trial would be taken, and that the trial would take place under more favorable conditions, and not on the eve of a holiday and with a tired-out Jury. He adds: "I am sure this hasty and unjust decision would not have been given were it not for the interference of the Court officer and the threat of being locked up over the holiday." James Flancey, the foreman of the Jury, takes oath that he was sent for by the trial Judge and instructed not to sign the Jurors' petition for clemency, but nevertheless did sign. The twelfth Juror, Joseph Schneg, refused to sign the Jurors' application for clemency because of the trial Judge. He says in his affidavit that the Judge exacted a promise from him not to sign. Haines, another juryman, makes affidavit that while he sat in the front row of the jury box the scar on the applicant's hand was not visible to him. James Gallagher, another juryman, filed an affidavit with the Board in which he corroborates Sullivan as to the message from the Court on New Year's Eve, and states that the evidence was not sufficiently considered, and that he, contrary to his best judgment, and because of the approach of a holiday, was induced to vote for a conviction; that the verdict was one of impulse and that he believes that it was a miscarriage of justice.

The applicant has now served two years and seven months of his term of imprisonment.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; because of the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; because the conviction was brought about by coercion and intimidation on the part of the trial Judge and a subordinate officer of the Court and without proper deliberation; in consideration of the affidavits and petition of the eleven jurymen and the voluntary appearance of Roland S. Morris, former Embassador to Japan, at the former hearing, in which he declared that from personal investigation he believes the applicant innocent and that his conviction was brought about by intimidation and coercion on the part of the trial Judge and a subordinate officer of the Court, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Joseph M. Conway.

Sir: At No. 40, September Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Theodore Sedora was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on January 31, 1922, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 29 years of age, a native of Russia and came to the United States in 1913. He is a laborer and miner by occupation, and the time of his arrest was employed by the Hudson Coal Company, at Carbondale, Pa. He is unmarried.

The applicant, Max Klem, Daniel Bolinsky and Andrew Dolo were jointly indicated on the charge having murdered one Alexander Sahosky on September 5, 1921. On said day, a holiday, (being Labor Day), the applicant and his roommate Klem went to visit Andrew Dolo, a friend, who boarded in the home of one Merkewicz. Upon arriving there they sat upon the porch and were joined from time to time by other friends and acquaintances, among them being the deceased, Sahosky. The applicant had seen the latter and knew his name, but had never become acquainted with him and bore no emnity whatsoever . During the course of this visit moonshine liquor was produced and consumed by the party. All became more or less intoxicated. Among the drinkers was one John Johnson. A quarrel ensued between Klem and Johnson and bitterness was engendered that spread to others in the company. Shortly before the crowd dispursed Klem and Johnson renewed their quarrel. All withdraw to a field in the rear of the house where the two were to fight. Sahosky interfered in behalf of Johnson and engaged Klem who was thus compelled to fight both men. The applicant attempted to aid Klem (his roommate) and attached Johnson with whom Klem was fighting, when the latter struck Sahosky with a rock, knocking him to the ground and inflicting a fatal wound. When Sahosky fell all hostilities ended and the applicant, together with several others, went to a saloon where they continued drinking and where they remained until they were arrested. The aplicant maintains that he did not personally engage in a fight with Sahosky, that he did not strike him with his fist or with any weapon, and had no knowledge of Klem's intention to strike Sahosky and did not know that he had been killed or even seriously injured until he was so informed by the arresting officers.

The applicant has now served 4 years and eight months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He had no direct connection with the death of Sahosky. The trial Judge evidently believed that his guilt was of lesser degree inasmuch as he sentenced Klem to serve a longer term in the penitentiary. His mother and father, who are of advanced years, are in a destitute condition in Russia and dependent upon him for support, which he contributed before his imprisonment and since his incarceration he has continued to send them money which he has earned in prison.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that in his judgment the ends of justice have been met in this case and hopes that the application for pardon may be favorably acted upon. There was filed with the Board a letter from the Vice President of the Hudson Coal Company, his former employer, in which the applicant is informed that they will be glad to consider his application for employment whenever he is ready to place the same.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served: the need which his aged and infirm parents have of support; the fact that his former employer indicates that they will be glad to receive an application from him for reemployment. and the trial Judge recommends clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 2, May Sessions, 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Tioga, John Tenbroeck was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on November 18, 1918, was sentenced to pay costs, and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than ten years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age, a native-born American citizen, unmarried, a printer by occupation, and at the time of his arrest resided in Elmira, New York.

The applicant is charged with having shot and killed his father in the home of the latter, in Tioga County, on March 14, 1918. The deceased resided with his wife and daughter. The applicant worked in Elmira and returned home occasionally. On the night before the shooting, while the applicant was visiting his parents, heavy rains had fallen produceing high water in the vicinity of the home. During the forenoon of the day above mentioned, the applicant, with his father, traveled around in that vicinity watching the high waters. Shortly after the noon meal all the members of the family, excepting the applicant, went to Lawrenceville, about three miles distant, for the purpose of viewing the high water at that point. When the party had proceeded about one-eighth of a mile, the father stopped and returned to the home. The applicant did not leave the house during the afternoon. About five o'clock that day the applicant rushed into the station of the Erie Railroad Company, which was about one-third of a mile distant from the Tenbroeck house, and stated to the operator that his father had been shot by negroes. He further declared that when the family left the house he went upstairs and laid down. Later on he heard a noise, and subsequently a shot fired. He immediately went downstairs and found the body of his father lying on the kitchen floor, with four or five negroes standing about. He at once rushed upstairs, jumped out of a second story window and came to the station to give the alarm. At the trial the Commonwealth developed the theory that the applicant and his father were on bad terms; and that after the later returned to the house the applicant shot him, disarranged the house, as it was found, jumped out of the window and went to the station for the purpose of casting suspicion on others. The applicant contended that his relations with his father were of a kindly nature, and that there was no motive for the commission of the crime. Testimony was produced in his behalf that negroes were seen in that vicinity the day of the killing and the day previous there to the jury which convicted him of the murder in the second dergree deliberated sixty-six hours bfore reaching a verdict.

The applicant has now served seven years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime and his prison record is excellent. A large petition of citizens, of Tioga County and a number of letters have been filed recommending clemency. Among the recommenders are Sheriff Husted and George W. Williams, Members of the Assembly. Sergeant George W. Freeman, of the State Police, who was detailed to make a special investigation into the circumstances of this case, filed a report with the Board in which he expresses doubt as to the applicant's guilt and recommends pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his good prison record; because of the recommendations of Assemblyman Williams and Sheriff Husted, and other citizens of Tioga County; and because of the recommendation of Sergeant Freeman, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5, December Term, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Butler, Porter W. Lowry pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with larceny, larceny by bailee, embezzlement, fraudulent conversion, and forgery, and on September 1, 1921, was sentenced in the aggregate on Nos. 2 and 5 to pay a fine of $200.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than three years; and on Nos. 3 and 4 was sentenced on the same day to serve in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than six years on both indictments, the two latter sentences to run concurrently.

The applicant is seventy-one years, a native-born American citizen, a lawyer by profession, and from birth has residence has been in Butler, Pa., where he resided with his wife, one son and two daughters.

The applicant, in his later years, began speculating in stocks and lost. In order to recoup his loss, money, which was sent him for investment by Mrs. Hyde, residing in New York State, was lost on the stock market. He forged fictitious names to mortgages supposed to represent investments of money sent him from time to time by Mrs. Hyde. He used securities which had been left in his charge for safekeeping by Mrs. Thompson, as collateral on notes with which he borrowed money from different banks in Butler, and with the proceeds attempted to retrieve his losses. When all was lost he attempted to recover by securing money from banks on forged paper. When the final crash came he wrote Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Thompson of the wrong he had done them, and told them to prosecute him, as he well deserved the punishment. In Court he pleaded guilty to all the charges.

The applicant has now served five years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. The Trustees and Warden of the Western State Penitentiary recommend pardon.

The President Judge of the District and the District Attorney, in letters filed with the Board, both recommend clemency because of the applicant's age, his prior good record, excellent prison record and because he has been sufficiently punished. Judge Buffington of the United States Court, at Pittsburgh, telegraphed the Board asking for clemency on the ground that the administration of justice and the just punishment for the offense would not be interfered with by a pardon at this time. A large number of letters from prominent attorneys of Butler County, and elsewhere, from business men and bankers have been filed asking pardon. The County Officers and Senator Painter make a similar recommendation. Among other recommenders are the Superintendent of the City Schools, the Mayor and the Chief of Police of the City, and also the private counsel of the chief suffer. The applicant desires the opportunity to make reparation. If pardoned on the sentence imposed in Nos. 2 and 5 he will be eligible for parole on Nos. 3 and 44, December Term, 1921.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; because of his advanced age; and because of the recommendations of the President Judge, Distric Attorney, United States District Judge, Senator Painter, County Officers, the Trustees and Warden of the Penitentiary and many prominent attorneys, bankers and business men, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Porter W. Lowry.

Sir: At No. 1, January Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Adams, Sheldon Richardson pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with feloniously breaking and entering with intent to steal, and on November 15, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant was eighteen years of age when the alleged offense was committed. He is a native-born citizen of the United States, and resided in Hamiltonban Township, Adams County, where he was engaged as a laborer. He is unmarried and resided with his parents.

On November 10, 1924, the Constable of the Borough of Gettysburg, made information against the applicant charging him with "having broken into with intent to steal the dwelling house of Margie Smith, of Hamiltonban Township, of said County". The information omits the date of the alleged offense. The applicant, being without the benefit of counsel, entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Sometime in the Fall of 1924, the applicant and one Andy Reese, both residents of said township, became drunk and while in this condition went to the house of Margaret Smith, a cousin of Reese's, with whose son the latter was a close friend. When they reached the dwelling they found the door closed and no one at home. The applicant who was on friendly terms with the family, together with Reese, who was a kinsman, forcibly entered the dwelling, after which they ate raw eggs belonging to the owner and laid down and slept. No property of the owner was taken by either of them, excepting the eggs, and no goods belonging to Margaret Smith were found in their possession.

The applicant has now served one year and eleven months of his term of imprisonment and has a good prison record. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime, except that in this same year he pleaded guilty to the charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, and the Court suspended sentence. He was also charged with a trivial offense prior to his arrest for the present crime, but the charge was nolle prossed from lack of evidence.

The Trial District Attorney and the Sheriff of the County both filed letters recommending clemency. A petition of citizens has been filed to the same effect.

Reese, the co-defendant of the applicant, was pardoned by this Board in September, 1926.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed and his intoxicated condition; his prior good record, with the exceptions noted; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendations of the Sheriff of the County, the trial District Attorney, and the petition of citizens; and because of the fact that his co-defendant, Reese, has already been pardoned, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 6, September Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Huntingdon, Orazio Insalaco pleaded guilty to an indictment for murder, and on September 26, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than twelve years, the Court having determined the degree of guilt to be murder in the second degree.

The applicant was twenty-four years of age when the crime was committed. He is an Italian by birth, but a naturalized citizen of the United States. His occupation is that of coal miner. At the time of his arrest he was employed at Robertsdale, Huntingdon County, where he resided with his parents. He is unmarried. The family has since moved to Pittston, Pa.

On the afternoon of March 6, 1922, the applicant was at the Company Store of the Rock Hill Iron & Coal Company (by which corporation he was employed). There were present on the porch of the store, together with the applicant, Joe Montaine, James Guy, Sam Insalaco, Raymond Hawley, and others. Hawley engaged in a wrestling contest with James Guy in which Guy was thrown to the ground. The applicant said "lets go", and the Italian boys started in the direction of their own homes, and when some two hundred and twenty feet distant, were followed and overtaken by the Americans, who resided in the opposite direction. Guy, who is afflicted with St. Vitus Dance or similar trouble and stammers in his speech, said something to Hawley. Hawley went up to Guy and said, "what you call me"? and Guy said, "I didn't call you anything". The applicant said to Hawley "that boy doesn't want trouble, let us go", and further said to Hawley "you better go away". Sam Insalaco then spoke to Hawley, but not in an offensive manner. Then Harry Everhart, (who is more than six feet tall, struck Sam Insalaco, the brother of the applicant, and knocked him down. When the applicant remonstrated, Everhart took a rock and struck the applicant, holding the rock in his hand and knocked him down. When brought to jail, according to the testimony of the Sheriff, the applicant had a blood shot eye, which the latter avers resulted from the blow struck by Everhart when he protested against Everhart knocking his brother down. Everhart endeavored to strike him again, saying to him, "Focre knocked two teeth out of your mouth and I am going to knock the rest, and was again endeavoring to strike when the applicant shot and killed him. At the time of the tragedy the applicant was going with his friends to the woods to shoot mark, and had never carried a gun before, the gun being the property of his father.

The applicant has now served four years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His father is unable to work and the family, consisting of a father, mother and eleven children (one a helpless cripple) are all dependent on the applicant and a brother for support.

The trial District Attorney has filed a letter with the Board in which he reviews the circumstances of the case, stating among other things that Everhart was the aggressor in the case and makes no objection to a pardon. Rinaldo Cappelini, President, District No. 1 United Mine Workers of America, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he has made a thorough investigation into the circumstances of the killing, and that he believes that it was the outgrowth of a sudden quarrel precipitated by the deceased. He further states that the applicant in his judgment has been sufficiently punished, and declares that he will take a personal interest in the boy, if released, and will find lucrative employment for him and urges clemency.

The Mayor, of Pittston, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant's family is in dire need of assistance and support from the latter.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; his term of imprisonment already served; because of the need which the applicant's family has of support and assistance; because of the recommendation of the District President of the Mine Workers, and petitions of his fellow citizens; and because the trial District Attorney interposes no objections, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Orazio Insalaco.

Sir: At No. 1, March Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Butler, Mike Mazursky pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on March 25, 1922, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than eight years.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age and a Russian by birth. At the time of his arrest he was boss of a laboring gang at the Standard Steel Car Works, Butler, Pa., and lived at Highfields, Butler County, with his wife and two children, aged five and six years respectively.

On January 15, 1922, which was a holiday, namely the Russian New Year's Day, the applicant and a friend went to visit a mutual friend who was ill, who boarded with Tony Sebock's. The applicant had no acquaintance with Sebock and never had any dealings or trouble with him. When they arrived at Sebock's home they found their friend Sebock, his wife, two grown-up daughters and one or more visitors, one of whom was a woman. After spending some time there drinking quantities of liquor, which was furnished by the Sebocks, Sebock left the house to escort the woman visitor to her home. The applicant and his friend remained at the Sebock home with the family. Later, when Sebock returned, an altercation arose between him and Sebock, either because the applicant wanted to go home and Sebock did not want him to go, or because Sebock wanted the applicant to leave his house and the latter did not want to go, or over some other trivial matter. A clear account of the cause of the quarrel cannot be obtained for all present were or less under the influence of liquor. A scuffle between Sebock and the applicant took place and Sebock was shot in the right side of the head and died as the result thereof. The applicant was injured on the left arm, which he alleged was from a gun shot fired by Sebock. He, immediately after his arrest and at all times thereafter, insisted that Sebock had the revolver and shot first and that he, the applicant, wrested the gun from Sebock and shot Sebock in self-defense. The revolver was never found, and no weapon was found upon the applicant. After the shot the applicant returned to his home, made no effort to escape and shortly afterwards was arrested.

The applicant has now served four years and seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The Deputy Warden of the Penitentiary, in a letter filed, certifies to his good conduct and recommends clemency. He was twenty-three years of age when this crime was committed. His wife and two small children require support and assistance. The shooting was the result of a drunken brawl and no motive therefor is apparent.

The trial Judge and the trial District Attorney recommend clemency, and the present District Attorney is favorable thereto. The foreman of the Car Works, in which he was employed, the County Detective, the Sheriff of the County, and a petition of citizens filed recommend clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the lack of motive for the shooting, which appears to be the result of a drunken brawl; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the need which his family have of support and assistance; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; and the recommendations of the trial Judge and trial District Attorney and other prominent citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Mike Mazursky.

Sir: At No. , October Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Chester, Bertha Kimbell alias Reba Kimbell pleaded guilty to an indictment charging her with burglary, and on November 7, 1921, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is twenty-nine years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, colored and by occupation a domestic, and was employed as such at the time of her arrest. Her residence was in the City of Philadelphia.

In the month of October, 1921, the applicant entered the home of W. K. Thorpe, in West Chester, where she had previously been employed as a domestic, and took therefrom a small box containing a pair of glasses, a neckless and a diamond ring, all of which were subsequently recovered.

The applicant has now served four years and eleven months of her term of imprisonment.

A baby boy, now four years of age, was born to the applicant shortly after her commitment. The child was permitted to remain with the mother for a time, but was subsequently taken away and placed in a charitable institution in the City of Scranton, where the child now is. The applicant lacked home training and the love and advice of a mother, and is devoted to this child. After having served approximately five years for this offense she desires a pardon so that she can be with this child, which naturally requires a mother's care.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; and because of the need which this child has of a mother's love and care, we have concluded that she has been sufficiently punished and that if now released she will prove a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Bertha Kimbell alias Reba Kimbell.

Sir: At No. 2, November Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Perry, Wallace Rupley was convicted of assault with intent to main and to commit murder, and pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery, and on April 10, 1923, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is a native-born citizen of the United States. He was nineteen years of age at the time of his arrest. His occupation is that of a machinist's helper and he was so employed when the crime was committed.

On July 15, 1922, the applicant went to Baltimore, married a girl and returned to Marysville, Perry County, where they went to housekeeping with the applicant's mother. Four or five weeks after the marriage the applicant was advised by his family physician that he was suffering from a venereal disease. The wife's explanation was that she had probably contracted it in her own home by using the toilet conveniences attached thereto. Immediately thereafter the applicant's wife left home and returned to her mother's home in Marysville. The moral atmosphere of that house was bad and the applicant vainly endeavored to induce his wife to return to him. The girl insisted that the applicant should come to her mother's house and make it his home. He refused. Several days before the alleged attempted murder the applicant went to the house where his wife lived and besought her to leave. His wife's mother, who was present, inquired why he did not come there. The applicant frankly stated to both of them it was not a suitable place for his wife; that immoral acts were committed there; that strange men frequented it, and that as a result of disorderly practices, which there prevailed, he had become an innocent victim of a venereal disease, and that finally, under no circumstances, would he make a home for his wife and himself in such a place. On this occasion the applicant's mother-in-law attempted to shoot him. On October 20, 1922, the applicant's wife came to her husband's rooms for the purpose, she said, of removing some clothing belonging to her. Angry words were exchanged, after which the applicant assaulted his wife and cut her on the face with a razor. Subsequently, during his jealous rage, he seized a shot gun he kept in his home for hunting and shot her. She was not seriously injured and subsequently obtained a divorce.

The applicant was only nineteen years of age when this crime was committed. He has served three years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record, as attested by a letter from the Deputy Warden who recommends clemency. His widowed mother requires support from him.

The trial Judge has filed a letter with the Board in which he refers to the youth of the applicant and jealousy of his wife who gave him probable cause therefor. He further states that the applicant's mother is a widow and needs financial assistance, and finally recommends pardon. The District Attorney makes no recommendation, but states in a brief note that he understood that the wife's conduct was not what it should have been and that the applicant has probably received enough punishment under the circumstances.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; his term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the fact that his widowed mother requires assistance and support; and because of the recommendation of the trial Judge and the favorable attitude of the District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 272, 273, 274 and 275, June Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Dauphin, Alvin L. Baker pleaded guilty to indictments charging him with felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on September 21, 1921, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $5.00. costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than one year nor more than three years, the sentences to run concurrently.

The applicant is twenty-nine years of age, a native-born American citizen, white and unmarried. His occupation is that of machinist. At the time of his arrest and conviction upon the present charges he was a Private in the Third Cavalry, United States Army, then stationed at Fort Meyer, Va.

The applicant, on or about August 19, 1921, together with one Joseph J. Farley, broke and entered the cottage of one Edward J. Roodky, Inglenook, Dauphin County, with intent to rob; also the cottage of W. S. Stambaugh and Max Reider, taking therefrom goods and money. When arrested each had in his possession a loaded revolver.

The applicant, after having served his minimum term of one year, was paroled on September 12, 1922, to be on parole for a term of two years. After his release on parole he reported periodically until March, 1923, when he enlisted in the United States Army. In August, 1923, he was sentenced in California to one year's imprisonment for violation of standing orders, desertion and breaking arrest. After his release in May, 1924, he re-enlisted in the United States Army, and in August, 1924, was again sentenced in California for a term of three years and dishonorably discharged for escape, assault and larceny.

Under the provisions of the parole law the applicant, because he was convicted of a crime committed while on parole, will, upon completion of his term in California, be remanded to the Eastern State Penitentiary to complete his unexpired term of two years. The Parole Officer of the California Prison has certified to the excellent conduct of the applicant, and suggests that further punishment would not be effective, but that if released he might become a useful citizen. The warrant which has been lodged with the prison authorities in California cannot be withdrawn unless a pardon of the crime committed in Pennsylvania is granted to the applicant. Furthermore, the return of the prisoner to the Eastern State Penitentiary would entail considerable expense to the Commonwealth, which the Board of Trustees deem inadvisable to incur under the circumstances, and the Board has, therefore, made this application for pardon believing from the excellence of his conduct in California that he will probably make good if released.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; his excellent record prior to the commision of the offenses in Pennsylvania; the excellent record of the applicant in the California Prison and the recommendation of the prison authorities in that State; because his good conduct in California promises that, if released, he will become a useful citizen; and because the State will be relieved from further trouble and considerable expense in bringing him to Pennsylvania we believe that a pardon should be granted. We conclude that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 1, June Term 1918, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Indiana, Tony Curato together with Peter Curato (his brother), James Pizzarelli and John Pagnato, were convicted of robbery, and at No. 4, March Term, 1918, in the same Court the said Tony Curato was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on June 24, 1918, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $1,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twenty-eight years nor more than thirty years.

The applicant was between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age when these crimes were committed. He is a native and citizen of Italy. His occupation was that of pool room clerk, and his place of residence was in Johnstown. He is unmarried, but has dependent on him for support his aged mother now over seventy years of age, residing in Italy.

Four Italians, Peter Curato (the applicant's brother), John Pagnato, James Pizzarelli and the applicant were convicted of taking from the persons of three men, two of whom were professional gamblers, sums of money approximating $1500.00, which it was claimed were won in gambling by the use of marked cards. On April 28, 1918, about 9:30 or 10:00 P. M., the men who were robbed were quietly proceeding along the street in Homer City, Indiana County, when suddenly in a dark place they were held up by three men with revolvers and robbed. The latter subsequently escaped in an automobile. The four men above mentioned were identified as the robbers and convicted of the crime, receiving the same sentences, but Pagnato, Pizzarelli and Peter Curato have long since been pardoned by this Board. After the robbery word was sent to the State Police Headquarters at Indiana, Pa., whereupon three State Policemen, one being Andrew Czap, went to Homer City and from there to Tide, a small mining town about three miles distant, where they suspected the robbers had gone. While the State Police were in the rear of house No. 24, Czap and Kelly, another State Policeman, heard a noise in the rear outbuildings and proceeded in that direction. It was a dark night, and as Czap proceeded he suddenly turned on a flashlight, and with it in one hand and a revolver in the other hand yelled, "hands up", whereupon some firing began by persons at the outhouses and Czap was so badly wounded that he died on his way to the hospital. All the men at the outhouses escaped. The Commonwealth contended that the applicant, Tony Bufano and a third man, whose name was never disclosed, had engaged in the shooting of Czap. While the applicant was convicted of murder in the second degree, Bufano, who was indicted with him, but tried separately, was acquitted and the third person was never apprehended.

The applicant has now served eight years and four months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

This pardon is asked for on express condition that the applicant, if released, be immediately deported from the United States to Italy and stay there the remainder of his life. A warrant of arrest for his deportation was issued by the Department of Labor, at Washington, on May 7, 1926, and on June 15, 1926, a warrant for the deportation of the applicant was issued by the Secretary of Labor, and the Italian Consul, resident in Pittsburgh, has agreed to issue a passport to the applicant for his entry into Italy in case he is pardoned.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency, but only on express condition that the applicant is actually deported under the supervision of the Board or its representatives. The trial District Attorney, in a letter filed, is also satisfied to have clemency extended on the same condition. The private counsel for the Commonwealth also joins in the recommendation for clemency, provided the applicant be actually deported to his native land.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crimes were committed; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the recommendations of the trial Judge, trial District Attorney and private counsel for the Commonwealth in the prosecution of these cases; because his accomplices have all been pardoned or are at liberty; because of the need which his aged mother has in Italy for his support; and in consideration of the fact that all the necessary legal steps have been taken for the deportation of the applicant to Italy, we have concluded that clemency should be extended, but only on the express condition that deportation shall be made under the supervision of this Board or its representative.

Sir: At No. 151 December Sessions, 1911, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Berks, Joe Winsey alias James L. Kane alias Joseph L. Cary pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on June 11, 1919, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Easter State Penitentiary for a period of fifteen years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age and a native-born American citizen. His occupation at the time of his arrest was that of errand boy for the Reading Times. His parents are dead and he is unmarried.

In November, 1911, John Lutz alias J. L. Brown; Chester Lewzewski alias James Davis; William Schmitz alias Charles C. Williams and the applicant were working in the City of Reading, Pa., where they resided. The ages of the four boys were seventeen and eighteen years. They were induced to leave their employment by two older and maturer men. These men planned and directed robberies. On November 1, 1911, Joel Hainley's hotel in the Borough of Sinking Spring, Berks County, became the scene of the first crime. Led by the older men, all entered the barroom of the hotel, held up the proprietor, and took the money contents of the cash register and some whiskey. A day later the same persons entered the barroom of the hotel of Henry Fritz, Cumru Township, Berks County, and took a watch and the contents of the cash register. Both crimes were planned by the older men who instructed the boys in the parts they were to play. The men took the stolen articles and later made distribution to the boys as they saw fit. After these robberies the four boys left the men and went to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They returned to Reading on the morning of November 10, 1911, and entered the bakery of Gordon Kaufman, Fifth and Laurel Streets. They were not masked or in any way disguised. One of them asked for apple pies. Mrs. Kaufman gave a pie to Lutz, Lewzewski and the applicant. The boys then started down the street without paying for the pies. Mrs. Kaufman called her husband, who was in the basement immediately beneath the shop. When the boys came out on the pavement Kaufman met them and seized Lutz and Lewzeski. The latter tore away and Kaufman then grabbed the applicant. The latter pulled a revolver from his pocket and in the struggle it was discharged, the ball passing over Lutz's head and striking Kaufman, who was a large and powerful man, with fatal results. The four boys then fled and finally landed in Petersburg, Virginia, where they held up and robbed a man and were arrested fifteen days after the commission of the first crime at Sinking Spring. They pleaded guilty to robbery, and on November 17, 1911, were each sentenced to twelve years in the Virginia State Penitentiary. The two older men who planned the two robberies in Berks County were indicted for these and other robberies. The prison records disclose the fact that both men were released after serving approximately fifteen months in the County Prison. On March 5, 1919, because of good behavior, the four boys were pardoned by the Governor of Virginia. They were arrested at the gates of the penitentiary and brought back to Reading to stand trial. When the cases were called for trial their attorney and the District Attorney went before the Court, and, pursuant to an agreement previously made, pleas of guilty to the indictment for robbery were entered against each of the four boys. Pleas of not guilty to the indictment for murder were entered by the same defendants, while the applicant pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. Their attorney made a plea for leniency, after which sentence was imposed by Judge Endlich, who, at the conclusion of the plea, remarked that he did not feel that it was the Court's function to extend leniency, but the function of the Pardon Board.

The applicant has now served seven years and four months of his term of imprisonment. His prison record has been excellent. His three accomplices, Lutz, Lewzewski and Schmitz, were pardoned by this Board in September, 1925.

The President Judge, who helped prosecute the applicant and was later counsel upon his application for pardon, has filed a letter with the Board in which he recommends pardon. The present District Attorney, who was an assistant when the applicant was convicted, has filed a letter dated September 22, 1925, in which he suggests that the applicant should in the interests of justice, serve a year or two longer than his accomplices who were pardoned one year ago. Vincent A. Carroll, an Assistant District Attorney, of Philadelphia, has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends clemency and agrees to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant, while Thomas J. Minnick, Jr., a reputable member of the Philadelphia Bar has agreed to furnish employment in his office to the applicant when he is released, provided that Mr. Carroll acts as sponsor for his future good behavior.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; because of the fact that his three accomplices were pardoned by this Board more than one year ago; because of the recommendation of the President Judge and the favorable attitude of the present District Attorney; because of the offer of Assistant District Attorney Carroll, of Philadelphia, to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant; and because employment in the office of a reputable attorney in Philadelphia has been offered him, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 68, September Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Luzerne, Michael Joba pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with burglary, and at No. 71, of the same Sessions, he was convicted of a similar crime. On September 20, 1922, he was sentenced by the Court in the aggregate to pay a fine of $2,000, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nineteen years and ten months nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is twenty-two years of age, a native of Poland, but now a citizen of the United States. By occupation he is a miner, but at the time of his arrest was employed at the Sheldon Axle Works, in Wilkes-Barre, in which City he resided with his mother. He is unmarried.

In the early part of the year 1922, the applicant, being a boy eighteen years old, fell into bad company and came under the malign influence of one Frank Bednarsky (who has since been convicted of murder in the second degree), and in company with the said Bednarsky during the night of February 22, 1922, broke into the residence of F. A. Parkhurst, in the City of Wilkes-Barre (the owner being absent at the time), and took therefrom certain personal property. On the evening of May 26, 1922, during the temporary absence of the family, these men entered the home of Charles Miller in the same city and took therefrom certain personal property.

The applicant has now served four years and one month of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent as certified by the prison authorities.

The trial Judge and the present District Attorney, in letters filed, recommend clemency. The Assistant District Attorney who prosecuted the applicant, in a letter filed with the Board, while not recommending pardon, states that the applicant was led astray by evil associates and that he believes he will become a useful member of society if released. The Mayor and Chief of Police, of Wilkes-Barre, have also filed letters recommending clemency.

Robert Roberts, Esq., Probation Officer, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a reputable citizen, has agreed to become sponsor for the applicant's future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when these crimes were committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendations of the trial Judge and District Attorney, and the favorable attitude of the trial District Attorney; because of the recommendations of the Chief of Police and Mayor, of Wilkes-Barre, and the additional fact that a substantial citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Michael Joba.

Sir: At No. 70, September Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Luzerne, Victor Monacelli was convicted of kidnapping and enticing, and on December 1, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than one and one-half years nor more than three years. The minimum sentence was subsequently reduced by the Court to one year.

The applicant is a native of Italy, and at the time of his arrest was twenty-four years of age, unmarried and employed as a miner by the Traders Coal Company, at Keystone, Luzerne County, and resided at Parsons, in said County.

On or about June 1, 1925, the applicant became friendly with Pearl Gammaitoni, a girl fifteen years of age, and about ten days later induced her to leave her home and go with him. They departed in the automobile of the applicant and spent the first night together in the woods near Keystone. The following day they went to the Borough of Old Forge where they remained together until the subsequent day when they went to Binghamton, in the State of New York, where they remained at a hotel for nine days and nights, occupying a room together as man and wife. About the twentieth of the same month, the applicant, who was with Pearl Gammaitoni, was brought back to Scranton.

The applicant has now served ten months of his term of imprisonment, and prior thereto served almost six months in the County Prison awaiting trial. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. In 1916, during the World War, he served with the Military Forces of the Kingdom of Italy on call from the Italian Government, and served throughout the War, was wounded in action and honorably discharged, at the end of the War when he returned to the United States and engaged in useful occupation. A detainer by the Department of Labor, at Washington, for his deportation to Italy at the expiration of his present sentence has been lodged against him. The applicant desires to remain in this country. His minimum sentence will expire December 1, 1926, when he becomes eligible for parole. He does not desire to avail himself of the parole and prefers to serve his sentence and receive a complete and full pardon, effective on its expiration. The applicant can secure a position as miner with his former employer or with the Scranton Coal Company, and will have a good home, with proper surroundings, with an uncle.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; his prior good record in civil life and his excellent war record; and in consideration of the fact that employment and a good home have been offered him, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 248, June Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Fayette, George Assif was convicted of felonious arson and firing with intent to defraud insurers, and on November 17, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than isx years nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is thirty-two years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and at the time of his arrest resided in the City of Uniontown with his wife and two children, aged four years and fifteen months respectively. He conducted a clothing store in Uniontown, occupying the first floor of a building owned by John G. Hibbs.

On the night of April 12, 1925, at about 2:30 A. M., the basement of the building, of which the applicant was the first floor tenant, was set on fire by some one. Suspicion was directed to the applicant because he was the only one who had a key to the first floor and was financially embarrassed at the time. He had also increased his insurance from $4,000 to $6,000 shortly before the fire. He was the last man in the building the night of the fire, and there was no possible means of getting into the building except through the front door opening onto the street, and this door at the time of the fire was securely locked.

The applicant has now served one year of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has a wife and two small children dependant on him for support. They are in destitute circumstances and receive from the county outdoor relief. He has an excellent prison record.

The trial Judge has since died, but the trial District Attorney, in a letter filed with the Board, declares that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that he has no objection to a pardon. The State Fire Marshal, who was the prosecutor in the case, also, by letter, recommends pardon. The owner of the building in which the fire occurred, the County Detective, who is now a Deputy Sheriff, the Clerk of the Courts, the Solicitor for the Poor Board, and other prominent citizens recommend pardon. There is also on file a petition of neighbors to the same effect.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the destitute condition of his family; and the recommendations of his neighbors, the prosecutor, the owner of the building and the trial District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said George Assif.

Sir: At No. 232, April Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Grover C. Stoecker was convicted of entering with intent to steal, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on June 1, 1923, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of ten years.

The applicant is forty years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, and was a resident of the City of Philadelphia, in which City he had been a police officer for more than eleven years.

On April 4, 1923, at 3:00 A. M., Nelson Dinneger, Max Hyman, Harold McGillicuddy and the applicant were arrested on the premises at No. 130 South Seventeenth Street Philadelphia, the building being used as a fur shop conducted by one Max Finkel. The shop was protected by an electrical wiring system operated by the Auxiliary Burglar Alarm Company, of Philadelphia, and the alarm running to their office on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, was set off at the hour of the morning above stated. The manager of the company, Moran, answered the alarm in company with John Devlin, an officer of the company, and they were joined at the store by two police officers who had been notified by Moran to meet them there. Finkel conducted a retail fur business and occupied the first floor and most of the basement of the building and in the basement was a vault used for the storage of furs. The vault contained the most valuable part of the stock carried by Finkel, although about $3,000 worth of furs were kept on the first floor for display and advertising purposes. An examination of the premises after the arrest showed that entrance had been effected by means of a key, which was found on Hyman. No furs had been removed from the premises, but three or four bags containing furs of a total value of about $9,000 were found on the floor of the basement by the officers when they entered the building. The four men were arrested in the basement without making any resistance. At the trial there was no denial of the presence of these four men at the scene of the crime, but it was contended that they were there pursuant to an agreement between John Devlin and them to stage a fake burglary, which would be discovered by Devlin and which would enable him to obtain promotion with the company. This contention was supported by the testimony of Devlin himself, a witness for the Commonwealth at the first trial. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the Jury. McGillicuddy was granted a severance. The three other men were shortly afterwards called for trial a second time and duly convicted and sentenced. Dinneger was placed on probation by the trial Judge and he amply justified the confidence of the Court. Hyman, who had a criminal record, and the applicant, who had none, were each given a sentence of ten years. McGillicuddy was later brought to trial, convicted and given a sentence of eighteen months in the County Prison, but after serving less than half of his term he was pardoned by this Board.

The applicant has now served three years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His record as a police officer was exceptionally good. His prison record has been excellent.

Finkel, the owner of the furs and the prosecutor in the case, in a letter filed with the Board recommends pardon. The Chief of Police of the Standard Steel Car Company, Butler, Pa., has offered to furnish the applicant employment, if discharged. The Auxiliary Burglar Alarm and Telegraph Company has filed a letter in which they ask clemency. A large petition of officers of the Detective Bureau of the City of Philadelphia was filed recommending clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendations of the detective officers of the City, the prosecutor in the case and the Auxiliary Burglar Alarm Company, of Philadelphia; because two of his alleged accomplices are at liberty; and because employment has been offered him, if released, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Grover C. Stoecker.

Sir: At Nos. 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, March Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Wayne, Charles A. Emery pleaded guilty to six indictments charging him with embezzlement, keeping fraudulent accounts and falsifying the records of a corporation, larceny, perjury, and making false reports of the condition of a bank, and on May 14, 1923, was sentenced in the aggregate on Nos. 28 and 29, involving embezzlement and keeping fraudulent accounts and falsifying the records of a corporation, to pay a fine of $2,000 costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than ten years. Sentences on the four other indictments were suspended.

The applicant is forty-eight years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and at the time of his arrest was the cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank, of Honesdale, Pa., and resided there with his wife and one child, fourteen years of age.

The applicant, for many years prior to his arrest, was a bank cashier. He was arrested early in 1923 charged with defalcation and misappropriation of funds as an officer of the bank, and was indicted by the Grand Jury for the offenses hereinbefore enumerated. The applicant presented no defense. He voluntarily made an assignment of all his property, aggregating possibly $25,000, to the bank.

The applicant has now served three years and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The chief resident physician of the Eastern State Penitentiary has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant's physical condition is seriously impaired and that it will be necessary for him to undergo a surgical operation in order to alleviate his condition.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the Directors of the Bank are favorable to clemency, and that he will not oppose the application. Judge Watson, of Scranton, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he has known the applicant for many years and asks that clemency be extended to him. His family requires his support. The Sheriff of the County and other prominent citizens have filed letters with the Board asking clemency. Samuel R. Boggs, a Trustee of the Penitentiary, and President and Treasurer of the Model Mills Company, of Philadelphia, has offered to give employment to the applicant, if released, and to become sponsor for his future good behavior.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; his impaired physical condition; the destitute condition of his family; because of the favorable attitude of the Directors of the Bank, the trial District Attorney the Sheriff of the County, Judge Watson, of Scranton, and other prominent citizens; and because Samuel R. Boggs, a responsible citizen, has offered to give him employment and to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Charles A. Emery.

Sir: At No. 1, June Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Potter, Hobart McKinley Fessenden was convicted of felonious rape, and on June 16, 1920, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is thirty years of age and a native-born American citizen. His occupation is that of laborer. At the time of his arrest he was employed in the plant of the Warner Sugar Refining Company, at Roulette, Potter County, and engaged in the manufacture of staves and heading. He is unmarried and was a resident of Roulette. He served in the Argonne during the World War and was discharged with the rank of Corporal.

The applicant is charged with having committed this crime on the person of one Ruth Corwin, a girl fifteen years old, on Sunday evening, February 22, 1920, near the Village of Roulette. Ruth Corwin left her home to attend church. The applicant and several other young men passed her driving in a sleigh. The applicant recognized her, having met and spoken with her in various places in Roulette. The sleigh stopped and the applicant got out, went over to the sidewalk and held conversation with her. They walked together down the sidewalk away from the church. A few minutes later the sleigh driven by one Joseph Haskins overtook them and they both entered the sleigh with Haskins as driver. The sleigh proceeded to what is known as a back road on the south side of the river, and during the drive Ruth Corwin sat on the lap of the applicant. While the occupants were in the sleigh two people passed who testified that they heard no alarming cries or call for help. After the passing of these people the crime was committed. The applicant claims that no force whatever was employed. It appears to have been an ordinary case of fornication.

The applicant has now served six years and five months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The trial Judge, the present and trial District Attorneys and the private counsel who assisted in the prosecution of the case, filed letters with the Board recommending pardon. Assemblymen Wells, the County Commissioners, the County Treasurer, the Clerk of the Courts and the President of the Board of County Auditors, and many prominent and reputable citizens of the county, including women, have filed letters with the Board urging a pardon. Employment has been offered the applicant, if released.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the doubt of the applicant's use of force in the commission of the crime; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the fact that employment has been offered him if released; and because of the recommendations of the trial Judge, the trial District Attorney, present District Attorney, the private prosecuting attorney and many prominent citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Hobart McKinley Fessenden.

Sir: At No. 86, November Sessions, 1912, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, William Hayes was convicted or murder in the second degree, and on February 25, 1913, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nineteen years nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is sixty-one years of age, an Englishman by birth, a weaver by occupation, formerly employed by the Oramko Mills, and resided in the City of Philadelphia. At the time of his conviction he had a wife, but she has since died.

The applicant came from England to Philadelphia in September, 1911, accompanied by his wife, a son and a foster daughter, who assumed the name of Ethel Hayes, whom he had adopted from a workhouse in England. Ethel Haves remained a member of his household for several months, when, without the consent and against the protest of the applicant and his wife, she left their home and went to live with a girl with whom she had become acquainted while working in a textile mill. The applicant vainly endeavored to persuade her to return to their household. The absence of the foster child, and the fear that she might be leading an immoral life, so prayed upon his mind that his mental condition became impaired. He, having learned her place of employment, and while she was returning from work on October 12, 1911, followed her in a further endeavor to persuade her to return to his home, and after she had peremptorily refused to return, the applicant shot her on a public highway in the City of Philadelphia at the noon hour while the street was crowded with people, and after shooting her shot himself. The girl died from a gunshot wound in the heart, and the applicant after receiving medical treatment for his self-inflicted wound was committed to jail to await trial for murder. The Jury, after deliberating for more than three hours, returned to the Courtroom for further instruction upon the point of insanity, and two hours later came in with a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree.

The Applicant has now served thirteen years and nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent.

The applicant's health has become seriously impaired, and it is believed that further confinement will permanently incapacitate him from earning a livelihood, if released. The chief resident physician of the Eastern State Penitentiary, in a letter filed with the Board, states that the applicant has hardening of the arteries, chronic heart trouble, chronic muscular rheumatism, sub-acute cystitis and chronic bronchitis. If released it is his express intention to return to England the place of his birth.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; his advanced years and critical state of health; and his express desire to return to the country of his birth, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At Nos. 639, 640 and 641, August Sessions, 1923, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Harold Lockyer was convicted of robbery, assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, assault and battery with intent to ravish and rape, adultery and attemped sodomy, and on December 3, 1923, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of $300.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Philadelphia County Prison for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is 29 years of age and a native-born citizen of the United States. His occupation is that of machinist. He served eight years in the U. S. Navy from February, 1915, to November, 1922. At the time of his arrest he was employed as a machinist at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Eddystone, Pa. He has a wife and a daughter aged six years, and resided in West Philadelphia.

The applicant's accuser, Mrs. Helen Seidle, a disreputable woman, had been openly living during the years 1920 to 1922 with a man by the name of Murphy. She requested an officer to arrest the applicant who was taking her home in a trolley car on August 18, 1923, at 1:00 A. M. She stated, and subsequently testified at the trial, that the defendant was one of a party of five men who ravished her at midnight in a lonely cemetery and took from her person a diamond ring and a pocket book containing $45.00. After the crimes were committed four of the men walked leisurely away from the cemetery, while the applicant escorted the woman to her home. Mrs. Seidle, according to the testimoney of the Commonwealth, as well as the defendants. was drunk. Her story was improbable, almost impossible, and she was contradicted on many of the most material parts of her testimony by disinterested witnesses. Her charge was flatly denied by the applicant. One of these five men, Worthline, voluntarily appeared and testified on behalf of the applicant that Mrs. Seidle invited them to accompany her into the cemetery in question. After remaining there a while together they refused to pay her the money which she demanded. They departed, the applicant escorting her home in a trolley car. It would seem that this was merely a case of fornication.

The applicant has now served two years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

He has a wife and small child dependent on him for support. His conviction was obtained solely on the testimony of the prosecutrix, who is a disreptable woman with a criminal record. The applicant was the only one of the five men to undergo prosecution and suffer punishment for the alleged offenses.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; because his wife and child are dependent on him for support; and because he was convicted solely on the testimony of a notorious degraded woman and was the only one of the five who participated in these crimes to suffer trial and punishment, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 61, May Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Northumberland, Theodore Barni was convicted of shooting with intent to rob, and on May 23, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years. In their verdict the Jury recommended the applicant to the mercy of the Court.

The applicant is twenty-three yeors of age, unmarried a native-born citizen of the United States, of Russian descent, and at the time of his arrest was employed as a laborer at the Scott Colliery, Kulpmont, Pennsylvania.

On April 1, 1924, between seven and eight P. M., an automobile, containing five masked men, stopped in front of the hotel of William Arrison, in Trevorton, a small town situated in Northumberland County, about eight miles west of Shamokin. Four of the masked men entered the hotel, displayed guns and demanded from the proprietor the contents of the cash register. The latter refused to give up the money whereupon one of the party fired a shot wounding him in the leg. Immediately thereafter the four men hastily left the barroom, jumped into the car and disappeared. None of them were recognized. Sometime later a young man, a former soldier, was arrested and identified by Arrison as one of the men, but later discharged on a writ of habeas corpus. Some weeks later Harry Mansfield, a man with a criminal record, was arrested on a charge of robbery committed in Shamokin. After he had been examined for some hours by the police he confessed that he not only committed the crime for which he was then arrested, but had also participated in the attempted robbery of the Arrison Hotel, at Trevorton. He implicated Aloysius Corcoran, Theodore Barni, the applicant, John Yudock, his brother, Joe Mansfield, and himself in the latter robbery. On the trial Yudock pleaded guilty to the charge. Outside of the testimony of Harry Mansfield there was nothing to connect either Corcoran or the applicant with the crime. Joe Mansfield one of the alleged participants, escaped and has never been apprehended. At the trial Corcoran and the applicant presented testimony tending to establish an alibi. There was evident doubt in the mind of the Jury as to their guilt as shown by their recommendation to the mercy of the Court. Attached to the application of the applicant for pardon is a statement under oath of Yudock and Harry Mansfield to the effect that neither Corcoran nor the applicant were connected with the crime, and that both were innocent.

The applicant has now served one year and six months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His conviction was brought about solely on the testimony of a self-confessed criminal, and two of his alleged accomplices have since, under oath, proclaimed his innocence.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he has no objection to the granting of a pardon in this case, believing that the applicant has been sufficiently punished.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; and in further consideration of the fact that the trial District Attorney does not object to a pardon believing that the applicant has been sufficiently punished, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 61, May Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Northumberland, Al Corcoran was convicted of shooting with intent to rob, and on May 23, 1925, was sentenced to pay a fine of, $100.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years. Sir: At Nos. 58, 59, 61 and 62, February Sessions, 1922 in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and fo the County of Crawford, J. T. Snodgrass pleaded guilt to indictments charging him with larceny and forgery, an on February 10, 1922, was sentenced in the aggregate to pa a fine of $20.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years nor more than sixteen years.

The applicant is more than fifty-eight years of age. He is a native-born American citizen. His occupation was that of banker. When arrested he resided in Conneautville, Crawford County, with his wife and two minor children, who constituted part of his family,, although not legally adopted.

The applicant was one of three partners in a private bank known as the Bank of Conneautville. This institution was originally incorporated as a national bank, but when its charter expired, by limitation of time, it became a private enterprise and did not come within the jurisdiction of the State Banking Department. The business of the bank prospered until the financial depression, which followed the War, ensued. The bank ultimately went into the hands of an assignee for liquidation. The causes of the failure were certain bad loans and investments, but the main debtor was the L. G. Graves Company which owed the bank in accumulated loans and overdrafts more than $300,000. The relations between the two were so close that when the Graves Company became financially involved the bank was compelled to continue dealings with the company in order to save itself. The applicant manipulated commercial paper and used, without authority, securities belonging to others in an effort to save the bank and its depositors. He sold everything he could convert into money from his personal estate amounting to $25,000, which he turned over to the bank. He also obtained money from his wife's parents and sister in his efforts to forestall the impending failure. He surrendered all his real estate, including his home, to the assignees for the bank. As a consequence, his aged parents-in-law, his wife's sister and family were left without means of support. It was never alleged that the applicant profited personally by his misdeeds. It was subsequently proven by investigation upon liquidation of the bank's affairs that the applicant never used for his own purpose or profit any of the moneys or securities wrongfully acquired. His two partners were indicted for conspiracy to defraud, but when brought to trial the charge against them was withdrawn for insufficient evidence. They have never been imprisoned for their part in the bank's failure.

The applicant has now served four years and nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His aged wife is in frail health and requires his support.

There was filed with the Board a large number of letters from friends, neighbors and depositors of the defunct bank asking pardon; also a petition of citizens of Meadville asking clemency; and letters from a number of officials, business friends and associates, including the present and former Sheriff of the County, the President of the Jamestown, Pa., Banking Company, the largest individual depositor of the defunct bank, a number of clergymen and others.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the fact that he never personally profited from his misdeeds, and surrendered all of his own property and the property of his wife's relatives in an effort to save the bank; the further fact that his two partners were never punished for their participation in the failure of the bank; and because of the destitute condition of his wife, his wife's family and the two small children, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said J. T. Snodgrass.

Sir: At No. 141, September Sessions, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Dauphin, William Jackson pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and on December 13, 1916, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $5.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eighteen years and six months nor more than twenty years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age and a negro, born in Virginia. His occupation is that of laborer and when incarcerated was employed as a waiter by John Wright, in Steelton, Pennsylvania. He is unmarried.

Shortly before the shooting the applicant and Charlie Brown, the deceased, had engaged in a crap game. Early in the morning of August 10, 1916, the applicant and the deceased were in Iron Alley, Steelton, at Emma Stanton's house. Testimony shows that at least three shots were fired between the men. The applicant had been hiding in the tall weeds near the house and fired the first shot at the deceased, who ran back of the house, the applicant pursuing him. When they finally met each fired one shot about the same time. Brown's shot went up in the air, but the applicant's shot passed through Brown's lung, with fatal results.

The applicant has now served nine years and eleven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The applicant has contracted pulmonary tuberculosis of an advanced stage, and according to competent medical opinion his condition is hopeless. Dr. Morgan, the chief resident physician of the penitentiary, has filed with the Board a letter in which he certifies to the above fact, and states that there is no hope of recovery, and that he will never be able to leave the bed where he is now confined.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; because of his critical, physical condition which holds out no hope of recovery, but indicates that death is imminent, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 712, January Sessions, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Morris Orman was convicted of arson, and on April 21, 1922, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than seven years.

The applicant is forty-four years of age, a native of Russia and a citizen of that country, although he has filed with the proper officers a certificate of his intention to become a citizen of the United States. For sometime prior to his conviction the applicant was a jobber in general merchandise, and at the time of his arrest was engaged as a retail merchant in notions and dry goods in the City of Philadelphia. He was charged with having set fire to his store on the morning of January 12, 1922. It was claimed that an investigation of the premises disclosed the fact that part of the merchandise had been saturated with gasoline or some similar substance, and that in the back of the store a gas jet was open and the fumes allowed to escape. The fire was soon extinguished and the applicant was arrested shortly thereafter in his home about five o'clock in the morning. The connection of the applicant with the fire was not direct, but rested largely on circumstantial evidence.

The applicant was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has now served four years and seven months of his term of imprisonment.

From papers filed with the Board it appears that the applicant has developed tuberculosis, which has been diagnosed by the physician in charge at the penitentiary as the advanced stage of pulmonary tuberculosis, commonly known as galloping consumption, and in his judgment he cannot live more than sixty days. Nathan Blumberg, a lung specialist, confirmed the report of the prison physician and states that his condition is hopeless. He advises that he be placed in a proper institution where he could receive special attention.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the critical, physical condition of the applicant and the necessity for special hospital treatment to ameliorate his condition and to prolong his life, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 550, March Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, James Dobson pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with extortion, and on June 26, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to serve six months in the Philadelphia County Prison. On July 2, 1925, the above sentence was reconsidered by the Court and the applicant discharged on probation for a period of three years, and on May 4, 1926, the last mentioned sentence was reconsidered and the applicant discharged from parole.

The applicant is thirty-one years of age, a native-born American citizen and has resided in Philadelphia during his entire life. He has a wife and four children, ranging in age from eight to twelve years.

The applicant was a member of the Philadelphia Police Force for six years prior to his arrest. He, together with three other policemen and a civilian, were charged with the extortion of $500.00 from a saloon-keeper who conducted a resort at the Corner of Front Street and Allegheny Avenue, in the northeastern section of Philadelphia. All of the officers were intoxicated at the time the offense was committed. The testimony adduced at the trial showed a distinct difference between the guilt of the applicant and the other defendants. The saloon-keeper himself recommended clemency for the applicant, and the trial Judge showed his appreciation of this distinction by sentencing those most guilty and by placing the applicant on probation on the last day of that term of Court. The other defendants were sentenced to one year in the Philadelphia County Prison and duly served their terms. Since being placed on parole the applicant has been employed as a conductor by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and has made good. In addition to his service in the Police Department he served the city as a fireman for four years. In 1911, he enlisted in the United States Navy and served four years with an honorable discharge. On August 15, 1918, he enlisted in the United States Army and was discharged as a Corporal on January 6, 1919, with a character excellent.

He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. The present application is made in order to clear the applicant's record.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends pardon, and a representative of the District Attorney's office, who was present at the hearing before the Board, interposed no objection thereto. A number of letters were filed with the Board from members of the police force, and citizens, who were personally acquainted with the applicant, in which they recommend clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the term of imprisonment already served; the prior good record of the applicant; the need which his wife and children have of support; the recommendations of his fellow officers and citizens; the recommendation of the trial Judge; and the fact that the District Attorney's office does not interpose objection, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that his record should be cleared of the stigma of the crime for which he was convicted.

We, therefore "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said James Dobson.

Sir: At Nos. 583 and 774, November Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, Thomas Hughes was convicted of larceny and on December 27, 1921, was sentenced in the aggregate to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years and eight months nor more than ten years.

The applicant at the time of the commission of these crimes was only sixteen years of age, but is now twenty-one. He is a native-born American citizen, unmarried and has resided in Philadelphia all his life.

There were two charges of the larceny of automobiles lodged against the applicant. It appears from the information at hand that both were typical cases of joyriding inasmuch as there was no attempt to sell or dispose of the automobiles. In the one case a Hudson car, standing in front of the Mercantile Club, on North Broad Street, was stolen early on Sunday evening, November 13, 1921, and the applicant and his companion were arrested with the machine between ten and eleven o'clock of the same evening. The applicant was at the wheel and his companion was standing on the sidewalk talking to him at the time of the arrest. The applicant did not account for the possession of the car in a satisfactory manner and was convicted, but his companion was acquitted. The record in the case does not disclose the circumstances connected with the theft of the second car.

The applicant has now served approximately five years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He was only sixteen years of age when he was arrested. Employment has been offered him by David R. Burns & Sons, Engineers and Contractors, Philadelphia, in the event of his release.

The trial Judge, who sentenced the applicant, has passed away. A representative of the District Attorney's office, present at the hearing before the Board, interposed no objection to a pardon in this case.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; the fact that employment has been offered him, if released; and that his father will provide a home, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Hughes.

Sir: At No. 14, May Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Anthony Molinaro was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on December 9, 1916, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than twelve years and three months nor more than fifteen years and four months.

The applicant is forty-two years of age, an Italian by birth, a barber by occupation and was so employed at the time of his arrest. He resided in the Borough in Old Forge, Lackawanna County. He is married and has an invalid wife, and minor child dependent on him for support.

The Commonwealth charged the applicant with killing Alfreda Viola on November 1, 1915. The motive for the murder was somewhat obscure, although there was some evidence that it arose out of a demand which the applicant made on the deceased for money in Rizzo's saloon at Old Forge, a half hour before the homicide. The two men left the saloon about 4:00 P. M., on the day in question, for a walk, and engaged in an animated conversation. When they reached an open field, about one-third of a mile from the saloon, they stood facing each other and talked for about half a minute. The applicant kept his right hand in his coat pocket, and, without withdrawing his hand, pulled the trigger of a pistol, which he had in his pocket, fired a shot into Viola's abdomen, and cause a wound from which he subsequently died. The applicant fled and was not captured until about a year later. On the other hand the applicant claimed that the deceased had made a demand for $50.00 stating at the time that he was Chief of the Black Hand and that if the applicant did not comply with the request he would kill him. The two men met in a saloon and took a drink together. Viola laid his hand upon the applicant's shoulder and asked for the money. The request was refused. The applicant withdrew from the barroom and was followed by the deceased who persuaded him to accompany him some distance from the saloon, about two and one-half blocks, at which point the deceased attempted to strike the applicant with a knife. A struggle ensued during which the applicant pulled a revolver from the pocket of the deceased man, and, while both were rolling on the ground, the revolver was discharged inflicting a fatal wound in the abdomen of the deceased.

The applicant has now served ten years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. He has an excellent prison record. An invalid wife and minor child are dependent on him for support.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he believes the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that he has no objection to the grant of a pardon. The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he believes that the applicant has been sufficiently punished and that he is not opposed to a pardon in this case. The present District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he concurs in the sentiments expressed by the trial District Attorney.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; the need which his invalid wife and minor child have of support; and because of the favorable recommendations of the trial Judge, the trial District Attorney and the present District Attorney, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 467, September Term, 1901, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, Jacob Pesendorfer pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with murder, and on October 4, 1901, was sentenced to be hanged. On April 24, 1902, the sentence of death was commuted to life imprisonment. On December 29, 1906, the said Court appointed a commission to inquire into the mental condition of the applicant and on report of said Commission filed March 6, 1907, and by order of the Court, the said applicant was transferred to the State Hospital for the Insane at Norristown, where he remained until September 17, 1909, when he was by order of said Court transferred to the Eastern State Penitentiary as cured, and he has been confined in the last mentioned institution ever since that date.

The applicant is a native of Austria, but a naturalized American citizen, fifty-two years of age. He is a mechanic by occupation and resided in Philadelphia five years prior to his arrest.

The applicant killed his father-in-law, Henry Gautschi, who died on September 8, 1901. The deceased, a man of means and prominence, objected to the applicant (who was a poor mechanic) as a suitor for his daughter and endeavored to prevent the marriage. In spite of the father's opposition the daughter ran away and married the applicant. The father finally induced her to leave her husband and return home. The applicant vainly endeavored to persuade his wife to return to him. She finally consented, but remained but a short time when she returned to her father's home. A child was born and the defendant was forbidden by his father-in-law to visit his wife and child. Shortly thereafter the child died and the wife secured a divorce. The applicant was informed that Gautschi had made threats of bodily harm against him and he began carrying a revolver as a protection against attack. On August 4, 1901, the applicant came from New Jersey, where he was living and working, to make another attempt to talk to his wife. He proceeded to Chestnut Hill, where Gautschi resided, and met the latter driving on Bethlehem Pike with a horse and carriage. He requested that he be permitted to see his wife. Gautschi refused to recognize the applicant and threatened or struck him with a carriage whip. The applicant then drew the revolver and fired several shots at Gautschi, inflicting wounds which caused his death about a month later.

The applicant has now served twenty-five years and two months of his term of imprisonment, including the three year period spent in the hospital for the insane. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime, except that on one occasion he was arrested on complaint of his wife's family charged with assault and battery, but was acquitted in Court, and immediately brought suit against his father-in-law for false imprisonment, which latter case was settled out of Court.

Since his incarceration the applicant, who is a skilled mechanic, took up wood carving, in which he did all the work himself. With the money he derived from the sale of the articles made he purchased machinery and now has a cabinet shop and workroom in the space allotted to him by the prison authorities, in which he employs 18 prisoners who work under his direction and who are paid weekly wages.

He has a mother more than 80 years of age who is dependent on him for support, and lives in a home purchased for her by the applicant's earnings.

Doctor Linn Bowman, of Philadelphia, has offered to become sponsor for the applicant's future good conduct. A representative of the District Attorney's office was present at the hearing before the Board and stated that they had no objections to a pardon in this case except that it might establish a bad precedent.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the term of imprisonment; already served; the prior good record of the applicant; his notably good record in the penitentiary; the further fact that his aged mother who is supported by him, and in infirm health, requires his companionship; and further for the reason that a reputable citizen has agreed to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Jacob Pesendorfer.

Sir: At No. 59, September Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Philadelphia, John Bennett was convicted of larceny from the person, and on September 21, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two and one-half years nor more than five years.

The applicant is twenty-seven years of age and a native-born American citizen. At the time of his arrest he was employed in the Bridgeport Pottery Works and resided in Bridgeport, Montgomery County, with his widowed mother whom he supported.

On the evening of August 21, 1925, the applicant went from Bridgeport to Philadelphia to meet a friend and spend the evening in his company. He met his friend as arranged, and before leaving the station they saw another man whom they knew and it was proposed that the three should go together to a moving picture show. After attending the theatre one of the men suggested that they have a drink, and they went to the house of the applicant's friend where they talked and drank until nearly midnight, when the friend suggested that it was so late they might as well remain all night. By this time they were all under the influence of liquor and hardly responsible for their actions. The prosecutor in the case took his money and other valuables and placed them with the applicant for safekeeping, and all three went to bed together. Early in the morning when they awoke and went out for breakfast together, the prosecutor discovered that his money and valuables were not on his person. He immediately accused the applicant and his friend of having robbed him and summoned a policeman and made a charge of larceny. The applicant turned over to the police the money and valuables just as they were received. The prosecutor lost nothing. At the trial the prosecutor stated that when he was under the influence of liquor he did not know what he was doing, and that he may have made a mistake.

The applicant has now served one year and almost three months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The trial Judge has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he is impressed with the applicant's straightforward attitude and is inclined to endorse his application for pardon since he has served a substantial part of his term. A representative of the District Attorney's office was present during the hearing and expressed a favorable attitude toward the application.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; because of the fact that the applicant is the sole support of a widowed mother; and because of the favorable attitude of the trial Judge and the District Attorney's office, we believe that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said John Bennett.

Sir: At No. 412, November Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Philadelphia, William H. Collins pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, assault and battery with intent to ravish, and rape, and on January 15, 1926, was sentenced to pay costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than two years nor more than four years.

The applicant is forty-eight years of age and a native born American citizen. At the time of his arrest he was the Treasurer of the Collins System of Physical Culture North Broad Street, Philadelphia, and resided in that City. He is unmarried.

Gertrude Goldfine, the private prosecutrix in the case, was introduced to the applicant as Miss Gertrude Benson by a mutual friend at the home of the applicant. She, at the time, was a student at Temple University in her second year, and was five feet six inches tall and weighed upwards of 125 pounds and claimed to be nineteen years of age, although at the time she was under sixteen years of age. This girl visited the applicant several times, and on Satuday evening, November 6, 1925, called at his apartment. He intended leaving for Pittsburgh the following day to open a physical culture school in that city. About 11:30 P. M. the applicant asked if he should call a taxi to take her home. Miss Goldfine refused to permit him to do so, stating that she would remain in the house with him. They subsequently retired to separate rooms, but later Miss Goldfine came to the applicant's room and remained there until morning. Gertrude's older sister, Florence Benson, who was a disreputable woman, conducted a bawdy house in Philadelphia, which Gertrude frequented more or less. Florence Benson endeavored to have the matter adjusted by the payment of a sum of money. The applicant refused to make a cash settlement, but offered to marry Gertrude and take her with him to Pittsburgh as his wife. Mrs. Benson, who assumed management of the affair, refused to permit this, and as a result the applicant was arrested and came up for trial. Mrs. Benson was subsequently indicted for keeping an immoral house. From all the facts it appears that the applicant was the victim of a frame-up.

The applicant has now served eleven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The District Attorney's office in a statement of the case filed with the Board conclude by saying, "Considering all the facts in this case both before the trial and since, it is the opinion of the writer that the applicant has been sufficiently punished," and a representative of the office present at the hearing before the Board interposed no objection to clemency. The trial Judge in a letter filed with the Board states that he has no objection to a pardon at this time and believes that the same would be justified by the facts. Richard J. Beamish, a member of the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania, has filed with the Board a letter in which he recommends a pardon, stating that the misrepresentations made to the applicant were responsible for his misdeeds. Frank Smith, Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 5, has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he is well acquainted with the applicant and that the general impression among those who know him is that Gertrude Goldfine and her older sister, Mrs. Benson, deliberately planned to place the applicant in the unfortunate position in which he now is.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the favorable attitude of the trial Judge and District Attorney's office; because of the recommendations of Public Service Commissioner Beamish, Judge Smith, and others, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said William H. Collins.

Sir: At No. 275, November Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Thomas Foster was convicted of entering a building, and larceny, and was sentenced by the Court inter alia to serve a term of imprisonment for not less than five years nor more than seven years in the Western Penitentiary. Having served his minimum sentence of five years he was released on parole on November 18, 1925. While on parole he was arrested and sentenced in a Police Magistrate Court as a "suspicious person" and sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Allegheny County Jail for a period of thirty days. At the expiration of his jail sentence he was returned to the Western State Penitentiary, as a parole violator, to serve the maximum sentence imposed by the Allegheny County Court. If his record is cleared by a pardon on the charge of being a "suspicious person" he will become eligible for parole on the penitentiary sentence.

The applicant is twenty-nine years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, colored, married and resided in the City of Pittsburgh at the time of his second arrest. He was employed as a chauffeur and was working at the Morrowfield Apartments, Pittsburgh.

Upon his release from the Rockview Prison on parole the applicant returned to his home in Pittsburgh and went to work. On the day of his arrest for the second offense he had left his home and was going down Bedford Avenue to visit a friend. While walking down the Avenue he was stopped by Policemen Pryor and Hughes. These two officers had apprehended him for the first offense on which he had been sentenced to the penitentiary. They inquired of him when he had been released from the penitentiary and he told them. He also told the officers he was working every day and was on parole for two years. The officers said "we had better take you down and see the captain." The applicant was then taken to the police station, was not permitted to get in touch with relatives, did not see the captain or any other police official, but was brought before Magistrate Verona for a hearing on a charge of being a "suspicious person." He was given no opportunity to tell the Magistrate that he was working every day and had committed no offense, but after officers Pryor and Hughes had made their statements he was sentenced to the County Jail for a period of thirty days.

The Parole Officer of the Western State Penitentiary has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant has a clear record in that institution. Alfred E. Fletcher, Chaplain, has also filed a letter with the Board in which he states that he joins with his official colleagues in the institution in asking that "extreme clemency may be shown to this very deserving man."

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the genuine doubt as to the guilt of the applicant with reference to the present offense charged, to wit, being a "suspicious person"; because his wife requires support; because of the fact that he has served his sentence for the latter offense and unless clemency is extended him will have to serve approximately two additional years in the Western State Penitentiary on his original commitment to that institution; because of his excellent prison record; and the recommendation of the Chaplain of the Penitentiary speaking for himself and official colleagues, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that his record should be cleared of the stigma of the crime for which he was convicted.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Thomas Foster.

Sir: At Nos. 17 and 18, November Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Virgil Howard Hange, alias Howard Taylor, pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with highway robbery, and on November 27, 1920, was sentenced in No. 17 to pay a fine of 6¼ cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years; and in No. 18 was sentenced to pay a similar fine, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than ten years. The last mentioned sentence to take effect at the expiration of the first sentence.

The applicant is twenty-six years of age and a native-born American citizen. He is a clerk by occupation and at the time of his arrest was working as a clerk for a telephone company and other parties in the City of Cleveland, Ohio, and resided in that city with his father and mother.

In the month of July, 1920, the applicant, with one Baker, stole an automobile belonging to E. V. Wise on a road near the Dixmont Hospital for the Insane. In accomplishing this theft he was also guilty of the incidental charges of robbery, receiving stolen goods, carrying concealed deadly weapons and assault, all of which grew out of the same offense. In September of the same year the applicant, together with the same man, Baker, stole an automobile belonging to Andy Garavina, in the Borough of Carrick. Both crimes were committed in Allegheny County, but outside the limits of the City of Pittsburgh. In the theft of the Wise automobile a small sum of money, not exceeding $10.00, was taken. With respect to the other charges sentence was suspended. The applicant was only twenty years of age when these crimes were committed.

The applicant has now served six years of his term of imprisonment. His prior record was good with one exception. As a boy he served two years in the Mansfield Reformatory, Ohio, and was pardoned.

From letters filed with the Board it appears that his prison record is excellent and that he served as head nurse in the hospital and engaged in laboratory tests. He performed this work in an excellent manner, and if released desires to pursue a medical career for which he seems to be adapted.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the District Atorney's office is of the opinion that under all the circumstances the law has been vindicated and the granting of a pardon to the applicant would work no injustice to the Commonwealth. The trial Judge has also filed a letter with the Board in which he states that he does not object to the granting of a pardon and "joins in the conclusions of the District Attorney" as set forth in his letter. Sam S. Williams of Cleveland, Ohio, President of an "Organization of Friendly Interest Toward Men Leaving Prison" appeared before the Board and urged clemency in behalf of the applicant and offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the comparative youth of the applicant when these crimes were committed; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record because of the recommendations of the trial Judge and trial District Attorney, and because a reputable citizen of Ohio has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and if now released will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 21, December Term, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Beaver, Sherman Stewart pleaded nolo contendere to the charge of breaking and entering a buliding with intent to commit a felony, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and on February 28, 1921, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than eight years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is sixty years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States, a coal miner by occupation, and his family consists of a wife, three sons and four daughters. At the time of his arrest he was a resident of the City of Pittsburgh.

The applicant was charged with breaking into and robbing Butler's Clothing Store, in the Borough of New Brighton, Beaver County, on February 11, 1921, in company with his brother, Robert Stewart, and one Adam Schultz. The participants were detected in the act of carrying away the stolen goods, by the local police, who opened fire on the fleeing men. Shultz and the applicant escaped. Robert Stewart was so seriously wounded that he was apprehended and taken to the hospital where he made an ante mortem statement, in which he implicated his brother Sherman and Schultz, claiming that he and Schultz were criminals, but that the applicant was not a criminal and had been tricked into the robbery with the idea that they could use him to carry away more loot than could be handled by the two of them. Upon his recovery Robert Stewart pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term of from eight to ten years in the Western State Penitentiary. Schultz was subsequently arrested for a crime committed in the State of Ohio and is now serving a term in the Ohio State Penitentiary, at Columbus. The applicant was arrested on the information contained in the statement of his brother above referred to. About a week previous to the robbery the applicant saw his brother Robert for the first time in a year. On the day of the robbery Schultz came to see the applicant and told him that his brother Robert wanted to come to New Brighton and get his personal effects and take them away for safe-keeping. The three men met in Rochester, Beaver County and proceeded to New Brighton, where they walked about the streets, each taking an occasional pull from a bottle of gin belonging to Schultz. They finally went to the dark unfrequented street in the rear of the Butler Store where Robert Stewart and Schultz told the applicant to wait for them. The two men disappeared and in a short time came back with six suit cases, two of which were handed to the applicant with directions to carry them. Almost immediately the police appeared, shots were fired, Robert Stewart was wounded and captured, and Schultz and the applicant fled. The latter was not armed. He states that up to the time of the shooting he had no definite idea that a robbery was intended. Both Robert Stewart and Schultz have made affidavits which are on file in which they state that the applicant was misled and lied to in order that they might have his assistance in carrying away the goods which they had taken from the store.

The applicant has now served five years and nine months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent and the penitentiary authorities, through the Chaplain recommend clemency. His health has become impaired as shown by a letter from the resident physician. A number of letters advocating clemency have been filed. His family is in destitute condition.

Mrs. M. A. Fisher, a daughter residing in North Industry, Ohio, appeared before the Board in person and asked for a pardon. She offered to take the applicant to her home in Ohio and become responsible for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; his advanced age and impaired health; the destitute condition of his family; the affidavits of the two men who deceived him and led him into this difficulty; and the fact that his daughter has offered to give him a home and become responsible for his future good conduct, we ha concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Sherman Stewart.

Sir: At No. 18, January Term, 1924, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lackawanna, Stanley Koslosky alias Stanley Kozoloski pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with burglarly, and on February 4, 1924, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years. There were five indictments charging the applicant with burglarly. A nolo prosequi was entered in three cases and sentence was suspended in the fourth case, the applicant having entered a plea of guilty.

The applicant is now almost twenty years of age. He is of Polish descent, but born in this county. He has no trade or occupation, having just finished school. He resided in the City of Scranton with his father, a miner who has but one eye, his mother and three other children, he being the oldest child.

In the latter part of November, 1922, numerous small burglaries occurred in that part of Scranton known as Hyde Park and Providence. The burglaries were in small confectionery and cigar stores, and loot consisted of $2.89 in cash, cigars, razors, knives, hair tonic, watch and chain, shot gun and various small articles such as a young boy or boys might take. The thefts aggregated $73.69 in value. After investigation by the police the applicant was arrested and admitted the burglaries of all the small stores that were robbed about that time, and upon hearing before the Police Magistrate, in Scranton, was committed to the County Jail on November 28, 1923 to await trial.

The applicant has now been continuously either in jail or in the penitentiary since the last mentioned date, a period of three years. He was only seventeen yars of age when these crimes were committed.

The owners and proprietors of the stores robbed, petition the Board for clemency. The trial Judge is dead. Herbert L. Taylor and I. M. Braunstein both filed affidavits with the Board in which they state that the deceased trial Judge, during his life time, said that he would help secure a pardon for the applicant, but did not live long enough to carry out his intention.

The applicant is now almost twenty years of age, and if released can return to his home and work in the mines with his father and help support the family. He is the oldest child. His mother is in poor health and his father is incapacitated by reason of blindess in one eye.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the youth of the applicant when these crimes were committed; the small loss inflicted on the persons robbed; the fact that the owners and proprietors of the stores recommend clemency; the fact that the trial Judge who has since died declared in his life time that he would help secure a pardon; and the further fact that he is now old enough to assist in the support of the family, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Stanley Kolosky alias Stanley Kozoloski.

Sir: At No. 1, November Term, 1916, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Lancaster, Harry G. Smith was convicted of voluntary manslaughter, and on November 21, 1916, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $500.00., costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a period of not less than eleven years and six months nor more than twelve years.

The applicant is thirty-three years of age, a native-born American citizen, a barber by occupation, and at the time of the commission of this crime was working in York, Pa., in a cigar manufactory during the day and in a barber shop on Saturday afternoon and in the evenings. His residence was in Lancaster.

The applicant's wife was a cigar maker and worked for I. Lewis who had factories in Lancaster and in York. The wife was taken by her employer to York, and when the applicant went to York he found the employer and his wife living together at the same hotel. He endeavored to persuade his wife to return to Lancaster, but she refused. He then took a position in the same cigar factory in York. The parties were never reconciled. On the evening of October 14, 1916, the applicant came to Lancaster, left his valise at his home and then went to Brubaker's dance hall on Duke Street. He there saw his wife, tried to talk with her, but she refused. He waited outside and when she came out she again refused to talk with him and walked away. He then took a trolley car and got off at the Corner of Chestnut and Elm Streets near where his wife's sister Elizabeth Brown lived. Shortly thereafter his wife got off another car and they had some conversation or argument, during which he shot her with fatal results. The applicant was only twenty-three years of age when this occurred.

The applicant has now served ten years of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent as shown by letters on file from Courtland Butler, Parole Officer.

A number of letters have been filed with the Board recommending clemency. The Chief of Police of Lancaster, the City Solicitor, the Register of Wills, the Deputy Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court, the Board of Prison Inspectors and the Warden of the County Prison, Alderman Doebler and five of the Jurors, who convicted him, ask clemency. The Mayor of the City filed a letter in which he states that many citizens favor a pardon and that he himself is not opposed thereto. Courtland Butler, Parole Officer of the Penitentiary, not only recommends clemency, but offers to become sponsor for his future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant; the comparative youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; because of the recommendations of many prominent citizens of Lancaster and of five of the Jury which convicted him; and because of the recommendation of the Chief Parole Officer of the Penitentiary who has offered to become sponsor for his future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Harry G. Smith.

Sir: At No. 32, June Sessions, 1926, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Warren, Olaf Stenger pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with burglary, and larceny, and on May 7, 1926, was sentenced to pay a fine of $400.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than three years nor more than six years.

The applicant is twenty-one years of age, a native-born citizen of the United States and unmarried. He has no regular occupation since leaving school, but has helped his father in his business as a florist in the village of Sheffield, Warren County, with whom he resided.

On the night of May 1, 1926, the applicant had been drinking intoxicating liquor, and about midnight he kicked or removed the iron screening on a cellar window of the Metzger-Wright Company Department Store, situate in Sheffield, and afterwards crawled into the basement of the building and from there went upstairs into the hardware department of the store, which contained a booth or room used by the bookkeeper and cashier for their work while on duty. The applicant pulled out the money drawer and took it into the main store room a few feet away, sat down on a chair or stool and had the drawer on his lap, or by his side, fumbling over the money left in the store. While he was doing this the night watchman, who knew the applicant, came up and asked who let you in or words to that effect. The applicant replied in substance that Bowen had let him in, Bowen being a relative of his who had a position in the store. After these words the applicant ran out of the store and took with him some change amounting to about $20.00, Owing to his intoxicated condition his recollection of the affair is somewhat hazy. He then went to his home at the other end of the village and went about the next day as though nothing had happened. Later he was taken into custody by the Chief of Police, and after being questioned the applicant freely and voluntarily made a complete statement of what had occurred according to his best recollection.

The applicant has now served seven months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime. His prison record is excellent. He was only twenty years old when this crime was committed.

The trial District Attorney appeared in person before the Board and stated that the trial Judge and he were both favorable to clemency.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the youth of the applicant when the crime was committed; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his excellent prison record; and the fact that the trial Judge and trial District Attorney both recommend clemency, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Olaf Stenger.

Board of Pardons.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 15, 1926.

Sir: At No. 391, February Sessions, 1925, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Luzerne, Stephen Insalaco was convicted of manslaughter, and on September 30, 1925, was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $500.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary for a term of not less than five years nor more than ten years.

The applicant is thirty-eight years of age, of Italian nationality, but owes allegiance to the United States, and a miner by occupation. At the time of his arrest he resided in the City of Pittston, Pa. He has a wife and three small children who require support. He also provided for an aged mother and five orphan children of a deceased sister.

The applicant was the owner of a house and lot in Pittston. For some time there had been a boundry line dispute between him and Sam Turco, who owned the adjoining property. The applicant had consulted a lawyer with reference to the matter. No fence stood along the disputed line, but Turco had commenced to set posts on the ninth day of April, 1923, and was so engaged about five o'clock in the evening when the applicant came along on his way home. He walked from the street on his own land to the point where Turco had a fence post in an open hole, and remonstrated with him, suggesting that the trouble be decided in a peaceful and lawful manner. While so engaged in discussion the applicant stood near the post in a stooping position. Suddenly Turco violently forced the loose post against the head of the applicant, striking him to the ground and dazing him. While he was prostrate Turco raised an axe as to strike the applicant, whereupon the latter drew a revolver and fired one shot with fatal results. The applicant suffering from the blow and in a condition of panic fled from town and remained away until May, 1925, when he returned voluntarily and surrendered himself to the Sheriff.

The applicant has now served one year and two months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

His wife, his mother and eight children are dependent on him for support. The Mayor of Pittston, the Chief of Police, the Superintendent and Mine Foreman of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, and other citizens ask clemency. There was also filed with the Board a petition of citizens asking pardon and certifying to the applicant's peaceable disposition, good citizenship and the need of his large family for support.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the prior good record of the applicant; the term of imprisonment already served; the need which his wife and large family, have of support; the recommendations of the Mayor of the City, Chief of Police, Coal Company officials, and other citizens, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law abiding citizen.

Sir: At No. 35, June Sessions, 1920, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Allegheny, Norman Grandle was convicted of robbery and receiving stolen goods, and on June 25, 1920, was sentenced to pay a fine of 6¼c, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a period of not less than four years nor more than five years. The Jury in their verdict recommended the applicant "to the extreme mercy of the Court". This sentence to take effect at the expiration of sentence imposed in No. 16, in the same term and in the Same Court. The last mentioned sentence has been completed.

The applicant is a native-born citizen of the United States, thirty-three years of age and unmarried. He is a steam fitter and plumber by occupation and was so employed at the time of his arrest. He is sole support of his mother, now sixty-four years of age. Since his confinement his mother has been compelled to make her home with the applicant's aunt in Carrick, Pa., the aunt being in very poor circumstances.

The applicant, and one Willard Williams, were charged with having attacked one Matt Kofer and robbed him of the sum of $380.00, they being armed with revolvers. The crime is alleged to have been committed on May 1, 1920 about 10:30 P. M. The applicant claims that on the evening of the day in question he returned home, and after changing his clothes went to the home of a lady friend, with whom he kept company, and remained with her from 7:15 until five minutes of twelve o'clock, arriving home about 1:00 A. M. The lady at the trial of the case went on the stand and testified that the applicant was in her company the entire evening. There was filed with the Board the affidavit of Mary E. Miller in which she avers that the applicant called at her home shortly after seven o'clock in the evening and that he was constantly in her presence until after eleven o'clock that same evening.

The applicant has now served six years and almost six months of the two terms of imprisonment. It does not appear from the history of the case when the sentence imposed in No. 16 expired. His prior record is good with the exception that he served one year at the Huntingdon Reformatory as a boy for carrying concealed deadly weapons. His aged mother is dependent on him for support. Employment has been offered him if released.

The District Attorney, who was present at the hearing before the Board, verbally recommended pardon. Reverend T. F. King, of Pittsburgh, who appeared in advocacy of clemency, offered to become sponsor for the future good conduct of the applicant.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case, the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; the terms of imprisonment already served; because his aged mother is dependent on him for support; the fact that a good position awaits him, if released; because the District Attorney of Allegheny County recommends pardon; and because a reputable citizen has agreed to become sponsor for the applicant's future good conduct, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

Harrisburg, Pa., December 15, 1926.

Sir: At Nos. 68, 68½ and 69, December Sessions, 1921, in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Fayette, Paul Rusko and Odas Shingleton pleaded guilty to three indictments charging them with robbery, felonious assault (two counts), pointing fire arms, and larceny, and on January 3, 1922, were each sentenced in the aggregate to pay a fine of 18 cents, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than nine years nor more than fourteeen years.

Both applicants are native-born citizens of the United States, twenty-one years of age at the time of their arrest and unmarried. Both resided with applicant Rusko's parents in Uniontown, Fayette County. By occupation applicant Rusko is a miner, and applicant Shingleton a painter. At the time of their arrest they were without work, idleness being caused by a strike in the mines, and as a result gave way to dissipation.

On October 2, 1921, both applicants were in town and drank considerable liquor. About eleven o'clock that night they went to the home of Mrs. Sarah Williams, in Uniontown. They did not enter the house, but sat down on the porch and fell asleep. During the day in the course of their drinking and wandering they were told by Guy Marro, an Italian who operated a store situated across the street from a gas station of the Gulf Refining Company, that said company carried a considerable amount of cash in their office and suggested to them that if they were in need of money they could obtain it by holding-up the night watchman, who was stationed at the office of the company. Marro further informed them that the money was kept in a small sack near the cash register. The applicants, later in the night, evidently followed his suggestion. About two o'clock in the morning they were aroused from their sleep on the William's porch and invited to come inside if they wished to sleep, but instead the applicants left the house, and in passing the home of Orville Frazee, with whom they were acquainted, they took his automobile which was parked beside the house and drove to the office of the Gulf Refining Company where they held-up the night watchman, taking his gun away from him and rifling the cash register. They took away the contents amounting to $41.00. The night watchman was unmolested, except for a slight bruise on his head which he sustained in the scuffle when he refused to give up his gun. When he realized that robbery was being committed he called for help. His cries were overheard by one Garrardi, who started shooting in the direction of where the applicants were standing, and the latter becoming frightened ran away, leaving the automobile on the street in front of the Refining Company's office. The applicants fired several shots, but not at any one as they were a block away from the place when the shots were fired. Both were shortly thereafter arrested.

Both applicants have now served four years and eleven months of their terms of imprisonment. They were never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The owner of the car, which was used, has filed with the Board a letter recommending clemency. The trial District Attorney has filed a letter recommending a pardon for Rusko. The Chief County Detective has filed a letter with the Board asking pardon for both applicants. We have other letters from prominent citizens and a petition of citizens filed to the same effect.

Lieutenant George W. Freeman, of the State Police, who arrested the applicants for the crimes above described, appeared in person before the Board and advocated clemency and offered to become sponsor for their future good conduct.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the prior good record of the applicants; the terms of imprisonment already served; because of the recommendations of the trial District Attorney, County Detective, the owner of the car used, and other citizens; because the families of the applicants require their assistance and support; and beacuse of the further fact that Lieutenant Freeman, of the State Police, who was active in their arrest, has offered to become sponsor for their future good conduct, we have concluded that they have been sufficiently punished, and that if now released, will prove themselves useful and law-abiding citizens.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Paul Rusko and Odas Shingleton, respectively.

Sir: At No. 29, May Term, 1922, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in and for the County of Westmoreland, Allen Braithwaite was convicted of murder in the second degree, and on September 29, 1922, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00, costs and to undergo imprisonment in the Western State Penitentiary for a term of not less than eight years nor more than fourteen years.

The aplicant is seventy-eight years of age, an Englishman by birth, but a naturalized American citizen. He was a farmer and also a music teacher and piano tuner, traveling about, tuning pianos and giving music lessons in the vicinity of his home, which was in East Huntingdon Township, Westmoreland County. The aplicant was married in England in 1873. In 1892, he and his wife bought a farm on which they had lived four years before the purchase, title to which was taken in their joint names. The couple had thirteen children, five of whom are still living.

The applicant was charged with having killed his wife on the night of November 17, 1921. The trial disclosed that there had never been any serious trouble between them, their difficulties being minor differences within their home. There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy resulting in the death of Mrs. Braithwaite. The contention of the Commonwealth was that the applicant and his wife had engaged in a quarrel during which the latter had been handled so roughly that she died in consequence thereof. The applicant was convicted wholly on circumstantial evidence and upon conflicting statements alleged to have been made by him immediately following the finding of the body of his wife, at which time he was in a highly nervous state as a result of personal injuries inflicted upon him, as he alleged, by robbers who had entered his home on the night of the quarrel. He claimed that he had been hit on the head and knocked down a flight of stairs and had remained unconscious for several hours following the encounter. The morning after the quarrel he went to the home of the nearest neighbor and reported what had occurred the night before. The trial of the case did not occur for almost one year after the death of the wife, owing to the impaired physical condition of the applicant.. The applicant was seventy-three years of age at the time of the tragedy.

He has now served four years and two months of his term of imprisonment. He was never before charged with or convicted of crime.

The resident physician of the penitentiary has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that the applicant was in the prison hospital from January 22, 1925, to February 24, 1925, and at that time a diagnosis of hardening of the arteries and senile deterioration was made; that he was readmitted to the hospital March 30, 1925, and has remained there ever since; that he is sick, nervous and losing strength every day; and that his condition is grave and a fatal termination may be expected at any time.

The trial District Attorney has filed with the Board a letter in which he states that he has read the report of the physical condition of the applicant filed with the Board by the resident physician, and that if his physical condition appears to the Board as serious, he will heartily join in the application for pardon.

John S. Dibler, a life long friend and neighbor of the applicant, has filed a letter with the Board in which he offers to receive and keep the applicant in his household and care for him until his death, believing that he has but a short time to live and that the present condition of his health entitled him to a pardon.

In consideration of all the circumstances of this case; the doubt as to the guilt of the applicant; his prior good record; the term of imprisonment already served; his advanced age and serious physical condition as shown by the letter of the resident physician on file; and because a life long friend has offered a home and care so long as he lives, we have concluded that he has been sufficiently punished, and that if now released he will prove himself a useful and law-abiding citizen.

We, therefore, "after full hearing upon due public notice and in open session", recommend that a pardon be now granted to the said Allen Braithwaite.

Letter of Transmittal

Honorable Gifford Pinchot,
Governor of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir:

I transmit herewith the report of the Giant Power Board created by your Executive Order of June 24, 1925, "to set the (Giant Power) problem in a clear light before the people and to co-ordinate toward its partial solution all the executive administrative authority given by existing law."

To further the first of these objects it is recommended that this report be printed.

The vision of the problem to be put before the people and the use to be made, for its partial solution, of executive and administrative authority under existing law, have been in a peculiar sense tasks of your administration, now drawing to its end. It is therefore further recommended that the Giant Power Board be now dissolved.

Very sincerely yours,

PHILIP P. WELLS,
Chairman, Giant Power Board.

REPORT OF THE GIANT POWER BOARD TO THE GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA, 1926

Honorable Gifford Pinchot,
Governor of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Sir:

In your message transmitting the report of the Giant Power Survey Board to the General Assembly, Session of 1925, you said:

> "Next to a supply of natural resources sufficient to feed, clothe, and shelter our people, this is the greatest of the economic questions which face the human race. I do not raise it. It has raised itself. As Pennsylvania and the Nation deal with electric power so shall we and our descendants be free men, masters of our own destinies and our own souls, or we shall be the helpless servants of the most widespread, far-reaching, and penetrating monopoly ever known. Either we must control electric power, or its masters and owners will control us."

The Power Problem

The power problem is but one phase of the problem of natural resources—how may they be put to use without waste and entrusted to private enterprise without oppression but with opportunity for just profit. Twenty years ago you proposed an answer in a public policy to which you gave the name—"the conservation of natural resources." For that policy you secured the powerful support of President Roosevelt. With his backing you put it in force as to forests, as to grazing lands and, so far as possible under inadequate laws, as to water power, on a large part of the vast domain owned by the Federal Government in the West. You proposed new laws for the disposal of the mineral fuels, fertilizers in the national public domain and of the water power on the national public domain and in navigable rivers. You kept these proposals before Congress and the country until their enactment in the Potash Leasing Act, the General Mineral Leasing Act of 1920, and the Federal Water Power Act of 1920. It was the privilege of the undersigned to be associated with you in this work. The Pennsylvania Giant Power program is but its latest phase.

The Federal Water Power Act

The Federal Water Power Act governs the disposal of three-fourths of the water power resources of the United States. By imposing conditions on the Federal license to develop water power on lands of the United States and in navigable rivers it set up a new economic policy. The heart of that policy is that licenses shall be limited to a maximum term of fifty years, at the end of which the property may be taken over by the Government or be handed over to a new licensee upon the payment of the "net investment" in the project, defined as "the actual legitimate cost thereof.... Provided, That such net investment shall not include or be affected by the value of any lands, rights of way, or other property of the United States licensed by the commission under this Act, by the license, or by good will, going value, or prospective revenues: Provided further, That the values allowed for water rights, rights of way, lands, or interest in lands shall not be in excess of the actual reasonable cost thereof at the time of acquisition by the licensee."

This provision of the license contract is a character of liberties for the people of all the states because it rescues three-quarters of their water power resources from the application of the unjust legal rule that a public service corporation is entitled to a return upon the increase in the value of water rights and other natural resources entrusted to it as the agent of the people for their service—an increase not due to any investment, sacrifice or service by the corporation but solely due either to the enlarged necessities of the people by reason of increased numbers and a higher standard of living or to a decreased supply of power resources. But for this beneficent provision of the Federal Water Power Act and its counterpart in state statutes the value of a water power would be measured by the value of the competing fuel source of power—coal, which must increase as the coal deposits are progressively exhausted. This was illustrated by the attempt to guarantee for the Conowingo project future increases in the price of the electric current output in proportion to future increases in the price of coal, an attempt which failed, as stated later in this report.

The peculiar circumstances of that project enabled you to appeal to the Federal Power Commission for the protection of citizens of Pennsylvania denied to them by their own laws. But in the great majority of water power projects the Federal Water Power Act passes on to the states the duty of regulating the licensee by provisions requiring him, under penalty of forfeiture of the license, to abide by regulation of rates, service and security issues by the Public Service Commission of the State, and making the "net investment" the basis upon which must be calculated the "fair return" to which the public utility is entitled. Only in the event that any state fails to empower its public service commission to regulate rates, service or security issues, is the Federal Power Commission empowered to do so and only to the extent of such failure.

The Giant Power Board

By the Limited Power Permit Act of June 14, 1923, P. L. 704, you secured the extension of the "net investment" principle to all the meager water power resources of Pennsylvania thereafter developed for use in public electric service. By the Giant Power Bills you sought to secure its extension over steam-generated public utility power, to effect other needed reforms in the regulation of rates, service and security issues, to encourage cheap mass-production at the source (the coal-fields) and cheap mass transportation by long-distance high-tension transmission to the load centers (practices common in the utilization of the great water powers of the Pacific Slope and Rocky Mountains), and to require the establishment of a state-wide power pool in such fashion as to secure for the consumers the great cheapening of current attainable by pooling.

After the first defeat of the Giant Power Bills you created this Board by your letter of June 24, 1925 (Appendix 1) "to set the problem in a clear light before the people and to co-ordinate toward its partial solution all the executive and administrative authority given by existing law."

All members of the Board except Mr. Cooke have been throughout their tenure officers of the Commonwealth. Mr. Cooke, who was the Director of the Giant Power Survey under the former Board generously contributed much time and thought, also the extensive use of his office in Philadelphia to the work of the Board, for all of which the Commonwealth is under an obligation of gratitude to him.

Finances and Employed Personnel

By an arrangement between the Budget Officer and the Public Service Commission under the Administrative Code there were transferred from the salary roll of the Public Service Commission to that of the Department of Property and Supplies, as of July 16, 1925, employees rendering custodial service to the Commission at $480 per month. This was done to enable the Commission to employ expert assistance for studies within its powers and desired by the Giant Power Board. For such studies there have been employed by the Commission:—

Mr. Otto M. Rau from to date, @ $300 per month.
Henry N. Woolman, Jr., to July 31, 1926, @ $125 per month.
Ernest Bradford for the lump sum of $250.
Ralph E. Haines from November 23, 192 to ,@ $1 per hour.

The following table shows an accrued unexpended balance from this source as of November 30, 1926, of $1054, (from which should be deducted the amount earned by Mr. Haines), and an estimated accrued unexpended balance as of January 15, 1927, of $1324.

Meetings and Conferences

At the outset the Board agreed that for the doing of the task set by you it should proceed by discussion with a view to the meeting of minds but without formal requests for specific action by existing state agencies.

Experience proved that such discussion could best be carried on by informal conferences among members of the Board as the need arose rather than in formal meetings and that method has, in general been followed.

Legislation Proposed in 1925

To carry out the recommendations of the Giant Power Survey Board nineteen bills were prepared in the Department of Justice, introduced in the House at the regular Session of 1925 and referred to the Committee on Manufactures (House Bill Nos. 1040-1057 and 1360-1363).

If analyzed from the point of view of benefits conferred and burdens imposed on the companies these bills proposed to change existing law in 29 particulars. Of these changes 7 enlarged the privileges of the companies, 8 imposed no over interstate transmission, 4 imposed very light burdens on the companies, 2 enabled farmers to organize effectively burdens on them, 2 were essential to preserve state control for buying current at wholesale and distributing it to themselves at their own expense; and only 2 provided for more stringent regulation.

Nevertheless legislative counsel for the Pennsylvania Electric Association stated openly to the Committee that the companies were opposed to every one of the bills and every item in them. In view of the strength of this opposition the efforts of the Administration were concentrated upon the bill to continue the Giant Power Survey Board (No. 1043) and the two farmers' bills (Nos. 1361 and 1363). At the Committee hearing the companies centered their attack on the engineering aspects of the bills for incorporating Giant Power companies (No. 1056) and for controlling them by permits from the Giant Power Board (No. 1054). Evidence was introduced to show that the proposed Giant Power plants in the coalfields to deliver current over 220,000 volt transmission lines to the load centers in the eastern part of the State either could not be operated at all, or if operated, could not compete with plants at the seaboard. That this argument was a blind to divert the attention of the committee and of the public from the real objections of the companies is clear because there was nothing in the bills calling for the expenditure of a single dollar of either public or private money in mine-mouth plants or 220,000 volt lines. The bills simply authorized the organization of corporations for that purpose and gave them powers suitable to accomplish it, if feasible. If not clearly feasible so as to promise profit to private investors no money would be invested in giant power plants. Therefore the existing electric companies would have had no interest in the question and would have saved themselves the expense and trouble of opposing the legislation.

Reason For Opposition by The Companies

The true reasons for their opposition were three. First, they dreaded, as a precedent, the proposed fifty-year time limit for permits to Giant Power companies and the restriction of their earnings to a fair return on the money actually invested in them as shown by properly supervised accounts. Second, the existing companies wished to defeat the bill for compulsory pooling (No. 1057) for the same reasons that moved the railroads to oppose legislation requiring interconnection and the interchange of traffic half a century ago. Third, they wished to defeat the grant of enlarged regulatory powers to the Public Service Commission and the setting up of new and just standards of regulation (Bill No. 1047). The heart of that bill was in the three principles: (a) that the "fair return" to which the investor is entitled should be calculated upon the amount of money prudently invested in the property as shown by properly supervised accounting. (This principle governs all electric power generated by water power under the Federal Water Power Act, whether used in Pennsylvania or elsewhere; also—since the passage of the Act of June 11 1923, P. L. 700—to all other public utility power generated in Pennsylvania from water power); (b) that the total par value of stocks and bonds should be equal to this rate-base. (This has been the law of Massachusetts for a generation); and (c) that the "fair return" should be varied from time to time so as to be enough to keep the common stock of a well managed company slightly above par in the stock market, but no more than enough for that purpose. (This principle was appealed to by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in the period of high interest rates aftre the War to justify an increase of dividend from eight to nine per cent which carried the market price of the stock from slightly below to slightly above par and was followed by the issue of new stock to finance extensions. If this principle had been in effect during the period of high interest and high prices following the war it would have saved many utilities from bankruptcy and all from injustice and hardship). The effective adoption of these three principles would abolish at a blow the practice of basing the "fair return" upon the value of the property at the time of regulation as shown by inventory and expert estimate. This practice is a violation of economic and a perversion of legal principles. It subjects every consumer to an ever increasing price burden by reason of increased demand through the growth of the population and through its intelligence, energy and labor in raising the standard of living; also by reason of decreased supply of the natural resources through exhaustion. It makes the consumer and the utility gambler on the fluctuating general price level. It gives the utility in every disputed case an unfair and great advantage over the public in the service of specially trained lawyers, engineers and accountants. It is enormously expensive and the consumer pays the expense of both sides, win or lose, because the expense of the utility is an operating expense which must be paid out of the rates. It ignores the principle of competition operating through the law of supply and demand at the only point where it can be applied to public utility monopolies, namely at the point where the monopoly must compete in the security market for new capital. It is necessarily time consuming beyond measure, and for this reason it cannot be worked in practice for the state-wide and constant regulation of rates. Even if the personnel and expenses of the Commission were multiplied by twenty it could never keep up with the task. As it is, nearly all utility rates are unregulated nearly all the time.

A fourth reason for opposition by the companies ought to be added: They did not wish the abolition of the "twilight zone" of interstate transmission where they are not regulated by Federal authority and cannot be regulated by state authority.

The 1926 Bills

The Board selected the seven most important bills for introduction in the extraordinary session of 1925, with some changes. They dealt with the Giant Power Board and giant power companies (3 bills); the state-wide pooling of electric service (1 bill); the regulation of electric service (1 bill); electric service to farmers (2 bills). They were introduced in the Senate (Senate Bills Nos. 31-37) and referred to the Committee on Corporations.

No. 31 would create a Giant Power Board with the same investigative powers that were given to the Giant Power Survey Board in 1923. The other bills would give the Board wide regulative and directory powers as to the development and use of the power resources of the Commonwealth.

No. 32 would amend the Corporation Act to permit the creation of Giant Power Companies, public service generating companies and public service transmission companies, give to the Giant Power companies and the transmission companies the right to condemn for their use such land as the Giant Power Board finds necessary and prohibit any taking of land by any electric company without such a finding of necessity. The provision of the 1925 bills giving Giant Power companies the right to condemn leaseholds in coal land is omitted.

No. 37 would give the Board authority to issue to Giant Power companies 50-year permits without which they cannot do business. They would operate steam stations of very large capacity (300,000 kilowatts minimum) in or near the coal fields, recover the by-products of coal before burning it, sell by-products, operate transmission lines of very large capacity (110,000 volts minimum) crossing the State from west to east and connecting with existing company lines. They would sell current only to electric companies of the usual type, but these would be obligated by other bills to sell this current to consumers at reasonable prices. The organization of Giant Power companies and the taking of Giant Power permits by them would be left wholly to private initiative. There is nothing whatever compulsory about this part of the legislation. It merely seeks to make attractive to business enterprises this kind of large-scale power development, and to assure benefits to consumers if private initiative does develop this type of business.

The Giant Power plan includes the integration of electric service throughout the State, that is, the creation of one state-wide power pool into which all producers will pour their output and from which all consumers will take current. The first step to such pooling is the interconnection of all major electric systems by means of their connections with the state-crossing Giant Power lines. The 1925 pooling bill would have completed the state-wide pool by making each major transmission system a common carrier of current from generating plants (sellers) to local distibution systems (buyers). Theefore it would have required the transmission business to be formally segregated from the business of generation and distribution and to be entrusted to separate corporations which were forbidden to buy, sell, or distribute current. Because of criticism of this segregation requirment the fourth 1926 bill (No. 36) would bring about pooling by imposing on the operators of transmission lines the duty of purchasing without discrimination from all producers and the duty of delivery with discrimination to all distributing systems, whether operated by themselves or by others. To make this possible the Board would divide the whole state into transmission districts in accordance with existing major transmission systems so that every acre in the State will be in some one district. Each system must assume this duty of common purchaser and common seller for its district, so that the entire State would thus be able to get current from the major transmission systems which in turn can get it from the Giant Power companies.

The fifth (regulating) bill of 1926 (No. 34) was substantially the same as the 1925 bill above discussed.

The sixth and seventh bills are unchanged from the 1925 bills. They would give to farmers the privilege of building their own distribution systems of connecting these lines, at their own expense, with any company's transmission line and of purchasing current at wholesale at the average cost of generation and distribution over the selling company's whole system, unless this connection and service should reduce the average daily busy time ("capacity factor") of the selling system, in which case the wholesale price would be equitably increased. Under the sixth bill (No. 33) farm service would be through incorporated electric districts, under the seventh (No. 35) through mutual electric companies. The districts would be public ownership units specially created by referendum vote of the landowners (a 60 per cent majority). The mutual companies would be privately owned and operated primarily for the service of their stockholders. The districts and the mutual companies would bear the whole cost of distribution. Neither could be organized in territory which was otherwise adequately served.

The hearings on the bills before the joint legislative committees (Senate Corporations and House Manufactures) held in the Senate Chamber January 26 and February 2, 1926, were printed in a pamphlet of one hundred and three pages. The advocates of the bills put in evidence proving conclusively the enormous profits of large holding companies controlling power companies operating in Pennsylvania. During the hearings Professer Lincoln, head of the Electrical Engineering Department of Cornell University, testifying for the companies, stated on cross examination that he had never made a study and recommended as feasible a giant power plant in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, transmitting the energy thus developed to a load center in the Eastern part of the state over a transmission line of 220-000 volts pressure. He was confronted with a report made by him in 1919 in which he had made such a recommendation after investigation. He explained his denial by saying that he had forgotten his study and report.

The vigorous opposition of the companies again killed all the bills in committee.

For a better understanding of the Giant Power legislation there are appended to this report the Report of the Giant Power Survey Board to the General Assembly, Session of 1925, recommendng the legislation in its original form; also a paper by the undersigned published in the National Municipal Review of October, 1926, and which is here submitted as a brief, clear and comprehensive statement of the Giant Power proposals as revised in details to date; also the text of the Giant Power Bills (Appendices 2, 3 and 4).

Rural Electric Service

"An abundant and cheap supply of electric current..... for the..... farms ..... of this Commonwealth" was one of the objects expressed in the Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 449, providing for the Giant Power Survey. Though nearly all the area of the State is within the charter limits of the companies, which have thereby assumed the burden of supplying this "chartered territory" with power, the survey found less than six per cent. of the farms in the State receiving utility power.

For this, two practices of the companies were responsible—that of requiring the farmer to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of constructing the extension built to serve him, and that of fixing rural rates so high as to discourage large use by farmers. The contributions exacted for the construction of rural extensions were inexplicable upon any common principle. The rural rates seem generally to have followed the principle laid down by the sixth paragraph of the Rural Lines Code of the National Electric Light Association (Electrical World Nov. 17, 1923), namely; "Rates for rural service shall be regular city rates plus a rural charge." This ignores the fact that the farmer should be looked at as a power consumer rather than a light consumer, needing current for his home and farm far beyond the requirements of the city man having an equal standard of living. The Giant Power Bills would have met the farmer's peculiar needs by the following measures: Provisions in the regulation bill (No. 1047, Session of 1925) empowering the Public Service Commission to set a uniform standard of rates or of the methods of computing them; Cancellation of power company charters as to territory not now served and not likely to be served in the near future, this to be done by administrative action after due notice and hearing; authorizing the setting up by the farmers in unserved territory local distribution systems to buy current at wholesale and distribute it to themselves at cost either through new local public ownership organizations called rural electric districts or through new distributing corporations organized in the co-operative principle (one man—one vote; profiits to be divided in proportion to the current consumed).

Upon the defeat of these measures in the Session of 1925, the Giant Power Board took up the task of relieving the farmers under existing law. Long drawn out hearings were held by the Public Service Commission upon a tentative order requiring the companies to build such lines, and establishing a uniform standard of the rates to be charged to farmers throughout the state, subject to exceptions upon proof to the Commission that compliance with the order would work hardships upon any particular company. In spite of the vigorous opposition of the companies, the Commission on January 12, 1926, issued the order known as General Order No. 27. It standardized the duty of the companies to make and build extensions. Under it every company must build extensions upon the demand of farmers who pledge themselves to take service over the new lines. Every separate mile of line for which there are three or more consumers so pledged in advance is to built at the company's expense without contribution from the farmers. For every separate mile for which there are less than three consumers pledged in advance, the company must pay toward the cost of construction $300 for each such pledged consumer.

The order did not fix any standard rate, because the regulation bill above mentioned giving it authority to do so had been defeated by the companies. They now attempted to have the order set aside by an appeal to the Superior Court, which was thrown out. Many of them now proceeded to nullify the order by filing schedules of rates so high that farmers would not pledge themselves to take service. Upon the advice of the Board you urged the Public Service Commission to attack these rate schedules by a proceeding undertaken on the Complaint of the Commission itself, but up to this time, the Commission has done nothing along that line. Nevertheless General Order No. 27 is a very important advanced step in rural electrification. Farmers who can by any means afford to take the service should pledge themselves to do so and secure the construction of the lines. Such a pledge would bind them for only one year, and once they are taking service they will be in a much better position to demand properly low rates than they are when they are not taking service. It is interesting to note that many of the companies which have neglected their duty to serve farmers in their chartered territory have sought to obtain new charters in new territory, much of which they have no present intention of serving. Such applications in large numbers are now pending before you. The advice of the Board thereon awaits information from the Public Service Commission requested October 16, 1926, as to the level of the rates charged in schedules filed under General Order No. 27 by those existing companies which are respectively interested in the several applications. Examples of such rates per hundred kilowatt hours are shown by a table prepared in the Bureau of Engineering of the Public Service Commission as a part of a report on operations under General Order No. 27.

Copies of the Order and of said table are appended to this report (Appendices 5 and 6).

Conowingo Project Regulation

Notwithstanding the fact that the power companies succeeded in defeating the Giant Power Bills and so prevented the granting of authority to the Public Service Commission to regulate security issues and the limitation of the par value of all securities to the amount of money prudently invested, you succeeded in having this principle applied to the great water power development on the Susquehanna River for the supply of electircity to Philadelphia. In the Federal Water Power Act it is provided that where electric power coming from water power project built under Federal license enters into interstate commerce the Commissions of the two states concerned are authorized to regulate rates, service and security issues to the extent that they are empowered by state laws and are in agreement. So far as they are not empowered or do not agree, the Federal Power Commission is required to regulate these matters. The dam and power house of the Conowingo project are to be in Maryland. Land in Maryland and Pennsylvania is to be flooded by the dam. The power is to be transmitted across the Pennsylvania-Maryland state line for the supply of Philadelphia. The bankers financing the project proposed to issue enough bonds and preferred stocks to pay the entire estimated cost and in addition 94,200 shares of "no par" common stock of Classes A and B. All the voting power of the corporation was to be concentrated in Class B common stock. which would not have contributed a dollar to the enterprise. You therefore requested the Federal Power Commission to limit the par of bonds and stock to the estimated cost of the project, to disallow the issue of any "no par" stock and to disallow non-voting stock. The Federal Power Commission took the action that you requested as to prohibiting "no par" stock and limiting the par of bonds and stocks to the actual investment.

The Federal Water Power Act of itself establishes the "prudent investment" rate-base for this project, and the proposal of the company that the price paid by the consumers for the electricity generated by this great water power should increase with future increase in the price of coal was therefore rejected. Your fourteen years fight for the enactment of this statute has saved the people of Philadelphia from this extortion and the fixing of the security par as equal to the net investment by the action of the Federal Power Commission on your initiative (the first action of the kind taken by that Commission) has saved them from the deception as to actual investment which is the purpose and effect of security inflation.

Copies of your correspondence with the Federal Power Commission on this subject are appended to this report (Appendix 7).

The saving in rates secured for the people of Philadelphia by your leadership in this matter are conservatively estimated at one million dollars per year.

Studies of the Inter-Corporate Relations and Financing of Power Companies

From Moody's Manual of Public Utilities, the Wall Street Journal, the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, the Electrical World and occasional items appearing in other journals the Board undertook the compilation of a card index of authorative current information about the financing and intercorporate relations of power companies and other related topics. This was continued until the resignation of Mr. Woolman, effective August 1st, 1926. A memorandum thus compiled was submitted January 26th, 1926, to the joint legislative committee considering the Giant Power Bills of 1926. It is referred to at page 7 of the printed hearings entitled: "Giant Power Proceedings before the Committee on Corporations of the Senate and the Manufacture Committee of the House of Representatives, being a Joint Hearing on Senate Giant Power Bills, Numbers 32, 33, 34, 35, 36 and 37, Extraordinary Session of 1926." It shows the increase in value from 1920 to 1925, of the Common Stocks of ten holding companies having subsidiaries operating electric utilities in Pennsylvania. From the high stock market price of 1920, to the high price of 1925, the stock of these holding companies outstanding in 1920, had an average increase in value of one hundred and ninety-six per cent (195.96%). The value of the stock of one of them (The American Water Works and Electric Company) outstanding in 1920, increased ten thousand two hundred and fourteen per cent (10,213.9%). A copy of this memorandum is attached to this report (Appendix 8).

Studies of the "Spread" of Rates Charged to Different Classes of Consumers and of the Cost of Serving Each Class

From data submitted by the Companies to the Public Service Commission in response to a questionnaire, and from the annual reports of the Companies to the Commission for the year 1924, the Board caused studies to be made by Mr. Otto M. Rau, as to the "spread" of electric rates (difference in money change to different classes of consumers for equal amounts of current) and of the cost incurred by the companies for serving each class. These studies are attached to this report (Appendices 9 and 10). They are believed to be the first of their kind and to lay the foundation for scientific rate-making. What is pretentiously called "rate structure" by the companies is in fact largely the haphazard survival of the customs of the industry as developed from the early days when lighting was the only service rendered and was necessarily expensive, through the later period of competition which reduced the rates to other classes of users but left the householder to the sole protection of regulation by the commissions. It is noteworthy that "effort was made to obtain from the electric power utilities in the State, the allocation of costs by which they arrived at the charges for service as per schedules filed with the Bureau of Rates and Tariffs." The practical result was an almost general admission by the companies that no such allocation of costs could be made, and that the rate schedules were not arrived at by consideration of comparative costs but from experience and competition. The contentions therefore are fully sustained that rates do not reflect costs and that where no competition exists the highest rates are charged, and where there is competition rates sufficiently low to get the business are made, irrespective of the cost to serve. Moreover "the reports" (of the companies) "to the Public Service Commission as now submitted are not classified so as to give the data necessary for alloting costs to rate schedules."

Mr. Rau's studies show:

That the peak load of the state-wide pool which would have resulted from the passage of the Giant Power Bills would occur between 8 and 12 o'clock in the morning throughout the year.

That domestic service is largely off-peak and should be rated as such.

That the cost to serve small consumers is only three times that of serving large consumers but that the former are commonly charged ten times as much as the latter for the same amount of current, and that this discrimination against the small consumer should be corrected;

That rates should be standardized and based upon the cost to serve each class of consumers.

That with every rate schedule there should be filed an allocation of costs showing in detail the cost to the company of furnishing the service covered by the schedule.

That the form of annual reports required from the companies should show accurate allocation of costs to serve each class of consumers, the amount of fixed capital devoted to generation transmission and distribution respectively, the load factor and the capacity factor.

That the annual reports and the rate schedules should be abstracted and tabulated by the Commission and kept up to date for ready references, so that analysis of new rates as filed can be given prompt and effective attention.

Regulation of Interstate Commerce in Electric Power

The Superior Court of the United States has not yet passed upon the regulation of the transmission of power from one state to another, but nearly all qualified students of the subject look for the extension to this field of the rules laid down by that court upon the carriage of oil and gas by pipe-line, of news by telegraph, and of passenger and freight traffic by motor bus lines. Under these rules all power transmission across state lines in whatever quantity and to whomsoever delivered is interstate commerce which may be regulated by Congress.

As to interstate transmission of electric power generated by water power under a license from the Federal Power Commission, Congress has set up a scheme of regulation in section 20 of the Federal Water Power Act of 1920. (Rates, service, and security issues of interstate transmitters to be regulated by the commissions of the States concerned so for as they are empowered and agree, but insofar as they lack power or are not agreed regulations to be done by the Federal Power Commission). As to all other interstate transmission of electric power Congress has done nothing. It follows that in all cases where the transmitter across the state boundary itself delivers the power directly to the consumer, the regulatory commission of the receiving state can regulate the interstate transmission until Congress undertakes the task. But if the transmitter delivers the power to a distributing company in the receiving state which in turn sells to the consumer neither that state nor any other can regulate the interstate business between the two companies notwithstanding Congress does nothing about it.

Interstate transmission is destined to grow rapidly. For Pennsylvania the exports already amount to seven per cent of the production and the imports eight per cent. In North Carolina the percentages are much larger. The necessity of protecting the consumer by regulation of this "twilight zone" was recognized by the report of the Power Committee of the New England Conference at Hartford, November 18, 1926, with the concurrence of cooperating representatives of the New England power industry and of the regulatory Commissions of those states.

The report of the Giant Power Survey Board in 1925 advocated the undertaking by the states on their own initiative of the regulation of this new form of interstate commerce rather than leaving it to Congress. The procedure proposed was the making of interstate compacts with the approval of Congress under Article 1, section 10 of the Constitution of the United States.

The matter was taken up informally by a member of the present Giant Power Board with the Governors of New York and New Jersey with the result that the three Governors, by a statement released to the press Monday morning October 26, 1925, announced that they had appointed commissioners constituting a joint Giant Power Commission to negotiate such a compact for submission to the Legislatures of the three states. Three members of the Giant Power Board (Philip P. Wells, Clyde L. King, and Morris L. Cooke) were designated for this duty by the Board. The representatives of New York were William A. Pendergast, chairman, George R. Lunn, member, and Charles R. Vanneman, chief engineer, of the New York Public Service Commission. Those of New Jersey were Dr. Charles Browne, member of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of New Jersey, Isaac Alpern and Robert F. Engle, well known business men.

The joint Giant Power Commission organized at Princeton, New Jersey, October 31, 1925. Dr. Browne was elected chairman, Mr. Pendergast vice chairman, and Mr. Wells Secretary. An executive committee was set up consisting of the chairman with Messrs. Vanneman, Engle and Wells. At the request of the Joint Commission the Governors of the three negotiating states severally invited the Governors of other states upon their borders each to appoint a representative to act with the Joint Commission as observers and advisers. This was done with a view to protecting the interests of the adjacent states, securing their cooperation and criticism and seeking their future joinder in the compact. In response to these invitations observers and advisers were appointed for the adjacent states as follows:

Ohio: Grover C. Maxwell, formerly Secretary of the Public Service Commission. Technical and Engineering advisers; A. B. Roberts former Director of Public Utilities for the city of Cleveland.

West Virginia: Gray Silver.

Maryland: Harold M. West, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

Connecticut: William E. Putman.

Rhode Island: William C. Bliss, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

Massachuetts: Henry C. Attwill, chairman of Public Utilities.

Vermont: Edward H. Deavitt, Commissioner of Finance.

The Vermont representative attended the second, third, and fourth (final) meetings of the Joint Commission; the Maryland representative the second and fourth meetings, and the Massachusetts representative the fourth meeting. These gentlemen all participated fully and helpfully in the discussion of the Joint Commission

The Pennsylvania Commissioners proposed an outline of a compact in the form of principles to be embodied therein. In part these were amended by the Executive Committee at two meetings held in New York, November 9th and 23rd, 1925, Messrs. Pendergast and Cooke meeting with the committee. In part the Pennsylvania proposals were submitted directly to the Joint Commission at the second meeting held in Philadelphia, December 5, 1925. That meeting also the third meeting held in Trenton, December 12, 1925, and the fourth (final) meeting held in New York, December 21, 1925, were largely given up to the discussion of these proposals, which are embodied in the minutes. They include: The setting up of a Joint Tribunal with power, (as to interstate transmission) to regulate service standards as arbitrato of differences between the commissions of two compact states; to regulate the accounting, rates, service and security issues of all companies doing interstate power business, with liberty however to each state to compel, and to each company to bring about the segregation of interstate transmission business in separately organized corporations; the rate-base to be the amount prudently invested in the enterprise; par of security issues to equal the rate base; no par securities to be prohibited; the fair return to be computed and tentatively fixed at the sum necessary to enable a properly financed company under efficient management to pay prudently dividends on its common stock a sum sufficient to keep it slightly above par in a normal market, reserving the right to any company thereafter to demand a valuation so far as necessary to comply with the controlling rulings of the courts; the construction or enlargement of interstate facilities and the enlargement of existing interstate business over existing facilities by a corporation to be conditioned upon an agreement by the corporation to accept the "Prudent investment" rate base; difference in the cost of service to different classes of consumers to be the basis of different rates for such service; all interstate business to be conducted by corporations organized under the laws of some one of the contracting states; voting of stock in any operating companies of the contracting states by or for holding companies not organized under the laws of one of them prohibited; orders for the production of books, accounts, etc., issued by the regulation commission of any one of the contracting states to have full effect in the other contracting states; interlocking directorates restricted; taxation of interstate utilities not to be affected.

Two of the commissioners from New York opposed the making of any compact and at the final meeting (December 21, 1925) upon a motion by Dr. King (Pennsylvania) a vote was taken on the question whether a compact was desirable. The question carried in the affirmative, New Jersey and Pennsylvania voting in the affirmative, New York in the negative. Thereafter the New York Commissioners withdrew from the negotiations which have not since been renewed.

The Pennsylvania proposals to the Joint Giant Power Commission are believed to be the first constructive attempt to provide by State initiative for the regulation of interstate power service.

The minutes of the Joint Commission; also a map of holding company territory in the three states:—are appended to this report (Appendices 11 and 12).

Respectfully submitted,

Philip P. Wells,
Chairman.

Report of the Giant Power Board (1926)

Executive Order Creating The Giant Power Board

Hon. George W. Woodruff, Attorney General.
Hon. Clyde L. King,* Secretary of the Commonwealth.
Hon. R. Y. Stuart, Secretary of Forests and Waters.
Hon. Harold Evans,* Public Service Commission.
Hon. Morris L. Cooke, 1713 Sansom St., Philadelphia.
Hon. Philip P. Wells, Deputy Attorney General.

Gentlemen:

The situation created by the defeat of all Giant Power legislation by the influence of the power companies makes it necessary to coordinate the activities under existing laws of the several Executive Departments and administrative agencies of the Commonwealth with respect to the public service of electric current. You are, therefore, hereby designated to act with me for this purpose under the name of the Giant Power Board of which I shall myself be a member.

Mr. Philip P. Wells is hereby designated as Chairman of this Giant Power Board.

In my message to the General Assembly at its last session transmitting the report of the Giant Power Survey Board, I summarized the most important of the essentials recommended by that Report for securing cheap and abundant universal power service, as follows:

> "First: Mass production, with opportunity for by-product recovery.
> "Second: The creation of a common pool of power into which current from all sources will be poured, and out of which current for all uses may be taken.
> "Third: Free access by every water power and steam generating station to every potential purchaser, which means every distribution system in the State which supplies the consumer.
> "Fourth: Complete, prompt, and effective regulation of rates, service, and securities issues.
> "Fifth: Rescue of the regulation of electric service from the destruction now threatened by its conversion into interstate commerce, which will be beyond the control of the states and has not been regulated by Congress.
> "Sixth: Systematic extension of service lines throughout the rural districts."

The legislation prepared for securing these essentials included twenty-six (26) items which may be classified as follows:

Enlarging the privileges of the companies	5
Imposing no additional burdens on the companies	8
Preserving State Control from Federal encroachment	2
Imposing slight burdens upon the companies	5
Inducing service to farmers	2
Providing more stringent regulations of the companies	4
	26

The spokesman for the companies declared their opposition to every one of the bills and to every item in every one of them. This opposition resulted in the failure of all of the bills.

As I said in my message:

> "No one who studies the electrical developments already achieved and thus planned electrical monopoly extending into every part of this Nation is inevitable in the very near future. The question before us is not whether there shall be such a monopoly. That we cannot prevent. The question is whether we shall regulate it or whether it shall regulate us.
> "It is almost impossible to imagine the force and intimacy with which such a monopoly will touch and affect, for good or evil, the life of every citizen. The time is fully in sight when every household operation from heating and cooking to sweeping and sewing will be performed by the aid of electrical power; when every article on the average man's breakfast table—every item of his clothing—every piece of his furniture—every tool of his trade—that he himself did not produce, will have been manufactured or transported by electric power; when the home, the farm, and the factory will be electrically lighted, heated, and operated when from morning to night, from the cradle to the grave, electric service will enter at every moment and from every direction into the daily life of every man woman, and child in America."

*Public Service Commissioner Richard W. Martin was added to the Board December 9, 1025. The membership of Mr. Frans terminated January 19 1926. That of Mr. Martin September 15, 1926, and that of Dr. King October 15, 1926, the dates when their terms as Public Service Commissioner and Secretary of the Commonwealth ended.

The problem of giant power, its coming and its control in the public interest, transcends everv other economic issue now before the people of the Commonwealth and of the United States at large, except the greater issue of which it is but a part, namely: the conservation of and common rights in natural resources.

The Administration offered a full solution of this problem through new legislation. The electric companies refused to discuss any item of the legislation in a constructive spirit and prevented the enactment of any part of it. For this result they must accept responsibility. It will be our common task as members of the Giant Power Board to set the problem in a clear light before the people and to coordinate toward its partial solution all the executive and administrative authority given by existing law.

Very truly yours.

Gifford Pinchot.

Appendix II.

Report of The Giant Survey Board to The General Assembly of Pennsylvania (1925)

(With notes showing the bills introduced in 1925 and 1926 to carry out the recommendations.)

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met:

The Giant Power Survey Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 449, placed upon this Board two tasks: An outline survey of the facts; and the recommendation of a policy that will "best secure for the industries, railroads, farms and homes of this Commonwealth an abundant and cheap supply of electric current." The survey and conclusions upon the facts are embodied in the Director's report herewith transmitted and the accompanying technical papers. Having considered the facts so found in the light of sound economic principles, after inviting suggestions from outstanding men connected with the public service electric industry in Pennsylvania, we have deduced and here recommend the main outlines of policy and refer for details to Mr. Wells' paper "Proposals for legislation" which follows the technical reports.

Public power policy must, in Pennsylvaia, be concerned chiefly with electric current produced by steam from the rich bituminous coal deposits in the Western part of the State. Water power supplied only 11 per cent of the 4.25 billion kilowatt hours consumed in the State in 1922, and this percentage must decrease notwithstanding additional quantities that will be brought in from hydro-electric sources beyond our borders and the more intensive development of our own waterpowers which is beginning under the sound legislation of 1923. This legislation has worked well but should be supplemented in minor particulars.

The most important legislative stimulus to intensive water power development would be a statute to put beyond a doubt the legality of the merger and consolidation of hydro-electric and steam-electric generating companies under proper restrictions. This we recommend.[1]

Turning then to the generation of electicity by steam: The essentials are five in number, namely:

1. Adequate public agencies obligated to a scrupulous regard for investors' rights as the surest means of attracting the constant stream of new capital necessary for rapid expansion, but adequately empowered to control and guide this stream toward the social ends easily within reach.

2. Mass production, which means "abundant and cheap" production, at the sources of raw material.

3. Mass transportation, which means "abundant and cheap" transportation, to all parts of the Commonwealth by an integrated system of transmission lines.

4. Effective, simple and stimulating regulation from the coal mine to the power consumer, which means the passing on of the abundance and cheapness to him.

5. Fair and justly regulated interchange of power with other states, which means increased abundance and cheapness.

No one of these essentials now exists in fact or is adequately provided for by our law.

1. For the adequate public agencies we recommend:

(a) The creation of a permanent Giant Power Board in the Department of Forests and Waters to carry on the study of the problem and to direct the application of the natural resources (coal deposits) to state-wide electric service through a competent technical staff, with an appropriation of $150,000 for the first fiscal biennieum.[2] The Board should have power to establish standards of equipment for the electrification of steam railroads in Pennsylvania.[3]

(b) Such enlargement of the powers of the Public Service Commission as will enable it to control adequately at all points the financial and commercial operation of electric facilities. The particulars are given under the fourth essential below.

2. To secure the cheapness and abundance of mass production in the coal fields, with the added economies of by-product recovery, we recommend:

(a) Legislation authorizing the incorporation of giant power generating and giant power transmission companies empowered to do the following things, if and as prescribed in writing by permit from the Giant Power Board, namely: The generating companies:[4]

To construct and operate in the coal fields steam electric stations of not less than 300,000 kilowatts capacity (the minimum size limit indicated for profitable by-product recovery);[5]

To mine coal;[5]

To sell, as an incident to the electric generating business, coal more suitable for by-product recovery elsewhere than in the electric generating station;[6]

To appropriate by condemnation process the right to mine coal on specific lands not to exceed an area reasonably estimated to be sufficient to supply the generating station for not more than 50 years, just compensation to be fixed at the time of appropriation in the form of royalty and secured before the taking;[7]

To make and sell coke, gas, other by-products of coal and chemicals;[8]

To sell at wholesale electric current to public service electric companies for distribution by them in Pennsylvania[9] and for transmission to other states under compacts negotiated as recommended in Section 5, paragraph (e) of this report;

To purchase surplus current from other generating stations;[10]

The giant power transmission companies should be common carriers of the current purchased and produced by the giant power generating companies.[10] For this purpose they should be empowered to operate giant power transmission lines not less than 110,000 volts capacity on locations so fixed by the Giant Power Board as to secure the best interconnection with and service to other common carrier transmission lines;[11] for such transmission lines to purchase and condemn rights of way[11] and to occupy and use under permit strips of land belonging to the Commonwealth designated by the Board or acquired in fee simple by it through purchase or condemnation[12]. The cost of acquisition could probably be met from year to year without the use of the State's credit and the preliminary work of location would preclude any expenditure under this head during the next fiscal biennium.

(b) That the Giant Power Board be authorized to issue permits, for the construction and operation of giant power generating stations and transmission lines, for the conduct of by-product and other incidental business[13], and for occupancy and use of the lands of the Commonwealth in such land strips for transmission lines, gas pipelines, oil pipelines and other appropriate uses[14]. Permits should be limited to a maximum period of 50 years and conditioned upon the right of the Commonwealth, or another permittee designated by the Commonwealth, to take over and operate the work at the expiration of such period upon payment to the permittee of the money prudently invested on the faith of the permit.[15] For the right to occupy and use lands of the Commonwealth the permit should fix an annual charge with view to amorizing the cost of the land strips within not more than 50 years.[16]

3. To secure cheap mass transportation throughout the Commonwealth we recommend, in addition to what has already been said about giant power transmission lines:

(a) That all other public service power business be segregated into three separate classes: (1) major generation; (2) major transmission; and (3) distribution, including minor transmission; also that no corporation be allowed to do more than one of these three kinds of business. For the dividing line between major and minor generation we recommend a capacity of 25,000 kw., and for that between major and minor transmission a pressure of 50,000 volts or a capacity of 25,000 kw., whichever is the greater."

(b) That the Giant Power Board be required to divide the state into transmission districts on the basis of present facilities and future needs as they may arise or be foreseen from time to time,[18] that every major transmission system be constituted a common carrier for the transmission district in which it lies with the duty of taking electric current of standard voltage and frequency from all public service generating stations (including hydro-electric stations) in the district, and delivering it to all consignees which are public service distributing systems in the district, on terms subject to regulation by the Public Service Commission.[19] With the approval or on the order of the Commission and, on terms thereby fixed, exchange of current with the transmission lines of other districts should also take place.[20]

(c) That two new classes of distribution systems be authorized by law,—rural electric districts and mutual electric companies. The district should be created with power to furnish current to their inhabitants upon the favorable votes of a sufficient majority of inhabitants and of the owners of a sufficient majority of the acreage; also with power to tax, assess benefits and damages, finance construction work, etc.[21] Mutual electric companies should be formed by the voluntary association of consumers.[22] The districts and the mutual companies should be served by the major transmission lines of the district within which they lie on equal terms with other distributing systems and should have made available to them expert advice and guidance from the State College.[23]

4. To secure effective regulation that will pass down to the consumer the cheapness and abundance of mass production and mass transmission, in addition to the control provided by the giant power company permits and the control of condemnation above mentioned we recommend:

(a) That the powers of the Public Service Commission be enlarged to include, as to electric power, the regulation (with reformation of contracts) of:

Contracts for construction, lease and management;[24]

Contracts of brokerage or agency in respect of procuring contracts of construction, lease or management;[24]

Contracts, facilities, service, prices and rates between common carrier power companies and all others from and to whom they are authorized or required to receive and deliver current as above or hereinafter recommended;[24]

Accounting as to all matters mentioned in this discussion of regulation;[25]

Future security issues including the price, not less than par, at which issued;[26]

Maintenance of facilities with due provision for depreciation, amortization and other proper reserves.[27]

(b) That the basis of rate regulation for giant power generating and transmission companies be the amount of money hereafter prudently invested therein.[28]

(c) That as to all other public service generating companies, transmission companies, and distributing companies, hereafter created or merged, including owner and lessor companies or either of them as well as operating and lessee companies, or either of them, and as to all other power companies hereafter exercising the right of condemnation, the basis of rate regulation shall be the amount of money prudently invested after January 1, 1926, plus the value as of that date of all property then used and useful in their public service; that acceptance of this rate base, in the form required by the Public Service Commission, shall be a part of the application for and a condition of every charter, merger or consolidation hereafter issued or authorized; that like acceptance shall be part of every application hereafter made for every preliminary finding of necessity for such condemnation, and shall for all purposes be deemed to be a condition precedent to, and to have been agreed to before, every taking by such condemnation for public use hereafter made with or without such preliminary finding.[29]

(d) That no securities shall be hereafter issued by any giant power generating or transmission company or by any other public service power company without the prior approval of the Public Service Commission. All stock hereafter so issued shall have a fixed par value approved before issue by the Public Service Commission upon a finding that the total par value of any such issue is not in excess of the money which has been or is to be paid for the same at the time of issue or in excess of the value of the property or services exchanged or to be exchanged for the same at the time of issue, and that the application of such money or property made or proposed constitutes a prudent investment.[30]

(e) That rates, prices and transmission charges imposed by Giant power companies,[30] common carrier transmission companies, and other public service power companies shall be so regulated that the rates of any company as a whole shall provide a sufficient reasonably estimated return to attract into the enterprise new capital in sufficient volume to meet the needs of its public service duty, and if they do as a whole so provide no part of them shall be deemed to be confiscatory.[32] The acceptance of this principle should hereafter be a part of every application for and a condition of every charter, merger, consolidation, exercise of the right of eminent domain, and authorization for the issue of securities as above recommended with respect to the adoption of the prudent investment rate-base.[32]

(f) That rates of distributing companies operating high cost generating stations and desiring to substitute cheaper current delivered by a common carrier transmission company may be fixed by regulation to provide, so far as necessary, for the authorization within a reasonable time of all or part of the generating equipment to be disused.[33]

(g) That the Public Service Commission be empowered to authorize or reasonably require the extension of any distributing system, including minor transmission lines, to an unserved territory within the same transmission district, notwithstanding that such unserved territory is within the territorial charter limits of another company.[34]

(h) That the power of the courts to review the proceedings, findings and orders of the Public Service Commission be by statute reduced to the lowest terms consistent with the limitations of the State and Federal Constitutions.

5. To secure fair and justly regulated interchange of electric current with other states we recommend:

(a) That corporations generating, transmitting, or distributing electric current in Pennsylvania be prohibited to distribute current in another state at retail except to present customers in quantities fixed by existing contracts or to n customers in quantities not greater and at present points of delivery.[35]

(b) That a like prohibition be extended to deliveries in another state at wholesale over minor interstate lines (i. e. those of less than 50,000 volts or 25,000 kw. capacity) with like exceptions as to deliveries made over existing minor lines to present customers in quantities fixed by existing contracts or to new customers in quantities not greater and at present points of delivery.[35]

(c) That a like prohibition be extended to wholesale deliveries in another state over existing or future major interstate lines which shall not have been authorized by permit from the Giant Power Board in pursuance of an interstate compact as recommended below, with like exceptions as to deliveries over existing major lines not so authorized; that the enlargement of existing minor interstate lines to the capacity of major lines without such permit be prohibited; and that the construction of new minor interstate lines be absolutely prohibited.[35]

(d) That existing contracts by any such corporation being a public service company, or by any other entity whatever defined by the laws of Pennsylvania as a public service company, for the delivery in another state of current transmitted or conveyed thither from Pennsylvania, shall be subject to regulation and reformation by the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania to prevent discrimination in facilities, service or rates in favor of customers in other states and against customers in Pennsylvania;[36] also that future contracts of like kind by all such public service corporations or entities, for delivery over lines not authorized by permit as recommended below be prohibited, except contracts renewing existing contracts without increase of the quantity to be delivered, and except those for continuing delivery without increase of quantity to existing customers or at existing points of delivery; also[36] that such future contracts not so prohibited be subject to regulation and reformation as above recommended for existing contracts.[36]

(e) That the Giant Power Board be authorized to negotiate with the representatives of other states compacts for ratification by the legislatures of the respective states and for approval by Congress under Article I, Section 10, paragraph 3 of the Federal Constitution, for the regulation of interstate electric transmission on principles of mutuality, equality, justice and efficiency;[37] also to grant permits for the construction of major interstate lines under such compacts.

Giant Power[1]

By Phillip P. Wells[2]

Deputy Attorney General, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

(A plan for private ownership under reasonable and attainable regulation.)

He who would understand the power problem in economics and politics should begin with the address of Steinmetz before the Franklin Institute a dozen years ago. With masterly clearness and brevity it showed that electricity, by giving mankind, for the first time in history, the means of transporting energy, would create a new economic order. It foretold not only the regional systems that we now see in the making, but also the future nation-wide electric network which bring power, as the steamship and railroad bring goods, to every man's door, in any desired quantity, of standard form and quality, and at standard prices. It warned us against a repetition of the blunders and abuses of the era of railroad expansion. From the fact that electricity cannot be stored it deduced the unique necessity of complete monopoly in electric service, because when all power demands are supplied from a single pool of power we have the maximum diversity of use and thereby the nearest approximation to keeping the equipment busy all the time (in technical terms the highest "capacity factor").

We are dealing with the disposal and use of natural resources and the supply of their products in public service. The power resources are falling water and coal (for in a long view petroleum and natural gas may be neglected). Electric current generated by water power and that generated by steam are identical in physics and economics, but under our laws the rights of the public over the two power sources are very different. What is wanted is a sound economic plan of disposal, use and regulation, with adequate legal devices to make it effective both as to water power and as to coal.

Running water is not susceptible of private ownership, and although it may be the subject matter of limited private rights the sovereign states retain large powers over it. By reason of the federal authority over navigable rivers as highways of interstate commerce and of federal land ownership of the water power sites in the mountains of the West, federal license is necessary for the development of three-fourths of the undeveloped water power of the country. The Federal Water Power Act of 1920, by imposing conditions on the license, has set up a new economic policy.

State authorization for the use of the stream is the first requisite for a federal license. State and municipalities are preferred as licenses to all other applicants and exempted from rental charges. Licenses are limited to fifty years, after which the site and works may be "recaptured" by the government on payment of the net investment. Full and prompt development is required. Licenses must contribute equitably to up-stream storage reservoirs in proportion to the benefit of increased flow derived from them. Private licenses pay a nominal rent plus all profits in excess of a fair return on the net investment. They must submit to regulation of rates, service and security issues by the proper state agency; or by the Federal Power Commission where and to the extent that no state agency is empowered, or if and so far as the agencies of two or more states disagree as to the regulation of the output in interstate commerce. The net investment must be taken as the rate-base for purposes of state regulation of rates.

Regions With Little Water Power

The greater part of the power demand of the northeastern states must be supplied by coal now in private ownership. Neither state nor nation has authority over its disposal like that over water power, but by offering liberal charters corporations may be induced to undertake large scale power development in the coal fields for state-wide supply, and to these charters may be attached certain conditions like those of the Federal Water Power Act. Proposed legislation of this kind in Pennsylvania would allow the incorporation of giant power companies with extraordinary powers: To build and operate generating stations of great size in the coal fields, also lines of very high voltage and very great capacity; to transmit the output for sale to major power utilities of the ordinary type; as an incident to these operations, to condemn lease-holds in coal deposits; to condemn other property; to recover by-products of coal before burning and sell the same ;to sell coal as a means of disposing of the higher grades while reserving the lower for by product recovery and power production; to purchase surplus power from all producers at fair prices not exceeding the cost of production in the giant power stations;—all these powers to be exercised under state permits like federal water power licenses (50 year term, recapture at the end of the term upon payment of the net investment, public control of service, securtiy issues and rates, the par of all securities issued not to exceed the net investement, the fair return to be computed upon the net investment as the "rate-base." etc.).

Giant power plants (steam-electric) so operated should be able, in the course of time, to carry the base-load of a state having little water power, such as Pennsylvania; also to deliver energy to the major transmission systems of the ordinary type at a price lower than the present cost of generation in the relatively small units now in service.

How The System Should Be Organized

Since electric service is essentially a monopoly which should be regionally organized to obtain power at the lowest possible cost by constituting each region a single pool of power into which all output is poured and from which all power consumption is drawn, public policy should seek means to induce or compel pooling and to control the resulting monopoly. The first step to their end is to make each state a single pool of power, the second to unite the state pools in a regional pool. To obtain a state-wide power pool with a minimum of interference with the company systems that have been or may hereafter be built up, each state should be divided by administrative authority into districts, upon the basis of existing and future major transmission lines, so that every acre of the state is within some one district. Let us call them transmission districts. Upon the operator of each such line, whom we may call the transmitter, should be imposed the duty of supplying all power demands within his transmission district through local public service distribution systems, whether owned by the transmitter, by other private owners, or by the public. In other words the transmitter will be a public utility for the service at wholesale of current at cost to all distribution systems in the district, including his own, without discrimination among them. He may generate his own current but should of course purchase it to the extent that he can obtain it in that manner more cheaply. In states having large coal deposits of great water powers his based-load requirements can probably best be met by reliance upon the companies engaged in mass production at the source; in other states by the importation of the output of such mass-producing companies.

Upon the transmitter should be imposed the further duty of a common purchaser of surplus power from all producers in the transmission district to the amount of the demands by the local distribution systems upon the transmitter and at rates regulated by public authority, but in no case higher than the transmitter's own cost of generation or the cost to him of the wholesale current from mass producers at the source.

Thus each transmission district will be a pool of power into which all power produced therein is poured and from which all demands are supplied, but the burden of supplying territory not now served will be generally left to local initiative in the construction and operation of local distribution systems. All these district pools will be united in a single state-wide pool by interconnection with each other and with the mass producers at the source.

The problem of unserved territory is, in the main, the problem of rural electric service. Most of this territory is within the monopolistic charter limits of companies which, as a matter of fact, are not serving it. Whether the charter holders cannot or will not serve it is immaterial. Charters shoud be annuled as to territory not served and not likely to be served in the near future, this by administrative procedure after due notice and hearing. This would put an end to speculation in paper charters by destroying their nuisance value. It would deprive the charter-holder of nothing substantial that he should rightfully have.

As to territory remaining within charter limits, the company should be required to serve it at cost.[3] To this end the public service commission should standardize the duty of making extensions, including the contribution, if any, to construction cost, that should be made by the persons served; and should also standardize both the form and the amount of the rates to be paid for the service. Its authority should be enlarged by statute to the extent necessary for these purposes.

As to territory not chartered, or within limits where former charter rights are annuled, the burden of distribution should be thrown on local enterprise. The state should authorize the creation of rural electric districts for the service of their inhabitants under local public ownership, these to have taxing and borrowing power; also of mutual electric companies for the service of their members, and incidentally of others, upon the co-operative principle (one-man-one-vote; division of profits among members in proportion to consumption of power). To each such locality should be left the choice between the district form and the co-operative form of local organization. The transmitter should be required to serve current at wholesale to both rural electric districts and mutual electric companies at the average cost to the transmitter of generation (or purchase) and transmission over his whole system, plus such additional payment as may be equitable in cases, if any there be, where service to the rural company lowers the capacity factor of the transmitter.

Effective Regulation

The beneficial working of a privately owned state-wide power pool so constituted depends on effective regulation. Under this head notable changes in existing practice are essential to success. As an initial step many matters not now generally within the scope of regulation should be brought under it. The restriction of commission jurisdiction to the regulation or operating companies only is a serious defect. Upon what principle is an owner of facilities which he has dedicated to the pubic service and leased to an operator, thus avoiding all risk and responsibility, exempted from the restriction of his profit to a fair return? How can there be effective regulation when the real corporate authority, the holding company, hides behind the operating company and so escapes all responsibility? Lessor companies and holding companies must be brought within the scope of regulation; also contracts of promotion, construction and brokerage. Continuing contracts of lease, management and the like must be brought under continuing supervision by empowering the public service commission to reform them as justice to the parties and the public may from time to time require.

Coming to the regulation of the operator as to service, security issues and rates: With respect to service the authority of the state commissions comes nearest to adequacy. Nevertheless the Pennsylvania Electric Association recently denied the authority of the commission to exercise its initiative by standardizing the duty of the companies to extend service to farms and the duty to pay the whole or a part of the construction cost of the extensions. Such authority and initiative should be put beyond the question by whatever statutory amendments may be necessary.

Rate Base Must Be Clarified

A fundamental defect in the present method of rate regulations is the rule imposed by the supreme court of the United States whereby the base upon which the company "fair return" is to be estimated by the state commission in rate making is not the amount invested in the property but is value at the time of regulation. The "rate-base" is a variable, fluctuating with every increase of land and resource value, every hypothetical change in current construction costs for labor and for the material found in the structures and equipment at the time of regulation. In making this far-fetched deduction from the clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal constitution which forbids the states to deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, the supreme court was convenient vague as to the method of computing present value. It enumerated a list of elements of value which must be considered, even including among them—an economic absurdity—the par value of outstanding securities. But subsequent decisions and practice have emphasized more and more the construction cost less depreciation, until rate-making by commissions has come to turn almost exclusively upon an estimate of the cost, as of the time of regulation, of initiating the enterprise, acquiring the property and reconstructing the work, together with an estimate of the said time, of the deduction to be made for depreciation. Upon the rate-base so estimated the commission fixes a rate estimated to yield in the future a sum equivalent to estimated operation and maintenance charges plus proper fixed charges plus estimated depreciation allowances plus a fair return on the rate-base. This fair return tends to become a constant percentage of the variable rate-base, as for example in Pennsylvania seven per cent.

[3] In this paper "cost" should be understood to include a fair return to the investor in the utility.

Of this valuation procedure I have elsewhere said: "Such a method of determining the rate-base is extremely difficult, slow, costly, uncertain, hypothetical, provocative of controversy in the making and unstable when made. It wastes in expenses and fees of attorneys and valuation engineers money which the consumers ultimately pay. It wastes something far more important still—the time, energy and attention of managers, public service commissioners and others which ought to be devoted to improving the service. It fosters misunderstanding and ill will. It should be replaced by a method easy, prompt, cheap, certain and factual."

For a convincing exposition of the fallacies, legal and economic, underlying the valuation method of estimating the rate-base, the reader is referred to the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Brandies in Southwestern Bell Telephone Company vs. Public Service Commission, 262 U. S. 270, 290. I will not repeat his reasoning here except to point out that this method is pregnant with disaster to the companies and to their service in a period of falling prices.

But even if the valuation procedure were wholly sound in economic and legal theory it should nevertheless be discarded for the simple practical reason that is cannot be worked. Our need is for a procedure tending to exert constant pressure upon every company, taking the place of the pressure of competition in non-monopolistic business which may be likened to the constant and all pervasive pressure of the air in the physical world. Multiply the personnel and expenditure of the commissions by twenty, and by a much higher factor the controversial waste of ability, energy and the consumer's money (for in this knd of litigation he pays not only his own lawyers and engineers but the company's too) and yet the commissions could never get around to constant regulation of the rates of all utilities in the state. In other words the utilities on the average fix their own rates without any regulation, say nineteen-twentieths of the time.

New Charters Give Opportunity to Government

Notwithstanding the finality of federal supreme court decisions until the court achieves a better mind, there is a way of escape open to the states which they have successfully followed before in other matters. The corporate form of organization is essential to public utility business. The corporation is a creature of the state and the creator could destroy its creatures by charter repeal, thus throwing the ownership of the utility property back into the copartnership form. All the states escaped the intolerable consequences of the Dartmouth College Case, which declared corporate charters to be contracts between the state and the corporation, inviolable under the clause of the federal constitution forbidding the states to make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. They did so by embodying in all future charter contracts an express provision reserving to the state the right to repeal the charter.

But repeal of power company charters at this time is unnecessary and unwise. New charters of merger, consolidation, etc., are required by the process of regional organization now in full tide. Moreover, the companies have great need to exercise the right to condemn property (eminent domain) which right they must get from the state. Therefore, to impose a rule of rate-base determination sound in economics and practical in working, the state needs only to refuse new charters except upon a condition that the company accept the new rule as a condition of its charter or as a contract condition upon the future exercise of the right of eminent domain or upon the acceptance of other aid from the sovereignty of the state or its political subdivisions.

For this there is precedent in the Federal Water Power Act which requires the licensee to contract with the federal government that his rate-base for the purpose of state regulation shall be his actual net investment in the project as shown by his books under strictly supervised and revealing accounting. This is the "prudent investment" of Justice Brandies' phrasing. As to existing investments a valuation would have to be made as of the date when the new system went into effect.

Security Issues and Fair Return

Future security issues should be regulated by the states so that the par of outstanding securities should be at all times equal the rate-base. This also is a rule set up by the Federal Water Power Act, and the settled rule in Massachusetts for a generation has been similar. It is demanded by the necessity for public knowledge of and good will toward this vital public business. No constitutional obstacles stand in the way of its adoption. It automatically bars "no par" stock. Non-voting stock, carrying as it does the possibility of complete separation of risk from control and from the enterpriser's profit, should be strictly limited so that the total par of non-voting securities, whether stock or bonds, should not exceed a safe fraction—say two thirds—of the net investment. Under the procedure proposed the rate-base and the par value of outstanding securities, except as increased from time to time by new investment, would be a constant quantity instead of a variable as at present.

The fair return, on the other hand, should be a variable instead of being approximately, and illogically, constant as at present. For the fair return we can find a gauge or governor, almost automatic, responding almost constantly to the economic pressure of the moment. Reflection upon Steinmetz' address before the Franklin Institute, and upon general economic principles, will carry conviction that the test of rates as to fairness to the investor and the public is whether or not they will yield enough, and no more than is necessary, to attract to a well managed enterprise the constant inflow of capital investment necessary for the healthy expansion of the business to meet public demands for service. That is not a question to be determined by elaborate inventory, hypothetical assumption, time-consuming estimate and expensive controversy. It is a question of economic fact to which the security market gives a daily answer. For here, at last, the public utility business is not monopolistic but competitive. It must compete for capital in the security market.

Therefore, upon the rate-base shown by the company's books ("net investment") the commission should from time to time fix a rate estimated to yield in the immediate future a sum equivalent to fixed charges plus operation and maintenance charges and proper depreciation allowances (estimated in the same way as under the present procedure) plus such amount as would enable the company to pay dividends at a rate sufficient to keep its stock slightly above par in the market. For this standard of a fair return we have a precedent in the widely heralded action and argument of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company shortly after the Great War. An increase of the dividend from eight to nine per cent was proposed on the ground that at the old rate the stock was below par and new stock could not be sold at par to meet the needs of the company and the public for new facilities. The dividend was therefore advanced to nine per cent, the stock responded by rising slightly above par, and a large issue of new stock was offered by the company and taken by the investing public. So much for rate regulation in general—the "fair return." The task of rate classification, equitable adjustment among different classes of users, remains. The classes should be few and simple so that the public may understand this public business. The rate for each class should, in general, be based on the comparative cost of generation, transmission and distribution, separately computed, and properly chargeable to each class. But nevertheless a discount should be allowed for off-peak loads[4] night loads. In Pennsylvania the state-wide peak created by the measurers here proposed would carry its peak-load in the morning. In order to increase the capacity factor and so lower the cost to all users. All question of further adjustment to secure social ends, such as decentralization of population, may well be postponed until experience has shown the effects of such an application of the cost principle. The commissions should be given authority and initiative for the standardization of rate structure and rates by classes.

Finally, court review of the commissions' action should be cut down to the lowest limits consistent with the protection of constitutional rights. Only when the company is deprived of a fair return on its business as a whole should the courts intervene.

Interstate Compact

So much for regulation within each state-wide power pool. But the regional power organization must include a number of states, at least in the northeast. That is to say, regional organization involves interstate commerce not within the regulatory authority of any single state. Federal regulation of interstate commerce, by regions, though perhaps not unconstitutional, is unattainable.

[4] i. e. night leads in Pennsylvania the state-wide pool created by the measures here proposed would carry its peak-load in the corning.

The states, however, may secure it by compacts among themselves made effective by the consent of congress as provided in the federal constitution. It would seem necessary to set up by interstate compact regional regulatory commissions. They should apply the same principles of regulation as those above outlined for the states. They should have exclusive jurisdiction over all public utility power companies doing any interstate business, but the companies should have the option to segregate their interstate transmission business into separate corporate ownership, and the states should have authority to compel such segregation, thus limiting the jurisdiction of the regional commission to the lowest terms. The regional commission should also have power to prevent discrimination in wholesale rates and service against the interstate power utilities in favor of those operating wholly within any one state.

To guard against the evils of irresponsible holding companies the commission of each compact-bound state should have power to compel the production, from any place within the region, of evidence, including accounts and other documents, as to holding companies incorporated in any other compact-bound state; and the voting of stock in an owning or operating company of any compact-bound state by a holding company not incorporated in one of the compact-bound states, or by any director, officer or agent of such a holding company, should be prohibited.

Given such a system of state and regional regulation, adequate universal electric service on terms fair to the investor and to the public could be expected under private ownership.

In Re: Inquiry of The Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, on its own motion, with respect to rural electric facilities and service.

Complaint Docket No. 6094

Adopted January 12, 1926.

Effective March 1, 1926.

By the Commission:

The Commission has held hearings on the question of rules for rural electric service, whereat the electric utilities of the State of Pennsylvania, the Council of Farm Organizations, and other interested parties were represented. Evidence has been adduced from witnesses produced by the electric utilities, and by other interested parties. Various conferences have been had between the Commission, representatives of the consumers, and representatives of the utilities.

Utilities operating in the State of Pennsylvania have, in the past, employed various rules and policies under which electric line extensions were constructed to serve customers applying for service. These rules or policies varied so widely that it becomes necessary in the interest of uniformity and the elimination of discrimination in this regard, between the customers of the several utilities, to establish rules relating to line extensions which shall apply to all cases which may arise in the future where their application is appropriate.

The purpose, therefore, of the rules hereinbefore ordered is to eliminate so far as practicable all apparent discrimination in this regard, and, further, to make definite and certain the several conditions, compatible with the foregoing considerations, under which an applicant for electric service may obtain the same.

It Is Therefore Ordered: That the following order, to be known as General Order No. 27, establishing rules and regulations for rural service be, and the same is, hereby made effective as of March 1, 1926.

1. Intent.

This order is made to facilitate the securing of electric service by farmers and others in rural territory.

2. Definitions.

Where used in this order singular words shall be construed as including the plural, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

"Consuming establishment" at any time means any then existing building, structure, farm, works, or other establishment of a kind such as is customarily anywhere in the Commonwealth with current for light heat and power or any of them, including dwellings, barns, hotels dairies, stores, factories, mines, quarries and other like and unlike buildings, structures, and establishments.

"Rural area" means any part of the land area of the Commonwealth located wholly outside of the corporate limits of any city, town or borough.

"Rural consumer" means the owner, occupier or user of a consuming establishment in a rural area.

"Contracting consumer," means a rural consumer who shall have contracted with or offered to contract with any electric company to take for one full year and pay for current to be delivered to a consuming establishment owned or operated by him in a rural area.

"Rural line" means a line of poles and of wires mounted thereon proposed or constructed for the main purpose of distributing current to one or more rural consumers.

"Point of origin" means the point where an actual rural line connects with or begins to extend from, or where a proposed rural line is to connect with or is to begin to extend from, any transmission or distribution line of any electric company, and where such rural line receives or is to receive current from such electric company.

"Measured mile" means only one of the consecutive parts of a rural line, beginning at the point of origin each part one mile in length, except the last which shall be one mile or less in length.

"Rural distributing association" means an association or other organized body of persons for the purchase of current and the supply of the same without profit exclusively to its members or stockholders, being rural consumers.

"Electric company" means any corporation or person which is a public service company within the definition of that term in the Public Service Company Law and which is under an obligation to supply current to the public.

"Current" means electric energy generated, transmitted and distributed, or any of them, for the supply of light, heat and power, or any of them.

A "service" means wires and other appliances of adequate capacity from the pole nearest the consumer's building to a point on the building approved by the utility.

"Person" includes natural persons, corporations, partnerships and associations.

"Commission" means the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

3. Rural Consumers Classified.

For the purpose of this order rural consumers are divided into two classes, as follows:

Class I. Those served with current by a rural distributing association or those who demand service of current from an electric company through a rural distributing association;

Class II. Those served with, or demanding to be served with current directly by an electric company

4. Standards for Construction, Operation, and Maintenance of Road Lines.

All rural lines shall be constructed, maintained and operated in such manner as to be reasonably adequate and practically sufficient for the accommodation safety of its patrons, employees and the public. The Commission upon its own initiative, or upon complaint may cause any rural line to be inspected and may determine whether or not such rural line is or is not so constructed, maintained and operated. The delivery of current to, and the serving of current over any rural line found by the Commission to be not so constructed, maintained and operated is hereby prohibited. Any electric company, may, as a condition precedent to delivering current to an rural line of any rural distributing association, contract with such rural distributing association, as to liability or indemnity for injuries to persons and property by current on or from the rural lines of such rural distributing association.

5. Tapping of Lines.

Every alternating current, single or multiple phase, transmission or distributing line of the parallel type of any electric company having a nominal voltage of 15,000 volts or less between the wires of one phase (neutral wire excluded) shall be considered as offering a point of origin at every point within territory chartered to such company, except as in this section hereafter provided. In the absence of other means of such electric companys delivering current to such rural consumers, such lines of such electric company shall, on the demand of any rural distributing association, or rural consumer, be there tapped by such electric company for the purpose of connection with any rural line which such electric company is by this order obligated to construct, or with any rural line of such rural distributing association. Every such transmission and distribution line of any electric company having a nominal voltage between 15,000 and 33,000 volts between the wires of one phase (neutral wire excluded) shall in like manner and upon like demand be tapped at any point for the purpose of connection with any such rural line when such rural line is considered by such electric company or found by the Commission to afford a reasonable prospect of a peak load reaching 100 K. V. A. within one year after such tapping.

Provided: That upon proper cause duly shown such electric company may be relieved by the Commission from the duty of tapping at any particular point.

6. Annual Reports of Rural Extension to Be Made.

Every electric company and rural distributing association shall file with the Commission on or before January 31 of each year a report covering the twelve-month period ending December 31, showing—

(1) The number of miles of rural lines in operation by it at the beginning of such twelve-month period.

(2) The number of miles of rural lines constructed by it during such twelve-month period.

(3) The number of rural consumers taking service from its rural lines at the beginning and end of such twelve-month period.

(4) The number of kilowatt hours of energy consumed from such line during the twelve-month period.

(5) The gross revenue derived, from such lines during the twelve-month period.

7. Demands for Service Apart from This Order—Amendment of This order.

Nothing in this order shall be constructed to prevent the Commission from considering upon its own merits and acting upon any demand otherwise lawful for service nor to preclude the Commission from altering, modifying, or amending this order from time to time as the Commission may deem necessary or advisable nor to preclude the Commission from relieving any electric company from the obligation herein imposed should the special circumstances of the case warrant such relief.

8. Rate Schedules for Service to Rural Distributing Associations.

Every electric company having rural territory within its charter territory shall on or before April 1, 1926, establish and thereafter maintain in the manner provided by law a schedule of rates for the sale of current to rural distributing associations. Electric companies shall sell current to rural distributing associations only at the rates fixed by such schedules or at other rates duly fixed by the Commission in accordance with law.

9. Contracts for Construction Operation and Maintenance of Lines of Rural Distributing Associations.

Any electric company may contract with any rural distributing association for the construction, maintenance and operation, or any of them, of any or all rural lines of such rural distributing association. Copies of all such contracts shall be filed with the Commission by the electric company within two weeks after the execution hereof.

10. Duty of Electric Company to Construct Rural Lines.

It shall be the duty of every electric company subject to the limitations of its tapping duty fixed by Section 5 of this order, to extend its distribution system by building rural lines to serve rural consumers of Class II within its chartered territory. Each such rural line shall extend to the most distant contracting consumer who will alone or in company with other intervening contracting consumers contribute to the cost of construction of such rural line. Such contribution shall consist of such portion, if any, of the estimated cost of such rural line, (if constructed according to but not exceeding the minimum capacity and standards of rural line construction necessary to serve said contracting consumers) as the electric company is not required to pay by Section II of this order.

11. Same Demand by and Contributions from Contracting Consumers.

Upon the demand of any contracting consumer within the chartered territory of any electric company for the construction of a rural line to serve him, designating the point of origin, the electric company shall furnish to him an estimate of the cost of such construction. Upon payment to such electric company of the portion of such estimated cost, if any, as the electric company is not herein required to pay, such electric company shall construct such rural line.

The cost of each separate measured mile of such rural line from which three or more contracting consumers are to take current shall be borne by such electric company. The cost of each separate measured mile on such rural line from which less than three contracting consumers are to take current shall be borne by such electric company to the extent that such cost shall not be in excess of three hundred dollars ($300) per contracting consumer. The electric company is not obligated to construct such line until it has received from the contracting consumers a sum equal to such excess.

12. Construction Cost.

The construction cost of any rural line built under this order shall include the following:

All costs of labor and materials directly chargeable to and necessary to construct a line from the designated point of origin to the consuming establishment. Such costs shall include transformers, meters and services not exceeding one hundred (100) feet in length from the pole nearest to the consumer's terminal. The line shall be of the minimum capacity and standards necessary to render reasonable adequate and safe service to the contracting consumer.

To the above may be added an item not exceeding fifteen (15) per cent of these costs to cover engineering, promotion, office supervision, clerical labor, and contingencies.

Should such electric company desire to serve the contracting consumer by a line having a point or origin different from that designated, or should it desire to construct a line having a cost greater than the cost of a line of minimum capacity and standards necessary to render reasonably adequate and safe services to the contracting consumer, the construction cost to the consumer shall not be increased thereby; but any such additional cost shall be borne by the company. In case of dispute, the estimated construction cost may be determined by the Commission.

13. Title to Rural Lines Financed in Part by Contributions.

No electric company shall be obligated by this order to deliver current to any rural line constructed under Section 10 and 11 of this Order and financed in part by any advance from any rural consumer, until every consumer making any such advance shall have agreed in writing that the ownership of such rural line shall vest in such electric company. Such electric company shall be obligated to maintain and replace at its own expense all rural lines constructed under Section 10 and 11 of this Order as public safety and convenience may require.

14. Same—Refunds and Assessments if Estimate Be Too Large or To Small.

In the event that the actual construction cost of any measured mile of any rural line constructed by any electric company under this Order shall have been less than the estimate of such cost made under Sections 11 and 12 of this Order, then such company shall make refunds to all persons who shall have made advances. Such refunds to be the differences between the advances actually made and the advances that would have been construction cost. In the event that such actual construction sufficient had the estimated cost been the same as the actual cost shall have been more than such estimate such company is not required to serve until the persons who shall have made advances shall pay to such electric company the sums they would have been required to pay had the estimated cost been the same as the actual construction cost.

15. Connection Charge for Additional Consumer.

An additional contracting consumer shall be connected to any rural line constructed under this order upon payment by such additional contracting consumer of a connection charge. This connection charge shall be such sum as such additional contracting consumer would have been required to pay had he been a contracting consumer at the time of the construction of the rural line from which he desires services. If the rural line was constructed partly at the expense of the contracting consumers the electric company shall refund to the contributing consumers a sum equal to the difference between the payments made by them and the payments which would have been required had the additional contracting consumer been one of the original contracting consumers. Nothing in this section shall apply to connections with rural lines made more than five years after the line is connected.

16. Blanks for Contracting with Rural Consumers.

Every electric company having rural territory within its chartered territory shall prepare and shall reasonably supply to all rural consumers in its scattered territory who shall desire the same, blanks suitable for signature by prospective rural consumers who by such signature and delivery thereof to such electric company and performance of all conditions agreed to by such signature, shall become contracting consumers, said blanks, to be in substantially the following form:

(Name of Electric Company)

Gentlemen:

You are hereby requested to supply electric service for an equipment of approximately .....K. W., consisting of the following: .....
.....
installed in or upon premises located at ....., in the Township of ....., ... County, Pa., occupied as a ..... by ....., hereinafter known as the Consumer.

The Consumer hereby agrees to use, subject to the terms and conditions contained in the rules of the Company, lawfully established, electric service supplied by you for said equipment, for the term of one year from the date the Consumer receives written notice from the Company that service will be recommended, which term shall be continued thereafter from year to year unless written notice shall be given 30 days prior to the end of the yearly term. The Consumer agrees to pay for such service at the rates and in conformity with the rules lawfully established by the Company or by The Public Service Commission.

The Consumer agrees that the electric current so furnished shall not be used except for the equipment herein scheduled without previous notice and consent of the Company.

Upon acceptance by the Company and the installation of equipment necessary to render the service herein requested, this application shall constitute a binding contract.

.....
Accepted by: (Name of Consumer)
....

17. Limitation of Application of This Order.

None of the provisions of this Order shall apply to any rural line containing a greater total number of measured miles than the total number of contracting consumers who shall receive service directly from such rural line. Nor shall any of its provisions apply to lines of an electric company located in territory in which the Commission issuing its certificate of public convenience to said electric company has provided that no service should be rendered to consumers.

By order of the Commission, at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania this 12th day of January, 1926.

The above results are based on an assumed cost of $2000 per mile for an extension serving 3 consumers per mile, with $75 added for each consumer above three.

The former practice in regard to distribution of the cost of an exten-sion as between the utility and its rural consumers was so various, even in the dealings of a single company that we have found it practically impossible to estmate monthly bills for like service before the issue of General Order No. 27.

The above calculations are based on regular schedules for residence lighting including small appliances.

Conowingo Regulation—Correspondence of Governor Pinchot with the Federal Power Commission February 13-March 8, 1926.

The Federal Power Commission,

Washington, D. C.

Sirs:

In the matter of the application of the Philadelphia Electric Power Company, a public utility corporation chartered by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for authority to issue certain bonds and stock to finance the Conowingo Project which is to be constructed under license issued by you:

Because the Pennsylvania Public Service Company Law does not empower our Public Service Commission to regulate the issue of securities the only protection of our people in this case is the power given your Commission to regulate security issues for financing projects licensed by you whenever the State Commission concerned is not authorized to do so.

Mr. Wells had been instructed to represent this Commonwealth at the hearing in Baltimore on February 12th before your Executive Secretary, but urgent public business required his presence here. In pursuance of his telegram of February 11th I write this letter to make the suggestions that seem appropriate, namely:

1. That you refuse authority to issue stock in excess of the amount which, added to the proceeds of the bonds authorized by you, will equal the net investment in the project.
2. That you refuse authority to issue any no-par common or other stock, but on the contrary, that you require all stock to have a fixed par expressed in the stock certificates.
3. That you refuse authority to issue any non-voting preferred or other stock.

(1) That Federal Water Power Act requires you to ascertain and fix the "net investment" in project (defined as the actual original cost thereof), and, by contract expression in the Federal license, the company binds itself to accept this actual cost as the basis upon which its "fair return" is to be computed in the process of rate-regulation by our Public Service Commission. Thus the uncertain, usable, wasteful and contentious procedure of valuation, commonly used in rate making, will be avoided in state regulation of rates charged by licensees under the Federal Water Power Act. This being so, it follows that the security issues at par should be equivalent to the "net investment" rate-base (the actual amount of money properly invested). The proposed bond issue ($38,000,000 at 5½%) with the proposed issue at par of $16,000,000 of preferred stock will provide $54,000,000—enough to pay the estimated cost of the project. The additional 94,200 shares of common stock whose issue you are asked to authorize can serve no purpose but that very speculation in unearned increment which the Federal Water Power Act was intended to prevent.

(2) The principle that the par of security issues should approximately equal the net investment bars the issue of stock without par value. My second suggestion therefore is that you require all stock to have a fixed par value expressed in the certificate.

(3) The vice of non-voting stock was pointed out last December by the address of Professor William Z. Ripley at a meeting of the Academy of Political Science in the City of New York (Proceedings Vol. XI, No. 4, p. 695) and by Mr. Wells in his address at the same meeting on "Public Regulation of the Holding Company in Public Utilities" (same publications, page 156). Professor Ripley has more recently given wider currency to his views by his article "From Main Street to Wall Street" in the Atlantic Monthly for January. The strength of private ownership and operation of public utilities as a public policy lies in the union of investment risk and control in the same hands. But under the financing plan proposed to you by the applicants all the control will ultimately be in the hands of the holders of common stock who will not have invested a dollar, and all the investment will have been made by the holders of the bonds and preferred stock who will have no voice in the management. My final suggestion therefore is that you refuse to authorize the issue of any non-voting stock for this project.

Very sincerely yours,

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

Harrisburg, Pa.
February 13, 1926.

Hon. Gifford Pinchot,
Governor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

My Dear Governor:

I have your letter of February 13, addressed to the Federal Power Commission, making certain suggestions with respect to the proposals of Philadelphia Electric Power Company for issuance of securities to finance the Conowingo project.

I am inclosing your copy of the report and recommendation on the application to issue securities and the order of the Commission which was issued today. You will see by an examination of the report and recommendations, particularly that portion beginning with page 13, that we found defects in the proposed financial plan in addition to those to which attention was called in your letter. I will not discuss these defects further than to refer you to the portion of the report headed "Conclusions and Recommendations."

You will note from an examination of the order that the Commission has not authorized the issuance of any securities beyond the amount recognized as actual legitimate investment in the project. The approval of the issuance to The Philadelphia Electric Company of the present authorized common stock issue of Philadelphia Electric Power Company as compensation for services rendered and to be rendered by The Philadelphia Electric Company, such stock authorized having a par value of $50,000, and the value of such services to be entered in the fixed capital accounts as $50,000, appears a very reasonable compensation for what The Philadelphia Electric Company has done in developing this project and assuming the liability of par issue of all preferred and common stock. You will note that all stocks authorized to be issued in excess of these 500 shares are to be issued only for cash at par.

You will also note that authority was refused to issue any non-par stock.

With reference to the lack of voting power in the preferred stock: I would call attention to the peculiar circumstances of this case, under which a lack of voting power in the preferred is not likely in any material degree to separate ownership from management. The Conowingo project has been worked up by The Philadelphia Electric Company. This company has assumed primary responsibility for its financing and this company will receive such benefits as may accrue from the development. It seemed, therefore, desirable, both to this Commission and to the two State commissions, that the control of the Conowingo project should rest in the hands of the corporation responsible for its construction and operation. It is further required, as you will note from the terms of the order, that the entire common stock issue of Philadelphia Electric Power Company be held as a treasury asset of The Philadelphia Electric Company and that the latter company shall not have authority to sell any such stock or to pledge more than 49 per cent of it, except in connection with a general mortgage covering the entire physical plant of The Philadelphia Electric Company. The Conowingo project will, therefore, be controlled by the voting stockholders of The Philadelphia Electric Company. It is the plan of The Philadelphia Electric Company, which is responsible for the disposition of the preferred stock, to offer such stock pro rata to its own stockholders. There appears little doubt that the entire issue, or the greater part of it at least, will be taken by present stockholders of The Philadelphia Electric Company. If so, ownership and management of the Conowingo project will rest in the same hands, that is, in the stockholders of The Philadelphia Electric Company. Of course, such stockholders may part from time to time with some of their preferred stock holdings, but under the peculiar circumstances of this case it would seem very undesirable that the management of the Conowingo project, which is in all essential particulars a mere extension of the system of The Philadelphia Electric Company, should pass out of the hands of that corporation possible if the preferred stock, something be possible if the preferred stock had independent voting rights. The extent of distribution of this combined ownership and management is indicated from the fact that there are nearly 24,000 individual stockholders of The Philadelphia Electric Company and that well over one-half of the total outstanding stock is held in blocks of less than 1,000 shares. Furthermore, all of the outstanding stock of The Philadelphia Electric Company is voting stock.

The requirement in the Commission's order limiting the issue of preferred stock to one-third of the par value of bonds issued will require an issue of common stock varying from about $1,700,000 if the project is built for $48,000,000 to approximately $3,400,00 if the project costs the estimated figure $52,200,000. While this amount is of course a small portion of the total cost of the project it is, nevertheless, a substantial contribution in view of the fact that none of this stock can be offered for subscription but must be paid for out of the surplus of The Philadelphia Electric Company or through the issuance of its own securities to raise the necessary funds.

We have given this feature of the Conowingo project, as well as all others, very careful consideration, and we believe that the action taken in connection with security issues has improved the financial set up not only from the standpoint of public interest but also from the standpoint of the corporation itself to the extent at least that it has provided a margin of protection for the bonds and preferred stock which did not exist in the plan presented by the applicant.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) O. C. MERRILL,
Executive Secretary.

March 8, 1926.

Hon. O. C. Merrill, Executive Secretary,
Federal Power Commission,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Merrill:

Many thanks for your letter of February 27, AL—Md.—Pa.— No. 405 Susquehanna Power Company et al.

The action of the Federal Power Commission in limiting the total par of securities authorized to be issued to the amount of the net investment that will be made in the construction of the project, and in refusing to sanction the issuance of any no-par stock, marks a great forward step in public utility regulation for Pennsylvania. I note with satisfaction that the Commission seems to approve the principle that voting power and the major investors risk should not be separated, although under the peculiar circumstances of this case they believe the principle to be sufficiently safeguarded without power to the preferred stock.

Very sincerely yours,

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

The Giant Power Bills

Prefactory Note

In 1925, at the regular session of the General Assembly, 19 bills embodying the Giant Power legislative proposals were introduced in the House of Representatives. These bills were numbered from 1043 to 1057, inclusive, and from 1360 to 1363, inclusive.

At the Extraordinary Session in 1926, 7 bills were introduced in the Senate. These correspond with 7 of the House of Representative Bills that had been used in 1925. The Senate Bills were numbered from 31 to 37, inclusive.

Senate Bill 31 corresponds to House Bill 1043
Senate Bill 32 corresponds to House Bill 1056, Sections 1 and 2 and House Bill 1051, Sections 3, 4
Senate Bill 33 corresponds to House Bill 1361
Senate Bill 34 corresponds to House Bill 1047
Senate Bill 35 corresponds to House Bill 1363
Senate Bill 36 corresponds to House Bill 1057
Senate Bill 37 corresponds to House Bill 1054

To prevent tiresome repetition definitions common to two or more of the Giant Power Bills are printed at the beginning of this compilation under the heading "Standard Definitions" and are not repeated in the several bills, where the reader will find their places supplied by references to the Standard Definitions. Those definitions which appear in only one bill are retained there.

In this complication the bills are further abbreviated by substituting a brief descriptive title for the full title.

Following the "Standard Definitions" the 7 Senate Bills of 1926 are printed with notes showing how they differ from the corresponding House Bills of 1925. After these follow the House Bills of 1925, which had no corresponding Senate Bills in 1926.

The form and number of the original bills is in part due to the provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania requiring the subject of every bill to be stated in its title and forbidding the treatment of more than one subject in any one bill.

A. Standard Definitions

Used in the Giant Power Bills of 1925 and 1926, With Notes Showing Changes in the Definitions used in the 1926 bills from those used in the Corresponding 1925 bills.

The figures in brackets following each definition refer to the bills in which the definition appears.
"S" indicates that the bill was introduced in the Senate.
"HR" indicates that the bill was introduced in the House.

The "additional fair value" of the property of an electric utility on any day of computation means: first, the fair value, as of the thirty-first day of December one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, of the property of such electric utility, if any, used and useful in its public service on said thirty-first day, which, on the day of computation was so used, and had until then been maintained so, that its condition of useableness on said thirty-first day and its expectation period of useableness, as of said thirty-first day remained undiminished on the day of computation, or, if not so undiminished, the "additional fair value" means, such fair value, as of said thirty-first day, less the cost estimated by the Commission as of the day of computation of restoring such property to said standard of maintenance, or second any sum agreed upon, in lieu, of such computation by the Commission and such utility before, on, or after, and as of the day of computation. (1925 HR 1044; 1926 S 34.)

"Board" means the Giant Power Board in the Department of Forests and Waters. (1925 HR 1044, 1047, 1048, 1051, 1052, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1362, 1363; 1926 S 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37).

"Commission" means the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. (1925 HR 1047, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1363; 1926 S 33, 34, 35, 36, 37.)

"Common carrier transmission company" means a corporation incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth for the common carriage from all shippers to public service distribution systems of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them. (1925 HR 1047, 1057, 1361, 1363; omitted in 1926.)

"Connecting carrier" means the operator of a public service transmission system in Pennsylvania, or, so far as from time to time authorized by law, in other states, operating under an obligation to, or offering and able to, receive from the operator of such a system obligated as a common carrier by this Act, to transmit, and to deliver electric current on its way between the shipper and the consignee. (1925 HR 1057, omitted in 1926.)

"Consignee" means the operator of a public service distribution system in Pennsylvania, designated by the shipper to receive, and willing and able to receive current from a major public service transmission system operating as a common carrier under this Act. (1925 HR 1057; omitted in 1926.)

"Distribution system" means a line or a number of substantially parallel lines of wire or cable constituting one or more electric circuits or an electrically interconnected network of such lines and the appurtenant structures whether or not any of such lines be a transmission line all operated as a[1] unit under one business control[2] for the main purpose of delivering directly to consumers electric current for light, heat and power or any of them. (1925 HR 1047, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1363; 1926 S 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37.)

"District territory" means all the land included within an incorporated electric district. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S. 33.)

"Electric meeting" of an incorporated electric district means a meeting of the qualified district electors of such district held under and deriving its power from this Act. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S 33.)

"Electric utility" means any corporation or municipality authorized under the laws of this Commonwealth to generate transmit and or distribute in public service electric current for light heat and power or any of them and any person partnership or association owning or operating facilities for such generation transmission and or distributing of the same. (1925 HR 1047; 1926 S 34.)

"Existing" means existing at the time of the enactment of this Act. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Freehold land" of a qualified district elector of an incorporated electric district means land in such district as to which such elector holds title, or record evidence of title, to a freehold estate therein.[3] (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Future" means coming into existence after the enactment of (1925 HR 1361, see foot note;[3] 1926 S 33.)

"Giant power company" means a[4] corporation organized under the laws of this Commonwealth for the following purposes, when, to the extent, and as authorized thereto[5] by permit in writing from the Giant Power[6] Board, namely:

The generation for public service of electric current by means of steam in stations of not less than three hundred thousand kilowatts capacity located in or near a coalfield;

The purchase for public service of surplus[7] electric current from the producers or owners thereof;

The supply of electric current so generated or purchased exclusively to public service transmission lines of others;[8]

The transmission of electric current so generated or purchased from such stations, or from the point of receipt, over lines of not less than, one hundred and ten thousand volts pressure, to a point or points[9] of connection with public service transmission lines of others;[10]

As incidents to such generation; The purchase and mining of coal, the recovery and sale of coke, gas, tar, ammonia, and other by-products of coal before a steam raising, the manufacture and sale of chemicals, the sale of coal more suitable for by-producting or other use[11] elsewhere than at such generating stations, the construction, operation, and maintenance of works for the storage and cooling of water, or either of them, for steam raising or steam[12] condensation, or both. (1925 HR 1047, 1051, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1363, see foot notes; 1926 S 34, 36, 37, HR 1362, 1048, 1052.)

"Giant power permit" means a permit[8] issued by [14] the Board to a giant power company, authorizing the exercise of its corporate powers to the extent therein fixed and subjected to conditions therein imposed.[15] [16] (1925 HR 1051; 1926 S 32.) (HR 1362, 1054, 1048, 1052.)

"Giant power transmission line" means a transmission line of a giant power company authorized by a giant power permit. (1925 HR 1048, 1052; omitted in 1926.)

"Incorporated electric district" means a district established under this Act for the distribution to the public therein of electric current for light, heat, and power. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S 33.)

"Interstate line" means a transmission line constructed, maintained, or operated across the boundary of this Commonwealth, or within this Commonwealth to a point of connection on such boundary with a transmission line in another state or country. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Licensed line" means an interstate line operating in pursuance of a license under Section 4 of this Act. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Major transmission system" means a transmission system any transmission line in which is a major line. (1925 HR 1057; 1926 S 36.)

"Minor line" means a transmission line which is not a major line. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Mutual electric company" means a corporation organized under the laws of this Commonwealth for the distribution of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them to the stockholders and incidently to others. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S 33.)

"Net investment" in a project means the actual legitimate original cost thereof, plus similar costs of additions thereto and betterments thereof, minus the sum of the following items properly allocated thereto, if and to the extent that such items have been accumulated during the period of the permit from earnings in excess of a fair return on such investment: (a) Unappropriated surplus, (b) aggregate credit balances of current depreciation accounts, and (c) aggregate appropriations of surplus or income held in amortization, sinking fund, or similar reserve, or expended for additions or betterments or used for the purpose for which such reserves were created. The term "cost" shall not include expenditures from funds obtained through donations by the Commonwealth, municipalities, individuals, or others.[17] (1925 HR 1054; 1926 S 37.) (Compare with the following.)

[16]The words "to the extent therein fixed and subject to the conditions therein imposed were substituted "for the purpose of any of them enumerated in the foregoing definition of a Giant Power Company" in 1925 H. R. 1363, 1048.
[17]The following sentence was added to this definition in 1925 H. R. 1054 and 1926 S. 37; the board shall have the power to specify more particularly by general rules and regulations the elements of cost included in net investment"

The "net investment" is an electric utility on any day of computation means the actual legitimate original cost incurred on and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and—, of the property, including additions and betterments of such electric utility used in its public service on the day of computation. Provided: That every electric utility shall maintain its facilities in a condition of repair adequate for the efficient operation thereof for the generation, transmission, and for distribution of electric energy, shall make all necessary renewals and replacements, and shall establish and maintain adequate depreciation reserves for such purposes.[18] (1925 HR 1047; 1926 S 34.)

"Person" includes natural persons, partnerships, associations, corporations, and municipalities.[19] (1925 HR 1057, 1361, 1362, 1363; 1926 S 33, 35, 36.)

"Petitioned territory" means all the land as to which a pending[20] petition to the Board under Section 6 of this Act prays for the creation of an incorporated electric district, or all the land as to which a pending[21] petition to the Board prays that it be included under Section 4 of this Act in an incorporated electric district already created and existing. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S 33.)

"Project" means the structures of a giant power company, operated, or suitable for operation, as a complete unit for generation, receipt, and transmission of electric current the receipt and mining of coal, the recovery of by-products of coal, the manufacture and sale of chemicals, the sale of coal, the storage and cooling of water, or for any of them, to the extent and as authorized by, and subject to the conditions fixed by, its permits issued under this Act; also all water rights, rights-of-way, lands, and interests in lands, the use and occupancy of which are necessary or appropriate in the maintenance and operation of such structures. (1925 HR 1054; 1926 S 37.)

"Project works" means the physical structures of a project. (1925 HR 1054; 1926 S 37.)

"Public service" means the supply of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, to the public by, first, distribution of current directly to consumers, and by, second, carriage of current[22] and delivery thereof directly to, or through one or more other carriers to, a public service distribution system, and by, third, generation of current by means of any prime mover exclusively for delivery directly[23] to, or though one or more carriers to a public service distribution system, or any one or more of such distribution, carriage or generation, (1925 HR 1047, 1926 S 32, 33, 34, 35, 36.)

"Public service distribution system" means a distribution system owned or operated, or both, under an obligation to supply electric current to the public. (1925 HR 1047, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1363; 1926 S 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37.)

"Public service generating company" means a corporation incorporated under paragraph twenty-seven, under "Corporations for Profit, Second Class," of said section two as supplemented by section one of this Act. (Not used in 1925 bills; 1926 S 32; Compare the following.)

"Public service generating company" means a corporation incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth for the generation by any prime mover of electric current for the supply of the public with light, heat, and power by delivery of current so generated directly to, or through one or more carriers to, a public service distribution system. (1925 HR 1047; 1926 S 34.)

"Public service major line" means a major line owned or operated or both, under an obligation to supply electric current directly[24] to the public or to one or more public service distibution systems.[25] (1925 HR 1051, 1044: 1926 S 32.)

"Public service major transmission system" means a major transmission system owned or operated, or both, under an obligation to supply electric current directly to the public or to one or more public service distribution systems. (1925 HR 1057; 1926 S 36.)

"Public service minor line" means a minor line owned or operated, or both, under an obligation to supply electric current to the public. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Public service transmission company" means a corporation incorporated under paragraph twenty-eight, under "Corporations for Profit, Second Class," of said section two as supplemented by section one of this Act. (Not used in 1925 bills; 1926 S. 32.)

"Public service transmission line" means a transmission line[26] owned, or operated, or both, under an obligation to supply electric current directly[27] to the public, or to one or more public service distribution systems.[28] (1925 HR 1044, see foot note; 1926 S 32, 37.)

"Public service transmission system" means a transmission system owned, or operated, or both, under an obligation to supply electric current directly to the public, or to one or more[29] distribution systems. (1925 HR 1057; 1926 S. 36.)

"Qualified district elector" of an incorporated electric district means a person qualified to vote for township officers in any township, any part of which is included within such district, who is the holder of title to, or of record evidence of title to, a freehold estate in lands in such district. (1925 HR 1361; 1926 S 33.)

"Qualified district petitioner" means a person who would be a qualified district elector if the petitioned territory were an incorporated electric district. (Not used in 1925 bills; 1926 S 33.)

"Reservation" means State forests, State parks, and any other lands and interests in lands acquired and held by the Commonwealth for any public purpose. (1925 HR 1048, 1054; 1926 S 37.)

"Retail delivery" means the delivery of electric current directly to the consumer thereof. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Retail outstate delivery" means retail delivery in another state or country of electric current transmitted thither from Pennsylvania. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Shipper" means an offerer of electric current to the operator of a major public service transmission system operating the same as a common carrier under this Act for transmission and delivery to a consignee or to a connecting carrier. (1925 HR 1057; omitted in 1926.)

"State" means any State of the United States and the District of Columbia. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

"Substation" means a group of electrical apparatus, on, or electrically connected with, a transmission line, for changing the voltage or frequency of electric current, or for converting direct current or the reverse, with or without switches and other appurtenances, all maintained and operated to facilitate the diversion or reception, or both, of current for light, heat, and power, or any of them. (1925 HR 1361, 1363; 1926 S 33, 35.)

"Transmission district" means one of a number of districts into which the State shall have been divided or redivided by the Board for securing the[29] carriage of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, to all[30] public service distribution systems in each of such districts. (1925 HR 1047; 1926 S 34, 36.)

"Transmission district" means a transmission district created under Section five and six of this Act. (1926 S 36.)

"Transmission line" means a line, or a number of substantially parallel lines, or wire or cable, constituting one or more electric circuits, with appurtenant structures, all operated as, or as part of, a transportation unit under one business control, for the carriage between two or more generating stations, or from one or more generating stations, or from one or more generating stations to one or more substations, of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them. (1925 HR 1044, 1047, 1048, 1051, 1054, 1057, 1361, 1363; 1926 S 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37.)

"Transmission system" means one transmission line, or a network of electrically interconnected transmission lines, operated as a transportation unit under one business control. (1925 HR 1047, 1057; 1926 S 34, 36.)

"Unlicensed line" means an interstate line operating otherwise than in pursuance of a license under Section four of this Act. (1925 HR 1044; omitted in 1926.)

[18]The words "provided: that every electric utility etc." were substituted for the following in 1925 H. R. 1047 and 1926 S. 34 "and then so maintained that its original condition of useableness, and its original expectation period of useableness, remain undiminished, the 'net investment' means such original legitimate cost, less the cost estimated by the Commission as of the day of computation of restoring such property then so used to said standards of maintenance".

[19]The definition read as follows in 1925 H. R. 1057, "Person includes natural persons, corporations, partnerships, associations, municipalities, and duly authorized agencies of this and other states" (1926 S. 36.)

[21]The word "pending" was omitted in 1925 H. R. 1361.

Section 3. Whenever the Board shall have found as provided in this Act, as to any territory within one or more townships in any one county:

(a) That it is contiguous;

(b) That the supply of the public within it, and throughout every part of it, of electric current for light, heat, and power is technically and financially practicable and is required by the public interest;

(c) That in no part of it is the public so supplied or, in the opinion of the Board, adequately supplied otherwise than by a mutual electric company;

(d) That no part of it is within an existing incorporated electric district;

(e) The name and post office address of each of the qualified district electors thereof, and the approximate area therein of freehold lands held by each of them;

(I) That sixty per centum of the qualified district electors thereof have voted for the establishment of an incorporated electric district in a referendum election ordered and held by the Board;

The Board shall certifiy in writing such names post office addresses, and areas of free hold lands, and the other facts so found, together and shall file such certificate in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Upon such filing such territory with its inhabitants with a name for the corporate electric district to be so established shall be thereby created an incorporated electric district under this Act.

Section 4. The Board shall have power at any time to include in any incorporated electric district theretofore created additional territory contiguous to such district by such procedure as is authorized by and upon such a finding and certificate as is required by Section three hereof for the creation of an incorporated electric district.

Section 5. The Board shall have power at any time to exclude from any incorporated electric district any territory, which, after due notice and hearing, it shall have found:

(a) To have been erroneously included in such district; or

(b) That the public within it cannot be economically supplied with current by such district; or

(c) That the public within it can and will be as well or better supplied by another incorporated electric district, or by a public service company, or by a municipality.

In the event of such exclusion the Board shall certify the same to the Secretary of the Commonwealth and make provision for the apportionment, or the joint use of, and or the compensation, if any, to be paid for, the property of such district, as may be equitable in view of the debts of such district and otherwise.

Section 6. The finding of the Board required by Section three hereof shall be made only on the petition of ten or more qualified district petitioners praying for the creation of an incorporated electric district identical with or including the district territory, and after due notice and hearing. In such hearing there shall be taken as to the petitioned territory all proper evidence upon any of the issues to be determined by the finding required by Section three hereof, offered by any person showing himself to be a qualified district petitioner; also all proper evidence upon the issues of contiguity of territory and lack of service of electric current, offered by any municipality or person claiming under the laws of this Commonwealth authority to supply to the public in any part of the petitioned territory electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them.

Section 7. The Board may in its discretion require the pre-payment of, or a bond to secure, the whole or any part of the estimated cost to the Commonwealth, incurred elsewhere than at Harrisburg of any hearings and of any referendum election held under the provisions of Section three, four, or six of this Act.

Section 8. Every incorporated electric district so created that it includes all or any part of the transmission lines and distribution system of a mutual electric company shall, before beginning construction of any transmission or distribution lines, purchase or appropriate and condemn all the property of such mutual electric company within such district which is used and useful in the distribution of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them to the public within such district plus such reasonable damages, if any, to property of such company, valuable, serviceable, and dependent for its usefulness upon the continuance of such distribution, but not taken, as may be caused by the severance therefrom of property taken.

Section 9. Every incorporated electric district shall hold an annual electors' meeting on the first Monday in March, or on such other day as may have been fixed by the by-laws. The directors of any such district may call a special electors' meeting at any time and upon the filing of a petition by ten per centum of the qualified district electors of such district, requesting the calling of a special electors' meeting at any time and stating the specific business to be brought before it, the directors shall call a special electors' meeting as requested. Notice of all special electors' meetings shall be mailed to every qualified district elector at least ten days prior thereto, and such notice shall be accompanied by a statement of the business for which it is called. No business which has not been stated in such notice shall be done by any special electors' meeting.

Section 10 The Board shall make a list of the qualified district electors of each incorporated electric district certified by the Board to the Secretary of the Commonwealth under section three hereof, and shall by general rules and regulations or by special order provided for the amendment of such lists annually, and no person not on such list for an incorporated electric district, at last amended, shall vote at any electors' meeting of such district. The Board shall promptly supply to every incorporated electric district certified copies of such list for such district, as amended.[6] Any ten or more qualified district electors of any incorporated electric district shall constitute a quorum of any electors' meeting of such district.

Section 11. The Board may in its discretion provide by general rules and regulations or by special order for the holding of the electors' meetings of any incorporated electric district in more than one place, and for the election of directors and the taking of any vote or votes thereat by ballot.

[5] Omitted in 1925 H. R. 1361.
[6] The words "for such district as amended" were substituted for "as amended for such district" in 1925 H. R. 1361.

Voting by proxy shall not be allowed in any electors' meeting.

Section 12. Any incorporated electric district may, by a majority of the qualified district electors thereof, present and voting at any electors' meeting, adopt for the government and management of the affairs of such district a code of by-laws not inconsistent with this Act nor with any rule, regulation, or order of the Board or of the Commission hereunder. Provided: That notice of intention to adopt a code of by-laws shall have been given not less than fifteen days before such electors' meeting in such manner as the Board may by general rules and regulations or by special order prescribe.

Section 13. Incorporated electric districts shall have power to:

(a) Sue and be sued by the name of the———— Incorporated Electric District;

(b) Take and hold real personal property and interests therein within their limits, but only for the purposes set forth in this Act;

(c) Make such contracts as may be necessary for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

Section 14. The affairs of each incorporated electric district shall be managed by three directors, each of whom shall be at the time of his election or choice a qualified district elector thereof. Upon or before the filing by the Board in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of the certificate as to any such district required by Section three hereof, the Board shall ascertain by referendum, election, or other proper evidence, and shall declare, the choice of a plurality of the qualified district electors for three directors of such incorporated electric district. The directors[7] shall hold office until the next annual electors' meeting of such district thereafter and until their successors are chosen and take office. At such meeting three directors shall be elected by the qualified district electors present and voting to serve, one until the first, one until the second, and one until the third annual electors' meeting thereafter, and each until his successor is chosen and takes office. At each annual electors' meeting of such district after the first one a director[8] shall be elected to serve until the third annual meeting next following and until his successor is elected and takes office. When a vacancy among the directors occurs otherwise[9] than by expiration of the term for which a director was elected, the remaining directors, or, if they disagree the Board shall choose a proper person to fill the vacancy until the next annual electors' meeting, and until his successor is chosen and takes office. At such next annual electors' meeting a director shall be elected for the rest of the unexpired term by the qualified district electors.

Section 15. Unless otherwise provided by the by-laws any incorporated electric district may, by its by-laws or by a special vote at any special electors' meeting properly called, provide a fair remuneration for the time actually spent by its officers and directors in its service. No director during the term of his office shall be a party to a contract for profit with the electric district differing in any way from the business relations accorded to all qualified district electors.

Section 16. The directors of each incorporated electric district shall elect from their number annually a president and fix his compensation, if any, not inconsistent with the by-laws. They shall also appoint and fix the compensation, if any, not inconsistent with the by-laws of a secretary and and a treasurer, and such other officers as they deem necessary, who need not be directors, and they may combine the offices of secretary and treasurer under the designation of secretary-treasurer. They may employ and provide for the compensation of, or provide for the employment and for the fixing of the compensation of, such employees as they deem necessary. The directors shall have general control of and responsibility for the conduct of the business of the incorporated electric district.

Section 17. The corporate power of every incorporated electrict district shall be exercised by the directors thereof. They shall have power, subject to the rules, regulations, and orders of the Board, and to the by-laws:

(a) To construct, operate, and maintain within and without such district, when and as authorized or required by the Board, lines suitable for the distribution of electric current for light, heat and power to the public within and throughout such district; also transmission lines, substations, transformers, and other facilities necessary or convenient for such distribution or for the procuring of such current for distribution;

(b) To appropriate and condemn, by the procedure provided in the forty-first section of the Corporation Act of April twenty-ninth,[10] one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four (Pamphlet Laws seventy-three), and the amendments and supplements thereto,[11] any lands, rights of way, and other property and rights as to which the Board, after due notice and public hearing, shall have found that the appropriation of the same is required by the present and future interests of the Commonwealth for the construction, maintenance, or operation of such lines, substations, transformers, and other facilities, and is not incompatible with the public interests of the region in the vicinity thereof.

(c) To purchase and to distribute to the public within such district electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, and to charge and collect in consideration thereof just and reasonable rates which may be classified according to the kind, time, and quantity of use, and shall include a minimum charge to be paid whether current is used or not, but shall be non-discriminatory with respect to all distributees of the same class;

(d) To make, for the purpose of raising revenue by taxation,[12] a valuation, when and as the Board shall by general rules and regulations or by special order prescribe, of all property in such district upon which the county taxes of the county comprising such district are levied and assessed;

(e) To raise such revenue, if any, as may be estimated by the Board to be necessary for the purposes of such district in excess of the proceeds or estimated proceeds of rates charged and collected, as in this Section aforesaid, by the levy and assessment of taxes upon the property valued as provided in the next foregoing subsection at a rate not exceeding mills on the dollar in any one year; and to collect, as the Board shall by general rules and regulations prescribe, the taxes so levied and assessed.

(f) To borrow money for the purposes of such district and issue evidences of indebtedness therefor. The total amount of indebtedness so created and remaining unpaid at any time shall not exceed two per centum of the valuation of the property within the electric district last made under subsection (d) of this section without the affirmative vote of a majority of the qualified district electors present and voting at a special electors' meeting called for that purpose. The rate of interest on any such indebtedness shall not exceed six per centum. No indebtedness shall be incurred or expenditure authorized except by vote of the directors.

Section 18. When any incorporated electric district shall borrow money and issue bonds or other evidences of indebtedness therefor, except in the case of the giving of notes for such temporary loans as may be authorized by the rules and regulations or special order of the Board, the commissioners shall sell the same to the highest bidder after public notice by advertisement once a week for three weeks in at least one newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which such incorporated electric district shall be situated. No bid for such bonds or securities at less than their par value shall be accepted.

[13]Section 19. Any corporation or natural person authorized under the laws of this Commonwealth to supply electric current to the public for light, heat, and power, or any of them, shall sell and deliver at its generating station, or at any point on any of its transmission lines, electric current to any incorporated electric district demanding the same for distribution by such district, and shall for the purpose of such delivery install at the cost of such district suitable substations, switches, transformers, and other like and unlike apparatus, as the Board in its discretion shall by general rules and regulations prescribe, or shall in specific cases order. Such delivery shall be made without discrimination as to service between such district and any other customer or public service distribution system, and at a price properly computed as not more than the average cost to the selling company,

[12]The word "to" was included in 1925 H. R. 1361.
[13]Section 19 of 1925 H. R. 1361 omitted in 1926. It read: Section 19. Incorporated electric districts shall be served by giant power companies and common carrier transmission companies on equal terms with other public service distribution systems.
Section 20 of 1925 H. R. 1361 is the same as section 19 of 1926 S. 33.

including a fair return on the proper rate base, of the generation and transmission, excluding distribution, of current supplied by it to the public. Provided: That, if experience shall at any time have clearly shown that such sale and delivery has caused, and in the judgment of the Commission is likely to continue to cause in the near future, a decrease in the average daily output, measured in kilowatt hours per kilowatt of installed generating capacity of equipment generating the current supplied to the public for light, heat, and power by the selling company, then and in that case such price shall be equitably increased by the Commission.

Section 20. The Board shall have power:

(a) To give expert engineering, financial, and business management advice to any or all incorporated electric districts;

(b) To require of each such district the keeping of accounts and the publication of financial statements suitable for the information of the qualified district electors the distributees of electric current, and the creditors of, and the persons subject to taxation by, such district; to examine all books and accounts of any such district at any time; to require any such district to submit at any time statements and reports including full information as to their finances and the conduct of their business. All such statements and reports shall be made upon oath unless otherwise specified, and in such form and on such blanks as the Board may require. Any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or cause to be made any false entry in the books or the accounts of any such district, and any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or causes to be made any false statement or report in response to a request or order or direction from the Board for the statements and reports herein referred to, shall upon conviction be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than one year or both.

(c) To hold hearings and to order testimony to be taken by deposition at any designated place in connection with any inquiry or proceeding under this Act;

(d) To require by subpoena, signed by any member of the Board, the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence from any place within the Commonwealth, and in case of disobedience to a subpoena, the Board may invoke the aid of any court of the Commonwealth in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. Any member, expert, or examiner, of the Board, when duly designated by the Board for such purposes, may administer oaths and affirmations examine witnesses, and receive evidence. Depositions may be taken before any person designated by the Board, or by its Secretary, and empowered to administer oaths. They shall be reduced to writing by such person or under his direction and subscribed by the deponent. Witnesses summoned before the Board shall be paid fees and mileage allowances equal to those paid witnesses in the Courts of the Commonwealth, and witnesses whose depositions are taken and persons taking the same shall be entitled to fees equal to those paid for like services in the Courts of the Commonwealth.

(e) To perform any and all such acts, to make such rules and regulations, to prescribe such forms, and to issue such orders, not inconsistent with this Act, as may be necessary and proper for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Section 21. The Commission shall have power to perform any and all such acts, to make such rules and regulations, to prescribe such forms, and to issue such orders, not inconsistent with this Act, as may be necessary and proper for the performance of its duty under this Act.

Section 22. Any natural person or corporation, who shall wilfully fail or who shall refuse to comply with any provisions of this Act, or with any regulation or lawful order of the Board, or of the Commission, issued or made in accordance with the provisions of, or for the proper administration of, this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall in the discretion of the Court be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars in addition to other penalties herein prescribed or otherwise[14] provided by law, and every month any such person or corporation shall remain in default shall be deemed a new and separate offense punishable as in this Section aforesaid.

Section 23. It is the intent of this Act to secure, so far as practicable, an abundant and cheap supply of electric current for light, heat, and power for the industries, farms, and homes of and throughout this Commonwealth which would not otherwise be supplied therewith, and this Act shall be broadly construed to that end.

Section 24. The provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable one from another, and severable as to the persons, corporations, and subject-matters respectively herein dealt with, and, if for any reason one or more of such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional as to any particular person, corporation, or subject-matter, or otherwise, such holding shall not affect the validity of such provision or provisions as applicable to other persons, corporations, or subject-matters dealt with thereby, or the validity of the remaining provisions of this Act. It is hereby declared that such provision or provisions and the remaining provisions would have been enacted notwithstanding such holding.

Senate Bill No. 35

Providing for the incorporation of Mutual Electric Companies (Cooperative enterprises to serve farmers in territory not otherwise adequately served).

(The wording of this bill, except where otherwise noted is the same as 1925 HR 1363.)

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That Section Two of The Corporation Act of Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-four (Pamphlet Laws Seventy-three), as amended, be supplemented by adding thereto, under "Corporations for profit, second class", the following paragraph;

XXIX The distribution of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, to the stockholders and incidentally to others.

Section 2. Where used in this Act singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standard Definitions).
"Commission" (See Standard Definitions).
"Person" (See Standard Definitions).
"Substation" (See Standard Definitions).
"Transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Distribution system" (See Standard Definitions).
"Public service distributing system" (See Standard Definitions).

(See foot note[1].)

"Public service" (See Standard Definitions)

Section 3 Corporations incorporated under Section One of this Act shall be known as mutual electric companies, and shall be in all respects subject to said Corporation Act, as amended.

Section 4. Mutual electric companies shall have power, when and as authorized by permit in writing from the Board; To construct, operate, and maintain where, in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Board shall specify and set forth in the permit transmission line, distribution line, substations, transformers, and other facilities, necessary or convenient for the distribution of electric current for light, heat, and power to the stockholders, and incidentally to others, in any territory which the Board, after due notice and hearing, shall have found to be not served or not adequately served with electric current for said uses;

To appropriate and condemn by the procedure provided in the forty-first section of said Corporation Act of one thousand eight hundred seventy-four, as amended, any lands, rights of way, and other property and rights as to which the Board, after due notice and public hearing, shall have found that the appropriation of the same is required by the present and future interests of the Commonwealth for the construction, maintenance, or operation of such lines, substations, transformers, and other facilities, and is not incompatible with the public interests of the region in the vicinity thereof;

[14]The word "otherwise" was substituted for "herein" in 1925 H. R. 1361.

[1]The definition of "Public Service" was substituted for definitions of "Giant power company" and "Common carrier transmission company" in 1925 H. R. 1363 (See Standard Definitions).

To purchase and distribute to its stockholders and to others, as, and[2] to the extent hereinafter set forth, electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, and to charge and collect in consideration thereof just and reasonable rates which may be classified according to the kind, time, and quantity of use, and shall include a minimum charge to be paid whether any current is used or not, it shall be nondiscriminatory with respect to all distributees of the same class;

As as incident to such distribution to its stockholders, to distribute electric current for said purposes in like manner to other persons. Provided: That the number of such other persons to whom distribution is made in any one calendar year shall not be so great,[3] as to exceed three-fourths of the number of stockholders at the beginning of such calendar year; and provided further: That the number of kilowatt hours distributed to all persons not stockholders in any calendar year after the second full year of operation shall not be so great[4] as to exceed the number of kilowatt hours distributed to all stockholders during the preceding calendar year.

Section 5. The rates, including minimum charges, of mutual electric companies shall be such as to earn in each normal year of operation not less than fixed charges, including interest and sinking fund requirements plus[5] operation and maintenance expenses, including taxes, plus[6] depreciation reserve requirements, and dividends on stock outstanding at the maximum dividend rate expressed in the stock certificates. The board shall have power on petition by the holders of ten per cent of the stock outstanding, to regulate and adjust the rates, including minimum chares, of any mutual electric company, as the Board shall deem most expedient to attain these ends as near as may be.

Section 6 . Each mutual electric company shall within thirty days after its incorporation, adopt for its government and management a code of by-laws not inconsistent with said Corporation Act of one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, as amended, nor with this Act. A majority vote of the stockholders or their written assent evidenced in such manner as the Board shall prescribe shall be necessary to adopt such by-laws. A copy of the by-laws shall be filed with the Board before the issuance of a permit under Section four hereof.

Section 7. All stock of any mutual electric company shall be of one class, and shall have a uniform and fixed par value of twenty-five dollars, or some multiple thereof, per share, and shall be entitled to dividends out of net earnings at a rate not to exceed eight per cent per year. The right to dividends may be cumulative from year to year, or non-cumulative. The par value, the maximum dividend rate, and the cumulative of non-cumulative character of the dividend right, shall be expressed in the certificates of stock. One-half of the par value of the capital stock subscribed for shall be paid in cash before incorporation and the certificate shall so state.

Section 8. Any mutual electric company may buy it by-laws reserve to the directors the prior option to buy for the company the stock of any stockholder desiring to sell, and may reserve the right to recall at any time all or any part of the stock of any stockholder to whom it shall not have distributed during the next foregoing calendar year electric current, and likewise to recall all or any part except one share of the stock of any other stockholder Provided that he Company upon exercising such option to buy or right to all shall pay for the stock bought or recalled at its book value or at its par value where the book value is less than he par value; and provided further: That no restriction pon the ownership or transfer of stock authorized by this ection shall be valid unless a provision setting out such restriction is contained in the by-laws and in the stock subscription paper, if any, and expressed in the stock certificate.

Section 9. Any natural person to whom electric current as been distributed under Section Two of this Act in any alendar year may apply in writing, in such manner as the oard may by general rules and regulations prescribe, to ie mutual electric company which has made such distribuon, for admission as a stockholder in such company. Such pplication shall be filed with the proper officer of such mpany, and a duplicate thereof with the Board on or beore the first day of December in such calendar year, and so filed and accompanied by full payment for one share, e company shall issue one share to him.

Section 10. Contracts between any mutual electric company and any one or more of its stockholders, whereby the stockholder agrees to furnish labor and materials, or either of them, for the construction or maintenance of the company's works, shall, if otherwise lawful, be valid.

Section 11. Every stockholder of a mutual electric company shall have the right to one vote and no more in stockholders' meetings, without regard to the number of shares held by him. Voting by proxy shall not be allowed.

Section 12. In its by-laws every mutual electric company shall provide for one or more regular stockholders' meeting annually. The directors shall have power[6] to call a special stockholders' meeting at any time, and upon the filing of a petition by ten per cent of the stockholders requesting the calling of a special meeting to be held at any time not less than one month after the last preceding stockholders' meeting, and stating the specific business to be brought before it, the directors shall call a meeting as requested. Notice of all stockholders' meetings shall be mailed to each stockholder at least ten days prior thereto, and in case a special stockholders' meeting is called, such notice shall be accompanied by a statement of the purposes for which it is called.

Section 13, Every mutual electric company shall fix by its by-laws the number or percentage of the stockholders necessary to constitute a quorum at stockholders' meeting.

Section 14. The affairs of every mutual electric company shall be managed by not less than three directors, all of whom shall be stockholders resident in this Commonwealth. Directors shall be elected by the stockholders at such time and for such term of office as the by-laws may prescribe. Unless otherwise provided by the by-laws, any mutual electric company may, by vote of its stockholders at any meeting regularly called, provided a fair remuneration for the time actually spent by its officers and directors in its service. No director during the term of his office shall be a party to a contract for profit with the company differing in any way from the business relations accorded to all stockholders. When a vacancy among the directors occurs, otherwise than by expiration of the term for which a director was elected, the remaining directors by majority vote shall fill the vacancy.

Section 15. The directors shall elect from their number annually a president, and if the by-laws so provided, one or more vice presidents. They shall also elect a secretary and a treasurer, who need not be directors, and they may combine the two latter offices.

Section 16. Any stockholder may bring charges against any director by filing them in writing with the secretary, together with a petition signed by ten per cent, of the stockholders, requesting the removal of such director. The question of such removal shall be voted upon at the next stockholders' meeting, and the affirmative vote of a majority of the members present shall operate to remove the director and fill the vacancy, The director against whom such charges have been brought shall be informed thereof in writing not less than five days before the meeting, and shall have an opportunity at the meeting to be heard in person or by counsel, and the person or persons bringing the charges against him shall have the same opportunity.

Section 17. Any mutual electric company, out of earnings received during any calendar year, and remaining after the payment of fixed charges, including interest and sinking fund requirements, and of operation and maintenance expenses, including taxes, and after[7] such payments to depreciation reserves as the Board may by general rules and regulations require, may declare and pay dividends on its stock outstanding at the end of such year. Such dividends shall be declared and paid, or set aside for payment, out of the earnings applicable thereto before any distribution of profits to stockholding consumers is authorized as provided in the next following Section.

Section 18. Out of any balance remaining from the receipts during any calendar year, after the payment or setting aside of dividends as provided in the next foregoing Section, the corporation may pay to its stockholders to whom during such calendar year it distributed electric current the whole or any part of such balance in proportion to the number of kilowatt hours so distributed to each of such stockholders, of if the by-laws so provided, in proportion to the amount of money properly charged to each of such stockholders in accordance with the rates for such distribution.

Section 19. Any debts owing from any stockholder to any mutual electric company on balance of accounts between such stockholder and such company shall be offset against any claim for dividends or for distribution of the profits under the two next foregoing Sections, and only the balance, if any, in favor of the stockholders shall be paid to him under said Sections or either of them.

Section 20. Mutual electric companies shall not be construed to be public service companies within the public service company law.

Section 21. Any corporation or natural person authorized under the laws of this Commonwealth to supply electric current to the public for light, heat, and power, or any of them, shall sell and deliver at its generating station, or at any point on any of its transmission lines, electric lines, electric current to any mutual electric company demanding the same for distribution by such mutual electric company, and shall install at the cost of such mutual electric company suitable substations, switches, transformers, and other like and unlike apparatus, as the Board in its discretion shall by general rules and regulations prescribe, or shall in specific cases order. Such delivery shall be made without discrimination as to service between such mutual electric company and any other customer or any public service distribution system, and at a price properly computed as not more than the average cost to the selling company, including a fair return on the proper rate-base of the generation and transmission, excluding distribution of current supplied by it to the public. Provided: That, if experience shall at any time have clearly shown that such sale and delivery has caused, and in the judgment of the Commission is likey to continue to cause in the near future, a decrease in the average daily output measured in kilowatt hours per kilowatt of installed generating capacity of equipment generating the current supplied to the public for light, heat, and power, by the selling company, then and in that case, such price shall be equitably increased by the Commission.

Section 22. The Board and the Commission shall severally have power to make such rules, regulations, and order, and to prescribe such forms as may be necessary or convenient for the proper administration of this Act. The Board shall have power to give expert engineering, financial, and business management advice to any or all mutual electric companies.

Section 23. The provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable one from another, and severable as to the persons and subject-matters respectively herein dealt with, and if for any reason one or more of such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional as to any particular person or subject-matter, or otherwise such holding shall not affect the validity of such provision or provisions as are applicable to other persons or subject-matters dealth with thereby, or the validity of the remaining provisions of this Act. It is hereby declared that such provision or provisions, and the remaining provisions would have been enacted notwithstanding such holding.

Senate Bill No. 31

Creating a Giant Power Board with the same investigative powers that were given to the Giant Power Survey Board by the Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 449.

(The wording of this bill, except where otherwise noted, is the same as 1925 HR 1043.)

Section 1. Be it enaced, &c., That the Secretary of Forests and Waters, a member of the Public Service Commission to be designated from time to time by the Governor, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Labor and Industry, and a competent engineer to be designated from time to time by the Governor, are hereby created a Giant Power Board within the Department of Forests and Waters, hereinafter called the Board. The Board shall annually elect from its membership a Chairman, and a Vice Chairman to act in case of the absence or disability of the Chairman.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the Board to continue the outline survey of the fuel resources available for Pennsylvania and of the most practicable means for their full utilization for power development and other related uses; also to recommend to the General Assembly, in outline, such policy with respect to the generation, transmission, and distribution of electric energy as will, in the opinion of the Board, best secure for the industries, railroads, farms, and homes of this Commonwealth an abundant and cheap supply of electric current for industrial, transportation, agricultural, and domestic use. The Board shall investigate the practicability of and make recommendations concerning the establishment of giant power plants for the generation of electricity by fuel power near coal mines, the transmission and distribution of electric energy so and otherwise generated throughout the Commonwealth, the saving and utilization of the by-products of coal to be consumed in such giant power and other plants, the electrification of railroads, and the coordination of water power and fuel power development with the regulation of rivers by storage, and otherwise, for water supply, transportation, public health, and recreation, and other beneficial uses.

Section 3. In making its investigation and reports, the Board shall make use of all available information collected by the Commonwealth and all other published or otherwise readily obtainable information within the scope of its inquiry. Every officer, department, commission, and other agency of the Commonwealth, possessing such information, shall furnish the same to the Board from time to time upon request of the Board[1] as the Governor may direct.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of the Board, in its investigation and reports, to study and consider the best practicable utilization of streams for navigation, water supply, purity of waters, river regulation and flood prevention, in relation to power, and both as to waters and as to generation, transmission, and distribution of electric energy, to keep in view the mutual interests of this Commonwealth and other States, and to outline plans for the interchange of electrical energy with all other States within the practicable transmission distance.

Section 5. The Board shall have such other powers as may[2] be conferred upon it by law.

Section 6. The engineer designated as a member of the Board shall be paid such compensation as shall be fixed by the Governor of the Commonwealth. The other members of the Board shall serve without additional compensation.

Section 7. The biennial report of the Board shall be submitted to the General Assembly at the opening of each regular session.

Section 8. The Giant Power Board created by this act within the Department of Forests and Waters shall be and be deemed a departmental administrative Board within the said Department, and shall be subject in all respects to the laws of this Commonwealth limiting the powers of departmental administrative boards with regard to the expenditure of money, and prescribing the duties of the departmental administrative boards with reference to the making of financial reports, the furnishing of financial and budgetary information to the department with which it is connected and the making of biennial reports.

Section 9. The sum of seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000.00) is hereby specifically appropriated for the fiscal year beginning June first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, for the purpose of the payment of the compensation of the engineer from time to time designated as member of the Board, the compensation of necessary technical, clerical, legal, and other assistance, the rent of necessary quarters in Harrisburg and elsewhere, necessary travel of the members of the Board and its employes, their necessary subsistence when absent from their regular places of employment, the purchase through the Department of Property and Supplies of stationary, printing, and supplies and materials of every kind and description, as may be necessary for the proper conduct of the work of the Board, and other necessary expenses incurred in the performance of the duties imposed under this Act.

Section 3. Any giant power company may exercise its corporate powers for all or any of[4] the purposes enumerated in the definition of giant power company, in Section two of this Act,[5] when to the extent, and as authorized thereto, by, and subject to the conditions imposed by a permit in writing issued by the Board under this Act. Any exercise or attempted exercise otherwise of its corporate powers shall be unlawful.

Section 4. The Board is hereby authorized and empowered :

(a) To ascertain the net investment as defined in Section two of this Act, of any permittee under this Act. For this purpose the permittee shall, upon oath, within a reasonable period of time to be fixed by the Board after the construction of the original project works, or any addition thereto, or betterment hereof, file with the Board, in such detail as the Board may require, a statement in triplicate showing the actual legitimate cost of the construction of such project works, addition, or betterment, and the price paid for water rights, rights-of-way, lands, or interest in lands. The Board shall deposit one of said triplicate statements with the Commission. The permittee shall grant to the Board and to the Commission, or to the duly authorized agent or agent of the Board and of the Commission, at all reasonable times free access to the project and project works and to all maps, profiles, contracts, reports of engineers, accounts, books, records, and all other papers and documents relating thereof;

(b) To issue permits to giant power companies for the exercise of their corporate powers for the purposes enumerated in the definition of giant power companies in Section two of this Act, or for any of the purposes there enumerated, and in that behalf, for the construction or acquisition, and the maintenance and operation of generating stations of not less than three hundred thousand kilowatts capacity, transmission lines suitable for operation under a pressure of not less than one hundred and ten thousand volts, also water storage, and cooling works, or either of them, except dams or other water obstructions and changes in the course, current, or cross section of any stream or body of water for which a permit from the Water and Power Resources Board is required by law; also works for the recovery and treatment of any or all by-products of coal before steam raising, also works for the manufacture of chemicals, also works for the mining and preparation of coal, also any other project works necessary or convenient for such enumerated purposes, to the extent and as the same are authorized by, and subject to the conditions imposed by such permit. Provided: That permits shall be issued within any reservation only after a finding by the Board in each case that the permit will not interfere or be inconsistent with the purpose for which such reservation was created or acquired, and shall be subject to and contain such conditions as the head of the Department under whose supervision such reservation falls shall deem necessary for the adequate protection and utilization thereof;

(c) Upon the filing of any application for a permit under this Act, the Board before granting such application, shall publish notice thereof for three weeks in a daily or weekly newspaper of general circulation in the county or counties in which the project is to be situated. Such notice shall set forth briefly the character of the project and the intention to make application for a permit therefor;

(d) To hold hearings, and to order testimony to be taken by deposition at any designated place in connection with the application for any permit, and to require by subpoena, signed by any member of the Board, the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence from any place within the Commonwealth, and in case of disobedience to a subpoena, the Board may invoke the aid of any court of the Commonwealth, in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. Any member, expert, or examiner of the Board may, when duly designated by the Board for such purposes, administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses, and receive evidence. Depositions may be taken before any person designated by the Board; or by its secretary, and empowered to administer oaths. They shall be reduced to writing by such person, or under his direction, and subscribe by the deponent. Witnesses summoned before the Board shall be paid fees and mileage allowances equal to those paid witnesses in the courts of the Commonwealth, and witnesses whose depositions are taken, and persons taking the same shall be entitled to fees equal to those paid for like services in the courts of the Commonwealth;

(e) To perform any and all such acts, to make such rules and regulations, to prescribe such forms, and to issue such orders, not inconsistent with this Act, as may be necessary and proper for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Section 5. The Commission shall have power to prescribe rules and regulations for the establishment of a system of accounts, and for the maintenance thereof by permittees hereunder to examine all books and accounts of such permittees at any time, to require them to submit at such time or times as the Commission may require, statements and reports, including full information as to assets and liabilities, capitalization, net investment, and reduction thereof, gross receipts, interest due and paid, depreciation and other reserves, cost of project, cost of maintenance and operation of the project, cost of renewals and replacements of the project, works, and as to depreciation of the project works, and as to production, transmission, use, and sale of power, by products of coal, and chemicals; also to require any licensee to make adequate provisions for currently determining said cost and other facts. All such statements and reports shall be made upon oath, unless otherwise specified, and in such form and on such blanks as the Commission may require. Any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or causes to be made any false entry in the books or for the accounts of such permittee, and any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or causes to be made any false statement or report in response to a request, or order, or direction from the Commission for such statements and reports, shall upon conviction be fined not more than two thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than five years or both.

Section 6. Permits under this Act shall be limited to such[6] persons, not exceeding fifty years, as the Board shall determine and set forth therein. Every such permit shall be conditioned upon acceptance by the permittee of all the terms and conditions of this Act, and such further conditions if any, as the Board shall prescribe in conformity with this Act, which said terms and conditions, and the acceptance thereof shall be expressed in each permit. Permits may be revoked only for the reasons, and in the manner, prescribed under the provisions of this Act, and may be altered or surrendered only upon mutual agreements between the permittee and the Board after ninety days public notice.

Section 7. No voluntary transfer of any permit, or of the rights and powers granted thereunder, shall be made without the written approval of the Board, and any successor to assign of the rights of the permittee, whether by voluntary transfer, judicial sale, foreclosure sale, or otherwise shall be subject to all the conditions of the permit under which such rights and powers are held by the permittee, and also subject to all the terms and conditions of this Act to the same extent as though the successor or assign were the original licensee hereunder. Provided: That a mortgage, or trust deed, or a judicial sale made thereunder, or a tax sale[7], shall not be deemed voluntary transfers within the meaning of this Section.

Section 8. Every application for a permit under this Act shall be in writing and shall be accompanied by:

(a) Such maps, plans, specifications, estimates of cost, and statement of the plan of operation, as the Board may deem necessary for a full understanding of the subject. Such maps, plans, and specifications, when approved by the Board, shall be made a part of the permit, and thereafter no change shall be made in such maps, plans, or specifications, until such change shall have been approved and made a part of such permit by the Board;

(b) A copy of the applicant's charter of incorporation;

(c) Such additional information as the Board may require.

Section 9. All permits issued under this Act shall be on the following conditions:

(a) That the project adopted, including the maps, plans, and specifications, shall be such as in the judgment of the Board will be best adopted to a comprehensive scheme of utilization of coal through generation of current by steam, and as an incident thereto, if, and to the extent that the Board shall in the permit so require the recovery, development, treatment, and manufacture of by-products of coal, and, if necessary in order to secure such scheme, the Board may require the modification of the project and of the maps, plans and specifications of such project before approval;

(b) That, except when emergency shall require for the protection of life, health, or property, no substantial alteration or addition not in conformity with the approved plans shall be made of, or[8] to any substantial part of the project works without the prior approval of the Board; and any substantial alteration or addition made, when so required by emergency, shall thereafter be subject to such modification and change as the Board may direct;

(c) That, the permittee[9] shall maintain the project works in a condition of repair adequate for the purpose for which the permit is issued, shall make all necessary renewals and replacements, shall establish and maintain adequate depreciation reserves for such purposes, and shall conform to such rules and regulations as the Board may from time to time prescribe for the protection of life, health, and property;

(d) That,[10] upon not less than two years notice in writing from the Board, the Commonwealth shall have the right, upon or after the expiration of any permit, to take over and thereafter to maintain and operate any project covered in whole or in part by the permit, upon the condition that before taking possession it shall pay the net investment in the project[11] and shall assume all contracts entered into by the permittee with the approval of the Commission. The net investment of the permittee in the project so taken shall be determined by agreement between the Commission and the permittee, but if they cannot agree, by proceedings in equity instituted by the Commonwealth in any court clothed with jurisdiction in civil cases to which the Commonwealth is a party. Provided: That such net investment shall not include or be affected by, the value of any lands, rights-of-way, or other property whatsoever of the Commonwealth, occupied or used under the permit, by the permit itself, or any good will, going value, or prospective revenues. Provided further: That the values allowed for water-rights, rights-of-way, lands, or interests in lands, shall not be in excess of the actual legitimate cost thereof, at the time of acquisition by the permittee,[12] and provided further: That the right of the Commonwealth at any time, by condemnation proceedings and upon payment of just compensation, to take over, maintain, and operate any project licensed under this Act is hereby expressly reserved;[13]

(e) That,[14] if the Commonwealth does not at the expiration of the original permit exercise its right to take over, maintain, and operate the project as provided in the next preceding subsection, the Board is authorized to issue a new permit to the original permittee upon such terms and conditions as may be authorized or required under the then existing laws and regulations, or to issue a new permit under said terms and conditions to a new permittee, which permit may cover any project covered by the original permit, and shall be issued on the condition that the new permittee shall before taking possession of such project, pay such amount and assume such contracts as the Commonwealth is required to do in the manner specified in the last preceding subsection. Provided: That if the Commonwealth does not exercise the right to take over, or does not issue a permit to a new permittee, or does not issue a new permit to the original permittee, then the Board shall issue from year to year an annual permit to the then permittee under the terms and conditions of the original permit until the plant is taken over or a new permit is issued as aforesaid;

(f) That, in respect to the sale and delivery of electric current by the permittee, rates, service, and facilities shall be reasonable, non-discriminatory, and just, and all unreasonable, discriminatory, and unjust rates, service, and facilities are hereby prohibited. Such rates shall be so regulated as to afford the permittee a reasonable opportunity for a fair return from its entire business, including business other than the sale and delivery of electric current, in view of all circumstances at the time of regulation, upon the net investment as defined in Section two of this Act, and without regard to any valuation of all or any property of the permittee which may differ from such net investment;

(g) That the permittee assumes, and will faithfully discharge the duty of a common purchaser, obligated as such to purchase at a standard maximum price not exceeding the capital operating and maintenance cost of generation in the station of the permittee from every public service or other producer of electric current, all current of standard voltage, frequency, and form, or either alternating or direct current, generated by them in this Commonwealth, and delivered at the cost of the seller to the generating station, or to any transmission line of the permittee. The standard maximum price shall be fixed as to each permittee from time to time by the Commission, and the standards of voltage, frequency, and form shall be fixed as to each permittee from time to time by the Board. As such common purchaser the permittee shall receive and purchase all such current, so offered, to the extent of its capacity to transmit and ability to resell the same without discrimination in facilities, service, or price,in favor of one seller as against another, and shall install at the cost of the seller suitable switches, transformers, and other like and unlike apparatus, as the Board may in its discretion order. But if, and to the extent that it shall lack capacity to transmit, or be unable to resell, all current, as aforesaid, which could be generated in this Commonwealth and is offered, it shall to the extent of its capacity and ability receive and purchase all current generated by water power, and as to current produced by fuel power, shall receive and purchase from each producer so offering a part of that so offered ratably in proportion to installed generating capacity of each producer, as determined by the Board, or lacking such determination, as reasonably estimated by the permittee. And if the permittee shall be unable to so receive and purchase all such current generated by water power, the quantity to be received and purchased from each producer, thereof, shall be computed and determined ratably in like manner. Provided: That common purchaser duty under this subsection shall not be construed to require the permittee, as to steam-generated current, to reduce its own production, nor, as to water-power generated current, to increase its own unit cost of production, whether by reduction of output, or otherwise. Provided further: That the Commission shall have power to require enlargement of the permittee's capacity to receive and transmit current as may be reasonably necessary;

(h) That with respect to electric current, to anything produced by the permittee, and to electrical apparatus, the permittee will not enter into any combination, agreement, arrangement, or understanding express or implied, to limit output, to restrain trade, or to fix, maintain, or increase prices;

(i) Such other conditions not inconsistent with this Act as the Board may require.

Section 10. The permittee[15] shall commence the construction of the project works within the time fixed in the permit, and shall thereafter in good faith and with due diligence proceed with the construction, and shall within the time fixed in the permit complete the project works and put the project into operation. The periods for the commencement of construction may be extended once, but no longer than two additional years, and the period for the completion of construction may be extended by the Board, if the permittee shall not commence actual construction within the time prescribed in the permit, or as extended by the Board, then after due notice shall have been given, the permit may be terminated upon written order of the Board. If the construction shall have been begun but not completed within the time prescribed in the permit, or as extended by the Board, then the Attorney General upon the request of the Board, shall institute proceedings in equity in any court clothed with jurisdiction in civil cases to which the Commonwealth is a party for the revocation of the permit, the sale of that part of the plant already constructed, and such other equitable relief as the case may demand, as provided for in Section thirteen of this Act.

Section 11. That, whenever the public interest requires or justifies the execution by the permittee of contracts for the sale and delivery of current for periods extending beyond the date of termination of the permit, such contracts may be entered into upon the joint approval of the Board and of the Commission, and thereafter, in the event of failure to issue a new permit to the original permittee at the termination of the original permit, the Commonwealth or the new permittee, as the case may be, shall assume and fulfill all such contracts.

Section 12. That any permittee or any person, who shall wilfully fail or who shall refuse to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, or with any of the conditions made a part of any permit issued hereunder; or with any subpoena of the Board hereunder, or of the Commission, with respect to the administration hereof, or with any regulation or lawful order of the Board, or of the Commission, issued or made in accordance with the provisions of, or for the proper administration of, this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall in the discretion of the Court be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars in addition to other penalties herein prescribed or other wise[16] provided by law, and every month any such permittee or any such person who shall remain in default after written notice from the Board or from the Commission shall be deemed a new and separate offense punishable as aforesaid.

Section 13. The Attorney General may, on the request of the Board, institute proceedings in any court now or hereafter clothed with jurisdiction in civil cases in which the Commonwealth is a party, for the purpose of remedying or correcting by injunction, mandamus, or other process, any action or mission in violation of the provisions of this Act, or of the terms, conditions, or stipulations of any permit granted hereunder, or of any lawful regulation or order promulgated hereunder. If any permittee shall fail to comply with the requirements of any final decree in any such proceedings, the Attorney General may institute proceedings for the purpose of revoking the permit. Such court shall have jurisdiction over all the above-mentioned proceedings and shall have power to issue and execute all necessary process, and to make and enforce all rights, orders, and decrees, to compel compliance with the lawful orders and regulations of the Board, or of the Commission, and to compel the performance of any condition lawfully imposed under the provisions of this Act. If a decree revoking a permit is entered, the court is hereby empowered to sell the whole or any part of the project, to wind up the business of the permittee conducted under the permit, to distribute the proceeds to the parties entitled to the same, and to make and enforce such further orders and decrees as equity and justice may require. At such sale or sales the vendee shall take the rights and privileges belonging to the permittee and shall perform the duties of the permittee and assume all outstanding obligations and liabilities of the permittee which the court may deem equitable in the premises.

Section 14. The right to amend and repeal this Act is hereby expressly reserved, but no such alteration, amendment, or repeal shall affect any permit theretofore issued under the provisions of this Act, or the right or powers of any permittee thereunder.

Section 15. The several provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable, and if any provisions of this Act shall be held by any court to be unconstitutional, it is the legislative intent that such judgment shall not affect ar other provision thereof.

Section 16. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent wi this Act are hereby repealed.

For the pooling of electric service by imposing the duty common purchase and common sale in transmission di tricts on the operators of major transmission system therein.

The wording of this bill, except where otherwise note is the same as 1925 HR 1057, which imposed the du of common carriage and provided for the division electric service into generating companies, transmissi companies, and distribution companies.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That this Act may be cit as The Electric Service Pooling Act one thousand nine hu dred twenty-six.[1]

Section 2. Where used in this Act singular words sh be construed as including the plural, masculine words sh be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and t following terms shall have the following meanings respe tively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standardization Definitions).
"Commission" (See Standard Definitions).

from every public service or other producer, current of standard voltage, frequency and form, which may be the form of either alternating or direct current, generated by such producers within the same transmission district, offered for sale by and delivered at the cost of, the seller to any transmission line of such common purchaser therein. The standard maximum price shall be fixed as to each such common purchaser from time to time by the Commission, and the standards of voltage, frequency, and form shall be fixed as to each such common purchaser from time to time by the Board. Such common purchaser shall receive and purchase all such current so offered to the extent of his capacity to transmit and ability to distribute or resell the same within such transmission district without discrimination in facilities, service, or price, in favor of one seller as against another, and shall install at the cost of the seller suitable switches, transformers, and other like and unlike apparatus, as the Board shall in its discretion order. But if, and to the extent that, he shall lack capacity to transmit, or be unable to resell, all current, as aforesaid, which could be generated in such transmission district and is offered, he shall, to the extent of his capacity and ability, receive and purchase all current generated by water power, and as to current produced by fuel power shall receive and purchase from each producer so offering a part of that so offered, ratably in proportion to the installed generating capacity of each producer as determined by the Board, or lacking such determination, as reasonably estimated by such common purchaser shall be unable to so receive and purchase all such current generated by water power, the quantity thereof to be so received and purchased from each producer shall be computed and determined ratably in like manner. Provided: That common purchaser duty under this Section shall be construed to require such common purchases, as to fuel power generated current purchased, to reduce his own production, nor, as to water power generated current purchased, to increase his own unit cost of production, whether by reduction of output or otherwise. Provided further: That the Commission shall have power to require enlargement of such common purchaser's capacity to receive and transmit current as may be reasonably necessary:

(b) Every person operating on said date a public service major transmission system within Pennsylvania shall be obligated as a common seller to sell and deliver at any of his generating stations, or at any point on any of his transmission lines, current to all public service distribution systems within the same transmission district demanding it for distribution by such distribution systems severally, and shall install at the several cost of such distribution systems suitable substations, switches, transformers, and other like and unlike apparatus, as the Board in its discretion shall by general rules and regulations prescribe, or shall in specific cases order. Such delivery shall be made without discrimination as to service among such purchasing distribution systems, and without discrimination between such purchasing distribution systems, and the distributing systems if any, owned or operated by such common seller. Such sales shall be at a price properly computed as not more than the average cost to the common seller, including a fair return on the proper rate-base, of the purchase, generation, and transmission, excluding distribution, of the current transmitted by it. Provided: That if experience shall at any time have clearly shown that such sale and delivery to any such distribution system has caused, and in the judgment of the Commission is likely to continue to cause in the near future, a decrease in the average daily output, measured in kilowatt hours per kilowatt of installed generating capacity of equipment generating the current transmitted by such common seller, then and in that case such price shall be equitably increased by the Commission.

Section 4. The facilities of common purchasers and common sellers[8] under this Act shall be adequate for the performance of their common purchase and common sale[9] duty. The services rendered by them in common purchase and common sale hereinunder, and the rates charged therefor, shall be reasonable nondiscriminatory and just. All inadequancy of facilities, and all unreasonable discriminatory or unjust services and rates, are hereby prohibited. The Commission shall have power, on its own motion or upon application of any producer of current, or operator of any public service distribution system within the same transmission district,[10] to regulate the construction, operation and maintenance of the facilities of common purchasers and common sellers hereunder, and the rates charged therefor, also after due notice and hearing, in specific cases to order the betterment, enlargement, and extension, or any of them, of such facilities, and the rendering of such service and to fix such rates.

[11]Section 5. The Board shall have power, and it shall be its duty, from time to time to divide and redivide the State into transmission districts, as the Board shall deem most expedient for securing the common purchase and common sale under this Act of electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them.[12]

Section 6. In making such division and redivision the Board, having in view the major public service transmission systems then existing and then reasonably anticipated by the Board, shall assign to each then existing or so anticipated major public service transmission system, or to a part thereof, such a district as in the judgment of the Board can then or in the near future be best served by such system as a common purchaser and common seller under this Act. The division and redivision shall be so made that every part of the Commonwealth is in one such district and no more.

Section 7. The Board shall have power reasonably to require and permit the extension in any transmission district of the lines and other facilities of the major public service transmission system to which such district is assigned, as the Board may deem necessary and convenient for the common purchase and common sale of electric current under this Act throughout such district.

Section 8. Public service transmission lines, not a part of the major public service transmission system to which any such transmission district is assigned, existing in such district at the time of its creation by such division or redivision, shall not be affected by such creation, and the Board may in its discretion permit at any time the construction, operation, and maintenance, in and across any such district, of new public service[13] transmission lines not a part of the public service transmission system to which such district is assigned, but such new lines shall not deliver current to any public service distribution system within such district.

Section 9. The Board and the Commission shall severally have power to perform any and all Acts, to make such rules, regulations, and orders, and to prescribe such forms as may be necessary and proper for the administration of this Act.

Section 10. In the administration of this Act the practice and procedure before the Commission, and upon appeal, shall so far as applicable be that provided by Article Six of the Public Service Company Law approved the twenty-sixth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (Pamphlet Laws thirteen hundred and seventy-four), and the supplements and amendments thereto.

Section 11. The Provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable one from another, and severable as to the common purchasers and common sellers, persons, public service companies, and subject matters respectively herein dealt with, and, if for any reason one or more of such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional as to any particular common purchaser and common seller. person, public service company, or subject matter, or otherwise, such holding shall not affect the validity of such provision or provisions as applicable to other common purchasers and common sellers, persons, public service companies, or subject matters dealt with hereby, or the validity of the remaining provisions of this Act. It is hereby declared that such provision or provisions and the remaining provisions would have been enacted not withstanding such holding.

[11]Section 5 of 1925 HR 1057 is here omitted from this bill. It read: Section 5. No person operating as a common carrier under this Act shall himself generate or himself distribute directly to consumers electric current for light, heat, or power, or any of them, nor, if an incorporated company, engage in any business forbidden to common carriers by the Constitution of this Commonwealth. Every person required by this Act to operate a major public service transmission system as a common carrier shall before January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, divest himself of every ownership or interest hereby forbidden by segregation into separate corporations, one of which may be a common carrier transmission company or otherwise.

Section 12. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.

Providing for the regulation of electric utilities.

(The wording of this bill, except where otherwise noted, is the same as that of 1925 HR 1047).

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That this Act may be cited as the Electric Utilities Act one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six.[1]

Section 2. That where used in this act singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meaning respectively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standard Definitions).

"Commission" (See Standard Definitions).

"Distribution system" (See Standard Definitions).

"Public service distribution system" (See Standard Definitions).

(See foot note[2])

"Giant power company" (See Standard Definitions).

(See foot note[3]).

"Public Service" (See Standard Definitions).

"Electric utility" (See Standard Definitions).

"Net investment"[4] (See Standard Definitions).

"Additional fair value" (See Standard Definitions).

"Public service generating company" (See Standard Definitions).

"Transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).

"Transmission system"[5] (See Standard Definitions).

"Transmission district" (See Standard Definitions).

Section 3. Any electric utility which has been heretofore incorporated, or, if not a corporation, has heretofore begun to generate, transmit, and distribute, or any of them, in public service, electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, may accept the provisions of Section four of this Act by a writing under its corporate seal, if it be a corporation, filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and in duplicate with the Commission, and thereupon such electric utility shall be subject to the provisions of said Section, and, if it be a corporation, said provisions shall be deemed and taken to be conditions of its charter of incorporation to all intents and purposes.

Section 4. In the making and regulation of the rates of any electric utility which is hereafter incorporated,[6] such rates shall be so made or fixed as to afford such electric utility from its business as a whole, if efficiently conducted, a reasonable opportunity for a return upon its net investment, plus its additional fair value, if any, at a rate reasonably sufficient from time to time to attract into the enterprise new money in sufficient volume to meet the needs of its public service duty. If, and so long as any system of rates, and/ or any regulation of facilities, and/ or service fixed or made by the Commission, affords as a whole such reasonable opportunity for such return, no part thereof, shall be deemed confiscatory or be changed or abolished by any court or authority other than the Commission.

Section 5. The exercise, use, or enjoyment, and the commencement of exercise, use, or enjoyment, by any electric utility described in Section three of this Act, of any of the following enumerated rights, franchises, or privileges otherwise allowed but not required by law, is hereby prohibited, unless and until it shall have accepted the provisions of Section four of this Act as provided in said Section three, that is to say:

(a) The right of eminent domain;

(b) The right to acquire hereafter, or to hold, if acquired hereafter, any right of ownership, or voice in management by stockholding, or otherwise, in any other electric utility;

(c) The right to begin the exercise of any right, power, franchise, or privilege under any ordinance, municipal contract, or otherwise;

(d) The right to become incorporated, organized, or created, or if a corporation, to renew its charter or obtain any additional rights, powers, franchises, or privileges, by any amendment or supplement to its charter, or otherwise;

(e) The right to buy or sell, assign or accept assignment of, transfer or accept transfer of, lease, consolidate, or merge, its property, powers, franchises, or privileges, or any of them, to or from, or with those of, any other electric utility.

Provided: That nothing in this Section shall be construed to prevent any segregation[7] of the ownership of any transmission system from the ownership of any electric generating station or distribution system, nor to prevent, or condition the incorporation of, or require the acceptance of, the provisions of Section four of this Act by any[8] corporation, the organization of which is reasonably necessary or convenient to effect such segregation.

[9]Section 6. In the regulation of the rates of any electric utility which has been heretofore incorporated or, if not a corporation, which has been heretofore begun to generate, transmit, and distribute, or any of them, in public service, electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, and which shall not have accepted the provisions of Section four hereof, the Commission shall as the presumptive rate-base take the rate-base prescribed by said Section four and shall fix rates accordingly as in that Section required. That, with ——— days after the making of such order, such electric utility may, by petition to the Commission, demand a valuation of its property used and useful in public service. Upon such demand the rates so theretofore fixed under this Section shall be suspended and the Commission shall proceed to fix rates under the Public Service Company Laws, as amended to the twelfth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, inclusive.

[10]Section 7. The Commission shall have power and it shall be its duty in the exercise of the powers by this act and otherwise granted for the regulation of the facilities services and rates of electric utilities:

(a) To establish and re-establish a simple classification of service patrons, and rates of all, or of any class of, or of any single, electric utility, which classification may, in the discretion of the Commission, take into account the kind, quantity, and time of use as these affect the cost of current and of service.

Provided: That any electric utility may establish such classification for itself unless and until the Commission shall have established a classification hereunder applicable to such electric utility;

(b) To make in rate fixing provisions just to consumers and to the public, and equitable to any electric utility affected thereby, for the amortization over a term of years of all or any part of any equipment generating current at a high unit cost, which equipment is to be disused because of the purchase of relatively low cost current.

(c) To permit the extension of the facilities and service of any publicly owned public service distribution system to any territory within the same transmission district which is not served, or is, in the opinion of the Commission, inadequately served with electric current for light, heat, and power; also reasonably to require or to permit such extension of the facilities and service of any other electric utility.

(d) To annul in its discretion after due notice and hearing the charter rights, and/or other rights of any electric utility to supply to the public electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, in any chartered or other territory, or part thereof, which the Commission shall find not to be served or adequately served by such electric utility;

(e) To regulate and reform contracts in this subsection hereafter specified by, between, or among, electric utilities to the same extent as the Commission is by this Act and otherwise by law empowered to regulate the facilities, service, or rates of electric utilities, that is to say: Contracts of construction, lease or management, contracts for purchase or sale or exchange of current, contracts for the carriage of current, and contracts of brokerage or agency in respect of any contract in this subsection before described.

(f) To require at any time from any public utility full information about, and to ascertain and fix the additional fair value of, the property thereof;

(g) To regulate, as provided in Section eight[11] hereof the issue of securities by electric utilities;

(h) To prescribe rules and regulations for the establishment of a system of accounts, and for the maintenance thereof by electric utilities,[12] to examine all books and accounts of such electric utilities[12] at any time; to require them to submit at such time or times as the Commission may require statements and reports, including full information as to assets and liabilities, capitalization, net nivestment, and reduction thereof, additional fair value, gross receipts, interest due and paid, depreciation and other reserves, cost of maintenance and operation of the property, cost of renewals and replacements of structures, and as to depreciation of structures, and as to production, reception, carriage, delivery, use, and sale of current, also to require any electric utility to make adequate provision for currently determining said costs and other facts. All such statements and reports shall be made upon oath unless otherwise specified and in such form and on such blanks as the Commission may require. Any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or causes to be made any false entry in the books or the accounts of any electric utility, and any person, who, for the purpose of deceiving, makes or causes to be made any false statement or report in response to a request or order or directions from the Commission for the statements and reports herein referred to, shall upon conviction be fined not more than two thousand dollars, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both;

(i) To hold hearings and to order testimony to be taken by deposition at any designated place in connection with any inquiry or proceeding under this Act;

(j) To require by subpoena, signed by any member of the Commission, the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence from any place within the Commonwealth, and, in case of disobedience to a subpoena, the Commission may invoke the aid of any court of the Commonwealth in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. Any member, expert, or examiner of the Commission, when duly designated by the Commission for such purposes, may administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses, and receive evidence. Depositions may be taken before any person designated by the Commission, or by its Secretary, and empowered to administer oaths. They shall be reduced to writing by such person, or under his direction, and subscribed by the deponent. Witnesses summoned before the Commission shall be paid fees and mileage allowances equal to those paid witnesses in the Courts of the Commonwealth, and witnesses whose depositions are taken and persons taking the same shall be entitled to fees equal to those paid for like services in the Courts of the Commonwealth;

(k) To perform any and all such acts, to make such rules and regulations, to prescribe such forms, and to issue such orders, not inconsistent with this Act, as may be necessary and proper for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Section 8. Upon the approval of the Commission evidenced by its certificate of public convenience first had and obtained, and not otherwise, it shall be lawful for any electric utility being a corporation to issue stocks, trust certificates, bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness, payable at periods more than three years after the date thereof, to such amount and in such denominations as the Commission shall have found from time to time and so evidenced to be reasonably necessary for the purpose for which such issue has been authorized by such electric utility, taking into consideration any resources of such electrical utility available or which might be available for such purpose. The application of the proceeds to any other purpose is hereby prohibited. All such stock shall have a fixed par value approved by the Commission and so evidenced. If any such electric utility increases its capital stock, the new shares shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be offered proportionately to its stockholders at such price not less than par value as its directors may fix. The finding of the Commission, as above provided, as to the amount of stock reasonably necessary for the purpose for which such increase has been authorized, shall be based on the price fixed by the directors, unless the Commission deems that such price is so low as to be inconsistent with public interest, in which case the Commission may fix the price at which such shares may be issued. The directors, upon the approval of such increase and the fixing of the price as herein provided, shall cause written notice of such increase to be given to every stockholder who was such at the date of the vote to increase, stating the amount of such increase, the number of shares or fractions of shares to which he, according to the proportionate number of his shares at the date of such vote, is entitled, the price at which he may take them, and fixing a time not less than fifteen days after the date of such determination within which he may subscribe for such additional stock. Provided: That, when the capital stock of the corporation consists of preferred and common stock,[3] the by-laws or amended by-laws of the corporation may provide that the holders of preferred stock only shall be entitled to subscribe for new or additional preferred stock, and that the holders of common stock only shall be entitled to subscribe for new or additional common stock and that notice of such increase as aforesaid need be given only to the stockholders so entitled to subscribe. Every stockholder entitled to subscribe as aforesaid may within the time limited, subscribe for his portion of the stock which shall be paid for in cash before the issue of a certificate therefor. All votes and proceedings relative to the increase, and all rights of stockholders to subscribe for the new shares, shall be void unless the directors, after the vote to increase and within sixty days after final action of the Commission, shall cause written notice of such increase to be given as herein provided, or, if such increase is within the next following proviso of this Section, shall dispose of the same as therein set forth.[14]

Provided Further: That, if any such increase does not exceed four per cent of the existing stock of the company, the directors, without first offering the shares to the stockholders, may sell them by auction or by tender to the highest bidder in such manner, at such times, and upon such terms, not less than par to be paid in cash, as the directors shall determine. Any shares heretofore or hereafter authorized, which under the provisions of this section remain unsubscribed for by the stockholders entitled to take them, may be sold by the directors at public auction, or may be disposed of at such price not less than par, or at such price not less than par as may have been authorized by the Commission under this Section[5], and upon such terms, and in such manner as the directors may deem advisable, subject to the approval of the Commission. Such shares as are sold at[16] auction shall be offered for sale in Philadelphia, or in such other city or town as the Commission prescribes, and notice of the time and place of the sale shall be published at least five times during the ten days immediately preceding the sale, in each of three at least of such daily newspapers as the Commission may prescribe.

It is the intent of this Section that the amount of securities of any electric utility at any time outstanding shall correspond as nearly as practicable with the net investment, plus the additional fair value, if any, of the property of such electric utility.

[17]Section 9. Any electric utility, with the approval of the Commission evidenced by its certificate of public convenience, may sell electric current to any other electric utility for delivery within this Commonwealth, but every such contract shall be subject to the provisions of subsection (e) [18] of Section seven[19] of this Act.

[19]Section 6 of 1925 HHR 1047.

Section 10. No foreign corporation, organized under the laws of any other state or nation shall hereafter begin to generate, transmit, and or distribute in public service in this Commonwealth electrict current for light, heat, and power, or any of them.

Secton 11. Any electric utility or any person, who shall wilfully fail, or who shall refuse, to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, or with any subpoena of the Commission hereunderr or relating[20] to the administration hereof, or with any regulation or lawful order of the Commission issued or made in accordance with the provision of, or for the proper adminstration of, this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof, shall in the discretion of the Court be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars in addition to other penalties herein prescribed or provided by law, and every month any such electric utility or any such person[21] shall remain in default after written notice from the Commission shall be deemed a new and separate offense punishable as aforesaid.

[22]Section 12. The definition of "Public Service Company" in Section one Article one of[23] the Public Service Company Law approved the twenty-sixth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen (Pamphlet Laws one thousand three hundred and seventy-four), is hereby amended to read as follows:

The term "Public Service Company" when used in this Act includes all railroad corporations, canal corporations, street railway corporations, stage line corporations, express corporations, dining car corporations, tunnel corporaporations, ferry corporations, common carriers, Pullman car corporations, dining car corporations, tunnel corporations, turnpike corporations, bridge corporations, wharf corporations, incline plane corporations, grain elevator corporations, telegraph corporations, natural gas corporations, artificial gas corporations, giant power companies, companies organized for the generation by any prime mover of electric current for the supply of the public with light, heat, and power, or any of them, by delivery of the current so generated directly to, or through one or more carriers, to a public service, distribution system, companies organized to transmit electric current for the supply of the public by delivery of the current so transmitted directly to or through one or more other carriers, to a public service distribution system, and any other[24] electric corporations, water corporations, water-power corporations, heat corporations, refrigerating corporations, sewage corporations, doing business within this State, and also all persons engaged for profit in the same kind of business within this Commonwealth. Provided however: Such persons and corporations shall not be subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to any business transacted, or any property owned by them, outside of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, nor shall the provisions of this Act be so construed as to extend to any matter or thing which, under the Federal Constitution, the Congress of the United States has the exclusive power to regulate, or which the Congress has under said constitution in the exercise of its concurrent power in fact regulated to the exclusion of the concurrent power of the several States. And provided further: That none of the provisions of this Act shall apply to the generation, transmission, or distribution of electricity, to the manufacture or distribution of gas, to the furnishing or distribution of water, or to the production, delivery, or furnishing of steam, or any other substance for heat or power, by a producer who is not otherwise a public service company, for the sole use of such producer, or for the use of tenants of such produeer, and not for sale to others.

Section 13. It is the intent of this Act to secure for the railroads, industries, farms, and homes of and throughout this Commonwealth an abundant and cheap supply of electric current for light, heat, and power, and it shall be broadly construed to that end. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to limit or narrow the existing powers of the Commission available to that end.

Section 14. The provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable one from another, and severable as to the electric utilities, persons, corporations, and subject matters respectively herein dealt with, and if for any reason one or more of such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional as to any particular person, corporation, electric utility, or subject matter, or otherwise, such holding shall not affect the validity of such provisions or provisions as applicable to other persons, corporations, electric utilities, or subject matters dealt with thereby, or the validity of the remaining provisions of this Act. It is hereby declared that such provision or provisions and the remaining provisions would have been enacted notwithstanding such holding.

Withdrawing from private appropriation under the public land laws all islands owned by the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That hereafter no application under the public land laws shall be received, nor shall any warrant be issued, or patent granted, for any island owned by the Commonwealth, in any river, wholly, or partly within, or forming the boundary of this Commonwealth.

Forbidding condemnation and state construction in designated potential reservoir sites without approval of the Water and Power Resources Board.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the Water and Power Resources Board shall, from time to time, make orders designating the location and extent sites, wholly, or partly, in this Commonwealth, which in the judgment of the said Board, may be suitable for reservoirs of one hundred million gallons, or more, and the said Board, in its discretion, may at any time amend or rescind any such order.

Section 2. The appropriation and condemnation under any law of the Commonwealth, except the Act approved on the fourteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three (Pamphlet Laws seven hundred), entitled, "An Act authorizing the condemnation and appropriation of lands, waters, and other property by public service companies holding limited power permits, and limited water supply permits, granted by the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania and providing a method for the assessment of damages arising from such appropriation" of any lands or other property within any reservoir site designated by any such order in force and the construction therein, by another agency or Department of the Commonwealth, of any public works, is hereby prohibited, unless, and until, the Water and Power Resources Board, after due notice, and public hearing, shall have found that such appropriation, or construction, is required by the present and future interests of the Commonwealth.

House Bill No. 1053

Providing for the taxation of the land flooded by reservoirs at the average rate of farming lands in the vicinity.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That lands in any township, owned, or taken, by any corporation for dam reservoir, canal, and power house, or any of them, for the development of hydroelectric power for use, or used, in whole, or in part, in public service, shall be liable to taxation for township and county purposes, and shall be assessed at the average assessed value per acre of the improved farming land in such township.

House Bill No. 1360

Authorizing the merging of public service electric companies generating current by water power and steam power or other different prime mover.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That when two or more corporations, all incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth, and each authorized to supply to the public in this Commonwealth, electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them, and all desiring to merge their corporate rights, franchises, powers, and privileges into a new corporation, apply for letters patent, therefore, the fact that the [20]The words "or relating" were substituted for "with respect" in 1925 HR1047.

[22]The following section (Section 12 of 1925 HR 1047) is omitted here in this bill:

Section 12. In any suit to set aside or modify, or to compel or prevent the making or enforcement of, any rule, regulation, or order by the Commission under this Act, the Attorney General may file with the Prothonotary of the Supreme Court in the district wherein such suit is pending a certificate that in his opinion the suit is of such general public importance as to require the removal to the Supreme Court. Thereupon the Supreme Court shall by appropriate order direct such removal and cause the record in the case to be filed in the Supreme Court for final disposition. Upon such filing the suit shall be given precedence over others and in every way be expedited and shall be assigned for hearing at the earliest practicable day.

[24]These underlined words were substituted for the following in 1925 HR 1047, Section 13:

"Giant power companies, common carrier transmission companies authorized under any law of this Commonwealth to own, and, or operate a public service distribution system, and any other."

electric current supplied, or authorized to be supplied by them severally, is, or may lawfully be, generated by, different prime movers whether water, power, steam, internal fuel combustion, or other prime mover, shall not be held to render unlawful such merger and consolidation, if otherwise lawful.

Providing for investigation and report upon the desirability of state subsidies for rural lines.

Section 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the Giant Power Board shall investigate and make report to the General Assembly of the opening of the Session in January, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, upon the desirability of the expenditure of the Commonwealth in aid of the construction of lines for the supply of electricity to the public in rural districts, and, if desirable, the method and conditions suitable for such expenditure.

House Bill No. 1048

Authorizing the purchase by the Commonwealth of land strips for the transmission lines of Giant Power Companies.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That this act may be cited as The Giant Power Transmission Location Act of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five.

Section 2. Where used in this act singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standard Definitions).

"Reservation" (See Standard Definitions).

"Transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power company" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power permit" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).

Section 3. The Board is hereby authorized and directed, from time to time, in its discretion, to designate strips of land not exceeding six hundred and sixty feet in width, which the Board shall deem necessary, and convenient for occupancy and use by giant power transmission lines.

Section 4. For said purpose the Board is hereby authorized to acquire, by purchase, or condemnation, for, and in the name of the Commonwealth, lands and other property within the strips so designated, not already owned by the Commonwealth, to the extent that such acquisition shall have been authorized from time to time by the transmission lines for carriage, thence to such distribution—legislative appropriation of moneys to pay for the same.

Section 5. The Board shall have power, in its discretion, to issue permits, in writing, as to lands owned by the Commonwealth within the strips so designated, authorizing the use of right-of-way for giant power transmission lines, for pipe lines, to carry in public service natural gas, manufactured gas, oil, or any other gaseous or liquid substance, or for any other public service purpose not inconsistent with use by giant power transmission lines. Provided: That as to any portion of such strips within any reservation, permit shall be issued under this act, only after the Board shall have found that such permit will not interfere, or be inconsistent, with the purpose for which such reservation was created or acquired, and every such permit shall be subject to such conditions expressed therein, as the head of the Department, under whose supervision it falls, shall deem necessary for the adequate protection and utilization of such reservation.

Section 6. Every permit issued under this act shall be limited to such period not exceeding fifty years, as the Board shall determine and set forth therein. Provided: That the permittee shall be entitled to extension and renewal of the permit upon the terms thereof, until the permittee shall have received through re-capture or purchase by the Commonwealth, or by a duly authorized subsequent permittee, repayment of the money prudently invested upon the faith of the permit, plus such reasonable damages, if any, to property of the permittee, valuable, serviceable, and dependent, for its usefulness upon the continuance of the permit, but not recaptured, or purchased as may be caused by the severance therefrom, of the property taken.

Section 7. Every permit issued under this act shall be subject to such reasonable annual charge, specified therein, as the Board shall fix, for the purpose of amortizing in fifty years the cost to the Commonwealth of the acquisition of such land strips, with interest computed from the date of the issuance of the permit.

The proceedings for the condemnation of lands, and other property, under section four of this act, and for the ascertainment, recovery, and payment, of damages arising from such condemnation, shall be taken in the manner provided by the act, approved the twentieth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (Pamphlet Laws page nine hundred and eighty-four), entitled "An act providing for the condemnation by the Commonwealth, of lands suitable, and desirable, for forest purposes, or game preserve purposes, or the perpetuation and protection of fish, and defining the powers and duties of the Department of Forestry, the Board of Game Commissioners, and the Department of Fisheries, respectfully in relation thereto."

House Bill No. 1052

Authorizing the use of Railroad and highway rights of way for Giant Power transmission lines.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That where used in this Act singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power company" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power permit" (See Standard Definitions).

"Giant power transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).

Section 2. Any giant power company holding a giant power permit, may occupy and use, during the period of such permit for giant power transmission lines, any lands, servient, or adjacent, to any right-of-way for railroad, or highway, purposes, as to which lands, the Board, after due notice and public hearing, shall have found that the appropriation of the same is required by the present, and future interests of the Commonwealth for the construction, incompatible with the public interests of the region in the vicinity maintenance, or operation of such transmission lines and is not of such lands.

Section 3. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize the taking of private property for public use, except upon payment, or the securing of, just compensation, to be ascertained and adjudged by due process of law.

Providing for condemnation by Giant Power Companies and regulating condemnation for major transmission lines.

Note: Section 1 is the short title and Section 2 gives certain standard definitions. The remaining sections correspond to sections 3, 4, and 5 of Senate Bill 32, Session of 1926 (ante p—) to which the reader is referred.

Authorizing the condemnation of leaseholds in coal deposits by Giant Power Companies.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., this Act may be cited as the Giant Power Coal Condemnation Act.

Section 2. That, where used in this Act, singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

The term "person" includes natural persons, partnerships.

"Board" (see Standard Definitions).

"Giant power company" (see Standard Definitions).

"Giant power permit" (see Standard Definitions).

Section 3. Any giant power company holding a giant power permit shall have the right and power to condemn and appropriate the exclusive right to mine coal on specific lands, not to exceed a quantity reasonably estimated by the Board to be sufficient to supply, for not more than fifty years, the generating station of such giant power company and its works, for the recovery of coke, gas, tar, ammonia, and other by-products of coal, before steam raising, and for the manufacture of chemicals, operated as incidents to the generation of electric current in such generating station, as to which right to mine, the Board shall have found, after due notice, and hearing, that its appropriation is required by the present, and future interests, of the Commonwealth, for the operation of such generating station and works, and is not incompatible with the public interest of the region in the vicinity of such lands. Such right to mine shall be in the nature of a leasehold, upon conditions including the time payment of annual royalty fixed in such finding, and the compensation, therefor, shall be fixed in the condemnation proceedings in the form of such rental and royalty per ton of coal mined, to be secured before the taking, plus such reasonable severance damages, if any, to property of the person from whom such right to mine is taken, as is valuable, serviceable, and dependent, for its usefulness, upon the continued ownership, by such person, of such right to mine, but is not appropriated. Such severance damages shall be paid or secured before the taking.

Section 4. All damages arising from the exercise of the right and power of condemnation, conferred by Section Three of this Act, shall be ascertained, recovered, and paid as provided by the forty-first section of the Act, approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four (Pamphlet Laws seventy-three), and the amendments and supplements thereto. Provided: That such damages other than severance damages shall be ascertained, recovered, and paid in the form of annual rental during periods of non-operation, or of annual royalty, and as to damages so ascertained as annual rental or royalty, execution shall issue only if the amount of the first year's rental or royalty be not paid within thirty days after the entry of judgment, or if the amount of any subsequent year's rental or royalty be not paid within thirty days after the day fixed for the payment thereof, by such finding of the Board. And Provided further: That the right to annual rental or royalty ascertained by a final judgment under said forty-first section, shall be a first lien upon the right to mine coal, in respect of which it shall have been entered, shall so continue during the continuance of such right to mine, prior to every encumbrance upon such right to mine of any kind whatsoever, thereafter arising, which lien shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient security for the payment of the rental or royalty, ascertained by such judgment.

Section 5. The provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be severable from one another, and severable as to the persons, reason, one or more of such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional, and subject-matters herein dealt with, and if, for any reason, one or more such provisions be judicially held to be unconstitutional as to any particular person, corporation, or subject-matter, or otherwise, such holding shall not affect the validity of such provisions as applicable to other persons, corporations, or subject-matters, dealt with thereby, or the validity of the remaining provisions of this Act. It is hereby declared that such provision, or provisions, and the remaining provisions would have been enacted notwithstanding such holding.

Authorizing the negotiation of interstate compacts, for ratification by the General Assembly, to regulate interstate transmission of electric power.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the Giant Power Board shall have power to negotiate from time to time, with any State of the Union, and any Canadian province, within practicable electric transmission distance, or with any one such State, or Province, compacts in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, for adoption, or rejection, by the General Assembly, for the purpose of regulating interstate, or international, or both transmission and sale, or delivery, of electric current for use in public service, upon principles of mutuality, equality, justice, and efficiency. Every compact so negotiated shall be submitted by the Governor to the General Assembly, and the Congress of the United States having consented therto, shall be in full force and effect upon its ratification by a duly enacted law of this Commonwealth, and by the other party, as its law may prescribe.

Prohibiting to corporations, public service companies, and municipalities the enlargement of existing interstate business in electric power except under interstate compacts.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That this Act shall be known and may be cited as, The Interstate Electric Transmission Act 1925.

Section 2. Where used in the Act, singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following terms shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

"Board" (See Standard Definitions).
"Transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Public Service transmission line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Major line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Public service major line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Minor line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Public service minor line" (See Standard Definitions).
"State" (See Standard Definitions).
"Interstate line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Licensed line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Unlicensed line" (See Standard Definitions).
"Retail delivery" (See Standard Definitions).
"Wholesale delivery" (See Standard Definitions).
"Retail outstate delivery" (See Standard Definitions).
"Wholesale outstate delivery" (See Standard Definitions).
"Existing" (See Standard Definitions).
"Future" (See Standard Definitions).

Section 3. The Board shall have power in its discretion to license the construction, maintenance, and operation of interstate force with any state, and or any Canadian province made in accordance with the Constitution of the United States, for the purpose of regulating interstate, or international, or both transmission and sale, or delivery, of electric current for use in public service. The construction, maintenance, or operation within this Commonwealth of any future interstate public service major line, or part thereof, not authorized by such a license, or of any future interstate public service minor line, or part thereof, whatsoever, is hereby prohibited.

Section 4. Every corporation, public service company, and municipality is hereby prohibited;

(a) To make wholesale outstate deliveries over any future unlicensed interstate line;

(b) To make wholesale outstate deliveries over any existing unlicensed interstate major or minor line, and to make wholesale outstate deliveries over any interstate minor line, and to make retail outstate deliveries over any interstate major or minor line; except

(I) In fulfillment, as to recipients and quantities of existing contracts and renewals thereof; or

(II) In lieu, wholly, or in part, of such fulfillment in continuance of delivery, without increase of quantity at points of delivery fixed by existing contracts.

Provided further: That, if any such increase does not exceed four per cent of the existing stock of the company, the directors, without first offering the shares to the stockholders, may sell them by auction or by tender to the highest bidder in such manner, at such times, and upon such terms, not less than par to be paid in cash, as the directors shall determine. Any shares heretofore or hereafter authorized, which under the provisions of this section remain unsubscribed for by the stockholders entitled to take them, may be sold by the directors at public auction, or may be disposed of at such price not less than par, or at such price not less than par, as may have been authorized by the Commission under this Section,[5] and upon such terms, and in such manner as the directors may deem advisable, subject to the approval of the Commission. Such shares as are sold at[16] auction shall be offered for sale in Philadelphia, or in such other city or town as the Commission prescribes, and notice of the time and place of the sale shall be published at least five times during the ten days immediately preceding the sale, in each of three at least of such daily newspapers as the Commission may prescribe.

It is the intent of this Section that the amount of securities of any electric utility at any time outstanding shall correspond as nearly as practicable with the net investment, plus the additional fair value, if any, of the property of such electric utility.

[17]Section 9. Any electric utility, with the approval of the Commission evidenced by its certificate of public convenience, may sell electric current to any other electric utility for delivery within this Commonwealth, but every such contract shall be subject to the provisions of subsection (e)[18] of Section seven[19] of this Act.

Section 10. No foreign corporation, organized under the laws of any other state or nation, shall hereafter begin to generate, transmit, and or distribute in public service in this Commonwealth electric current for light, heat, and power, or any of them.

Section 11. Any electric utility or any person, who shall wilfully fail, or who shall refuse, to comply with any of the provisions of this Act, or with any subpoena of the Commission hereunder, or relating[20] to the administration hereof, or with any regulation or lawful order of the Commission issued or made in accordance with the provision of, or for the proper administration of, this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereto shall in the discretion of the Court be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars in addition to other penalties herein prescribed or provided by law, and every month any such electric utility or any such person[21] shall remain in default after written notice from the Commission shall be deemed a new and separate offense punishable as foresaid.

Section 5. Every corporation, public service company, and municipality, is hereby prohibited to make future contracts for wholesale or retail outstate deliveries over unlicensed interstate lines; except.

(a) Contracts in renewal of existing contracts without change of recipients, and without increase of quantities to be delivered; or

(b) Wholly or in part, in lieu of such renewal contracts for continuing delivery without increase of quantity at points of delivery fixed by existing contracts.

Section 6. Outstate deliveries by any corporation, public service company or municipality, discriminating in favor of recipients outside this Commonwealth, and against recipients, or potential recipients within this Commonwealth, are hereby prohibited. All existing and future contracts by any corporation, public service company, or municipality, for wholesale or retail outstate delivery, shall be subject to regulation and reformation by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so far as necessary to prevent such discrimination.

House Bill No. 1050.

Amending the Limited Power Permit Act of June 14, 1923, P. L. 704, and the Condemnation Act of the same date, P. L. 700.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the Act approved the fourteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three (Pamphlet Laws page seven hundred and four), entitled "An Act relating to limited power permits, and limited water supply permits from the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania, and the conditions hereof, to the flooding and use by holders of limited power permits, of islands owned by the Commonwealth, to be unlawful use for water, or steam power development of dams, and changes in streams hereafter constructed or made otherwise than under limited power permits, and to proceedings for the enforcement of this act," is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That where used in this act singular words shall be construed as including the plural, masculine words shall be construed as including the feminine and neuter, and the following words shall have the following meanings respectively designated for each:

[1]In accordance with Pennsylvania legislative procedure, Words printed in brackets are to be omitted from, and words in italics are inserted in the Act to be amended.

The term [“Commission”][1] “board” means the Water [Supply Commission of Pennsylvania] and Power Resources board The term “dam” means an obstruction, dam, wall, wing wall, wharf, embankment, abutment, projection, or similar analogous structure, or any other obstruction whatever, in, along, across, or projecting into, any stream, or body of water, wholly or partly within, or forming part of, the boundary of this Commonwealth, except the tidal waters of the Delaware River, and of its navigable tributaries.

The term “dam to develop water power” means a dam for the purpose of developing water power only, or a dam for said purpose, and for any other purpose.

The term “dam to supply water for steam power” means a dam for the main purpose of storing, cooling, and using, or any of them, water for steam raising or steam condensation, or both, in the generation of electric energy for use in public service which is not a dam to develop water power as hereinbefore defined.

The term “water supply dam” means a dam for the purpose of supplying water, which is not a dam to develop water power, nor a dam to supply water for steam power as hereinbefore defined.

The term “power dam” includes dams to develop water power and dams to supply water for steam power.

The term “change in stream to develop water power” means any change in, or diminution of, the course, current, or cross-section, of any stream, or body of water, for the sole purpose of developing water power or for said purpose, and any other purpose, whether the dam, or other means effecting the change, be within or without the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The term “change in stream to supply water for steam power” means any such change or diminution, for the main purpose of storing, cooling, diverting, and using, or any of them, water for steam raising or steam condensation, or both, in the generation of electric energy for use in public service which is not a change in stream to develop water power, as hereinbefore defined, whether the dam or other means effecting the change be within or without the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The term “change in stream for water supply” means any such change, or diminution, for the purpose of supplying water which is not a change in stream to develop water power, nor a change in stream to supply water for steam power as hereinbefore defined, whether the dam or other means effecting the change, be within or without the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The term “change in stream to develop power” includes changes in stream to develop water power, and changes in stream to supply water for steam power.

The term “limited power permit” means a permit for a power dam, or for a change in stream to develop power, or both, granted under this act.

The term “limited water supply permit” means a permit for a water supply dam, or for a change in stream for water supply, or both, granted under this act.

The term “power project” means a complete unit of improvement or development for the supply of water power, or for the procuring, or supply, or both, of light, heat, and power, or any of them, by electricity, consisting of a power dam or change in stream to develop power, or both, for which a limited power permit at any time is being sought, or has been granted, a power house, water conduits, all dams and appurtenant works which are a part of said unit, and all storage, diverting, or forebay reservoirs directly connected therewith, the primary line or lines, transmitting power from the power house to the point of junction with the distribution system, or with an interconnected primary transmission system, all miscellaneous structures used, and useful, in connection with such dams, reservoirs lands, or interests in lands, the use and occupancy of which are necessary or appropriate, in the construction, maintenance, and operation, of such unit.

The term “water supply project” means a complete unit of improvement or development, for the procuring or supply, or both, of water which is not a power project as hereinbefore defined, consisting of a water supply dam, or change in stream, for water supply, or both, for which a limited water supply permit at any time is being sought, or has been granted, a reservoir, the dam, and other works appurtenant thereto and all primary water conduits leading immediately therefrom to the point of junction with the distribution system. or with an interconnected primary water conduit, all water rights, rights of way, ditches, dams, reservoirs, and lands, or interests in lands the use and occupancy of which is necessary or appropriate in the construction, maintenance, and operation, of such unit.

The term “permittee” means the holder of a limited power permit, or a limited water supply permit and his heirs, successors, and assigns.

The term “navigable waters of the United States” means those parts of streams or other bodies of water, over which Congress has jurisdiction under its authority to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and, which either in their natural or improved conditions [S], notwithstanding interruptions between the navigable parts of such streams or waters, by falls, shallows, or rapids, compelling land carriage, are used, or suitable for use, for the transportation of persons or property in interstate or foreign commerce, including therein, all such interrupting falls, shallows, or rapids, together with such other parts of streams as shall have been authorized by Congress for improvement by the United States, or shall have been recommended to Congress for such improvement, after investigation under its authority.

Section 2. A power dam or change in stream to develop power. shall be deemed to be within the jurisdiction of the United States, a dam to develop water power, or such change being a change in within the meaning of this section, whenever; (1) such dam being stream to develop water power, is constructed, or made, or to be constructed, or made in, or upon navigable waters of the United States, or; (2) the Federal Power Commission shall have found that the interests of interstate or foreign commerce would be affected by the construction of such dam, or the making of such change.

Every permit hereafter granted by the [Commission] board for the construction of a power dam, or for a change in stream to develop power, not within the jurisdiction of the United States, shall be limited to such periods, not exceeding fifty years, as the said [commission] board shall determine and set forth therein Provided: That the permittee shall be entitled to extension and renewal of such permit upon the terms thereof, until the permittee shall have received through recapture or purchase, by the Commonwealth, or by a duly authorized subsequent permittee repayment of the capital prudently invested in the power project, wholly or in part upon the faith of the permit plus such reasonable damages, if any, to the property of the permittee, valuable, servicable, and dependent, for its usefulness upon the continuance of such permit, but not recaptured or purchased as may be caused by the severance therefrom of property taken.

Every permit hereafter granted by the [commission] board for the construction of a dam to develop water power, [dam] or for a change in stream to develop water power within the jurisdiction of the United States, shall be on the following conditions which shall be expressed in such permit namely; (a) That the permit shall become null and void, unless within the time specified therein the permittee, (or as to a change in stream within the Commonwealth effected, or to be effected by a dam or other means without the Commonwealth, those constructing or purposing to construct, maintain, or operate, such dam or other means) shall secure from the Federal Power Commission a license for such dam or change, and; (b)that if, and to the extent that, any of the rights or powers set forth, or reserved as rights, or powers, of the United States, in, or pursuant to, the provisions of such license, shall be waived by the United States, or be unenforceable by the United States, then, and to that extent, such rights and powers, (including if so waived or unenforceable, any rights of recapture, extension, or renewal, so set forth or reserved) may be exercised and enforced by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, subject to such alterations in plans, specifications, or structures, and such extensions of time for commencing or completing construction as may be made or granted by the Federal Commission.

Every permit granted under this section shall be subject to such reasonable annual charge specified therein as the [commission] board shall fix, for the purpose of reimbursing the Commonwealth for the costs of administration of this act, and may in the discretion of the [commission] board embody such other terms, conditions, and stipulations, as the [commission] board shall deem necessary to protect the present and future interests of the Commonwealth and its people in the construction, maintenance, and operation of the project, and in the water and power resources to be utilized thereby, and suitable to secure to the permittee a reasonable opportunity for a fair return on the actual investment, prudently made in the project.

Section 3. The [commission] board in granting every limited water supply permit shall specify a reasonable annual charge, in an amount fixed by the [commission] board to be paid by the permittee for the purpose of reimbursing the Commonwealth for the cost of administration of this act, and the [commission] board shall embody therein, such other terms, conditions, and stipulations, as the [commission] board shall deem necessary and proper protect the present and future interests of the Commonwealth and its people in the construction, maintenance, and operation of the project, and in the water resources to be utilized thereby.

Section 4. It shall be unlawful for any corporation or natural person to use for the development of water power, or for the main purpose of storing, cooling, diverting, and using, or any of them, water for steam raising or steam condensation, or both, in the generation of electric energy for use in public service, any dam constructed under any permit hereafter issued, otherwise than under section two of this Act, or to divert or use for said purposes, or for said main purpose, any stream or body of water, the course, current, or cross-section of which shall have been changed or diminished at the point of diversion or use under any permit hereafter granted, otherwise than under section two of this act.

Section 5. Any permittee holding a permit granted under section two of this act may, with the consent of the [commission] board, which consent may be set forth in such permit, overflow, submerge, and use as appurtenant to the power project, in behalf of which such permit is granted, and subject to the terms, stipulations, and conditions, expressed therein, any island owned by the Commonwealth, in the river Susquehanna, or any of its branches, or in any other stream or water over which the commission has jurisdiction.

Section 6. The provisions of this Act shall not be construed as affecting any permit or authority heretofore granted, or given pursuant to law, for the construction of any dam, or for the changing or diminution of the course, current, or cross-section, of any stream or body of water, but the holder of any such permit or authority may apply for a limited power permit, or a limited water supply permit under this act, and, if, and when, any such applicant is granted the same, he shall have all the rights, and be subject to all the duties conferred or imposed by, or under, this Act.

Section 7. The [commission] board is hereby authorized and empowered to make such rules and regulations, and issue such orders as may be necessary and proper for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

Section 8. The Attorney General may on the request of the [commission] board, institute proceedings in any court, now or hereafter by law, clothed with jurisdiction in civil cases in which the Commonwealth is a party, for the purpose of remedying or correcting by injunction, mandamus, or other process, any action of commission, or omission in violations of the provisions of this Act, or of the terms, conditions, or stipulations, of any limited power permit or limited water supply permit granted hereunder, or of any lawful regulation, or order, promulgated hereunder. In the event of the failure of any permittee to comply with the requirements of any final decree in any such proceedings, the Attorney General may institute proceedings for the purpose of revoking the permit. The said courts shall have jurisdiction over all the above-mentioned proceedings, and shall have power to issue and execute all necessary process, and to make and enforce all rights, orders, and decrees, to compel compliance with the lawful orders and regulations of the [commission] board, in respect of any so permitted dam or appurtenant works, and in respect, of any so permitted change or diminution of the course, current, or cross-section, of any stream or body of water, and to compel the performance of any condition imposed under the provisions of this act. In the event a decree revoking a permit is entered, the court is empowered to sell the whole, or any part of the dam, together with any, or all works, lands, and water rights, appurtenant thereto, or existing under the permit, to wind up the business of such permittee conducted in connection with such dam change or diminution, to distribute the proceeds to the parties entitled to the same and to make and enforce such further orders and decrees as equity and justice may require. At such sale, or sales, the vendee shall take the rights and privileges belonging to the permittee, and shall perform the duties of such permittee, and assume all outstanding obligations and liabilities of the permittee which the court may deem equitable in the premises.

Section 9. All annual charges paid to the Commonwealth under the provisions of this act are hereby permanently appropriated to the Water and Power Resources Board, for use in the payment of salaries, and all other necessary expenditures, incident to the administration of this Act.

Section [9] 10. Nothing in this act shall be construed to deprive the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of any jurisdiction powers or duties now vested in it by the laws of the Commonwealth.

Section [10] 11. The right to amend and repeal this Act is hereby expressly reserved, but no such alteration, amendment, or repeal, shall affect any permit theretofore issued under the provisions of this Act, or the rights of any permittee thereunder.

Section [11] 12. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby repealed.

Introduction

The theory that the Electric Power Utilities are supplying a "service" not a commodity, has resulted in developing a system of classified rate schedules based on what the "traffic will bear" in place of arriving at the sale price from costs.

When the use of electricity was largely confined to lighting as a substitute for gas and considered a luxury its sale was largely a "service".

The universal application of electricity to the daily pursuits of men, whether in the humblest home or the largest factory spreading its use over the 24 hours of a day, does not allow of any dinstinction by classes for the use of the commodity, nor is it accompanied by any so called service.

The commodity offered by an electric utility is "power". Its use is spread over the entire day similarly by all users and therefore cannot consistently be classified by arbitrarily assigning a user to a class dependent on his pursuits.

With the universal application of electric power, there also developed a general knowledge of its use which largely eliminated individual attention to all consumers, so that the power delivered to a large or small user calls for the same service which is analogous to the service furnished by water or gas utilities.

On these promises this study was undertaken to ascertain the reasonableness of the spread in electric power rates ranging in special cases from less than one cent per K. W. H. to large consumers to over ten cents per K. W. H. to small users, sold under schedules with a maximum price of 25 cents and a minimum price of 7 mills per K. W. H.

Questionnaire

To obtain authentic information as a basis for this study, a questionnaire was prepared relating to the cost of service for each class of consumers as covered by the rate schedules of each company. (See appendix pages 107-8-9) for the year 1924.

Replies were received as follows:

Operating Utilities as listed by the Pub Serv. Commission Class per P. S. C. Classification No.	No. of replies Received	Co's. having no local service excused from replying	No. not replying	% or Total incl. in Report
A & B 84	74	7	3	96%
C. 88	76	8	4	96%
D. 55	38	8	9	84%
Total 227	188	23	16	93%

The companies replying sold 98% of the total electric power used in the state during 1924. (See appendix page 12).

The data from the questionnaires was tabulated as to its importance to this study for which purpose the compaines were divided into two groups;—A includes all companies with gross earnings of less than $25,000 per year, B, companies with gross earnings of $25,000 or more per year.

These groups are subdivided into two classess each: Group A-1, receiving a net average of 10 cents or more per K. W. H. sold, and group A-2 receiving a net average of less than ten cents per K. W. H. sold (See appendix, pages 3 and 4). Group B-1 includes all companies controlled or affiliated so that the management of more than one utility is in the control of the same organization. Group B-2 consists of local companies. (See appendix pages 5 to 10 inclusive).

Rate Schedules.

An analysis of the rate schedules and the data pertaining to earnings under each schedule is tabulated by the following classification:

Residence or Domestic Lighting	(Appendix pages 14 to 26)
Domestic Power, Cooking and Heating	(Appendix pages 27 to 31)
Commercial Light and Power	(Appendix pages 32 to 38)
General Power	(Appendix pages 39 to 53)
Wholesale Power—Primary and Secondary	(Appendix pages 54 to 56)
Wholesale Power—Primary	(Appendix pages 57 to 59)
Special Power Contracts	(Appendix pages 60 to 63)
Flat Rate Service	(Appendix pages 73 to 77)
Interchange Power	(Appendix pages 64)
Off Peak or Restricted Power	(Appendix pages 65 to 67)
Miscellaneous Schedules	(Appendix pages 68 to 72)

Energy Losses

The data pertaining to losses (Question 7) are tabulated as they effect the schedules in the above classification, as accurately as the information furnished would permit. (Appendix Pages 86 to 91.) The difficulty of accurately accounting for losses is expressed in the replies from the larger companies, of which the following abstract is typical. (Also see Appendix Pages 92 to 94).

Luzerne County Gas and Electric Corporation

> "It is not possible to determine precisely the loss incurred in delivering energy to each class of consumer, for the reason that it is the usual practice to connect various classes of customers to one transmission line, distribution circuit, transformer bank, etc., wherever it is possible to render good service to all by following this procedure. In such cases the losses are joint and it is obviously impossible to differentiate. In many instances the load of one class of customer will predominate on a circuit which serves other classes incidentally. In still other cases a circuit serves only one class of customer. These percentages of loss therefore have been determined by testing typical circuits, by process of elimination and through recourse to computation, estimate and the exercise of a judgment born of experience."
> "As set forth above, therefore, they represent a composite of each of the methods enumerated and it is believed are sufficiently accurate to serve every practical requirements."

Cost to Serve

The most important data desired (Question 8) was either entirely omitted or disappointing for the purpose of this study, with the exception that the replies received fully endorses the position taken in authorizing this study, that "Rate Schedules are not based on Costs".

The following abstract expresses the general conclusion in the replies received. (Also see Appendix pages 94 to 105).

Metropolitan Edison Company

> "No records are kept summarizing all of the elements of cost which properly enter into the total cost of service as rendered under any particular rate schedule, and any attempt to show such total costs would be only the result of accounting and engineering deductions."

Load Curves (Question 10) were received from the principal companies generating power and are tabulated in detail. (See Appendix pages 81 and 82.)

Summaries

Before entering upon an analysis of the Rate Schedules, a general review of the summaries from the data contained in the questionnaire is submitted as the basis on which the the conclusions of this study are arrived at.

In Group A-1, the 29 companies reporting receive a net average of 11.9¢ per K. W. H. sold, supply 6,343 consumers, using 1,810,000 K. W. H. of energy. Including an estimate for the six companies not reporting increases the total to 7,302 consumers using approximately two million K. W. H. of energy, paying an average of 12¢ per K. W. H.

In Group A-2, the 27 companies reporting receive a net average of 7.3¢ per K. W. H. sold, supply 6,504 consumers using 3,935,000 K. W. H. of energy including an estimate for the six companies not reporting, increases the total to 7,307 consumers, using approximately 4-¼ million K. W. H. of energy, paying an average of 8¢ per K. W. H.

Group B-1 (controlled companies) supply a total of 1,226,-541 consumers, using a 4,993,583,000 K. W. H. of energy, paying an average of 2.44 cents per K. W. H.

Group B-2, large local companies supply 58,617 consumers using 101,722,000 K. W. H. of energy, paying an average of 3.5¢ per K. W. H. including an estimate for five companies not reporting, increases the total to 79,,218 consumers using approximately 160 million K. W. H. of energy, paying an average of 3½ cents per K. W. H.

The total for all companies in the state being 1,320,368 consumers using 5.2 billion K. W. H., paying an average of 2.45 cents per K. W. H.

The power is sold to consumers at rates as filed with the Public Service Commission. A recent investigation made by Mr. Morse of the Engineering Bureau indicates that there are 1,396 rate schedules for electric service filed with the Bureau of Rate & Tariffs, of this number 1104 are listed in this report under which power is repotred to have been sold during 1924. Of these 1104 schedules 125 are similar, leaving a total of 1079 different schedules under which power was purchased by the consumers (See Appendix Page 79).

Classification of Rates.

The classification of rate schedules referred to heretofore are subdivided as to form as follows: (Appendix Pages 14 to 26).

Single Stop Rates.
Block Rates having two or more steps.
Demand Rates.
Rates based on number of rooms.
Rates based on number of outlets.
Rates based on hours use of installation.
Rates having a fixed service charge.

Domestic Rates.

Domestic service was furnished to 93,548 consumers under single step rate varying from 25¢ per K. W. H. to 3.8¢ consuming approximately 25 million K. W. H. for which an average price of 10.4¢ as paid, and 41,145 consumers under single step rate varying from 10¢ to 4¢ consuming 15½ millian K. W. H. for which an average price of 7.2¢ was paid.

Block rates were applied to 215,292 consumers under rates varying from 20¢ to 2.5¢ per K. W. H. consuming 62 million K. W. H. at an average price of 11.4¢, and 361,759 consumers under rates varying from 18¢ to 2¢, consuming 140 million K. W. H., at an average price of 8.6 cents per K. W. H.

Rates based on the number of rooms were used by 105,924 consumers, consuming 44¼ million K. W. H., at an average price of 6.5 cents.

Demand rates by 17,444 consumers using 8 million K. W. H., at an average price of 7.1 cents.

Rates based on hours use of installation by 22,149 consumers using 6.6 million K. W. H. at an average price of 10.6¢ and 26,277 consumers using 9.6 million K. W. H. at an average price of 7.5 cents.

Rates having a fixed service charge were used by 13,700 consumers using 3.72 million K. W. H. at an average price of 11½ cents, and 10,115 consumers using 790,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 7.4 cents.

The domestic consumption per consumer under the various rates range from a minimum of 128 K. W. H. per year for which an average price of 18.5 cents was paid to 1,310 K. W. H. at an average price of 5.1¢. The average consumption of all domestic consumers was 393,674,000 K. W. H. for the year, for which an average price of 8.3 cents was paid (See Appendix Page 26).

Tabulating the consumption per domestic consumer by class of rates, the following results are noted:

Single Step	16.8	172	5.2	520	10.4	270	7.2	380
Block Rates	24.5	235	5.5	480	11.	375	7.4	385
Room Bases	7.1	325	5.4	670	———	———	6.5	420
Demand	9.2	270	7.	475	———	———	6.6	460
Mis. Use	10.8	300	7.3	385	11.2	270	5.6	510
Service Charges	16.	260	7.	475	11.	300	7.4	780

Domestic Cooking Rates.

Service under cooking, heating and refrigerating rates, (see Appendix, pages 26 to 31) was furnished to 584 consumers under single step rates varying from 8¢ to 2.7 cents per K. W. H., consuming approximately 852,000 K. W. H., for which an average price of 4.6 cents was paid. Block rates were applied to 1,676 consumers under rates varying from 12.6 cents to 3 cents per K. W. H., consuming 2,617,500 K. W. H., at an average price of 3.75 cents per K. W. H. Demand rates were applied to 95 consumers, using 109,000 K. W. H., at an average price of 4.6 cents per K. W. H. Rates based on hours use of installation were applied to 19 consumers using 22,500 K. W. H., at an average price of 3.75 cents per K. W. H.

The average consumption per consumer obtaining service under cooking, heating and refrigerating rates, was 1,100 K. W. H., at an average price of 4¢ per K. W. H.

Commercial Power & Lighting Rates.

Commercial service (see Appendix 32 to 38) or schedules including both power and light was furnished to 7, 088 consumers under single step rates varying from 11 cents to 5 cents per K. W. H., consuming 9,890,000 K. W. H. for which an average price of 7¢ was paid.

Block rates were applied to 40,594 consumers varying from 13.3 cents to 2.3 cents consuming 48,727,500 K. W. H. at an average price of 7¢ per K. W. H.

Rates based on hours use of installation were applied to 102,504 consumers using 231,952,500 K. W. H., at an average price of 4.85 per K. W. H.

Demand Rates were used by 21,513 consumers using 42,-116,000 K. W. H., at an average price of 6¢ per K. W. H.

Rates based on the number of outlets were used by 13,688 consumers using 17,852,000 K. W. H., at an average price of 7.6 cents per K. W. H.

The average consumption per customer under commercial light and power rates was 1,850 K. W. H., at an average price of 5.5 cents per K. W. H.

General Power Rates.

Services under general power schedules (See Appendix pages 39 to 53) was furnished to 2,312 consumers under single step rates averaging over 4 cents per K. W. H., using 3,490,000 K. W. H. The rates varying from 12 cents to 4 cents per K. W. H. The average price paid was 5.5 cents per K. W. H. 390 consumers were served under single step rates averaging less than 4 cents per K. W. H., using 10,345,-500 K. W. H. The rates varying from 5 cents to 2.5 cents; the average price paid was 3.05 cents per K. W. H.

Block rates averaging over 4¢ per K. W. H. were used by 5,947 consumers using 23,816,500 K. W. H. These rates varied from 14.3 cents to 1.9 cents. The average price paid was 5. 5 cents. 1,440 consumers were served under rates averaging less than 4¢ per K. W. H. using 26,839,000 K. W. H. These rates varied from 12 cents to 1.3 cents per K. W. H. The average price paid was 3.5 cents.

Rates based on hours use of installation were used by 21,367 consumers using 44,165,500 K. W. H. under rates averaging over 4 cents per K. W. H. The average price paid was 6.4 cents. 3,069 consumers using 575,979,000 K. W. H. under rates averaging less than 4 cents per K. W. H. paid an average price of 1.6 cents per K. W. H.

Miscellaenous power rates having special provision and not coming within the above classification were applied to 3,574 consumers, using 11,052,000 K. W. H. at rates averaging over 4 cents per K. W. H. The average price paid was 5.1 cents per K. W. H. 2,140 consumers using 120,464.-000 K. W. H., were served at rates averaging less than 4 cents per K. W. H., for which the average price paid was 3.36 cents per K. W. H.

The average consumption per consumer obtaining service under general power schedules averaging 4 cents or over per K. W. H. was 2,850 K. W. H. at an average price of 5.5 cents. Under schedules averaging less than 4 cents per K. W. H. the consumption per consumer was 130,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 1.9 cents per K. W. H.

Wholesale Power Rates

Wholesale power (see Appendix pages 54 to 63) including both primary and secondary service was furnished to 3,013 consumers using 841,594,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 1.75 cents per K. W. H. Wholesale power specified as primary power was furnished to 9,574 consumers using 681,-464,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 1:54 cents per K. W. H.

Schedules specified for railroad and electric railway power were used by 96 consumers consuming 728,685,000 K. W. H. at any average price of 9.7 mills per K. W. H. Power applied to electric utilities for resale was sold to 93 consumers using 259,279,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 1.2 cents per K. W. H. Special schedules applying to specific industries or uses such as steel mills, pumping plants, cement plants, etc., were used by 50 consumers consuming 152,184,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 1.3 cents.

The total consumption of power under wholesale power schedules was 2,660,000 K. W. H., supplied to 12,826 consumers, at an average price of 1.35 cents per K. W. H.

Off Peak and Interchange Power

Off Peak power (see Appendix pages 65, 66 and 67) is supplied to 146 consumers using 126,414,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 9.8 mills. Interchange power (see Appendix pages 64 and 67) is supplied to 14 consumers using 106, 949,000 K. W. H. at an average price of 9 mills per K. W. H.

Special Rates

Service supplied under regular schedules to which a special concession is added (see Appendix pages 68 to 72) and applied to employes, charitable institutions, hospitals, churches, etc., were used by 8,994 consumers, using 20,379,-700 K.W.H. at an average price of 4.5 cents per K.W.H.

It is interesting to note that of the 3,068 employes obtaining special rates, the average consumption was 385 K.W.H. per consumer, and the average price was 4.7 cents per K.W.H.

Flat Rates

Flat rates (see Appendix pages 73 to 77) are confined principally to commercial display lighting such as signs, show windows, etc., and municipal street lights.

Schedules applied to display lighting were used by 2,169 consumers, using 4,153,000 K.W.H. at an average price of 5.6 cents per K.W.H.

Schedules applied to street lighting were used by 1,210 consumers using 124,639,000 K.W.H., at an average price of 3.4 cents.

Miscellaneous flat rates were applied to 1,745 consumers using 667,000 K.W.H. at an average price of 5.2 cents.

Summary of Rate Schedules

Analyzing the foregoing summaries, the following conclusions are obtained:

Earnings from operation of one group of 29 small companies (Group A-1) average from 10 cents to 22 cents per K.W.H. The total earnings of these 29 companies was an average of 11.9 cents per K.W.H.

Earnings of a second group of 27 small companies (Group A-2) averaged from 4.5 cents to 9.4 cents per K.W.H. The total earnings of these 27 companies was an average of 7.3 cents per K.W.H.

These 56 companies are representative of the small utilities still in operation and in most instances furnish service to rural districts or small villages, the service being generally used for domestic purposes.

The earnings of a group of 33 large companies (Group B-2) not affiliated and of a local character both as to ownership and service, average from 1.7 cents to 10.9 cents per K.W.H. The total earnings of these 33 companies averaged 3.5 cents per K.W.H.

The earnings of companies controlled or affiliated averaged for each controlled group from 1.26 cents to 8.2 cents per K.W.H. The total earnings of all the companies in this group averaged 2.44 cents per K.W.H.

The average earnings for domestic service of all companies is 7.6 cents per K.W.H. varying in average earnings under different schedules from 5.1 cents to 24.5 cents per K.W.H.

Of the 132 schedules listed the average earnings of 36 schedules are below 9 cents per K.W.H. and at these schedules 670,023 consumers are served, all other consumers

(389,713) being served at the remaining 96 schedules paying 9 cents or more per K.W.H.

The small companies (Group A) being limited to practically a domestic service represent in a measure, the maximum costs to furnish electric service. These companies as a rule furnish service in districts with a low density of consumers, are inefficient as to the production of power and are not conducted with the economies possible by the larger companies.

The 56 small companies (Group A) replying to the questionnaire indicate that the rate at which service is furnished appears to earn a fair return on the capital invested with an average earning of 8.6 cents per K.W.H.

This indicates that the maximum price or the high rate in the schedules for domestic service should not exceed 9 cents per K.W.H. and rapidly scale downward where this service is supplied from efficient plants by economically operated organizations.

The schedules covering the larger power users present complicated problems, and cannot be analyzed from the data available, due principally to wide fluctuation in use by individual consumers.

A general summary of large power schedules follows:

	No. of Consumers	1000 KWH. Sold	Net Amt. Paid	Average Amt. Paid Per KWH.
Single Step Rates ..	44	15,313	$268,863	1.75c
Block Rates	446	23,382	871,839	3.7
Demand Rate	3,110	1,462,176	23,817,689	1.62
Hours Use Rate	55	14,409	158,806	1.1
Misc. Power	71	8,027	182,114	2.25
Railway Power	96	728,685	7,009,069	.97
Resale Power	93	256,279	3,073,070	1.2
Special Contracts	50	152,184	1,997,815	1.3
Interchange Power ..	14	106,949	975,152	.9
Off Peak Power	146	126,414	1,236,897	.98
	4,125	2,893,818	$39,591,314	1.35c

The total energy sold under these schedules during 1924 was approximately 3 billion K.W.H. used by 4,125 consumers or approximately 700,000 K.W.H. per consumer at an average price of 1.35 cents per K.W.H.

General summary of Domestic Schedule is as follows:

Rates	No. of Consumers	1000 KWH. Sold	Average Paid per KWH.
Single Step Rates (a)	93,548	25 000	10.4c
Single Step Rates (b)	41,145	15,500	7.2
Block Rates (a)	215,292	62,000	11.4
Block Rates (b)	367,759	140,000	8.6
Room Bases Rate	105,924	44,250	6.5
Demand Rate	17,444	8,000	7.1
Hours Use Rate (a)	22,149	6,600	10.6
Hours Use Rate (b)	26,277	9,600	7.5
Service Charge Rate (a)	13,700	3,720	11.5
Service Charge Rate (b)	10,115	790	7.4
Miscellaneous Rates	145,777	79,112	6.8
Total and Average	1,053,130	393,572	8.3c

The wholesale power sales were approximately 58 per cent of the total K.W.H. sold by all companies tabulated and approximately 33 per cent of the earnings from the sale of all electric service, comparing the schedules from which the average maximum earnings per K.W.H. were obtained, namely, sales from domestic or residence use, with those resulting in the average minimum earnings (sales to large power users), the following data is obtained:

	Domestic or Maximum Rate Schedules	Wholesale Power or Minimum Rate Schedules
No. of Consumers	1,053,130	4,125
K.W.H. Sold	393,572,000	2,893,818,000
Amount Paid	$ 32,691,030	$ 39,591,314
Average Price per K.W.H.	8.3c	1.35c
Average use per Consumer	375 K.W.H.	700,000 K.W.H.

Therefore, there are 78 domestic consumers for each power consumer.

The total consumption of energy by the large power users is 7 times greater than that used by the domestic consumers.

The amount of money paid by the domestic consumer is approximately the same as that paid by the large power consumers.

The average price per K.W.H. paid by the domestic consumers is six times greater than the average price paid by the large power consumer.

The maximum average price paid under any schedule is 24.5 cents per K.W.H. and the minimum average price paid under any schedule is 1.13 cents per K.W.H., exclusive of off-peak or interchange power. The lowest average price paid for any power sold was 7.6 mills.

Load Curve Data

The load curve data (see Appendix pages 80 and 81) is of particular importance in establishing the fact (quite contrary to general impression) that domestic use of power is off peak power, therefore power used for lighting need not earn a higher rate, due to the demand of this service establishing the maximum capacity of power plant equipment.

Typical daily load curves were received from 40 companies representing 98% of the total energy generated within the state. Of these 40 companies, 11 had the peak load of the year between the hours of 4 P. M. and 10 P. M., which is the peak period of the lighting load. (Appendix pages 80 to 85). The peak of 29 companies occurring during the hours of 8 A. M. and 2 P. M.

The following table indicates the maximum peak load of the year for each of the companies reporting (which establishes the station capacity) assuming that the typical daily load curve as furnished for each month is similar for each working day.

Totals	264.9	306.70	284.00	18.9	391.6	11.6 = 1,277.

The total of the individual peaks of each company require a station capacity (exclusive of reserve units) of 1,277,70 K. W. The peak load during the lighting period of the da not considering diversity of load between companies, wa 403,200 K. W., of which the Philadelphia Electric Compan had a peak of 315,600 K. W. occurring at 5 P. M.

The diversity of load between each company results in composite load curve having a maximum peak of 1,107,68 K. W. at 9 A. M. in December. To obtain an approximat average of the monthly load for the state, the individua typical daily load curves for the months of January, Ma August and December were secluded and combined into on curve for each of these months.

It will be noted that with a properly interconnected system the peak at all periods of the year is in the morning hours between 8 and 12 o'clock.

Of equal importance is the tendency of the increased use of electric power to increase the load factor. The annual load factors based on the maximum peak for the individual companies varies from 16% to 74%. Sixteen companies have an annual load factor in excess of 40%. The load factor of the typical combined load curves for the state, representing the load of an average working day exclusive of Saturdays and Sundays is in excess of 70%.

These combined load curves indicate that the annual load factor of a completely interconnected system for the state during 1924 would have been approximately 54% with a minimum peak load of 1,107,685 K. W. occurring between the hours of 8 and 12 o'clock in the morning.

Energy Loss Data

The data submitted to indicate losses by schedule (see Appendix pages 86 to 91) is confined principally to the losses incident to the voltage of the transmission or distribution system (see Appendix page 86 to 91) and varies from 25% to 41% for circuits up to 44OV., from 6 to 34% for circuits from 2300 V. to 6600 V. and from 4 to 9% for high tension transmission lines. The overall losses vary from 9 to 17% for the larger companies and as high as 40% for the smaller companies.

Applying the data furnished to the classification of rates the following estimate of losses as it affects each class of rate schedules is obtained.

The method of arriving at the losses applicable to each class of rate schedules indicates that the energy loss in the delivery of domestic service varies from 19% to 41%, with an average of approximately 25%. The loss of energy in the delivery of wholesale power varies between 4% and 10% with an average approximately 6%.

The losses or differences between total K.W.H. generated and total K. W. H. sold by the companies furnishing this information varies between 7% and 42%, the probable average loss in the delivery of all services can be most accurately estimated from the figures submitted by the larger companies, as follows:

Company	K. W. H. Generated	K. W. H. Sold	% Loss
Phila. Elec. Co., ...	1,313,297,283	1,153,495,308	9%

Penn. Pwr. & Lt. Co., ...	.....	559,283,912	11½%

These figures indicate that the average total loss can be estimated not to exceed 12%.

Conclusions

This study indicates the need of a careful analysis of rate schedules by the Public Service Commission before they are accepted.

First: To ascertain the need of the new rate;

Second: Is it discriminatory as to its effect on existing schedules?

Third: What will it cost to serve under its terms?

Fourth: Will the rate earn a fair return consistent with the schedule in force?

Fifth: Is it consistent as to form with rate now on file?

Sixth: What is the capital investment of the company on which this rate in addition to all other rates must earn a fair return?

Seventh: Does it conform to established principles for simplicity and uniformity?

Such supervision over rate schedules will materially simplify the complication and difficulties which existing schedules present in cases of controversy or complaint. It will go a great way in taking the mystery out of electric schedules. A glance at the 800 odd schedules listed in this report will indicate the utter disregard of standardization either as to form or price, not only between companies but by the properties operated by the same organization, under similar conditions in approximately the same locality.

Numerous schedules differ in form but result in precisely the same net cost to the consumer. Rearrangement of constants would result in eliminating hundreds of different rate schedules and leave both the company and the consumer in exactly the same position and would make it possible for the layman to make an intelligent comparison of the price paid for power.

Uniformity in schedules would simplify the records of the Bureau of Rates & Tariffs and materially increase the efficiency of the Commission in disposing of informal complaints both to the advantage of the consumer and company.

The report of the Committee on Public Utility Rates of the National Association of Public Utility Commissions at their 1925 convention, calls attention to the need of supervision over rate schedules as follows:

"Here we find great variations and unsual complexities in rate schedules. In the interest of good public relations concerning which we heard so much of good yesterday, we believe the attention of many companies and the influence of many commissions could well be directed to a greater simplicity in electric rate schedules. The foundation of good public relations is a sure understanding. What the public cannot understand, they are slow to accept. It is difficult for the public to understand the fundamental economics of a two-part charge divided into service and commodity charges. It is more difficult for them to understand a three-part rate, adding a demand charge to the other two even though it is more logical than the other. But to attempt to analyze some of the schedules now in use by some companies may well tax the intelligence of the public beyond all measure.

"There is one factor resulting from these diversified schedules to which attention may well be directed. This is the wide variance in the prices resulting therefrom. No one can seriously deny the right of companies to charge lower rates to certain classes of consumers and for various reasons all of which have often been discussed at length before this Association. But is it not possible, in the rapid growth of the electrical industry, that it has been overdone. After all it is the same power manufactured in the same plant from the same or similar coal and goes out over the same or similar wires. The considerations of load factors, peak loads, long and short time users, users in bulk, and other similar considerations without doubt affect the price at which electricity may be sold. But does it account for some of the extreme differences that have grown up in some companies? Are we being blinded by phraseology, It would seem today as if the ordinary light users who pay the maximum rate, contribute in many instances a large share of the gross-revenue and use only a small proportion of the generated power, perhaps in the case of some companies should receive greater consideration than they have had recently.

"Right along that line, the practice of some companies in entering into long-term contracts at low rates should be discouraged. It is suggested that such contracts should at least contain a provision for an adjustment of the rates paid thereunder at periodical intervals during their life. There ought not to occur in the future any situation where a company is selling a large amount of power under a special contract at less than the actual cost of generating that power."

The ideal result of standardizing rates would be to reduce the number of different schedules necessary to the smallest number and designate each schedule with a permanent index, indicating the companies filing or operating under each schedule.

The national movement of standardization can well be applied in the consideration of rate schedules of the future.

The disregard of cost in preparing rate schedules is clearly indicated by the position taken by the companies on this question.

The rates for small consumers carry a far larger proportion of costs than the large consumers, emphasized by such wholesale rates in which the bare cost of production becomes approximately the price paid for the service by the consumer.

This discrimination is directly responsible for the great spread in the cost of service between the large and small consumer and deprives or restricts such use of electric power by the people as would make a more contented and livable existence, particularly in rural or farming districts.

Twenty-four per cent of the income from electric service is paid by the small or resident consumer and his use of power is only 7% of the energy which produces the total income with the result that great economy is practiced in the use of the service by the small consumer to keep his cost of power within the home budget allowance which appears to limit the use of power for the average consumer to about 350 K.W.H. per year.

So apparent is this limit that where the average cost of service is 10 cents or over the use is limited to an average of less than 270 K.W.H. per year while with a rate of 6 cents or less the average use increases 100%.

A proper allotment of costs justified by allowance for off peak power supplied for domestic consumption (70% of the power supplied for domestic service is off peak) would very slightly increase the existing rates to large consumers, materially reduce the domestic rates and leave the gross earnings to the company the same.

For example, an increase of 2 mills per K. W. H. on all consumption other than domestic service, applying this increase to a reduction in domestic rates would result in a 30% reduction in the average rate. This would relieve the extreme need of economy in the use of service so that the full benefits and convenience of electricity in the home could be utilized.

Summing up the outstanding features of this study, we have:

First: Rates should be standardized:

Second: Cost allocation for each rate in a schedule should be submitted with each rate schedule when filed; showing in detail the cost to the company to furnish the service covered by the schedule.

Third: Domestic service is largely off peak and should be rated as such.

Fourth: The discrimination in favor of wholesale power should be corrected.

Fifth: The annual reports as filed by the companies including all Rate Schedules of the Electric Power Utilities should be abstracted and tabulated for ready and up-to-date reference so that the analyses of new rates as filed can be given prompt and effective consideration.

Respectively submitted,

O. M. Rau,
Engineer.

Losses

The difficulty to ascertain the actual loss of energy in the delivery of service under a particular rate schedule is referred to in the replies made to Question No. 7. Abstracts of the pertinent replies are submitted as follows:

Pennsylvania Power and Light Company

"The total losses are of course known, being the difference between sales on the one hand and energy from generating stations plus energy purchased on the other. The segregation of the losses has been arrived at by a process partly of computation, partly of tests and partly of general estimate. Losses in high voltage transmission lines were computed from data as to load over these lines, losses in generating station and principal substation transformers were estimated from manufacturers guarantees, losses in secondary distribution, meters and services were estimated largely from test of typical feeders, losses in primary distribution and intermediate transformers were estimated in part from general experience and in part from specific study of the conditions on the P. P. & L. Co. system. Preliminary estimates thus arrived at were balanced against known total losses and any necessary adjustments made to obtain a balance. While the underlying computations and estimates were largely made prior to 1924, their application to 1924 conditions probably gives reasonably good approximation."

Metropolitan Edison Company

"We know of no definite percentage of energy loss being used in determining the charges under any particular rate schedule, and therefore are unable to put any intelligent answer in columns K and L."

Penn Public Service Corporation.

"We have no data which will enable us to allocate the system losses to the various rate schedules and know of no way to obtain this information."

Harrisburg Light and Power Company

"The Company's records are not kept so that a further distribution of these quantities can be made with a reasonable degree of accuracy. The attached one line diagram of transmission line connection between generating station and substations, and between substations, shows conditions which render it impossible to supply this data in the detail form requested."

Edison Electric Company

"No actual percentage loss is figured for each rate schedule as filed. It is a fact, however, that the consumer having a low load factor load has a very much higher percentage of loss than has the high load factor consumer. The average small consumer usually has a low load factor and if located so as to require a separate transformer, the unaccounted for may be 50% or higher. If the load factor is high and the location favorable, the unaccounted for may be as low as 10%."

Luzerne County Gas and Electric Corporation

"It is not possible to determine precisely the loss incurred in delivering energy to each class of customer, for the reason that it is the usual practice to connect various classes of customers to one transmission line, distribution circuit, transformer bank, etc., wherever it is possible to render good service to all by following this procedure. In such cases the losses are joint and it is obviously impossible to differentiate. In many instances the load of one class of customer will predominate on a circuit which serves other classes incidentally. In still other cases a circuit serves only one class of customer. These percentages of loss therefore have been determined by testing typical circuits, by process of elimination and through recourse to computation, estimate and the exercise of a judgment born of experience. "As set forth above, therefore, they represent a composite of each of the methods enumerated and it is believed are sufficiently accurate to serve every practical requirement."

West Penn Power Company
Allegheny Valley Light Company

(a) "Accurate division of energy losses between rate schedules is not feasible as portions of the system are used at different times for two or more services with varying losses. Use of more extensive metering equipment required for more comprehensive analysis would not be warranted from an operating or investment standpoint. The total overall loss in transformation, transmission, distribution and conversion is measured and may be allocated to rate schedules in a general way. The following diagram illustrates the portions of the system that are utilized for the service under the various rate schedules and the losses assigned to each group.

(b) "The estimated losses are based upon the average efficiencies of the equipment employed, the voltages, size of conductors, distance from distribution center to load, and the time of day and length of period for which energy is fed into the transmission and distribution systems and other such factors. The efficiencies for 1924 conditions of each step have been developed as follows:

System		Efficiency
132 kv. System operated at 66Kv.		95.0%
24 kv. transmission		97.4
Synchronous Condensers		98.7
25 Kv. Substation transformers		97.3
D. C. conversion		74.9
D. C. distribution		90.5
11000-6600-2300 volt distribution		94.4
2300/440/220 110 volt transformers		91.8
440-220-110 volt distribution	Power	95.3
	Commercial Light	93.3
	Domestic Light	91.6

Abstracts from the replies to question No. 8 by the important companies.

Metropolitan Edison Company

"No records are kept summarizing all of the elements of cost which properly enter into the total cost of service as rendered under any particular rate schedule, and any attempt to show such total costs would be only the result of accounting and engineering deductions."

United Gas Improvement Company

"Recourse to the use of accounts as prescribed by the Public Service Commission alone will not permit of an answer to the above question for the reason that the prescribed accounts are intended to show the cost for each account such as Generating, Transmission, Distribution, etc., without regard to the costs for the class or classes of service contributing to the total of these accounts. The total amount expended for each account such as Generating, Transmission, Distribution, etc., for any particular class of service can be determined, therefore, only by special study and analysis. The details of such an analysis reflect the following.

1.—The facts so far as may be ascertained from the account as prescribed by the Public Service Commission.

2—Special tests of typical parts of the system, the results of which may be considered sufficiently reliable to permit of their general application to the system as a whole.

3.—The application of business judgment born of long experience.

While each of these factors contribute to the final result, the weight which should be accorded to the third factor is perhaps greater than either of the other two. It, therefore, follows that in the judgment of this company it is not possible to make an analysis of costs for each class of service that is susceptible of mathematical demonstration.

The basis for the specific answer to the above question by this Company is as follows:

As submitted by this Company, the results of its analysis of costs are dependent upon the number of customers connected to the system, the demand imposed upon the system by the customers as a whole, the energy in kilowatt-hours delivered to the customers, the value of the property used by each class of customer and the division of certain joint costs among all classes of customers. The latter division is based on business judgment and a consideration of each of the factors which tend to affect the item of cost under consideration. In general, the accounts as prescribed by the Public Service Commission are affected as shown by the following example.

Generating Costs—by the number of customers connected to the system, the demand placed upon the generating system by the customers as a whole, and the energy sent out by the generating system.

Transmission costs—by the number of customers connected to the system and the demand placed upon the transmission system by the customers as a whole.

Commercial—by the number of customers connected to the system modified by the fact that wholesale customers in general involve a larger commercial expense than do retail."

Pennsylvania Power and Light Company

"It is not clear whether the intent of the Commission is that the expression "total cost" as used in this question should include operating costs or operating costs plus fixed charges. In either case an answer would involve a detailed analysis and allocation of costs to each class of consumers, and in the latter case it would involve in addition the problem of a valuation.

A detailed analysis and allocation of costs to all classes of service, whether operating or operating plus fixed, is an undertaking involving an immense amount of work and expense. Studies have been made from time to time in the past to afford a basis of checking costs of service to various classes of consumers, but the Company has not as yet been able to make such analyses a matter of annual routine. In particular, the Company has not made an analyses based upon the specific conditions and loads for the year 1924.

Studies based upon prior records or upon estimated future conditions could not be adapted to 1924 conditions, but an entirely new study, practically from the ground up, would be required. An analysis at all dependable would require several months time to collect and analyze the necessary data, and would certainly involve many thousands of dollars expense.

Furthermore, such an analysis for the year 1924 would, for Pennsylvania Power & Light Company, be of only temporary significance, and in consequence the Company would hesitate to add to its expenses the heavy cost it would entail, the burden of this expense ultimately to fall upon the consumers. The Company now has under construction three new generating stations which will nearly double the generating capacity which it owns, and the load is rapidly increasing and changing in character and is expected to continue to do so. In consequence the various conditions governing costs of service to specific classes of consumers are changing from time to time."

Duquesne Light Company

In order to answer this question it would be necessary to allocate all fixed and operating costs against the several individual classes of service. Such allocation cannot be based on any fixed rules, but must be based largely on judgment and experience, giving due weight to commercial considerations. Much work and expense is involved in such allocation, and opinion on the subject is not yet sufficiently crystallized, either in our company or in the industry as a whole to permit the submission of the result of any particular allocation as representative of actual "cost to serve". Largely as a result of these conditions, our company has not yet undertaken the determination of the "cost to serve" as a matter of annual routine.

Studies have been made from time to time in the past, and various allocations have been used to serve as a basis for determining approximately the cost of service to consumers supplied under different rate schedules. Numerous rate changes have been made, however, since the last of such analyses, and a restudy of the subject is in progress at the present time. It has not yet progressed, however, to such a point as would justify the presentation of any figures on the subject to the Public Service Commission.

West Penn Power Company

We cannot make a segregation of cost to serve consumers by rate schedules. Reference to the copies attached will show that there are a number of schedules for each general classification of consumers.

Under similar conditions of use there is little variation in the final price per KWH. of energy delivered under these different schedules. Commercial considerations and the desire to meet the views of consumers have led to the adoption and use of these rate forms. Domestic, commercial, combination domestic and commercial, churches, street carnivals and small power users are often all supplied from the same facilities and the allocation of any cost element among them must be a matter of judgment not subject to accurate mathematical proof. Furthermore, there is an inter-dependence between the cost of serving the largest power user and the individual home which is constantly varying. Large power users secured at a price which is competitive with their own power production cost permit the construction of economical power stations and transmission facilities by and over which power may be generated and transmitted into communities theretofore supplied with service from small power plants. These small power plants, having been built to supply only lighting and small power requirements, necessitated the charging of prices in excess of those for which the same service can be and is supplied from the larger power stations and transmission system.

In a rapidly growing system there is a continuous change in the relationship between consumers, and in the relative cost of the larger departments; to-wit: power generation, transmission, distribution, commercial expenses, general expenses, etc. Conseqently, starting with rates predicted on actual costs, rate schedules and general forms have been continued over a period of years with additions from time to time of new schedules and new rates applicable to new requirements of service. Before fixing rates for new types of service it has been determined that the rates made applicable thereto will provide for the operating expenses and investment charges involved in furnishing that service. Then after results of the system as a whole have demonstrated the possibility of a lowering of rates or the necessity of an increase in rates, such decreases or increase have been made, without exhaustive determination and allocation of costs pertaining to the different groups of consumers.

During the war and past war period the reporting companies increased rates to the large power users but did not disturb domestic and other rates. Again, the development of household appliances, the use of which has made possible the delivery of a greater quantity of energy over the existing facilities for supplying the home, has brought about the addition of such lower priced steps, and more recently made possible the reduction in the top rates of domestic schedules.

Since what may be broadly classed as investment costs are a large percentage of total cost of supplying service, any analysis of costs among consumers must involve an analysis of facilities used in supplying that service. The results of such analysis as of any given date would probably not be correct by the time the study was completed for a rapidly growing system with its rate changes and varying relationship among the numbers of consumers in each classification and facilities required for their respective use.

Philadelphia Electric Company

In order to give the precise information requested it would be necessary to make analysis of all operating expense and investment charges separated into three major classifications, namely; Customer's cost, capacity cost, and energy cost. Such analysis must be accompanied by a study of the characteristics of each class of service rendered, and the figures obtained in such an analysis and study must be allocated with reference to the demand, diversity and load factors found in each class of business.

The segregation of cost per customer is not a problem impossible of solution. This involves a separation of all those expenses which are legitimately chargeable to the customer's service. The items of general expense—reading meters, billing, collection and items of a personal service nature connected with the utilization of electrical energy can be separated out upon a numerical basis. It is a fact that, on account of the very large number of customers that are placed upon the system each year with the consequent continual changing of the numerical divisor, there is a continual shifting affecting the items of cost, the total of the costs, and the allocation of the costs. This is especially true with relation to items of general expense. In consequence of this fact and its result, the cost per customer can only be estimated.

When we approach the question of the segregation of capacity cost and energy cost upon a unit basis, we are immediately confronted with the fact that the present system of accounts is not so arranged as to permit a determination of the cost of serving all of the customers in each class for which a rate schedule or a rate schedule with a modifying rider is filled. In any stable business, it might be possible, by making a detailed study, to allocate each of the elements of cost entering into different classes of service.

In a business which is growing as rapidly as this, provision for investment in additional facilities must be made two years in advance of their productive utilization. In recent years, the annual amounts of such investment, and consequently the fixed charges upon this new capital, have become very large figures. It is obviously impossible to allocate to the various rates the fixed charges on this capital covering work in progress. Neither is it possible to determine the effect upon the general business condition of the Company of these fixed charges in relation to the increased revenue to be secured from the new business made possible by the investment of the additional capital.

"A second and very important factor prevents the perfect allocation of all the items of expense as called for in this question. It also destroys the value of such an allocation were it possible to make it. This factor is the cyclic change which occurs in the business of this Company parallel with, but not synchronous to, the business cycle of industry

"The allocation of fixed expenses upon a capacity basis constitute the rental and standby elements of any system of charges.

"The allocation of this group of fixed expenses depend upon two factors, known as demand factor and diversity factor, and can only be definitely established when a fairly constant value for these factors can be definitely determined. A composite picture of these two factors can be secured by taking the ratio of the connected load of the system to the peak demand of the system.

"The first group of costs include those items of expenditure which vary in proportion to the output of kilowatt hours at the central station. It is well recognized that the proportion of such expenses which enters into the total cost of service may be represented by that ratio known as load factor, which is an expression of the relation between the kilowatts required and the kilowatt hours consumed.

"To properly determine an exact allocation of such variable costs with a definite relation to the Fixed Expenses of the Company, it is obviously necessary that a load factor of a definite and fixed value be established or assumed.

'If the assumptions are made, then the derived costs can be accepted as exact only when actual additions are in conformity with the assumptions as made. For example, if we assume demand factors and diversity factors for the various classes of service, which would be equivalent to a system demand factor of 2.4 as in 1924, we would introduce an error if a large proportion were the actual demand factor to be 2.19 as in 1922. Similar variations in derived costs would be caused by changes in the system load factor.

To completely and accurately allocate costs of service for the year 1924 to all the various rate schedules, it would be necessary to have available for the groups of customers receiving service under each schedule, to mention but a few items of the required data, full records of individual demand factors, the maximum demand of each group, the demand of each group at time of system peak and sum of the individual maximum demands of the group, the diversity of the customers' demands between the premises and the transformers, between the transformers and the feeders, between the feeders and the substation, and between the substation and the generating station, and finally, the load factor of the group and of the customers in the group.

'If such factors could be definitely established and were not subject to change, it might be feasible to derive costs which could be supported as a definite answer to question number eight. There are, however, such wide fluctuations occurring in these factors as shown above and as evidenced by the past experiences of this Company, that it is now quite impossible to reestablish the exact figures for 1924 which would be required. Factors developed in 1925 or factors used in past studies, would have but little value in view of the known variations in such figures which actually occur.

"If it were possible to make an allocation of annual costs upon a kilowatt hour basis to the various classes of business, such a determination would have no value in the year for which it was made unless all the elements entering into such allocation were stable throughout the year. If the first months of the year were good months in industrial and commercial lines, and the last months bad along the same lines, the factors derived from their total would be misleading because distorted in their relations. Under reversed conditions, the same result would occur, namely:—distorted ratios in demand, diversity, and load factors.

"It is believed that the influence of this factor in rate allocation has been too little understood and too little appreciated. It is, therefore, felt that the presentation of these somewhat typical distributions may be helpful in demonstrating the impossibility of accurately determining reliable costs according to separate rate schedules unless consideration is given to this factor. Furthermore, costs developed at one point of the business cycle would be of little value at some subsequent date when the condition of business was essentially modified."

Penn Central Light & Power Company

This Company maintains its operating costs and capital accounts in the manner provided by the classification of the Public Service Commission and does prorate all operating costs against the various classes of income in the various districts of the property. However, the method of keeping fixed capital records does not provide data or a method of allocation of fixed charges to either class of income or rate schedule and we, therefore, are unable to give the total cost of operating the property prorated to the various classes of income or rate schedules.

Were we to endeavor to answer this question, it would first be necessary to define a basis for allocation or fixed charges to rate schedule which basis would be a matter of personal opinion. Engineers today do not agree on a definite plan for such allocation there being many different ideas on the subject by rate men of the Utility Companies. In addition such an analysis, should a definite plan of allocation be arrived at, would entail a heavy expenditure of money and time and when once completed would immediately become valueless because of a change in condition. By condition is meant such items as change in characteristics of load curve, installation of capacity both generator, lines and other equipment, the addition of new business of various kinds, the filing of new rates, etc., any of which would immediately make incorrect the original basis of allocation. We would hesitate to make such an analysis for such reasons especially knowing that it would be no value as so on as completed.

The rates of this Company have been developed by the Company giving as much consideration to costs in every respect as the company has been able to apply and determine during the period of its organization and through the recent years of rapid growth and war days.

Questionnaire to Electric Utilities for Information Relating To Revenue And Cost of Service for Each Class of Consumers as Covered by The Schedules of The Company.

Note: Answers should cover the information requested for the year ended December 31, 1924.

Questions to be answered on accompanying form supplemented by additional sheets containing supporting data:

1. Name of each class of consumers for which a rate schedule is filed with the Commission. (Column b of form) Attach a copy of each rate schedule.
2. Average number of consumers served in each class for which a rate schedule is filed, being the number at end of each month averaged for the year. (Column c of form)
3. Average number of meters installed to record the energy consumed for each class of service for which a rate schedule is filed, being the number at end of each month averaged for the year. (Column d of form)
4. Total K.W.H. delivered to each class of consumers for which a rate schedule is filed. (Column e of form)

5. Cross amount billed to each class of consumers for which a rate schedule is filed. (Column f of form)
6. Net amount received from each class of consumers for which a rate schedule is filed. (Column g of form)
7. (a) What percentage of energy loss is figured for service to each class of consumers for which a rate schedule is filed? (b) How is each percentage determined? (Column k and l of form) Submit supporting data as suggested by column l.
8. What was the total cost to serve all the consumers in each class for which a rate schedule is filed. Give an analysis of the cost to serve each class, showing in detail the elements of cost, by P.S.C. accounts, that were used in measuring each item of total cost. (Columns h and i of form) Submit supporting data as suggested by column i.

Questions to be answered upon additional sheets:

9. Submit a typical system load curve for each month during the year for the service covered by tariffs on file with The Public Service Commission.
10. Explain, in detail, the principles underlying each schedule and the tariff as a whole, and give the reasons for the differences in the various schedules. There should be explained the extent to which cost analyses determine the rate schedules, also, the other factors which determine rates. A general explanation is not to be submitted in lieu of the details called for in the above questions.

Answers to the above questions are contained on the form and sheets attached hereto.

Study of Cost to Serve Electric Power Consumers
By The Electric Power Utilities in Pennsylvania

Introduction

Effort was made to obtain from the electric power utilit in the state the allocation of costs by which they arrived the charges for service as per schedule filed with the Bure of Rates and Tariffs. The practical result was an almo general admission by the companies that no such allocati of costs could be made, and that the rate schedules were n arrived at by the elements of cost but from experience a competition.

The contention therefore that the rates do not reflect co is fully sustained and that where no competition exists t highest rates are charged and where there is competiti rates sufficiently low to get the business are made irrespect of the cost to serve.

To arrive at a reasonable analysis of costs this study was undertaken. In addition to the data submitted in reply to the questionaire referred to in the rate spread report (see file May 12, 1926) the annual reports of the companies for 1924 were consulted (see appendix).

Annual Reports

The reports of all companies were carefully studied and it was evident that only the larger companies supplied data of sufficient detail to be of value, therefore only the report of the companies in Classes "A" and "B" are referred to in this report.

The reports of eighty companies are analyzed and tabulated in detail with a general summary of 85 class "C" and 52 Class "D" companies (see appendix).

Note:—Pennsylvania Water & Power Company report omitted as this company delivers approximately 70% of the total K. W. H. sold beyond the state border.

Classification of Accounts

Considerable attention was given to the classification of accounts so that a reasonable basis for allocating the expense to the various rate schedules could be arrived at. The classification of expenses under principal headings as follows were analyzed:

K. W. H. generated, purchased and sold
Classification of Consumers
Operating Expenses Grand Totals
Generating System Operating Expenses
Eletricity Generated by Others
Transmission System Operating Expenses
Distribution System Operating Expenses
Utilization System Operating Expenses
Commercial Department Operating Expenses
New Business Department Operating Expenses
General Administration Expenses
Other General Expenses (allocated as Fixed Charges)
Fixed Capital

Allocation of Costs

The expenses as filed in the annual reports under these classifications are allocated to the class of rate schedules for which the expenses were incurred and where direct allocation could not be made, apportioned in accordance with the controlling factors, it being understood that each company can readily obtain accurate figures on which to base all costs.

The reports to the Public Service Commission as now submitted are not classified so as to give the data necessary for allocating costs to rate schedules. Particularly is this true as to fixed capital, and for the purpose of this report estimates for apportioning capital expenditures for Generation, Transmission, Distribution, etc. had to be made, all of which can be accurately ascertained by each company, therefore in applying estimates on a state-wide study they may vary considerably from the actual figures of an individual company.

Apportionment of Expenses

A careful study was made of the expenses which could not be applied to a particular class of service. These expenses are apportioned by the factor which directly affects such expenditures and apportioned to the class of rate schedules in the proportion that the service caused the expenses.

Summaries

Before analyzing each classification the following general summaries are submitted:

Total Fixed Capital of the companies analyzed (these companies representing 99% of total fixed capital of all companies in Pennsylvania) ("C" and "D" companies Total Fixed Capital $6,021,276).

80 Class "A" & "B" Companies total fixed capital	$551,271,770.
Average Fixed Capital per Consumer (1,274,597)	432.50
Average Fixed Capital per KWH. (5,637,090,000)	.008
Maximum Fixed Capital of any one company	$199,595,485.
Minimum Fixed Capital of any one company	31,775.
Maximum Fixed Capital per Consumer	555.00
Minimum Fixed Capital per Consumer	28.00
Maximum Fixed Capital per KWH. Sold	0.36
Minimum Fixed Capital per KWH. Sold	0.0065

Eliminating such companies which have abnormal figures, the maximum and minimum figures range as follows:

	Max.	Min.
Fixed Capital per Consumer (13 Co's. omitted)	$555.00	$100.00
Fixed Capital per KWH. sold (15 Co's. omitted)	.136	.015

Classes of Service

To allocate costs to each class of service for which a rate schedule is filed the classification in the rate spread report is adopted which is as follows:

Residence of Domestic Lighting
Domestic Power, Cooking and Resting
Commercial Light and Power
General Power
Wholesale Power Primary and Secondary
Special Power Contracts
Flat Rate Service
Interchange Power
Off Peak or Restricted Power
Miscellaneous Schedules

Apportionment of Operating Expenses

The largest item in operating expenses is included in generating system operating expenses. The apportioning of these expenses is self evident and is made on a K.W.H. basis up to the outgoing distribution feeder and transmission system.

The generation of a K.W.H. cannot be produced for a particular class of service except in isolated cases such as are lighting, 25 cycle power or power generated for a specific service. Such instances are of minor importance and so small a percentage of the total output when considered in a state-wide problem as to be negligible in the final result.

With the growing tendency to obtain power from the most effective and efficient prime mover sources the possibility of apportioning generating system operating expenses to any class of service is not only becoming difficult, but ridiculous.

As indicated by the foregoing summary, the total generating system operating expenses for the eighty plants included in their reports, which represent 90% of the power sold in Pennsylvania for the year 1924, was $38,828,721.

The total generating system operating expenses as classified in the reports to the Public Service Commission includes purchased power. To arrive at the expenses for Prime Power so that no duplication of costs occur, the power generated within the state for which the operating expenses are included in the company's report plus such power purchased for which no costs of generation are filed, will approximate the actual total generating system operating expenses for the prime power used within the state.

The only power generated for which no reports are filed with the Public Service Commission is that generated beyond the state borders. It is estimated that the total amount of power imported was approximately 360,000,000 K.W.H.

The interconnection of prime power sources and the efficiency and reliability of long distance transmission has placed into discard the old and established principle of assuming prime mover capacity must be provided for a specific class of service. The use of prime mover capacity is applicable for all service. The demand for lighting service which required generating capacity for the peak load of that service is no longer idle for a prolonged period of the day and the same capacity becomes available for the peak demand of other classes of service, not only in the local district but practically throughout the state. Idle capacity in York County may be used to carry the peak load in Dauphin County. Idle capacity in Erie County may be used in Fayette County and so on indefinitely as consolidation of the power utilities or interconnection is perfected.

Therefore the diversity of a class of service of a local company has changed to the diversity of all service in the area served by a controlling company or interconnected with prime power sources.

This ability to use prime power sources for the diversity in all classes of service established the basis for allocation of costs of power production on system load factor in place of the diversity of a given class of service.

The cost of power for all classes of service therefore is the same, based on the annual load factor of the plant, and any class of service using power in excess of this average load factor is entitled to receive such excess an off peak (off load factor) service.

This simplifies the allocation of cost of power at the station bus for all rate schedules to (A) Cost of power at annual load factors and (B) Cost of power in excess of annual load factor. Total transmission and distribution system operating expenses are apportioned on the same principle as generating system operating expenses.

Utilization system operating expenses and commercial department expenses are apportioned on the basis of number of consumers.

New business department expenses are apportioned on the K.W.H. sold be sis.

General administration expenses cover the management of the entire property and apply more or less to each of the classified accounts. In apportioning these expenses the importance of the functions of the administrative organization to each of the accounts is estimated to be as follows:

Generating System	25%
Transmission System	10%
Distribution System	10%
Undistributed	55%
Total	100%

The undistributed portion of these expenses are allocated on the basis of K.W.H. sold.

Other general expenses cover principally taxes, insurance, renewals and replacements, etc., and are apportioned as fixed charges.

Generating System Expenses

The allocation of generating system operating expenses for all schedules becomes the unit cost per K.W.H. The allocation of fixed charges on generating system capital investment becomes the unit cost per K.W.H. at the system load factor.

Taking the system for the state as a whole, the total generating system operating expenses for the eighty companies included in the study for the year 1924, was $38,828,721, and the K.W.H. sold by these companies 5,637,090,000 K.W.H. The cost per K.W.H. sold being 6.9 mills per K.W.H., including power purchased for resale.

Of this number of companies, 49 have generating plants and 44 generate power and have prime power capacity (including stand capacity) of 1,958,866 K.W. and during 1924 generated 5,270,551,000 K.W.H. Generating system operating expenses for these 44 companies was $28,421,283 at an average cost of 5.3c per K.W.H.

The capital charges cannot be accurately apportioned from the data available of these companies, therefore an assumed fixed capital per K.W. of capacity must be arrived at.

Various costs per K.W. are available and range from $70.00 to $140.00 per K. W. for plants recently constructed. Therefore as an approximate figure $120.00 will be used considering that many of the plants were built before or after the period of maximum costs.

The total plant capacity of the companies generating power being 1,958,866 K.W., the fixed capital at $120.00 per K.W. represents a total investment $235,063,920. To allocate operating expenses and fixed charges including fair return on the fixed capital, other expense accounts must be analyzed and are apportioned as follows:

Generating system operating expense	100%
Transmission system operating expense	0
Distribution system operating expense	0
Utilization system operating expense	0
Commercial Dept. Expense	0
New Business Dept. Expense	0
General Administration Expense	25%
Other General Expense
Taxes (based on capital)	2%
Renewals and Replacements (based on capital)	3%
Insurance (based on capital)	1%

Generating system operating expenses include all expenses directly chargeable to generating costs and therefore no apportionment is necessary. General administration expenses can be apportioned on a fixed capital basis or on the relative importance of the administrative functions to the activities of the company. Thus a company generating only power for distributing by one or more power utilities would apportion administrative expense 100% to generating system while a company having an extensive transmission, distribution and sales organization would apportion these expenses at a relatively lower percentage to generating system expenses.

Three companies disposing of all power generated at wholesale to distributing companies have a fixed capital of $593,963, generate 27,742,000 K.W.H. and have a general administrative expense of $8,715,000 on a fixed capital basis the apportionment of this expense will be 1½% and on a K.W.H. generated basis 0.0316 mills. This indicates that the function of the executive organization is largely that of business management and by apportioning this expense on a basis of 25% to generating system expense, it will cover any reasonable costs necessary for general administration of the generating system. The total administration expense for 1924 was $4,490,002 by apportioning $1,125,000 (25%) to generating system expense, equals approximately ½ of 1% on the fixed capital or 0.02 mills per K. W. H. sold.

Other general expenses pertaining to generating system include principally the items of taxes and renewals and replacements (depreciation reserve) and insurance (fire, injuries and damages reserves) all these items are directly dependent on the fixed capital.

Taxes for the year 1924 for the sightly companies covered by this study averaged 1.16% of the total fixed capital of these companies, therefore an allowance of 2% for taxes of the fixed capital for generating system is a reasonable apportionment for this item to the generating system expenses.

Renewals and replacements during 1924 averaged 1.42% of the total fixed capital. Therefore an allowance of 3% of the fixed capital for generating system is ample to cover the items of renewals and replacements (depreciation reserve).

Insurance accounts vary considerably by different companies, although no allowance of 1% of the total fixed capital appears to be an average maximum of the companies covered by this report which is allowed for this item.

Fair return (Interest on Fixed Capital) is assumed at 7% of the fixed capital.

To allocate the costs based on Fixed Capital to the rate schedule, the lead factor or time the investment is employed must be arrived at. As previously stated, the fallacy of assuming any part of a system is held in readiness to serve for a particular class of service is apparent, the average use of the generating equipment for all service is a true basis for allocating fixed charges.

The average load factor of the generating system of the state for the year 1924 was approximately 54% (see rate spread report).

Estimating the fixed capital invested in the generating system at $235,063,920, the fixed charges at 13% will be $30,558,309. The difficulty of separating generated and purchased power so that no duplication of fixed charges are included in the cost to serve is apparent therefore the allocation of the expense per K. W. H. is based on the output of the system exclusive of the power purchased from beyond the state border, it being assumed that the price at which this power is purchased includes the fixed charges.

The individual peak loads of 40 companies from which data was available (see rate spread report) totalled 1,222,838 K. W. and the generating plant capacity 1,714,791 K. W. indicating a capacity factor of approximately 70%. The total power sold, 5,637,090,000 K. W. H. required a prime power generation of this month of energy plus losses, less power resold for local distribution.

It is estimated that of the total sales 2,000,000,000 K. W. H. are delivered as primary power with average losses estimated at 5% and the balance (3,637,090,000 K. W. H.) is delivered as secondary power on which the average losses are estimated to be 35%. Therefore the total prime power required would be as follows:

Primary Service ...	(2,000,000,000 K. W. with 5% loss)	2,100,000,000
Secondary Service .	(3,637,090,000 K. W. with 35% loss)	4,910,071,500
Total Prime Power		7,010,071,500

The total power generated and purchased by the 80 companies is reported as 6,459,668,000 K. W. H. (see appendix Table "A") of which 5,270,551,000 K. W. H. was prime power generated by plants within the state plus approximately 150,000,000 K. W. H. delivered to local companies by the Pennsylvania Water and Power Company, which is included in purchased power. Therefore the total prime power generated within the state (exclusive of the power generated at Holtwood delivered beyond the state border) is approximately 5,420,551,000 K. W. H. Of the purchased power it is estimated 360,000,000 K. W. H. was obtained from beyond the state border, assuming this to be prime power the total prime power generated and purchased amounted to approximately 5,780,000,000 K. W. H.

The difference between generated and purchased power as reported and the prime power generated and purchased is power resold for local distribution.

At 100% (8760 K. W. H.) load factor the fixed charge per K. W. H. will be 13% of the fixed capital ($120.00) or 15,60 which equals 1.8 mills per K. W. H. generated. At a load factor of 54%, the fixed charge per K. W. H. generated will be 3.32 mills per K. W. H. generated.

The load factor of the generating system does not take into consideration the capacity of the generating system in excess of the peak demand. The development of interconnection reduces materially the capacity required above the peak demand, therefore the 30% indicated as necessary during 1924 may be considered excessive.

At a capacity factor of 70% the fixed capital is 30% in excess of that required to generate the peak load, the fixed charges on this excess capacity must be absorbed in the cost per K. W. H. generated. The fixed charges based on a 100% capacity factor being 3.32 mills per K. W. H. at a 70%, the fixed charges will be increased to 4.31 mills per K. W. H. generated.

The allocation of costs of the generating system expenses to all rate schedules with the exception of off-peak service (energy used in excess of the annual load factor) will be as follows:

Expenses of Generated Power:
Companies Gen. greater part of power sold	$28,282,320
Companies Pur. greater part of power sold	138,963
Total expense of Generated Power	$28,421,283
Prime Power from Holtwood (Est.)	669,217
Prime Power from beyond border (Est.)	2,100,000
Total Operating Exp. of Prime Power	31,190,500
Administration Expense	1,125,000
Total Expense Prime Power	32,315,500
Cost per K. W. H. Gen. Syst. Oper. Ex.		5.35 Mills
Cost per K. W. H. Administration Exp.		.02 Mills
Total Cost per K. W. H.		5.37 Mills
Total Fixed Capital (estimated)	$235,063,920
Fixed Charges (13% of Fixed Capital)	30,558,309
Total Prime Power Generated	5,270,551,000 K. W. H.
Fixed Charge per K. W. H. Generated (54% load factor)		3.32 Mills
Fixed Charge per K. W. H. Generated for Reserve Capacity		0.99 Mills
Total Fixed Charges per K. W. H. Generated		4.31 Mills
Total Generating System expense—Cost per K. W. H. Prime Power		9.68 Mills

Basing the allocation of generating system expense on the average of the 80 companies included in this report, the schedules for all classes of power with the exception of off-peak service will have a power cost of 9.68 mills per K.W. and the off-peak schedule (power used in excess of the average load factor) will have a power cost of 5.37 mills.

Transmission System Expenses

From the data available it is difficult to allocate these expenses accurately. The records do not indicate what portion of the total K. W. H. generated are delivered over transmission lines, and little information is available as to what percent of the fixed capital is invested in the transmission system.

The extensive system of interconnection now installed and the general policy of high voltage generation practically eliminates the delivery of power direct from the generating system to the distribution system. In apportioning transmission expenses it is therefore assumed that at least the greater part of all power generated is transmitted and the operating expenses will be allocated to all rate schedules on the basis of transmission system expenses for K. W. H. sold.

The allocation of fixed charges of the transmission system is dependent on length of transmission and will be apportioned to the rate schedule on the basis of fixed charges per mile of transmission system.

These distances for each system covered by the rate schedules of a company, however, are for normal service not of sufficient length to warrant basing costs on individual services and with the exception of the lines for interchange power schedules, service for other utilities or wholesale consumers for which a system of zones can be established, the average length of transmission for the system, exclusive of that portion included in a zoning system, will approximate a conservative unit for allocating cost to each rate schedule.

The total transmission system operating expenses for the companies covered by this report for the year 1924 were $5,079,171 and the cost per K. W. H. sold was 0.9 mills.

The variation in transmission system operating expenses per K. W. H. sold for the companies submitting this data, ranges from a minimum of 0.01 mills to a maximum of 7.5 mills. The cost per K. W. H. sold of 41 companies was below 1 mill per K. W. H.

The approximate total miles of transmission lines in the state are estimated at 10,000 miles. Assuming an average cost (which can readily be ascertained by each company) of 10,000 dollars per mile including substations, will require a capital investment of $100,000,000.

Having concluded that all power generated is transmitted for some distance, it follows that the total capacity of the transmission system must at least approximate the prime mover capacity which is given as 1,958,866 K.W. On this basis the average fixed capital investment per K.W. of transmission line capacity is apporximately 50 dollars or 5 mills per K.W. mile.

Following the same principle in allocating transmission system expenses to the rate schedules as applied to the generating system, allowing for administration 10% of the general administration expenses, the cost to cover transmission system operating expenses will be as follows:

Trans. Syst. operating Exp. per K. W. H. sold	.091 mills
Gen. Administration Exp. per K. W. H. sold	.008 mills
Total Trans. Syst. operating Exp. K. W. H. Sold	.099 mills

Allocating fixed charges (15% of Fixed Capital) on the basis of load factor (average use of the system) the cost will be as follows:

At 100% load factor (8760 K.W.H.) the fixed charges per K.W. of transmission system capacity will be $6.50 (13% of $50.00) or .0745 mills per K.W.H.

At a load factor of 54% the fixed charges per K.W.H. sold will be .138 mills.

The allocation of transmission system expenses as previously stated applies to all schedules. The extensive system of interconnection and the relatively few power plants in centers of distribution allows as a reasonable assumption that all power is transmitted some distance, and with the exception of instances where a zoning system will apply an average for all consumers will be as accurate as an attempt to apply a distance factor in allocating these expenses.

The total cost for transmission expenses to be allocated to all rate schedules is therefore as follows:

Total Trans. Syst. Oper. Exp. per K. W. H. sold	.099 mills
Total Trans. Syst. Fixed Charge Exp. K. W. H. sold	.138 mills
Total Transmission System Cost	.237 mills
Cost for Off Peak Service	.099 mills

Distributing System Expenses

The operating expenses of the distribution system are largely dependent on the K.W.H. sold and are more or less proportionate to the importance of the service.

Capital investment and therefore fixed charges are governed by the possible density of consumers and their demand. Perhaps 80% of the fixed capital represented by the distributing system is invested to serve the small or domestic user and usually is installed with sufficient capacity to serve the estimate ultimate requirements of a district.

Operating expenses therefore are allocated on the bases of cost per K.W.H. and fixed charges on the cost per consumer based on a measured or assessed demand.

As 80% of the consumers represent resident or domestic service requiring not to exceed an average demand of 1 K.W., the allocation of fixed charges practically amounts to an allocation on a demand basis, and the assessed demand of domestic services will vary according to the district served, in large densely populated cities the assessed demand for domestic consumers will average considerably less than in less populated areas.

The demand of commercial and secondary power service is readily ascertained and therefore no assumptions are necessary. The allocation of costs being based on load factor the total of the measured demands plus the assessed demands must approximate the peak load on the distributing system plus a reasonable excess capacity.

The total distributing system operating expenses of the companies covered by this report were $6,856,878 for the year 1924.

The average cost per K.W.H. including primary power was 1.24 mills, the cost per consumer was $5.40, maximum and minimum cost being as follows:

	Max.	Min.
Cost per K. W. H. Sold	5.6 Mills	1.05 Mills
Cost per Consumer	$8.80	$2.28

Schedules covering primary service not making use of the distributing system, will have no cost allocation covering distributing system expenses. Correcting the above figures to include only secondary service an estimate of the K.W.H. sold as primary service must be made as no accurate figures from which to obtain this data are available.

From the rate spread report (see file May 12, 1926) the figures indicate that of the total K.W.H. sold (5,637,090,000) approximately 2,000,000,000 K.W.H. was sold as primary service.

Allocating cost of distributing system operation expenses on the basis of K.W.H. sold to secondary consumers only, (3,637,090,000 K.W.H.) the average cost allocated to all rate schedules for secondary service will be 1.89 mills per K.W.H.

In allocating fixed charges on the basis of a measured demand for commercial and secondary power consumers and on assessed demand for domestic consumers, no attempt has been made to eliminate the number of primary consumers, as the error is too small to warrent checking this item. It being self evident that in the application of this principle of cost allocation by individual companies all the facts are available, eliminating errors which are unavoidable in a state-wide study of this kind.

To arrive at the fixed charges the difficulty of obtaining the fixed capital invested in the distributing system is again apparent.

The complication of arriving at an estimate, considering the great difference in local costs particularly where extensive underground construction is employed, is apparent. It is, however, a fact that where these construction costs are high the density of consumers is also high so that the actual return per dollar invested is relatively consistent, and is so recognized in existing rate schedules which do not take into consideration service from overhead or underground systems.

From various data available on this subject the costs per consumer vary from $50.00 to $400.00, taking as an average figure $150.00 and the number of consumers at 1,274,597 will require a total capital investment of $191,189,550, or $97.50 per K.W. of generating capacity. (1,958,885 K.W.).

In assuming that the capacity of the distributing system has the same capacity as the generating system, notwithstanding that a large part of the power is sold as primary power, consideration is given to the fact that a larger part of the power sold as primary service is resold by distributing companies over their local distributing system. On a state-wide analysis it is quite impossible to consider in detail this condition and it is possible that the distributing system as a total may approximate the generating capacity.

The final charges at 13% of the fixed capital invested in distributing system will be $24,854,641. Allocated on a consumer basis amounts to $14.80 per consumer on a demand basis, assuming the total demand equals the capacity of the system amounts to 12.70 per K.W.H. at an assessed demand of 1 K.W. to each domestic consumer accounts for 1,053,130 K.W. (see rate spread report), the balance being accounted for by commercial and power service at a average demand of 4½ K.W. per consumer.

The apportionment of fixed charges on a customer basis should be revised periodically as the number of consumer increase. In a rapidly developing property such revision may be warranted annually, while a property having a high density factor the addition of new consumers may be offset by additional fixed capital invested in the distribution system.

In allocating fixed charges to the rate schedules, a cost of $14.80 must be made to all domestic or residence rate schedules in the form of a minimum charge, service charge, assessed demand, or in a high rate for the first block of energy consumed subject to such adjustment as the measured demand of commercial and power service may effect this sum.

General administration expenses are effected by the distribution system similarly to that of the transmission system. The relative importance of administrative functions may be considered nominal as applying to the distribution system, therefore apportioning this expense at 10% of the total administration expenses is allowed for this item, which amounts to $449,000 or .008 mills per K.W.H. sold (5,637,090,000 K.W.H.).

In allocating this cost on the basis of total K. W. H. sold, is apparent that the error due to including primary power will increase the cost above the .008 mills, as previously stated a large portion of the primary power is distributed by local companies so that the actual cost would vary slightly from the above figures.

The allocation of distributing system expenses to the rate schedules as arrived at from the above analysis will be as follows:

Distributing Syst. Oper. Exp. per K. W. H. Sold	1.89 Mills
Administration Oper. Exp. per K. W. H. Sold	.008
Total distributing syst. Oper Exp. per K. W. H. Sold	1.898
Fixed Charges per Consumer or per K. W. demand	$12.70

Utilization System Operating Expenses

Aside from Customers Premises Inspection and Service of Trouble Department, this expense is of a specific nature such as Street Lighting Service, Sign or Display Lighting or expenses incurred for a special class of consumers for which a direct charge can be made consistent with the cost of such special service.

In allocating this expense credit must be allowed for payments received for specific charges covered by the rate schedules which include such service as supplied under Street Lighting Schedules, Display Lighting Schedules and particularly all flat rate service.

The remaining cost being a relatively small sum, is directly apportioned on the basis of number of consumers. The total costs for utilization operating expense for the 80 companies covered by this report for 1924 was $3,276,952. No data is available by which a proper proportion can be credited to schedules specifically including special service as referred to above, but can readily be ascertained by each company, and a correct deduction made. For the purpose of this report it is estimated that at least 50% of the total utilization expenses can be allocated directly to such schedules calling for special service, leaving a balance of $1,638,477 to be allocated on the basis of number of consumers.

The K. W. H. cost of utilization system operation expenses ($3,276,954) for the year 1924 averaged .058 mills per K. W. H. sold, ranging from a minimum of .0003 mills to a maximum of 6.3 mills. Eliminating extreme figures the variation ranges from a minimum of .012 mills to a maximum of .078 mills.

This expense being directly proportionate to the number of consumers, the allocation is made on a per consumer basis. Deducting the charges made direct to schedules selling for special service as noted above, leaves a total expense of $1,638,477, or a cost per consumer of $1.28 per annum. Being an annual charge this cost must be allocated to the rate schedule as a service charge in the manner heretofore referred to over and above the K. W. H. cost.

Commercial Department Operating Expenses

These expenses are directly proportioned to the number of consumers, all schedules therefore are equally affected by these costs in direct ratio to the number of consumers,

The total operating expenses of the commercial department of the 80 companies for the year 1924 were $3,501,609. The cost per K. W. H. sold averaged .062 mills per K. W. H., varying from a minimum of .0028 mills to a maximum of 7.5 mills per K. W. H. for individual companies. Eliminating extreme figures the range was from .0156 mills minimum to 1 mill maximum.

The expense per customer averaged $2.74 with a minimum of 11 cents and a maximum of $6.70. Eliminating extreme figures range is from a minimum of $1.14 to a maximum of $3.74 for individual companies.

This expense being directly proportional to the number of consumers the cost is allocated to each rate schedule on a per customer basis of $2.74 per consumer.

This cost being an annual charge it is allocated to the rate schedules as a service charge as referred to heretofore.

New Business Department Operating Expenses

This expense is the basis for intangible or going value. The costs are governed by the judgment of the management and justified by future earnings. Existing consumers are not responsible for the expenditures and are affected only indirectly as the company may prosper by the addition of new consumers or by an increase in the load factor. To this extent they are vitally interested as either result will reflect in a lowering of the rate. Therefore these costs are a proper charge to the cost to serve. A method of governing the expense of the New Business Department is the gross income, every business can expend a reasonable percentage of the gross income to promote or develop future growth.

The total expenditure for New Business Operating expenses for the year 1924 was $1,587,967 or 1.2% of the estimated gross income ($127,000,000) for the 80 companies covered by this report. For the larger companies the minimum being 0.6% and the maximum 2.1%.

On a K. W. H. basis the average cost was 0.0282 mills per K. W. H. The minimum cost was 0.0096 mills and the maximum 0.18 mills per K. W. H. Eliminating extreme figures the range varied from a minimum of 0.02 mills to a maximum of 0.062 mills per K. W. H. The K. W. H. sold controlling the gross income this expense is allocated on the basis of per K. W. H. sold and amounts to a cost of 0.0282 per K. W. H.

General Administration Expenses

The total cost of administration operating expenses for the companies covered by the report for the year 1924 were $4,490,002, or slightly less than 1% of the total fixed capital of the companies.

The average expense per K. W. H. sold was 0.8 mills, the maximum expense for any one company was 1.54 cents and the minimum 0,258 mills per K. W. . Eliminating extreme figures the maximum was 6.6 mills and the minimum 0.352 mills per K. W. H.

Of the total administration operating expenses 25% is accounted for in the allocation of generating costs, 10% in transmission costs and 10% in distributing costs, leaving a balance of 55% or $2,240,000 unaccounted for.

The executive functions to administer a property in addition to the major items accounted for, are of a general nature and cannot be readily classified, the expenses applying quite consistently to all rate schedules, proportionately to their gross earnings the balance of those expenses ($2,240,000) are allocated to each rate schedule on a K. W. H. sold basis amounting to 0.04 mills per K. W. H.

Other General Expenses

The major items constituting this expense, namely, taxes, insurance and renewals and replacements are accounted for in the allocation of fixed charges as follows:

Generating System Expenses	6% of Fixed Capital
Transmission System Expenses	6% of Fixed Capital
Distribution System Expenses	6% of Fixed Capital

The fixed capital estimated for these items is as follows:

Generating System	$235,063,920
Transmission System	100,000,000
Distribution System	191,184,550
Total	$526,248,470

The total expenditures covered by the classification of accounts as other general expenses for the year 1924, was $18,487,204. The total amount accounted for in allocating fixed charges to the classification as above amounted to $31,500,000 or $13,012,796 in excess of the amount actually expended. Indicating that the allowance of 6% of the fixed capital to cover items classified under Other General Expenses is more than ample to cover in addition to taxes, depreciation (renewals and replacements) and insurance reserve accounts, such miscellaneous expenses as store expenses, garage and stable expenses, etc.

Analysis of Fixed Capital

Apportioning fixed capital on the basis of $120.00 per K. W. of generating capacity, $10,000 per mile of transmission system including sub-station and $150,000 per consumer for the distributing system, amounts to a total of $526,984,320, summarized as follows:

Generating System—Rated Capacity 1,958,866 K. W.	=235,271,770
Transmission System—10,000 Miles	=100,000,000
Distributing System—1,274,597 Consumers	=191,184,550
Total	$526,456,320
Total Capital Costs per Reports	551,271,770
Available for Capital Requirements not accounted for	$23,896,450

In apportioning the fixed capital as above stated, miscellaneous capital requirements such as office buildings, store facilities, transportation equipment, working capital, etc., for which fixed capital charges must be provided, no attempt is made to analyze these expenses in details, the fixed charges resulting from this capital expenditure is for general utility purposes and applies to all rate schedules in practically direct proportions to the K.W.H. sold.

The allocations of this expense is therefore made on the basis of a fixed capital of $25,000,000 with fixed charges at 13% to cover the fixed charges on miscellaneous capital expenditures, amounting to $3,250,000.

The cost per K.W.H. sold (5,639,090,000) being .0577 mills is allocated to all rate schedules.

In apportioning this expense to the rate schedules no account is taken of earnings from other sources approximating $10,000,000. The expenses incident to those earnings are absorbed as general expenses in the classification of accounts. These earnings should share their proper portion of such accounts as administrative and new business expenses in addition to general expenses.

Losses

The allocation of costs considered in the foregoing study covers all cost as classified in the annual reports of the companies in accordance with the uniform classification of accounts for electric companies and covers all costs with the exception of transmission and distribution losses.

In allocating the cost of this item the losses must be apportioned to the various rate schedules. The losses consist of transmission loss including sub-stations, distribution losses, including meter losses and unaccounted for loss.

Transmission losses apply to all schedules, the other losses apply to all schedules with the exception of primary power schedules. Transmission losses are variously estimated (see rate spread report) at from 4 to 18% with an average of 9%, and as transmission losses can be quite accurately ascertained the difference between total generated and purchased prime power less transmission losses must be the loss to be accounted for by secondary service. The average total losses stated in the reports vary from 7% to 41% omitting extreme figures the minimum loss is 8% and the maximum loss 26%.

A further analysis indicates that eliminating the companies supplying large proportions of their output to primary power consumers, the average losses will vary from 17% to 41%.

This data indicates that an allowance of 9% transmission for losses on all schedules plus 25% for distribution losses on all secondary service schedules, will be a reasonable average to allow for this item of expense. The cost of the losses being based on total prime power generation will add 9% of the generating system operating expenses to the transmission system expenses in the allocation of costs on all schedules for primary power plus 25% on all other schedules.

The generating system operating expenses being 5.37 mills per K.W.H., the additional costs per K.W.H. for transmission system losses at 9% will be .475 mills to be allocated to all primary power schedules. The additional cost per K.W.H. to apply to all schedules other than primary power service to cover distribution losses at 25% of the generating system operating expenses at 5.37 mills, will be 1.325 mills.

In accounting for losses the estimated percentages as given above was necessary as the data on losses for all companies is not available. It is however apparent that the allocation of losses is a simple matter for each individual company.

The K.W.H. of Prime Power Generated can be accurately ascertained and the total K.W.H. sold is available. Deducting total sales from K.W.H. output at the station base represents losses or power to be accounted for. Of this quantity the transmission losses, if not available can be calculated with reasonable accuracy, deducting these losses from the total output less such power which can be definitely accounted for represents losses in distribution.

For example these figures for 2 companies generating the greater portion of the power sold is as follows:

K. W. H. Output	Phila. Elec. Co.	Duquesne Lt. Co.
Generated	1,364,653,000	1,075,738,000 K. W. H.
Purchased	none	20,202,000 K. W. H.
Total	1,364,653,000	1,093,940,000 K. W. H.
K. W. H. sold	1,209,043,000	958,376,000 K. W. H.
K. W. H. Unaccounted for	155,610,000	135,564,000 K. W. H.
Transmission losses (Nat. at 5%)	68,232,650	54,697,000 K. W. H.
Distribution losses (Difference)	97,377,350	80,867,000 K. W. H.
% loss in distributions, etc.	8.5%	7.5%

In allocating costs to account for losses to the rate schedules, the actual losses are known and can be accounted for without assuming an estimated loss for the various classes of service, which is certain to account for losses for in excess of those actually occurring as indicated by the estimated averages of 9% for Transmission and 24% for Distribution as compared with the actual loss of 5% for Transmission and 8.5% for Distribution in the above example.

Summary of Cost to Serve

In allocating the costs as covered in this analysis of the cost to serve to all the rate schedules, it will be noted that the rate schedules automatically are classified into four classes.

A. Primary Service
B. Distributed Service (Secondary Service)
C. Special Service (Flat Rate, etc.)
D. Off Peak Service (Power used in excess of the average demand)

A—Primary Service covers all classes of service delivered from transmission lines which do not use the distributing system of a company.
B—Distribution service covers all classes of service not coming under Class A.
C—Special Service covers such schedules which include specific service not common to all consumers.
D—Off Peak Service automatically applies to all classes for the power used in excess of the average load factor.

Regrouping the schedules now in use for supplying electric service as classified at present, places them in the four classes as follows:

Class A—Interchange Power
Special Power Contracts
Wholesale Power (Primary)

Class B—Residence or Domestic Light
Domestic Power
Commercial Light and Power
General Power
Wholesale Power (Secondary)

Class C—Flat Rates
Miscellaneous Schedules

Class D—Off Peak Power

The following tabulation of the allocation of costs to the various classes of rates approximate the cost to serve based on averages derived from the reports of 80 companies for the year 1924, representing 99% of the fixed capital and 97% of the K.W.H. generated by the electric power utilities of the State of Pennsylvania, based on an average load factor of 54% for the state.

Conclusions

The cost of serving a consumer must include a fair return on the capital invested, fixed charges and all expenses. The selling price must be sufficiently above this cost to attract new capital, encourage efficient management and establish a going value for the property.

The allocation of costs as analyzed assures a fair return and fixed charges based on the annual load factor and the K.W. demand of the consumer. It assures all expenses dependent on the K.W.H. sold and all expenses dependent on the K.W. demand of the consumers. It encourages long hours use and stimulates density of consumers. It automatically adjusts rates as the profits of the utilities are affected. The public and the utility share equally in the economies and efficiencies of the industry. It allows intelligent application of the regulatory functions of the Public Service Commission laws.

Applying this principle of cost allocation to existing rates, the following examples (the accuracy of which being limited to the data available) indicate the comparative net charge per K.W.H. to the consumer for each class of service of the following companies:

Barnesboro Spangler Electric Light Company
Penn Central Light and Power Company
Scranton Electric Company
Philadelphia Electric Company
Philadelphia Suburban Gas and Electric Company

In these examples the assessed demand for domestic service is ½ K.W. per consumer which leaves an average demand of approximately 2 K.W. per consumer for commercial and secondary power service.

In submitting this report due consideration is given to the evolution of the industry and it is recognized that the development of the business to its present importance could not have been accomplished by allocating costs to establish the selling price for rate schedules any more than the railroads could have developed the transportation system without discrimination.

It is also understood that consideration must be given to the abnormal consumer as per example, service restricted to early morning hours or service which may create an abnormal peak during the hours of average use.

The report assumes that the industry has reached an economic development and a demand which eliminates all need of concession or subsidies, that its production costs are sufficiently below competitive sources, that all rate schedules can be based on the cost to serve and that discrimination to obtain favorable business need not be practiced.

The diversity of use by the consumers and the interconnection of systems has eliminated definite production in peak loads, therefore the offpeak consumer has lost his identity and as the domestic user as well as the industrial user spreads his demand for service over the same period, they should share equally in the economies to which they contribute.

The application of allocating costs to existing rate schedules confirms the fact that discrimination in rates exists and that service below costs is available to various classes of consumers, the loss being offset by excessive charges to those less favorably situated.

The allocation of costs on the principle outlined reduces costs of service to domestic or small consumers from an average of 7 to 10 cents to an average of 4 to 6 cents per K. W. H. and increases the cost to wholesale or large consumers from an average of 1⅛ to 1¾ cents to an average of 1¼ to 2 cents per K. W. H.

The rate spread as between small and large consumers thus becomes three to one as contrasted with a rate spread of ten to one which is now common in the industry.

It will be noted in the examples of allocating costs to individual companies that the selling price in comparison with existing rates to obtain the same operating revenues varies from 40% above to 25% below the cost to serve which includes 7% as a fair return on the fixed capital.

Considering the 7% as profit there is sufficient margin above actual costs to maintain existing rates to large consumers. This loss in profit, however, must not be made up by increasing the selling price of other schedules but must be carried by the company until economics are effected which will reduce costs so that these rates will return the % of profits allocated to all schedules.

In conclusion it should be noted that the existing form of reports as submitted to the Commission by the companies should be modified so that cost allocation can be accurately accomplished. Particular attention should be given to a revision of the classification of fixed capital so that the amount of fixed capital for generation, transmission and distribution can be ascertained and a revision of the statistical data so that the load and capacity factor is properly reported.

Minutes of the Joint Giant Power Commission

of
New York, New Jersey & Pennsylvania

October 31—December 21, 1926

Statement

By Governors Smith, Silzer and Pinchot on the appointment of a Joint Giant Power Commission.

A new era has been reached in the generation and transmission of electric light, heat and power. Electrical energy is already being carried across State borders at numerous points throughout the nation. Plans have been developed for carrying this power in greatly increased volume and long distances through several States.

Light, heat and power companies in the sale of their securities point out the number of States they serve with electrical energy. Facilities under common ownership in different states are being progressively and rapidly interconnected.

Electrical energy, passing, as it now does, from State to State, immediately enters interstate commerce, and as such can only be regulated by the Federal Government through direct Congressional action or through the delegation of Congressional authority to the States.

What is true of the transmission of power between States generally applies to the States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where power passes from one to the other at many points though as yet in comparatively small quantities. Plans, however, are being developed for the transmission of Giant Power from the coal mines of Pennsylvania and the water-power of New York in unprecedented quantities to the industries and householders of these States and to those of New Jersey.

Irrespective of what other States may do, it is the desire of the Governors of the States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania that some action be taken to insure the effective control and regulation of companies doing an interstate business in electricity, in order that they may be compelled to provide adequate service at reasonable rates. Unless some action is taken the individual state will soon be absolutely helpless. If Congress should on its own initiative provide a system of Federal regulation as in the case of the railroads, the States will have little to say as to the service these interstate companies shall render or the prices they shall charge.

The only safe course is for the States to act now themselves. The United States Constitution in the Compact Clause has provided a method whereby this can be done. This clause permits two or more States to enter into a compact, which must be ratified by Congress. When this has been done, the States will be able to regulate these interstate electric companies as they now regulate utility companies operating exclusively within their own borders.

With this purpose in mind, the three Governors have this day appointed a "Joint Giant Power Commission of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania," whose duty it will be to study this question, make such recommendations as they may deem advisable, prepare a compact to be entered into by the three States, and to make a report to the Governors of the respective States previous to the next session of the Legislature.

The Commissioners from the three States are as follows:

NEW YORK

William A. Prendergast, Chairman, New York Public Service Commission. George R. Lunn, Member, New York Public Service Commission. Charles R. Vanneman, Chief Engineer, New York Public Service Commission.

NEW JERSEY

Dr. Charles Browne, of Princeton, N. J., Member of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of New Jersey. Mr. Isaac Alpern, of Perth Amboy, N. J., President of the Perth Amboy Trust Co., a Director in other financial institutions, and a well-known business man of New Jersey. Mr. Robert F. Engle, of Beach Haven, N. J., former member of the State Board of Commerce and Navigation, and a well-known citizen and business man.

PENNSYLVANIA

Philip P. Wells, Deputy Attorney General and Chairman, Pennsylvania Giant Power Board. Clyde L. King, Secretary of the Commonwealth and member Pennsylvania Giant Power Board. Morris L. Cooke, Consulting Engineer, Director, Pennsylvania Giant Power Survey and member Penna. Giant Power Board.

Governor Pinchot said:—

The appointment of a Joint Giant Power Commission representing the three states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania means a real step forward in the development of State policy toward modern large scale electrical development. Through tri-state action we seek to prevent monopoly profits and to secure decent electric rates to consumers.

It is hoped to have the draft of a compact ready for submission to the regular 1926 session of the New York and New Jersey Legislatures and to the special session of our own legislature should one be called.

Following the failure of the 1923 Pennsylvania legislature to authorize this inter-state inquiry I appointed a Giant Power Board composed of state officials and a consulting engineer. This body has been continuing the studies into this all important matter which we have been making in Pennsylvania for three years past.

The Pennsylvania members of the Joint Commission are members of the Pennsylvania Giant Power Board and have been designated for this service by that body.

Minutes

of the

First Meeting

of the

Joint Giant Power Commission of N. Y., N. J. & Pa.

Held at Princeton, N. J.

Saturday, October 31, 1925.

The Governors of New York (Alfred E. Smith), New Jersey (George S. Silzer) and Pennsylvania (Gifford Pinchot) having on October 26, 1925, caused to be designated representatives of said three states (in these minutes hereafter called the contracting states) respectively, as folows:—

For the State of New York
William A. Prendergast
George R. Lunn
Charles R. Vanneman

For the State of New Jersey
Charles Browne
Isaac Alpern
Robert F. Engle

For the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Morris Llewellyn Cooke
Clyde L. King
Philip P. Wells

to constitute the Joint Giant Power Commission of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania (in these minutes hereafter called the Joint Commission) for the purposes of studying the question of the regulation of the interstate transmission of electricity for light, heat and power, of making such recommendations thereon as they may deem advisable, of preparing a compact to be entered into by the three contracting states, and to make a report to the Governors of their respective states, previous to the next sessions of the Legislatures.

The first meeting of the Joint Commission was held on the invitation of Dr. Charles Browne in Princeton, New Jersey, at the Princeton Inn, at 1:15 P. M., Saturday, October 31, 1925.

Present. For the State of New York, Commissioners Prendergast and Vanneman; for the State of New Jersey, Commissioners Browne, Alpern and Engle; for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Commissioners Cooke, King and Wells.

Upon the suggestion of Commissioner Cooke, Commissioner Prendergast undertook the duty of temporary chairman:

Voted unanimously: That Charles Browne be the Chairman of the Joint Commission.

Commissioner Browne thereupon took the chair.

Voted unanimously: That William A. Prendergast be Vice-Chairman, and Philip P. Wells Secretary of the Joint Commission.

Voted unanimously: That the Chairman and three Commissioners, one from each state, to be appointed by him, be the Executive Committee of the Joint Commission.

Thereupon the Chairman appointed Commissioners Engle, Vanneman and Wells, members of the Executive Committee.

Commissioner Prendergast stated that the Public Service Commission of New York, anticipating the negotiation by the three contracting states of a compact for the control of interstate electric transmission, had caused to be undertaken a study of the laws of the three states bearing on the subject; also a study of the resources of New York and of the existing hydro-electric and steam-electric developments in New York; and that the results of these studies would be submitted to the Joint Commission about November 15th.

Commissioner Cooke suggested that the compact be so drawn as to become effective when ratified by any two states and approved by Congress; and so drawn that other adjoining states can later join in it by legislative action and Congressional approval; also that adjoining states should be requested by the Governors of the three contracting states to appoint observers to cooperate with the Joint Commission.

Voted unanimously: That, for the purpose of securing the cooperation and criticism of the adjacent states with a view to protecting their several interests and of inviting their future joinder in the proposed compact, the Commissioners of each of the three contracting states be instructed to suggest to the Governors of their respective states that they severally request the governors of the non-contracting states upon their borders each to appoint a representative to act with the Joint Commission as observers and advisers for their several states, that is to say: Such request to be made by the Governor of New York, to the Governors of Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut; by the Governor of New Jersey, to the Governor of Delaware; by the Governor of Pennsylvania to the Governors of Maryland, West Virginia and Ohio.

After discussion it was informally and unanimously agreed that responsibility for the computation and graphic presentation of data for the three contracting states to be furnished by each of them for the use of the Joint Commission be assumed as follows:

By Commissioner Vanneman: Territorial rights of corporate groups; existing 66,000 volt lines by corporate groups; existing interstate transmission lines by corporate groups.

By Commissioner Engle: Installed generating capacity (excluding stations of less than 5,000 kw capacity) by corporate groups.

By Commissioner King: Power resources and power markets.

Commissioner Wells suggested that a preliminary to the drafting of a compact should be the determination by the Joint Commission of the principles to be embodied therein and that the Executive Committee should, and the Commissioners of each of the three contracting states might well, formulate a statement of such principles for the consideration of the Joint Commission.

The Chairman called a meeting of the Executive Committee to be held at noon on November 9th, 1925, at the Princeton Club in New York City.

Thereupon at 3:45 P. M. the Joint Commission adjourned to meet at the call of the Chairman.

A true record

Attest: Philip P. Wells,
Secretary, Joint Giant Power Commission.

Joint Giant Power Commission of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Minutes of the Second Meeting held at Philadelphia, December 5, 1925.

The Second Meeting of the Joint Commission was held at the University Club in Philadelphia on Saturday, December 5, 1925, at 11:00 o'clock a. m.

Present:

For the State of New York—Commissioners Prendergast, Lunn and Vanneman.

For the State of New Jersey—Commissioners Browne and Engle.

For the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—Commissioners Cooke, King and Wells.

There also met with the Joint Commission the following observers and advisors:-

For the State of Vermont—Edward H. Deavitt.

For the State of Maryland—Harold E. West.

The minutes of the meeting of October 31, 1925, were read and approved.

The Executive Committee submitted its report dated December 5, 1925, which was read as a whole, as follows:

The Executive Committee met in New York at the Princeton Club as the guests of Chairman Browne on Monday, November 9, 1925, at 12:00 o'clock. Commissioner Prendergast met with the Executive Committee.

It met again in New York on Monday, November 23, 1925, at 12:15 P. M. at the Union League Club as the guests of Commissioner Prendergast. Commissioners Prendergast and Cooke met with the Executive Committee.

At these meetings there was general informal discussion as to the principles which should be embodied in the proposed Compact. At the first meeting certain principles suggested by Commissioner Cooke were discussed. At the second meeting the discussion centered upon a statement of principles submitted as tentative proposals by the Pennsylvania Commissioners under date of November 18, 1925.

The Committee agreed upon and recommended for consideration the following Articles as principles to be embodied in the Compact;—

1 Area

The geographical limitations of practicable transmissions and the many objections to over centralization both suggest a limit upon the ultimate compact area. The primary prospective area should be the three contracting states with New England, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia, West Virginia and Ohio.

II Adhesion by States

Every State within the primary prospective area and contiguous to the compact-bound area should have an option to ratify the compact at any time in the future and thereby upon the approval of Congress, to become a party to the Compact.

The Joint Tribunal proposed by Article III hereof should have power by a two-thirds vote to admit as a party to the compact any other State which shall have ratified the compact by a legislative act, which is contiguous to the compact-bound area, and which exports to or imports from said area electric current to the amount of five per cent (5%) of the production (or consumption) of such ratifying State; such vote to be cast within six months after such ratification, and such admission to take effect upon the approval of Congress thereafter.

The Compact should, as to the States ratifying it, take effect upon ratification by any two of the three States now negotiating.

III Joint Tribunal

There should be a joint tribunal to make effective th terms of the Compact. It should be composed of or representative from each State until the Compact-boun states exceed seven. Upon the happening of any suc excess and thereafter the joint tribunal should consi of seven members as follows:—One from each of th two States producing the greatest quantity of electr current, one each from the three other States consun ing the greatest number of kilowatt-hours, and tw others, one from each of two of the remaining State rotating in the order in which such states ratified th Compact.

The member of the Joint Tribunal from each Stat should be a member of the Public Service Commissio thereof designated by the Governor thereof.

The term of the members of the Joint Tribunal shoul be two (2) years until the number of compact-boun States exceed seven (7). Upon the happening of an such excess the term of the member representing tha one of the seven States first ratifying which ratified las should expire at the end of the year of his term next fol lowing the happening of such excess, and he should b succeeded by a representative of the State which wa the eighth to ratify. Thereafter the terms of all mem bers, except those designated to serve out an unexpire term in case of vacancy, shall be two (2) years.

The Chairman of the Joint Tribunal should be electe annually by a majority vote of the members.

IV Regulation of Service Standards

The Joint Tribunal should have power to regulate th service standards of interstate electric utilities as arbi trator of disputes between the Commissions of anv tw compact States as to electric utilities between them.

V Expenses of The Joint Tribunal

The expenses of the Joint Tribunal should be appor tioned among the compact states in proportion to th number of kilawatt hours consumed by them not ex ceeding $———— per million kwh. They shoul be a first claim on the appropriations made by eacl State for public utility regulation.

The following matters were also discussed but n agreement reached about them:—Subject matter to b regulated as interstate business; Scope of regulation o such business; Segregation of interstate transmission Rate-Base, Securtiy Issues and Fair Return; Uniformit of Rate Structures; Incorporation of Interstate Electri Utilities.

It was agreed that each of the three states negotiat ing should submit its views in writing for the considera tion of the Joint Commission at its next meeting as t principles not agreed upon by this report; also tha each state should be free, upon further consideration to submit differing views as to any of the principle agreed upon and embodied in this report.

The Executive Committee recommended to Chairmar Browne that he call a meeting of the Joint Com mission at the University Club in Philadelphia a 11:05 A. M., Saturday, December 5, 1925.

The Executive Committee recommends that after the adoption by the Joint Commission of a Statement of principles that should be embodied in the compact there be held in each of the three states public hearings at which discussion and criticism of such principles be invited.

Respectfully submitted:

Charles Browne
Charles R. Vanneman
Robert F. Engle
Philip P. Wells

The Articles proposed by the report of the Executive Committee as principles to be embodied in the compact were then read for discussion and amendment, article by article.

Article I was amended by inserting the word "the" before New England, and the word "States" after New England in the second sentence so as to make the phrase read "with the New England States".

At this point Commissioner Prendergast raised the question as to the necessity for a compact, which was discussed at length by all the Commissioners and observers present until recess was taken for luncheon at 1:15 P. M. Commissioner Prendergast argued strongly against a compact on the grounds:—first, that a receiving state can now control adequately current transmitted to it from other states; second, that the quantity of interstate current is less than four per cent and therefore too small to call for special methods of control; third, that one method is by Act of Congress constituting the State Commissions Federal agencies for the regulation of interstate electric transmission subject to control by the Interstate Commerce Commission after the manner of the bill for control of interstate motor traffic proposed by the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners for introduction in the 69th Congress.

All these reasons were disputed by Commissioners Cooke, King and Wells. Commissioner Cooke doubted that the quantity of current transmitted over state lines was as low as four per cent in view of the fact that the percentage for Pennsylvania was exports seven per cent, imports eight per cent. He asked for the source of the figures. Commissioner Prendergast replied that the source was the National Electric Light Association. He produced a memorandum of the data furnished by the Association showing amount generated and amount transmitted across State lines by a number of regions, the total for all regions being 54,000 million kwh. generated and 1,820 million kwh. transmitted across State lines, 3.4%.

Commissioner Prendergast suggested that a preliminary public hearing be held on the question whether there should be a compact or not in order to get the weight of public opinion. Commissioner Browne said at such a hearing, where no concrete proposals were put forward the only persons who would appear would be representatives of the electric companies and specialists on the subject, and that the former would be fearful of any new plan of regulation.

After recess it was agreed to proceed with the reading and discussion of the report of the Executive Committee as if there were to be a compact, postponing the question as to whether or not there should be one.

The reading and discussion of the Articles of the report of the Executive Committee, Article by Article, was resumed.

Article II was amended by striking out the period at the end therof and adding the words "and approval of Congress".

Articles III, and IV were approved without amendment.

Article V was amended by striking out the last sentence.

The Secretary then submitted "Further Tentative Proposals by the Pennsylvania Commissioners" dated December 5, 1925, in twelve Articles as follows:—

1. Area. (Identical with ARTICLE I of Report of Executive Committee).

II. Adhesion by States. (Identical with ARTICLE II of Report of Executive Committee).

III. Joint Tribunal. (Identical with ARTICLE III of Report of Executive Committee, with reservations as to restrictions upon appointing power of the several State Governors).

IV. Regulation of Service Standards. (Identical with ARTICLE IV of Report of Executive Committee).

V. Expenses of The Joint Tribunal. (Identical with ARTICLE V of Report of Executive Committee).

VI. Regulation of Accounts, Rates, Service, and Security Issues.

(1) Regulation of the whole system containing any major interstate line. The Joint Tribunal should regulate all the accounting, rates, service and security issues of every corporation or person (hereinafter called interstate electric utilities) operating, owning, or leasing an interstate electric line of 1000 kw. capacity within the compact-bound area or a like line transmitting current to the amount of 100,000 kwh. per year, if current is transmitted over either of such lines in or for use in public service.

(2) Segregation of major interstate lines. Any such company which also generates and or distributes current should have the right to segregate, into a separate corporate ownership, and thereby limit the jurisdiction of the joint tribunal to, its interstate transmission business within the compact area; and any compact-bound state should have power to require any such company operating within it to so segregate its interstate transmission business.

(3) Concerns selling to interstate lines. The Joint Tribunal should also regulate the accounting, rates and service of all generating and selling concerns delivering, within the compact area to concerns doing such interstate transmission business, current for such interstate transmission so far as such regulation is necessary to prevent discrimination among the compact-bound states as to service or rates, to insure the fullest practicable conservation and use of energy sources, and to insure for consumers in the receiving States adequate service and just and reasonable rates.

VII. Rate-base, Security Issues and fair Return.

(1) Rate-base. In the regulation of rates the Joint Tribunal should take as the presumptive rate-base the actual investment (measured in dollars) prudently hereafter made and kept unimpaired (the same to be accurately defined in the compact), plus an approximation thereto as to (or plus the value as of this date of) investment heretofore made.

(2) Security Issues. The Joint Tribunal should limit security issues to a par value approximately equal to the presumptive rate-base. No-par securities should be prohibited.

(3) Fair Return. The Joint Tribunal should compute the fair return at such sum as, in its judgment, would enable a properly financed company under efficient management to pay prudently on its common stock dividends sufficient to keep it slightly above par in a normal market.

(4) Accounting. The Joint Tribunal should so regulate accounting as to make the presumptive rate-base readily ascertainable from the utility's books.

(5) Confiscation. After the presumptive rate-base, the fair return and the rates shall have been fixed by order of the Joint Tribunal the said Tribunal should upon the demand of the utility take such other and further procedure, if any, including the ascertainment of the then value of the utility's property as may be necessary to comply with the controlling rulings of the Courts as to ascertainment of the rate-base against confiscation of the property.

(6) Acceptance of Presumptive Rate-Base. The construction or enlargement of any interstate facilities, and the enlargement of any existing interstate business over facilities now existing should be prohibited to any interstate utility, being a corporation, which shall not have filed with the Joint Tribunal an agreement to accept as conclusive the presumptive rate-base properly taken up by the Joint Tribunal under section one of this Article.

VIII. Rate Structure:

(a) Cost as the Basis for Rates.

Cost is recognized as affording the basis of electric rates. But as a means of securing business both profitable to a given utility and advantageous to all rate classes, the joint tribunal shall have power to allocate any or all costs equitably among the several rate classes.

(b) Uniformity of Rate Structure.

The rates of each interstate utility should be of uniform structure as to each rate class throughout its territory. Such rates should be regulated on the basis of generation and transmission cost of all rate classes. Transmission costs are to be arrived at by 50 mile increments. Distribution costs, if any, to be separately computed as to each rate class.

IX. Incorporation of Interstate Electric Utilities:

(1) The Joint Tribunal should have power to incorporate by 2/3 vote interstate electric utilities(?).

(2) Every interstate electric utility, if a corporation, should be incorporated (by the Joint Tribunal or?) by one of the compact-bound states.

X. Holding Companies:

(1) Restrictions on voting of stock held. No company or business trust not incorporated (by the Joint Tribunal or?) by one of the compact-bound States, and no director, officer or agent thereof should vote any stock of any interstate utility.

(2) Process runs into all compact-states. The orders of the Joint Tribunal requiring testimony, the production of books and papers and the like should have full effect throughout all the compact states.

(3) Contracts with servient utility. All contracts between holding company and servient utility should be reasonable and as profitable to the servient company as a like contract with a stranger should be. The burden of proving such reasonableness and profitableness shall be upon the servient utility.

XI. Interlocking Directors:

No director, officer, agent or employe of a company barred by Article X from voting the stock of an interstate utility be a director of any such utility.

XII. Taxation:

The compact should not affect the taxation of interstate utilities.

The "Further Tentative Proposals" were taken up. The Secretary explained that the Pennsylvania Commissioners had submitted, under date of November 18, 1925, tentative proposals (eleven articles) to the Executive Committee at its meeting held November 21st; that five of the Articles had been discussed, somewhat amended and, as amended has been incorporated in the report of the Executive Committee, being the five Articles already discussed and amended at this present meeting.

Commissioner Prendergast declared that, assuming that there is to be a compact, he was opposed to the principles of regulation contained in Articles III, IV, V, VI and VII of the "Further Proposals" and opposed to all related matters therein.

Some general discussion followed. Commissioner Wells called attention to the fact that it was agreed and recorded in the report of the Executive Committee that each of the three negotiating states should submit at the present meeting its views as to principles for embodiment in the compact not agreed upon and reported by the Executive Committee; also that no contribution to the principles of a compact had since been brought forward by any other state either in writing or otherwise.

Commissioner Prendergast undertook to submit a statement of such principles in writing at the next meeting.

Commissioner Prendergast stated that he would like to have the Commission express its opinion upon the following question: Does the use of the name "Giant Power" in the title of this Commission, or in any compact which might be arranged, carry with it an endorsement of the Giant Power Scheme advocated by Governor Pinchot? Commissioner Cooke replied that he did not see why there should be. There was considerable discussion during the course of which Commissioner Wells read the announcement of the appointment of the Commission given to the Press by Governors Smith, Silzer and Pinchot October 26, 1925, wherein the Commission was so named. Commissioner Browne objected to the name as misleading. Several members suggested other names for the Commission. After further discussion Mr. Cooke suggested that the question be left for consideration at the next meeting, and on this there was unanimous agreement.

Discussion continued until at 3:45 P. M. it was voted: That the Joint Commission adjourn to meet at the Cartaret Club, West State Street, Trenton, New Jersey, on Saturday, December 12, 1925, at 11:00 A.M.

A true record as approved December 12, 1925.

Joint Giant Power Commission of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania

Minutes of the Third Meeting held at Trenton N. J. December 12, 1925.

The Joint Commission met pursuant to adjournment at the Cartaret Club, Trenton, N. J., on Saturday, December 12, 1925, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Present the following Commissioners:—

For the State of New York—
Commissioners Prendergast, Lunn and Vanneman

For the State of New Jersey—
Commissioners Browne, Alpern and Engle

Commissioners Cooke, King and Wells

Present also as observer and advisor for the State of Vermont:—Mr. Edward H. Deavitt

The Secretary presented a communication from Mr. West, observer and advisor for Maryland, regretting his probable inability to attend because of business in New York at this time.

Commissioner Prendergast submitted letters to the Governor of New York from the Governors of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, designating as observers and advisors the following named gentleman:—

For the State of Connecticut—Mr. William E. Putmon, 1010 Prospect Avenue, Hartford, Connecticut.

For the Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Hon. Henry C. Attwill, Chairman, Public Utilities for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Boston, Mass.

For the State of Rhode Island—Hon. William C. Bliss, Chairman, Rhode Island Public Service Commission, Providence, R. I.

Commissioner Prendergast also presented copies of his telegrams of December 11th to the Governors of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island acknowledging receipt by reference of their said letters to the Governor of New York and giving notice of this meeting; also copies of his telegrams of December 11th to the said observers and advisors for the said three states giving such notice; also reply telegrams to him dated December 12th from Mr. Putman and Mr. Bliss regretting their inability to attend because of previous engagements.

Said Governors' letters and said copies of telegrams by Commissioner Prendergast and original reply telegrams by Mr. Putman and Mr. Bliss were read and ordered on file.

The Minutes of the meeting held December 5, 1925, were read and ordered corrected as follows:—

Page 3, next line to bottom of page, strike out "the best" and insert in lieu thereof "one" so as to make the clause read "that one method is by Act of Congress" etc.

Page 4, lines 8 and 9. Strike out "between seven and eight" and insert in lieu thereof "exports 7%, imports 8%" so as to make the clause read: "the percentage for Pennsylvania was exports 7% imports 8%."

Page 4, lines 14. Fill the blanks so as to make the clause read: "being 54,000 million kwh. generated and 1,820 million kwh. transmitted across state lines or 3.4%"

Page 4, lines 18-23. Strike out the last sentence of the paragraph and insert in lieu thereof the following—Commissioner Browne said that at such a hearing where no concrete proposals were put forward the only persons who would appear would be representatives of the electric companies and specialists on the subject and that the former would be fearful of any new plan of regulation.

Page 4, line 31. Strike out "IV and V" and insert in lieu thereof "and IV", so as to make the sentence read: "Articles III and IV were approved without amendment".

Page 4. Insert a new line following line 31, as follows: "Article V was amended by striking out the last sentence".

Page 7, line 7. Strike out "writing" and insert in lieu thereof "meeting", so as to make the phrase read: "at the present meeting".

Page 7, line 9. After "had" insert "since" so as to make the clause read "had since been brought forward".

Page 7, line 10. Strike out "the New York Commissioners" and insert in lieu thereof: "any other state" so as to make the phrase read: "by any other State either in writing or otherwise".

Page 7, lines 13 to 20 inclusive. Strike out the whole paragraph and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Commissioner Prendergast stated that he would like to have the Commission express its opinion upon the following question: Does the use of the name or term "Giant Power" in the title of this Commission, or in any Compact which might be arranged, carry with it an endorsement of the giant power scheme advocated by Governor Pinchot? Commissioner Cooke replied that he did not see why there should be. There was considerable discussion during the course of which Commissioner Wells read the announcement of the appointment of the Commission given to the Press by Governors Smith, Silzer and Pinchot, October 26, 1925, wherein the Commission was so named. Commissioner Browne said that he objected to the name as misleading. Several members suggested other names for the Commission. After further discussion, Mr. Cooke suggested that the question be left for consideration at the next meeting, and on this there was unanimous agreement.

Said Minutes as so corrected were then approved.

The question whether or not a Compact is advisable was then taken up. Commissioner Vanneman submitted and read a memorandum in support of the negative of this question, which memorandum is attached to these Minutes and marked EXHIBIT "A".

Brief discussion followed.

Commissioner Prendergast then submitted and read a memorandum in support of the negative of this question reserving the right to make corrections and changes therein. Said memorandum is attached to these minutes and marked EXHIBIT "B".

Commissioner Wells stated that the paragraphs numbered 4 and 5 under Part 5, subdivision C of the Memorandum were erroneous as to the alleged powers of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission over security issues and over the acquisition of controlling interest in one utilty by another; that the Commission does not have power to regulate security issues, nor power to prohibit any utility from acquiring any controlling right, title or interest in any other utility, but that it has power to veto the merger of any electric company into another by the purchase of all the rights, franchises and property of the one by the other.

General discussion followed, after which the affirmative of the question was argued orally by Commissioners Cooke, King and Wells.

Mr. Deavitt asked whether a limitation of the compact to an experimental period of ten years could be considered. Commissioner Wells said that in his opinion such a limitation might be considered.

It was agreed that at the beginning of the next meeting the question of the advisability of a compact be voted upon and decided.

Thereupon at 3:50 P. M. it was voted to adjourn to meet at the Engineers Club, 32 West 40th Street, New York City, on Monday, December 21st at 11:00 A. M.

Joint Giant Power Commission

Minutes of Meeting held December 12, 1925.

Exhibit "A"

Memorandum

In the matter of a compact between states respecting the transmission of electricity from one state to another

I do not believe a compact between states is required at this time. I can not conceive that there will be any immediate need for a compact within a future time which at this moment can be forecast. If there be so reasonable need for a compact, there then can be no need for the construction of a form of compact. If a form of compact were devised which would not be needed for some extended period of time, it might easily be entirely improper or insufficient at the time when a compact might be necessary, if that ever comes. For this added reason the formulation of a suggested compact seems to be unnecessary. My contentions are based solely on the fact that I can not see, either at present or for the immediate future, where any conditions may arise which will adversely affect the public in any one state, which may not be easily handled by the means already at the command of the people, or by the enactment of very simple legislation either on the part of Congress or on the part of the states involved which will furnish regulatory powers supplementary to those already in existence.

To show the relative insignificance of the problem today, I submit the following: There were generated in the State of New York in the year 1924, 7,119,689,000 K. W. H.; at the same time there were purchased 404,552,845 K.W.H. making a total of 7,524,241,845. During the same year there was sold in the State of New York 5,933,000,000 K.W.H., and there were exported from the State 86,459,504 K.W.H., making a total of sales of 6,019,459,504. There were imported 411,489,705 K.W.H.; the total of the exports and imports was 497,949,209. To show the significance of this, the total exports and imports represent 8.25% of the total sales; the total exports represent 1.43% of the total sales; the total exports represent 1.21% of the total kilowatt hours generated.

The exchange of power in the State of New York, meaning thereby the sending by one company to another of energy which later on is returned by the latter company and for which there is no actual payment on the part of either, is relatively very small. Over 300,000,000 K.W.H. of the imports are included within that energy sent from the generating stations in the Dominion of Canada, Province of Ontario, to the United States for resale by distributing corporations within the United States. I can not conceive that a condition of this kind demands at this time any form of compact. Beyond this, I am convinced that a practical consideration of the problem does not lead to the conclusion that there will be in the future an enormous transfer of electricity from one state to another. There may be, and I believe should be, an interchange of electricity between contiguous territories, but this interchange will come about largely through temporary necessities on the part of one plant or as a result of economic demands created by conditions within one state which do not exist in the other. These demands, I believe, will be subject to readjustments, so that the situation thus created would be sooner or later entirely wiped out.

As an illustration, one corporation might find it expedient, on account of demands made upon it for service, to purchase energy from an adjacent plant in an adjacent state in order to make up its deficiencies. As the purchasing plant found its demand growing, and particularly if that growth were centralized in or near its existing generating station, good economics might dictate that this generating plant be enlarged, so that the necessity for purchasing from the adjacent state would ultimately disappear or be uneconomical, since a larger plant might, and probably would produce energy at substantially the same cost, or even less. In any event, transmission leases might be materially reduced, thereby making it additionally more economical to discontinue the interchange.

There is a further point in support of my contention that I am not a believer in the theory that there is going to be in the eastern section of this country a great deal of long line transmission. I believe that the losses to be incurred by the transmission of large volumes of electricity will ultimately be so great as to make the cost of the energy thus transmitted at the point of consumption more than the cost of producing an equal amount of energy by a proper prime moving source located at the point of consumption. To illustrate what I mean, I believe that it will be extremely difficult to transmit energy from the St. Lawrence River for consumption in New York City, which may be sold in New York City at a rate less than, or equal to the rate which would be required for energy produced at plants located within the City. One factor which could be elaborated upon and which would take too long to discuss here, is the effect to be produced by the transformation of the energy from a possible 220,000 voltage to a lower one, and the transmission or distribution of this energy at a lower voltage within any municipality in the Metropolitan District. I believe that this latter phase of the problem carries with it costs which are not fully comprehended and which will make the cost of energy thus transmitted over long distances very high. I believe that cost will be much in excess of what it will cost to produce the energy within the Metropolitan area and distribute it.

I do not believe the mine mouth coal plant to be in any way a possibility to be considered in connection with long line transmission for consumption in the Metropolitan District. The economic factors which are advanced as arguments for the mine mouth operation require the disposition of by-products already produced by existing industrial organizations in quantities which this country can absorb. If these by-products produced by mine mouth plants were unloaded with the regularity which mine mouth operation makes absolutely invariable, either the by-products must be sold at ruinous competitive rates, or they must be stored. Of course, they would be sold and their sale would involve the elimination of at least a part, if not all, of the existing industrial organizations. It is highly probable that unless tariff provisions regulated the sale of such by-products, imports from foreign countries would have a serious effect on the return which the mine mouth plant might get for its by-products. All of these, therefore, influence vitally the cost of the coal or by-product fuel used in generating electricity, and directly influence the cost of each kilowatt hour which may be sold.

These arguments, of course, are eliminating any consideration of the formation of a pool covering one or more states, from which any distributor may draw, as demands occur. Time does not here permit to discuss the ramifications of such a pool; I merely state that I do not consider this either economically or socially feasible; I believe it to be highly impracticable.

With these thoughts in mind, therefore, I can not make myself believe that there is at this time any——

Joint Giant Power Commission of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania

Minutes of the Fourth Meeting held at New York City, December 21, 1925

The Joint Commission met pursuant to adjournment at the Engineers Club in New York City, on Monday, December 21, 1925 at 11:00 A. M.

Present the following Commissioners:

For the State of New York—
Commissioners Prendergast
Lunn and Vanneman

For the State of New Jersey—
Commissioners Browne
Alpern and Engle

For the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—
Commissioners Cooke
King and Wells

Present also as observers and advisors for other states the following gentlemen:

For the State of Vermont—
Mr. Edward H. Deavitt

For the State of Massachusetts—
Mr. Henry C. Attwill

For the State of Maryland—
Mr. Harold E. West

The reading of the Minutes of the last meeting was omitted.

Pursuant to agreement reached at the last meeting, the Chairman laid before the Joint Commission the question whether or not a compact is desirable, to be decided by vote, first as in committee of the whole, and finally by states, according to the procedure agreed upon at the first meeting of the Joint Commission.

Mr. Attwill inquired whether Congress could overrule a compact after once having given its consent.

Mr. Wells replied in the affirmative, citing the Wheeling Bridge cases in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Deavitt asked whether a state could at any time put an end to its obligations under the compact.

The Chairman replied that a state could do so if proper provision were made in the compact to permit such action.

Commissioner Prendergast said that before voting on the question of the desirability of a compact he desired to make a motion. Accordingly he moved that the states within the primary prospective area, as defined in the report of the Executive Committee submitted December 5, 1925, be asked to pass an act similar to the Pennsylvania act of May 12, 1925, P. L. 587 authorizing their respective public service commissioners to hold joint hearings with the commissioners of other states and with the Federal Power Commission, to issue joint orders, etc.

Mr. Attwill said that Massachusetts had been the first to propose regional regulation of Interstate Commerce by local commissions with a Federal representative sitting with them,—an organization analogous to the Federal Reserve Bank; that the Motor Bus Bill recently proposed is somewhat in this line.

After some discussion of the motion, Commissioner Prendergast, in reply to Commissioner Cooke, stated that the enactment of such legislation would add no power to the existing powers of the state commissions. He said, however, that it would bring to bear the power of publicity and the power of cooperation.

The Chairman read tentative proposals of his own, for consideration, as the basis of a compact.

Commissioner King moved that the Joint Commission now proceed to vote, first as in a committee of the whole, and then by states on the question whether or not a compact is desirable.

Commissioner Prendergast, by unanimous consent, substituted the following motion for that previously made by him: —That it is the sense of this Commission that the states here represented and all others within the primary prospective area be asked to enact, as an alternative to a compact legislation like the Pennsylvania act of May 12, 1925, P. L. 587.

Commissioner Lunn said that such legislation would not alone be an adequate alternative to a compact: that it should be accompanied by Federal legislation enlarging the powers of the state commissioners.

Commissioner Cooke said that he would vote for such a recommendation to the states, as a part of the report of this Commission to the Governors of the three contracting states, but not as an alternative to the compact.

The Chairman said that the proposed legislation would be a good forerunner for a compact, but not a good substitute.

Commissioner Prendergast pointed out the difference between a compact and the proposed Motor Bus Bill, as to their form.

Commissioner Wells said that the difference was deeper than formal; that the Motor Bus Bill was an appeal to Congress to take the initiative, and therfore was the first step on a long road to control by a Washington bureau; that the compact method retained the initiative in the hands of the states. Commissioner Prendergast then withdrew his motion.

Commissioner Wells, in answer to a question by Commissioner Lunn, said that the Motor Bus Bill is not a compact; that it is general and uniform in its terms for the whole United States, rather than regional; that substantive, as opposed to procedural, laws governing Interstate Commerce and differing as between two or more regions, are perhaps beyond the power of Congress, and if not beyond its power, impossible of enactment.

Commissioner Lunn moved to amend Commissioner King's motion by adding thereto the following: "and that the compact should be so drafted as not to diminish by one iota the powers now exercised by the state commissions under present laws and regulations".

Commissioner King accepted the amendment.

Commissioner Engle seconded the motion as amended.

The Secretary called the roll, and the Commissioners voted as in a committee of the whole as follows:

Ayes: Commissioners Browne, Engle, Alpern, Lunn, Cooke and King—6.

Nays: Commissioners Prendergast, Vanneman and Wells 3.

Commissioner Prendergast explained his vote by saying that in his opinion the Lunn amendment would involve the formulation of a compact in impossible difficulties.

Commissioner Wells said that he concurred in this opinion, and had therefore voted in the negative.

Thereupon the vote upon Commissioner King's motion, as amended, was taken by states, and resulted as follows:

Ayes: New Jersey and Pennsylvania—2

Nayes: New York—1

And so the motion was carried.

Commissioner Cooke asked what would be the attitude of the New York delegation in reference to the drafting of a compact in view on the desirability of so doing.

Commissioner Prendergast replied that the New York Commissioners had considered this question before the meeting, and had decided that they would not take part as members of the Joint Commission in the drafting of a compact.

Commissioner Cooke said that the Pennsylvania commissioners desire to go ahead with the drafting of a compact, and to invite the New York Commissioners to act as observers and advisors for the State of New York, with respect thereto.

The Chairman extended such an invitation to each and all of the New York Commissioners.

Commissioner Prendergast said that he preferred not to take part but to take a clearcut position in opposition to a compact.

Voted: That the observers and advisors heretofore and hereafter appointed for the several New England states, at the request of the Governor of New York, shall be deemed to be the observers and advisors for the said states respectively, notwithstanding the withdrawal of the New York Commissioners.

Voted on the motion of Commissioner King: That the Joint Commission do now adjourn, subject to the call of the Chairman.

Before the motion was put it was informally agreed that the Chairman and Secretary should be a Committee to draft a compact and submit it at the next meeting.

Thereupon at 2:30 P. M. the meeting adjourned.

Following the adjournment general informal discussion continued until 3:50 P. M.

Commissioner Cooke inquired what were the views of the observers and advisors of other states present at this meeting.

Mr. Attwill, putting aside the question whether Massachusetts would be out of consideration, because of the withdrawal of New York, thought that Massachusetts might favor a compact; that without some remedial measure, all effective control over utilities within the state would be taken over by Washington: that the remedy for such centralization was regional regulation; that he was not worried about theoretical loss of state sovereignty, because, in his opinion, the states have lost that already, and so fulfilled the prophecy of Patrick Henry when he opposed the adoption of the Federal Constitution.

Mr. West said that he was skeptical of any advantage to be gained by the state commissions acting under a compact, but if an act similar to the Pennsylvania statute of 1925 were passed by each of the states, much of the good to be expected from a compact would be obtained, and that he would recommend that such a statute be passed by Maryland.

Commissioner Deavitt said that Governor Billings of Vermont has considered the matter, and concurs with Mr. Deavitt in the opinion that a compact properly drawn would be of advantage; that one other advisor of the Governor was of a contrary opinion; but that all agreed that Vermont would be against a joint tribunal in whose membership it was not represented at all times.

Introductory Note

Report on Power Production and Consumption in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Adjacent States

1. Kind of data used in report
   For the main tables and charts, the figures of the United States Census Bureau have been used as they are reported without attempting to make estimates.

2. Estimates
   In the two cases where estimates have been made the method, which was based as nearly as could be checked, on reliable sources, has been clearly stated. The basic figures are given in each case, so that if further estimates need to be made, there will be no difficulty in so doing.

3. Data on steam railroads
   No data on steam railroads have been incorporated in this report, since there were no definite figures available on the production or consumption of power by this agency in the states under consideration.

4. Combining of various census dates
   Where the figures from the various censuses have been used together, the figures of the various dates have been combined as follows:

Electric Railways and Central Stations	Manufactures	Mines
1902	1904	1902
1907	1909	1909
1912	1914	1909 (1)
1917	1919	1919
1922	1923	1919 (1)

(1) Where there was sufficient change to warrant it, the 1912 figure for mining was estimated, assuming the same annual increase from 1909 to 1919. In all cases the 1919 figures have been used for 1922, since there has been practically no expansion in the mining industry since that time.

5. Tables
   All tables have been placed in an appendix at the end of the report and are arranged in consecutive order.

Installed Primary Power

In the states of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey is found about 30% of the total installed primary power of the United States, and if New England and the states of Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and Delaware be added, the proportion is over 50%. This natural power unit represents more than half of the total developed power in the United States,—New York has 11%, Pennsylvania 15.7% and New Jersey 2.8% as shown in Chart I.

These figures represent the installed primary horsepower in manufacturing and mining establishments, electric railways, and central power stations, excluding in each case purchased power.

Power Production

Due to the varying capacity factors of the producing agencies, however, the amount of energy generated does not correspond exactly to the horsepower of prime movers. An estimate of the kilowatt hours of energy generated still shows Pennsylvania higher than New York, the difference in distribution being due largely to the low capacity factor of the installed primary power in the Pennsylvania mines.

Allowing a 33 1/3% (1) capacity factor for installed horsepower in manufacturing, and 16½% (2) for mining and converting to kilowatts at the rate of 1.42 (3) horsepower=1 kilowatt, we have the following approximate figures of electrical energy generated by manufacturers, mines, central power stations and electric railways (4) in 1922.

Pennsylvania	13,500,000,000 kilowatt hours
New York	10,400,000,000 kilowatt hours
New Jersey	2,800,000,000 kilowatt hours

(1) Frank G. Baum, in "Atlas of the U. S. A. Electric Power Industry, 1923", suggests 33 1/3%. Estimate for Pennsylvania by Rittman-Ely in the "Report of the Pennsylvania Giant Power Survey Board to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania" on basis of 35%.

(2) Estimate of Rittman-Ely for Pennsylvania, "Report of the Pennsylvania Giant Power Survey Board to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania".

(3) Census of Central Electric Light and Power Stations, 1922, p. 75.

(4) Data from United State Census.

Trend of Power Development

The total installed primary power in the United States increased from about 16,000,000 horsepower in 1902, to over 49,000,000 horsepower in 1922. It seems reasonable from the existing evidence to conclude than an equal increase is taking place during the present five-year period and that by 1927 the primary horsepower installed will aggregate between 58,000,000 and 60,000,000 horsepower.

The rate of growth for the past twenty years in the United States as a whole has been greater than for any of the states under consideration, due especially to the tremendous expansion on the west coast. This situation is shown in Chart 2. The slowest growth seems to have been in New England and in Pennsylvania. New York and New Jersey and adjacent states show about the same relative increase since 1902. In the latest period, however, the New York curve takes a sharp upward turn, pointing to greatly increased power development, whereas New Jersey shows a decided slump.

Here again, the figures cannot be taken as representing the trend of power production, which would undoubtedly be relatively much greater, due to the increasing efficiency in central power stations, in which a larger and larger proportion of power productions is taking place.

This relatively greater increase in kilowatt hours of energy produced than in the horsepower of prime movers is shown in the following figures for the United States as a whole.

	Thousands of horsepower	Millions of k. w. h. generated
1902	1,845	2,507
1907	4,098	5,862
1912	7,530	11,569
1917	12,937	25,438
1922	20,296	40,292

Judging by this situation, then, it is undoubtedly safe to say that the production is increasing at a relatively greater rate in New York in comparison with the other states, than is shown in the curves, because of the larger proportion of central power station production in that state.

Sources of Power Production

The power demand of the future, as in the past, will come from several distinct classes of users, the most important of which are:

(a) manufacturing concerns
(b) mining companies
(c) electric railways
(d) central electric stations, selling electricity for residential and commercial lighting, and for industrial and transportation purposes.
(e) steam railroads

The relative importance of each of these classes in the leading northeastern states is shown in Chart 3 showing prime mover capacity in the first four fields mentioned. Data for steam railroads are not available.

About one-half the installed primary horsepower in New York is in central power stations, as contrasted with less than one-third in Pennsylvania and slightly more than one-third in New Jersey. Mining constitutes about a fifth of total installed power in Pennsylvania, and 12% in adjacent states, but is negligible or entirely lacking in the other states under consideration. Manufacturing contributes the smallest proportion in New York (32%), and the largest in New Jersey (61%). Electric railways, obviously, are most important in New York.

The proportion of electrical energy generated by these four groups corresponds very closely to the capacity of the prime movers in New York and New Jersey, but in Pennsylvania the percentages of energy produced are 54% in manufacturing, 12% in mining, 32% in central stations and 2% by electric railways.[7]

(7) For method of estimating see section on power production.

Increase in Central Station Capacity

The power installed in central stations has increased during the past twenty years more rapidly than the power of electric railways, mining companies or manufacturing establishments generating their own power. This is shown in Chart 4, and is due to the fact that the central station sells its power in considerable part to the other three groups and the increased use of power in industry which has taken place during the last two decades has had the effect of swelling the demand for central station power rather than increasing the volume of self-generated power.

If the recent trend continues, as shown in the projected dotted lines in the chart, by 1927 approximately 50% of the installed primary horsepower of the states, and a somewhat larger proportion of energy generated, will be in the central power stations.

Growth of Electric Power

The tremendous growth in central power stations is an evidence of the greatly increased use of purchased electric current. The total electric power used, however, includes not only the power generated by central power stations and electric railways, but also that generated in industrial establishments. The great increase in the horsepower of motors run by this privately generated power is shown in Table 5. By 1922, total electric power constituted over 70% of all the installed power in the three selected states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Estimated 1930 demand for electric power

The present production of electric energy and estimated demand in 1930, according to the Northeast Superpower Committee, are given below:

	Produced (1) in 1924 (000,000 k. w. h.)	Estimated demand 1930 (000,000 k. w. h.)
New York	7,934	10,800
Pennsylvania	6,210	7,850
New Jersey	1,531	5,000
New England	4,525	5,894
Other adjacent states	6,971	9,770

(1) Includes electric power produced by central stations, electric railways, and in isolated plants.

Increased Capacity of Central Stations

The expansion of central station capacity during the last twenty years was a result not so much of increase in number of stations but in the capacity of stations. As shown in Chart 5 the number of stations remained practically constant from 1902 to 1922, particularly in the three Middle Atlantic states and in New England. The Kilowatt capacity, however, increased greatly: 900% in New York, 1100% in Pennsylvania and 700% in New Jersey. For the Middle Atlantic states as a group the proportion of total capacity in establishments of 5,000 kilowatts and over, increased from 65% in 1907[1] to 94% in 1922.

The fact that there was little or no increase in the number of stations points to increased inter-connection and greater concentration of generation in large units. Of the large number of companies that are technically inter-connected, however, only a small proportion of the inter-connections have capacity large enough for effective interchange of power.

Commercial and Municipal Stations

Practically all the increased capacity in central stations was in commercial establishments, for in 1922 municipal establishments contributed only .5% of the power generated in New York, .6% in Pennsylvania, and about .9% in New Jersey, although the number of municipal establishments was 20%, 21% and 30% of the total, respectively, in these three states.

[1] The first date available.

Growth of Purchased Power

A continuously increasing proportion of the motors in manufacturing and mining establishments is run by purchased current. If we assume that this movement is to continue at the same rate as it has during the past, by 1927 almost 50% of the industrial power of the United States will be purchased.

Hydro-Electric Development

The source of the power supplied is either water power or combustible fuels. The proportion of water wheels and turbines to total prime movers in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, certain adjacent states and New England, water power constitutes about a sixth of the total installed primary power in the United States, but a larger proportion in New York state and in New England, where close to 25% is water. These proportions have remained practically constant over a period of years.

Considering central stations only, the proportion is higher. In New York and Pennsylvania respectively, water wheels and turbines represented 33% and 7% of the prime movers in 1922. According to figures of the United States Geological Survey, the proportion of power generated by water in central stations in 1924 was 33.8%. (See Table 9.)

Developed Versus Undeveloped Water Power

The undeveloped water power in New York state is greater in volume than the developed power. The situation in Pennsylvania and other states is not nearly so promising, and suggests that we will have to rely on coal more largely than water power for future power developments.

Chart 8 shows the extent of present water power development, and possibilities of water power as a future source of energy.

In New York less than one-half of the potential water power has been developed. This does not take into account the water supply available less than 90% of the time, a considerable proportion of which could ultimately be developed. Furthermore, the total potential figure represents only treaty amounts, which are subject to modification.

In Pennsylvania there is 88% development of the water power available 90% of the time, and in New Jersey 38%. In neither of these states is the potential water power large, although in Pennsylvania there is a considerable amount of power available 50% of the time which could be utilized by building storage facilities.

In New England, where the water power available 90% of the time is only about one-half of that available 50% of the time, such facilities have been provided, with a consequently high development.

Ultimate Water Power Development

Mr. Frank G. Baum, in the "Atlas of the U. S. A. Electric Power Industry" has a chart which shows the available water power in various sections of the country plotted against the horsepower of developed waterpower and of other kinds of prime removers. If we use the method suggested[1] we find that neither Pennsylvania nor New Jersey have enough for their needs, but that in the Middle Atlantic states considered as a group, the water power available 90% of the time (4,317,000 h. p.) is sufficient to meet almost two-fifths of the present requirements, and the amount available 50% of the time (5,688,000 h. p.) is sufficient for one-half of the present requirements. Anything beyond this must come from fuel.

Concerning the whole group of northeastern states, however, the Northeast Superpower Committee says:

> "At present we have developed about 38% of the total water power ultimately available in this area. The practical rate of development of water power will probably be such that not over 25% of the total power demand in any year can be met from this source. Principle dependence, therefore must be placed upon the generation of power from coal."

(1) Assuming that half the horsepower in water power development would be sufficient to take care of the industrial horsepower.

Fuel and Power

The present consumption of fuel for power production purposes is difficult to estimate, because the fuel used by the various consuming groups is not devoted exclusively to power production, but also to heating, lighting, etc.

The fuel used in central stations in the operation of electric railways, in manufacturing, in generating electric power in public utility plants, and in mining, as reported by the last censuses taken of these groups, is given in Tables 11, 12, and 13. The coal consumption of central power stations is used almost exclusively for the generation of electric current for light and power. In the case of electric railways, however, the electric lighting and heating of the cars is also provided from this fuel supply, and the fuel used in the operation of cars propelled by internal-combustion engines.

The amount of fuel used for purposes other than power production is much greater in the case of manufacturing and mining plants. Everywhere this is taken into consideration, however. The consumption of fuel and particularly coal, by these establishments is very large.

The amount of waste in producing power in these isolated plants is undoubtedly large. This is due to the inefficiency of power production with generators of low capacity, to the low load factor, the high fuel costs and transportation charges.

Average Coal Consumption in Power Production

The average consumption of coal per kilowatt hour by public utility power plants in the United States has decreased from 3.2 pounds in 1919 (the earliest date for which figures are available) to 2.1 pounds in 1925, or 34%, according to figures of the United States Geological Survey. This is a measure of the increasing efficiency in the use of fuel by power plants, and indicates what great fuel economy might be effected if the production of power were centralized in highly efficient plants.

Fuel Production

The coal produced in the United States comes largely from Pennsylvania (37.2%), Ohio and West Virginia. Pennsylvania produces 11% of the natural gas, but only a small portion of the petroleum. It must be from the coal producing states and from those containing large undeveloped resources of water power that the future power development must come.

Classes of Coal Consumers

There are no figures available on the consumption of coal by the different classes of consumers except those of the United States Fuel Administration for the year 1918, which have been published by the Geological Survey. As these figures are for a war year, and cover the period when the distribution of coal was under Government administration, they may not accurately represent normal conditions. They do, however, show certain things that are probably generally true of the present situation, and have, therefore, been incorporated in Chart 10.

The Chart shows that groups of consumers vary accordingly to the district in which the mines are located. In the Connellsville district of Pennsylvania almost 80% is used for industrial purposes—steel mills, blast furnaces and coke ovens taking a large share of it. In other sections of the state, a substantial percentage is used for railroad purposes, or is shipped to tide water. This is true also of the several districts in West Virginia and Ohio.

Coal Shipment

The significance is the large proportion of coal which is shipped out of the state of production, either to other states, or exported by rail or by water. If this coal could be converted into power at the mine mouth, a tremendous saving in transportation charges would be effected.

Here again, as in the previous chart, the figures are for 1918 and are from the United States Fuel Administration, but undoubtedly give some idea of the present situation.

Considering the fact that coal constitutes about a third of the freight carried by railroads, and that the seasonal movement of coal is one of the causes of the periodic railroad car shortage, it is clear that the conversion of coal to power at the place of production would greatly relieve the transportation situation of the country.

Consumption of Power

The following shows the importance of the various states under consideration as consumers of power.

New York has 15% of the population in districts served by central stations. Pennsylvania has 11% and New Jersey 5%; the group of New England states has 11% also, and other adjacent states have 10%. Altogether the group of northeastern states has 52% of the population in districts served by central stations in the country, although it has only about 40% of the population.

Similarly, New York has 10% of the domestic lighting customers of the country, 13% of commercial lighting customers, and 8% of the industrial power customers. It has 10% of the installed primary power in manufacturing establishments, only 1% of that in mines, and 24% of that in electric railway establishments. Thirteen per cent of the kilowatt capacity of central electric light and power stations is in this state.

Pennsylvania has a relatively high proportion of installed primary power in manufacturing and mining; and New Jersey, as well as New York, has a relatively high proportion of installed primary power in electric railways.

Domestic Use of Electricity

Considering the family as a potential customer for electricity, and comparing the number of residential customers of central stations with the number of families in the various states, we find that approximately one-half of the families in New York and Pennsylvania use electric current, or about the same proportion as in the country as a whole. In New Jersey the proportion is much higher. Both this state and the New England states show 63% of the families served. Other adjacent states, including Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Delaware and Maryland have residential customers of central stations equal to 45% of the number of families in these states.

The Electrical World estimates that in the country as a whole, the per cent of the total population living in electric lighted dwellings has increased from 15.9% in 1914 to 54.4% in 1926. This is evidence of the very rapid increase in domestic electrification.

Average Retail Lighting Rates

The average retail electric lighting rates for the country as a whole, as reported by the Electrical World, have decreased from 8.7 cents in 1913 to 7.5 cents in 1925. It is obvious that with increased efficiency of production lower costs to the consumer are made possible.

Urban Population Served by Electricity

The following shows that, with the exception of Virginia and West Virginia, the urban population in the northeastern states is more than 90% served with electricity. There is no way of ascertaining, however, what proportion of the population served is actually using electricity.

Per Capita Consumption of Current

Although these states show a relatively high proportion of the urban population served, the per capita consumption of electric current for lighting purposes (1) in the districts served is not remarkably high. Pennsylvania had a per capita consumption of 146 kilowatt hours in 1922 as compared with 149 kilowatt hours for the United States as a whole. In New Jersey the average consumption was only 76 kilowatt hours. The average consumption for New York, 166 kilowatt hours, though higher than other eastern states, was considerably lower than some of the far western states. Washington, which was highest, had an average consumption of 528 kilowatt hours.

(1) Includes domestic and commercial lighting, and domestic power.

Industrial Power Consumption

Table 19 shows the horsepower of installed power in manufacturing and mining establishments and electric railways. It includes the horsepower of motors run by purchased electric current, and is therefore some indication of the consumption of power by these three groups. Due, however, to the varying capacity factors, it cannot be considered an accurate measure.

If, however, we use the figures of kilowatt hours sold for light and power by central stations, the figures of total kilowatt hours output of electric railways, and the estimate of kilowatt hours generated in manufacturing and mining establishments, we can make the following estimate of consumption:

(Millions of kilowatt hours)

	New York	Pennsylvania	New Jersey
Manufacturing	5,460	8,225	1,874
Mining	80	1,792	26
Electric railways	2,317	1,008	258
Lighting (Domestic and commercial)	1,596	1,039	222
Total	9,453	12,064	2,380

Judging from these two sets of figures, it is probably safe to say that in New York from 65% to 70% of the power is consumed in manufacturing and the remainder by the electric railways. In Pennsylvania 65% to 75% is used in manufacturing, 15% to 25% for mining, and about 10% by electric railways. In New Jersey 75% to 85% is consumed in manufacturing, and the remainder by electric railways. In both New York and New Jersey, the consumption of power in mining is negligible.

The total estimated consumption of power is in each state considerably less than the estimated production,—in New York and Pennsylvania about one-tenth less and in New Jersey about one-sixth. This represents the difference in the figures of the Census of Central Stations for current generated and consumed. It is probably due to distribution and line losses.

The per capita consumption of current for power generated by central stations in 1922, based on the population of the districts served, varies much more than the consumption for light. The per capita consumption of current for power was 301 K.W.H. in New York, 255 K.W.H. in Pennsylvania and 137 K.W.H. in New Jersey. In Ohio it was 354 K.W.H., in Virginia 455 K. W. H., in West Virginia 737 K. W. H., and in Delaware, District of Columbia and Maryland 216 K. W. H. The New England states varied from 75 K. W. H. in New Hampshire to 343 K. W. H. in Vermont. As in the case of per capita consumption for light, the western states were on the whole ahead of the eastern, and show the extent to which development has already been possible.

Light and Power Customers of Central Stations

The consumption of current generated by central stations for light and power in the various states under consideration is shown in the following table. In New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania the ratio between consumption for power and light is about the same, approximately 2 to 1. Consumption for power is relatively much higher in Virginia and West Virginia, where the ratio is 4 to 1 and 5 to 1 respectively.

New York has the highest power consumption, with 2,900,000,000 kilowatt hours, Pennsylvania next with 1,310,000,000 K.W.H., and Ohio third (in this group of states), with 1,343,000,000 K.W.H.

Table 20 shows the very large number of domestic lighting customers of central stations as compared with commercial lighting customers or industrial power customers. In practically every case they constitute at least three quarters of the total number of customers. New York has the largest total number of customers, and also has the largest proportion of commercial lighting customers.

An indication of the wider distribution of electricity in these states is the fact that the per cent increase in domestic lighting customers was greater in cities of less than 25,000 population for all the states shown, with the exception of Pennsylvania and the New England states. In the United States as a whole, the increase was greater in the larger cities.

Data from Census

Figures for manufacturers, mines and electric railways include all primary horsepower installed, including rented.

"Total" represents the total primary power installed in manufacturing, mining, electric railways and central power stations. (Table 1).

Figures in parenthesis represent the per cent that horsepower installed for each industry, including rented, is of total primary horsepower.

THE BUDGET OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Executive Chamber

Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

January Thirty-first
Nineteen-Twenty-Seven

JOHN S. FISHER
Governor

To the Members of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:—

In compliance with Section 602 of the Act of Assembly of June 7, 1923, P. L. 498, I have the honor to submit herewith the Budget of the Commonwealth for the biennium beginning June 1, 1927, and ending May 31, 1929. The Budget is presented in two parts.

GENERAL FUND

The following is a comparison of the appropriations made from the General Assembly in 1921, 1923 and 1925 together with apparent deficiencies for 1925-1927, and the recommendations for 1927-29 (See pages 16,18-81):—

1925-23 Appropriations	.....	$117,603,456.
1923-25 Appropriations	.....	114,768,090.
1925-27 Appropriations	$120,696,789.	.....
Apparent Deficiencies 1927, for 1925-27 (See page 14)	2,883,251.	123,580,040.
Recommendations 1927-29	.....	128,536,418.

These appropriations, however, do not represent the total expenditures of the State Government as there are eighteen (18) Departmental Special Funds in the custody of the State Treasurer, at least four (4) Major Special Funds and a number of other Special Funds not in the custody of the State Treasurer (See pages 10-13, 136-174) used for the payment of salaries, expenses and administration of Departments. In addition there are Institutional Special Funds collected and expended by the State Owned Institutions without passing through the State Treasury.

RECEIPTS FOR THE USE OF THE GENERAL FUND AND FOR THE TWENTY-TWO (22) DEPARTMENTAL SPECIAL FUNDS ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(SCHEDULE "D", 4728

RECEIPTS	1921-23 Actual	1923-25 Actual	1925-27 Actual and Estimated	1927-29 Estimated
General Fund used only by authority of specific appropriations made by the General Assembly	$109,494,619	$136,262,878	$130,184,237	$130,036,756

Revenue and Receipts, actual and estimated, available for Administration of the State Government	$181,002,746	$212,220,512	$252,980,342	$237,342,346
Miscellaneous credits, refunds and receipts available for special purposes only	1,426,203	4,441,956	3,829,173	976,400
Total (See Schedule "D", page 4728)	$182,428,949	$216,662,468	$256,809,515	$238,318,746

INSTITUTIONAL SPECIAL FUNDS

The State Owned Educational and Welfare Institutions have accounts in various Pennsylvania banks in which the Institutions deposit funds collected by them from various sources. These collections are approximately $20,000,000 a biennium and are expended by the Institutions for operation, maintenance, repairs and other purposes, without passing through the State Treasury.

RECEIPTS AVAILABLE TO MEET GOVERNMENTAL EXPENDITURES

The receipts available for expenditures by the Agencies of the State Government from the General Fund and the twenty two (22) Departmental Special Funds amounted to nearly $253,000,000 in the 1925-27 biennium, which, added to the Institutional Special Funds of $20,000,000, made the receipts available $273,000,000. For the 1927-29 biennium the estimated receipts are $257,000,000.

The estimates of revenue and receipts as shown have been made by the Auditor General and the Collecting Agencies.

CUSTODIAN SPECIAL FUNDS

There are sixteen (16) Custodial Special Funds in the State Treasury in addition to the General Fund and the eighteen (18) Departmental Special Funds.

The State Treasurer had, on October 31, 1926, to the credit often of these funds:—

Cash in Treasury	$ 719,320.67
Investment Securities (par value)	53,027,136.20
Total		$53,746,456.87

PUBLIC DEBT OF THE COMMONWEALTH

The total Public Debt of the Commonwealth on October 31, 1926, was $98,046,320 divided as follows:—

Non Interest Bearing Debt and Matured Loans Unclaimed	$ 141,320.26
Interest Bearing Debt (Excluding Road Bonds)	17,000.00	$ 158,320.26
Outstanding Road Bonds of $100,000,000 Total Issue, Series "A" to "G" Inclusive		$97,888,000.00

SINKING FUND

The total Non Interest Bearing Debt and Matured Loans (unclaimed) together with the proceeds from the sale of Experimental Farm amounted to $158,320.26, and there were in the State Treasury on October 31, 1926, investment recurities and cash amounting to $215,423.83 or $57,103.57 more than the total debt of the Commonwealth, exclusive of Road Bonds.

It is recommended that this fund be adjusted by appropriation so that the Sinking Fund does not exceed the total of said debt.

STATE BOND ROAD SINKING FUND

State Road Bonds to the amount of $2,112,000 have been retired by payment from the Sinking Fund and there remained in the Treasury, October 31, 1926, cash and investment securities aggregating $4,778,429.88. It is estimated there will be in the Fund, May 31, 1927, $5,647,318.63. The estimated requirements for this Sinking Fund on May 31, 1927, are $7,097,331.21. There is, therefore, a deficiency of $1,450,012.58 and it is recommended that this amount be appropriated from the Motor License Fund so that the proper amount will be available to pay not only the interest charges when due, but also the loans at maturity.

It is estimated $14,076,052.88 will be necessary for interest and sinking fund requirements for the biennium 1927-29, and this amount is recommended to be appropriated from the Motor License Fund.

GENERAL FUND DEFICIENCIES

Apparent deficiencies in certain General Fund Appropriations aggregate $2,883,251.08, for the biennium 1925-27, and are presented in detail on Schedule "H", page 4734. Appropriations to cover these apparent deficiencies are recommended.

GENERAL FUND APPROPRIATIONS

General Fund appropriations for 1925-27 amounting to $120,441,992.21 and the appropriations by the 1926 Special Session of $254,797.70 total $120,696,789.91. For the biennium 1927-29, there is recommended $128,536,418.67, an increase of $7,839,628.76 over the previous biennium. There are, however, apparent deficiencies of $2,883,251.08 for the 1925-27 biennium.

The amount recommended for the ensuing biennium is the estimated General Fund receipts after taking into consideration the estimated balances in the Treasury and the estimated Appropriation Liability on June 1, 1927.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

In addition to the General Fund appropriation, 1925-27, of $2,680,000 there were funds available in the Departmental Special Funds of $1,728,816.73, or a total of $4,408,816.73 for the administration of the Department for the 1925-27 biennium.

The amount recommended from General Fund, 1927-29, is $2,866,000 which, together with the estimated available funds in the Departmental Special Funds of $1,649,860.36, will give the Department $4,515,860.36 for the biennium or an increase over the previous biennium of $107,043.63.

There is, also, the Milk Permit and License Special Fund, not in the custody of the State Treasurer, used by the Department.

Administration—General Fund

The recommendation for the general administration of the Department is the same as in the last biennium.

Japanese Bettle Control—General Fund

The sum of $100,000 was appropriated in the last biennium, and the same amount is recommended for the next biennium.

Control of Corn Borer—General Fund

In 1925, there was appropriated $15,000 to aid in the control of the Corn Borer. A portion of the Emergency appropriation of $100,000 made to the Department in 1925 was used for this work. For 1927-29, $100,000 is recommended.

Animal Indemnity—General Fund

In 1925, $1,799,000 was appropriated from the General Fund to pay owners of tubercular cattle. There is recommended $2,000,000 from the General Fund for 1927-29. Since July 1, 1918, the United States Government has appropriated $1,230,000 toward this work in addition to the amount paid by the State. For cattle destroyed during the biennium 1923-25, $550,000 was paid from the Dog Fund.

Bureau of Animal Industry—Dog Fund

The expenses of the Bureau of Animal Industry have been paid from the Dog Fund since June 1, 1923. This Bureau has had charge of the expenditure of money for indemnity for tubercular cattle, in addition to its various other duties. In 1925, there was appropriated from the Dog Fund $450,000 for enforcement of the Dog Law, $750,000 for expenses of the Bureau of Animal Industry and $300,000 for the payment of Animal Indemnity. The item for Animal Indemnity has not been used.

Special Funds

In addition to the appropriations from the General Fund, Special Funds for the use of the Department of Agriculture are as follows:—

Agriculture Beverage Fund,
Bureau of Markets Fund,
Dog Fund,
Experimental Agricultural Fund.

These are kept separate and apart in the State Treasury and, with the exception of the Dog Fund, are paid out without specific appropriation.

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

Funds for the support of the Department of Highways are obtained from Motor License Fees, Fines, Gasoline Tax, Local Aid, Federal Aid, Sale of Bonds, Interest on Deposits, etc.

Expenditures embrace the general administration of the Department including registration and control of motor vehicles, operation of the Highway Patrol, the building of highways and the payment of interest and sinking fund requirements on bond issues.

The Department of Highways has furnished the following statement of the State Bond Road Fund and the Motor License Fund showing the balances, receipts and expenditures, the encumbrances and the estimated unencumbered balances available for expenditure during the 1927-29 biennium.

Unencumbered Funds Available for Expenditure During the 1927-29 Biennium		$ 93,600,000

State Bond Road Fund

In the State Bond Road Fund there was a balance of $18,200,000 on June 1,1925. The actual and estimated revenues from June 1, 1925 to May 31, 1927, were $30,000,000 the proceeds from the sale of bonds; $7,800,000 Federal Aid; $8,000,000 Local Aid and $700,000 interest and miscellaneous receipts, making an available balance for expenditures of $64,700,000. The actual and estimated expenditures to May 31, 1927, are: Wages, fees, etc.. $2,500,000; building and construction of Highways, $56,800,000, leaving an estimated balance in the Treasury May 31, 1927, of $5,400,000. The estimated receipts in the biennium, 1927-29, from Federal Aid and Local Aid are $6,400,000, making funds available from these sources June 1, 1927 to May 31, 1929, $11,800,000, less deductions for contracts made previous to May 31, 1927, which are $5,000,000 under the Bond Aid Plan and $6,300,000 to complete the Primary System and carry out special written commitments, leaving unencumbered in the State Bond Road Fund for the biennium 1927-29 approximately $500,000.

Motor License Fund

On June 1, 1925, the cash balance was $4,300,000. There were actual and estimated receipts June 1, 1925 to May 31, 1927, for Motor License Fees, $48,800,000; Gasoline Tax, $15,400,000; Local Aid, $3,100,000; Federal Aid, $300,000; Miscellaneous Receipts, $1,400,000, or a total of $73,300,000.

There were actual and estimated expenditures for the biennium 1925-27, Sinking Fund and interest charges $10,800,000 and all other expenses $41,500,000, or a total of $52,300,000, leaving an estimated balance in the Treasury May 31, 1927, of $21,000,000. There are, however, an estimated deficiency in the State Bond Road Sinking Fund of $1,450,000; an unexpended balance of the 1925 State Aid Highway Construction appropriation of $2,150.000 and proposed projects of $3,650,000, leaving an unencumbered balance in the Motor License Fund on May 31, 1927, of $13,750,000.

e estimated receipts for the biennium 1927-29 are: r License Fees $57,800,000; Gasoline Tax (if the one tax is re-enacted) $20,000,000; Local Aid $7,150,000; ral Aid $6,600,000; Miscellaneous Receipts $1,900,000; ng total receipts for the biennium $93,450,000, or total cumbered funds for the biennium, 1927-29, of $107,200,- less deductions for interest charges and Sinking Fund, 29, of $14,100,000 or a balance for administration, main- ıce, replacement and construction, of $93,100,000.

ere is, however, a difference in the estimates on Gasoline Receipts between the Auditor General, who estimates 75,000, and the Highway Department, which estimates 00,000.

ese estimates of receipts and expenditures, except in- t and sinking fund requirements, are as submitted by rior Administration.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

e sum of $70,292,588 is recommended for the Depart- of Public Instruction for administration, support of the c schools, teachers' salaries, teachers' retirement, Nor- Schools, Colleges and Universities, Boards, Institutions, for all other purposes. This is an increase of $6,505,- 4 over the appropriation of the previous biennium.

propriations for the same purposes in 1925 were $63,- 64,06, and there is an apparent deficiency of $1,404,000, ng a total of $65,190,764,06 for the 1925-27 biennium. the total recommended for 1927-29 and to the total ap- riation plus deficiency for 1925-27, there may be added ral Aid for Vocational Education and Industrial Re- ltation of approximately $1,000,000 and the Institution- ecial Funds of approximately $10,000,000.

Administration

e recommendation for 1927-29 is a decrease of $73,584, the last biennium.

Library and Museum

increase of $20,000 is recommended for the adminis- on of this Division.

is important work has been restricted for several years he new appropriation will bring it close to the amount priated in 1921.

School Subsidies

e recommendation for 1927-29 is a decrease from the ous biennium of $802,000. The amount recommended s salaries of County and Assistant County Superin- nts and their expenses, reimbursement of school dis- for special training, transportation, consolidated ls, state scholarships, Cornplanter Indians, children d by order of courts, and vocational education, etc.

Teachers' Salaries

e 1921-23 appropriation was $22,583.000 and there was ciency of $3,441.000, or a total of $26,024,000; the 1923- propriation, $38,803,246 and the 1925-27 appropriation 0,000. There is a deficiency of $1,319,000, making the amount for 1925-27, $43,229,000.

1927-29, $45,000,000 is recommended, which, it is be- , should be sufficient.

TATISTICS OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS, JUNE 30, 1925

nrollment	1,830,748
rs	53,696
f School Property	$384,200,000

School Employes' Retirement System

Statement September 18, 1919 to October 31, 1926:

RECEIPTS

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania	$12,760,000
Local School Districts	12,070,000
Contributions of School Employes	15,840,000
Interest on Investments etc.	4,820,000
Premiums on Sale of Securities, etc.	90,000
Total	$45,580,000

DISBURSEMENTS AND BALANCES

Disability Retirements	2,270,000
Refund to Contributors	3,100,000
Premiums on Securities Purchased,	1,340,000
Accrued Interest on Securities Purchased	420,000
Sundry Expenditures	10,000
Cash on Deposit with State Treasurer	210,000
Investment Securities Held by State Treasurer	38,230,000
Total	$45,580,000

In addition to the $38,400,000 invested and in the Treasury on October 31, 1926, it is estimated there will be a net gain by May 31, 1927, of $5,100,000, or $43,500,000 to the credit of the System at the beginning of next biennium.

In the biennium 1927-29 the estimated receipts are as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania	$5,500,000
Local School Districts	5,500,000
Contributions of School Employes	7,300,000
Interest on Investments, etc.	5,300,000
Total	$23,600,000

Estimating expenditures for retirements and refunds at $4,000,000, the net surplus would be $19,600,000 for the biennium. The estimated funds in the System would, therefore, be increased to $63,100,000 at the end of the 1927-29 biennium.

There are approximately 61,000 school employes contributing to this Fund.

At the last session of the Legislature provisions were made to add to the eligible list teachers not formerly included in the Retirement System, and $75,000 was appropriated for this purpose. The fund was not sufficient and there are deficiency requests of $85,000 to May 31, 1927. The amount recommended for 1927-29 is $192,500.

Educational Institutions (State Aided)

The six (6) State Aided Educational Institutions has appropriations in 1923-25 of $256,000, and in 1925-27 of $286,000. There is recommended for 1927-29, $315,000.

Educational Institutions (State Owned)

The four (4) State Owned Educational Institutions received $399,500 and $10,000 for a deficiency, or $409,500 in 1923-25.

In 1925-27 this was increased to $623,500. There is recommended for 1927-29, $605,000.

Colleges and Universities

Note: The above amount of $2,080,500 is recommended for maintenance, immediate repairs, improvements and new construction for all the Medical and Surgical Hospitals (State Owned) for the biennium 1927-29.

The Governor will later recommend specific amounts for each Hospital, when separate bills may be presented for consideration by the General Assembly.

This procedure is necessary to allow the Governor sufficient time to study in detail the individual needs of the several Hospitals.

The Administrative Code requires the Governor to submit the Budget not later than four weeks after the organization of the General Assembly; consequently, he had less than two weeks from the time of his inauguration to study the separate Budget requests.
